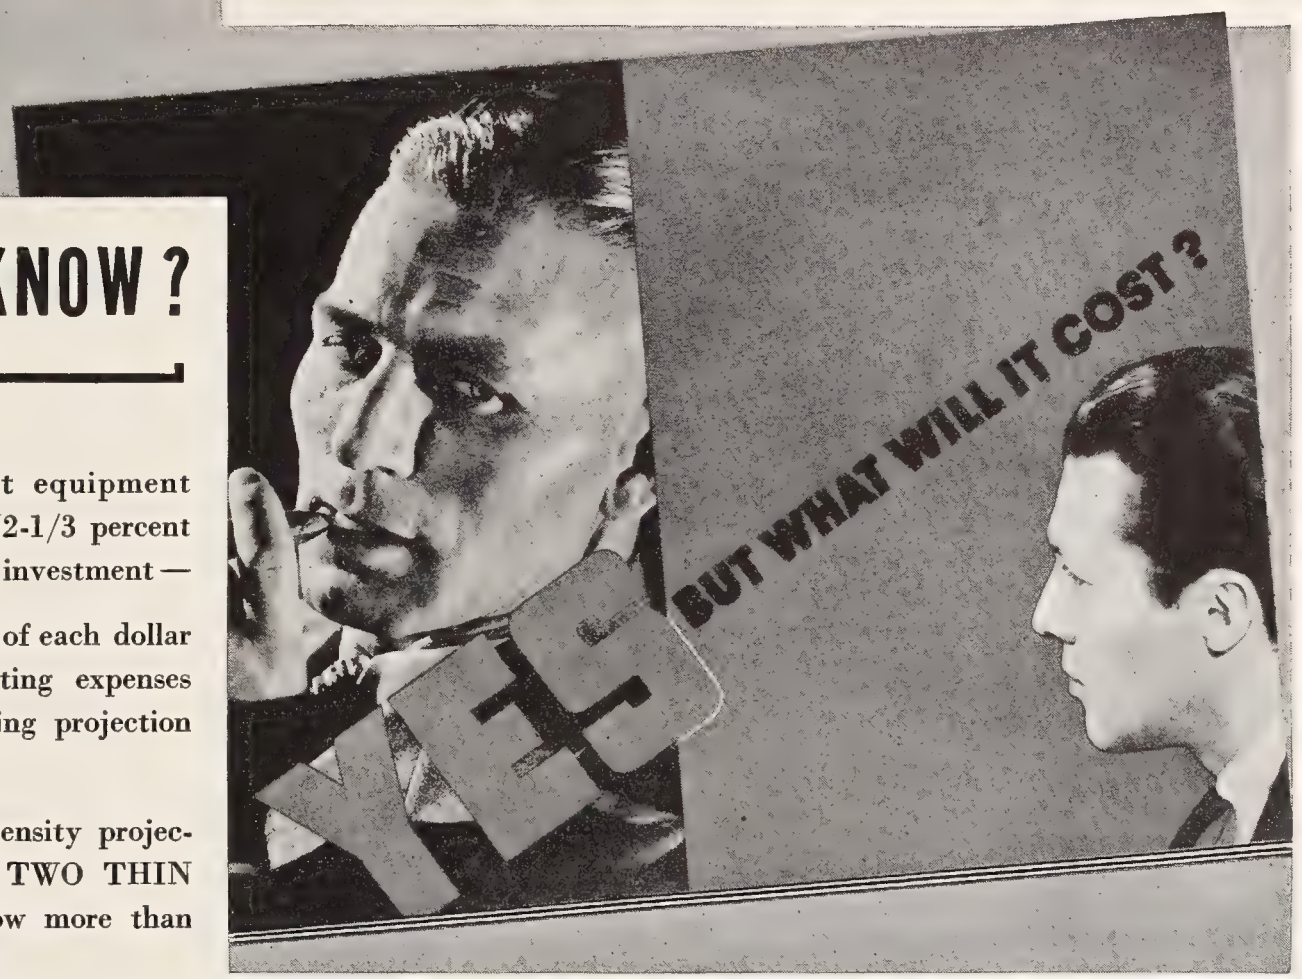
maximum size is 4,000 watts, but this method of dimming has the advantage of being able to control any load up to the maximum. Another advantage is the freedom from heat problems.



Thyratron-Reactor Dimmers

With Thyratron-reactor control, the actual dimming is accomplished by the saturable core reactor in series with the load. The reactor has two windings, one in series with the alternating current load, the other to be activated by direct current. When no direct current is flowing, the alternating current is "choked" and no current flows to the load. As direct current, up to a few per cent of the main load is applied to the d.c. winding, the lamps brighten accordingly. The thyratron tube control acts as a rectifier to supply direct current to control the reactor; it in turn is controlled by a small resistance or solenoid pilot.

Proportional dimming is provided, assuring relative dimming of all circuits from any given brightness to black-out. A reactor will dim proportionately any load down to one-fourth of its rated capacity. Loads of any size may be accommodated. Reactors can be readily placed in the most convenient locations and the small pilot control placed at the most convenient point such as in the booth or manager's office. No heat problems are experienced because energy is not used up in resistances, but is controlled.

AN ANALYSIS OF THE SURPRISINGLY LOW COST AND THE ECONOMIES AND ADDED PROFIT MADE POSSIBLE BY SIMPLIFIED HIGH INTENSITY PROJECTION

that projection light equipment represents only 2-1/3 percent of total theater investment — that only 2-1/5 cents of each dollar spent for operating expenses goes for producing projection light — that modern high intensity projection costs only TWO THIN DIMES per show more than low intensity — that Simplified High Intensity projection is a profit making, self-liquidating investment.

Get this interesting analysis of the COST, ECONOMIES and PROFIT POSSIBILITIES of modern motion picture projection. Your dealer's salesman will leave a copy with you if you ask him.

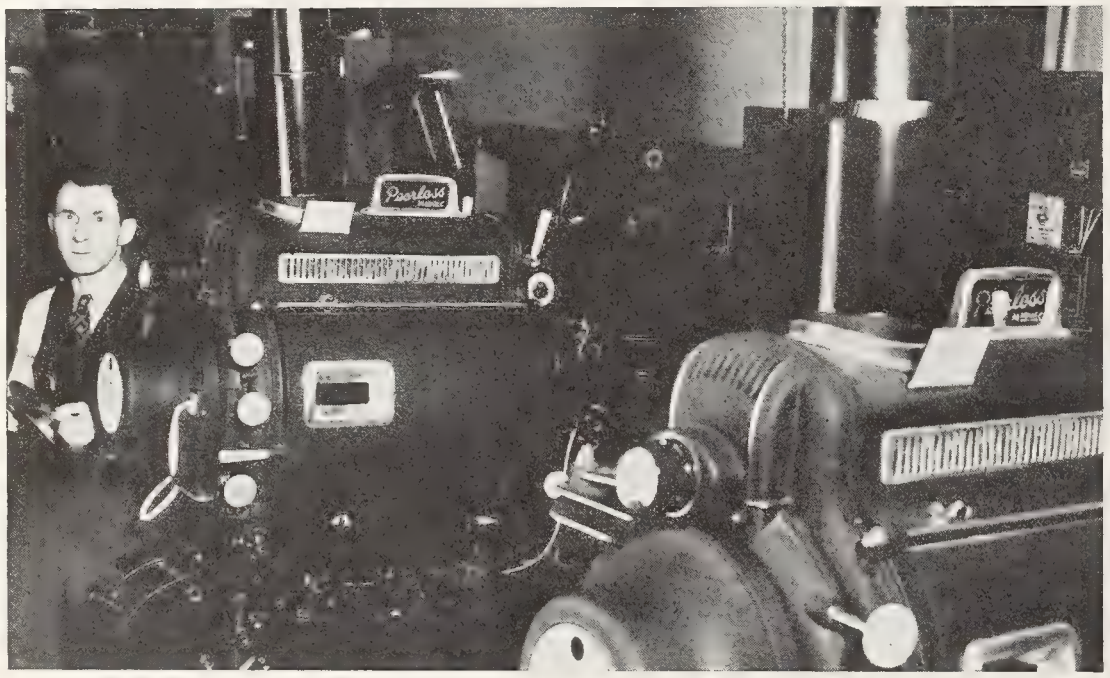
COMMENT ON PROJECTION AFFAIRS

and answers to inquiries . . . By F. H. RICHARDSON

A PROPOSAL THAT ALL PRINTS BE ISSUED MOUNTED IN REVERSE

I AM submitting a suggestion upon which I should like to have comment from readers. It comes from W. Lee Beckley, projectionist at the Spencer theatre in Minneapolis, and I think it merits full consideration. Writes Friend Lee:

"In a very large proportion of theatres, special reels are provided for use in projection. All theatres should be thus equipped, since reels upon which prints are received often are of such flimsy character, or in such wretched condition, that if employed for projection, serious damage may and probably will be inflicted upon the prints.



"If projection room reels are used exclusively for projection, then the prints must not only be wound upon one of them, but again rewound, since they will be in reverse, which latter represents unnecessary wear and tear upon the prints, as well as consumption of time and energy. If properly done, rewinding a 7,000-foot program consumes a lot of time. If improperly done (excessive speed) it inflicts considerable damage.

"And now to my suggestion, which is submitted merely as an idea for brother projectionists to consider and comment upon in accordance with their own views. As matters now stand, prints are received mounted ready for projection without rewinding. However, experience has demonstrated that it is unsafe to project them without inspection, which necessitates two rewindings.

"My suggestion is that exchanges send out all prints mounted in reverse. Upon receipt, the projectionist may then rewind them upon the projection room reels, taking care of inspection during the process, or upon an extra reel if projection room reels are not provided, whereupon they are ready for safe projection.

"At present many place the exchange reel in the upper magazine for first projection, with a projection room reel in the lower magazine. This gains nothing, unless inspection be discarded, which of course would set up a hazard. So far as I know the plan I propose has never heretofore been advanced. If you feel it has sufficient merit, will you place it before the rest of the fellows for consideration and comment."

This I gladly do, since, so far as I am able to see, it has real merit, with few if any objections. Of course, if adopted a warning should be pasted on each reel until the men become accustomed to receiving prints mounted in reverse, reading: Warning: "This print must be rewound before projection."

Paul Hale, projectionist of the Novo theatre in Cumberland, Ky. (the subject of a feature article elsewhere in this issue), with some of the equipment he works with. Projectors are Simplex, sound Mirrophonic, lamps Peerless Magnarc, and rectification by General Electric copper oxide rectifiers.

PUSH-PULL PRINTS NEED SPECIAL HEADS

H. W. SPURRIER, projectionists of Grenfell, Saskatchewan, has had some push-pull difficulty which he describes as follows:

"Read your articles and have the fifth edition of the Bluebook. But the new push-pull prints have me stumped. The old style track reproduces good sound, but with push-pull, after trying everything I know, there still is fuzzy sound. I have changed the film guide over the sound drum, reset and checked exciter lamps, but still the sound is not clear. We use various soundheads on nine different projectors. Use three different kinds of emplifier. All produce the same results.

"Installed four new Zenith machines, complete with mazda light sources, last year. Have five theatres in small towns. Does one need some sort of new photocell or sound lens for this new track?"

Your fifth edition Bluebook is eleven years old and very many changes have been made in that time. Bluebooks are reissued in new, largely changed editions about every five years. Projectionists and theatre managers should keep up to date in such text books. It is highly important that they do so and costs only about one dollar a year.

Push-pull prints cannot be reproduced properly unless the soundheads are designed for push-pull, which is obviously not the case in this instance. The remedy is either to modify or replace the heads, or else to ask the exchanges not to send push-pull prints.

For modification details it will be necessary to consult the sound equipment manufacturer, who may or may not be able to supply the necessary modifying equipment for the heads in question.

COMMENT FROM ALASKA ON THEATRES AND UNIONS

MARION B. STOUT, of Petersburg, Alaska, recently wrote asking advice as to certain sound equipment troubles, which was duly forwarded, together with a request for such informative data as Mr. Stout might be able to supply regarding projection in that distant appendage of these United States. He replies:

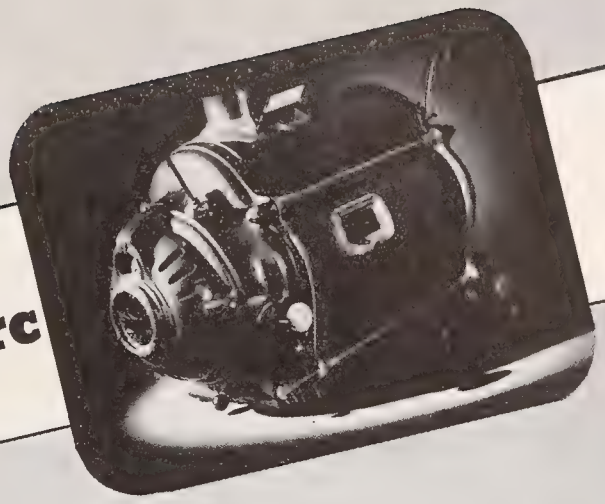
"The suggestions as to amplifier trouble proved to be correct. However, after writing you I found the answer to my trouble in the Bluebook. Just had not studied it carefully enough.

"Your letter did supply a lot of help and the necessary courage to go ahead. We use Simplex projectors, Universal sound equipment, and rectifiers instead of M.G. sets.

"The theatres in southeastern Alaska, which is the island group are all owned by one man. He has theatres in Ketchikan, Wrangell, Petersburg, Juneau, Douglas, Sitka and Haines. He has competition in Ketchikan and Juneau, the two largest towns. There is one independent house at Skagway. The theatres of interior and West Coast Alaska also are all owned by one man.

"Here we run one show daily, starting at 8 p.m., also a Saturday and Sunday matinee. I am not sufficiently informed to make statements concerning theatrical affairs in the interior. I have never been there. Admission prices here are, adults, 40c.; youths, 25c., and children, 15c.; which prices prevail all over southeastern Alaska. In the interior they are, I understand, a trifle higher.

"There is no projectionist union in Alaska. After reading of the doings on the West Coast I feel thankful for that. I was advised recently that it costs $300 to join the union in one city in Oregon, with a very mild examination. It seems to me that should be turned around—a really competent examination to be passed before an applicant is received into membership, with a reduction in admission fee to applicants able to demonstrate superior ability in both practical and technical knowledge."



Mr. Stout's last remarks contain plenty of food for thought. However, though faults and shortcomings they may have, it must be admitted by all observent persons old enough to have seen conditions before unions had general influence, that unions have performed a service of high value. There is small question that were unions disbanded tomorrow, we would all very soon be extremely sorry—and when I say all, I mean just that.

No human agency is free from fault, but faults may be remedied, and the sooner unions remedy those now existent in their operations, the better it will be for all concerned, including themselves. I have been a union man ever since 1884; I am thoroughly loyal to trade unionism, but highly desirous of seeing its imperfections remedied.

I thank Mr. Stout for his interesting letter.

running too hot. Is there any method by means of which its exact condition may be ascertained?

"Also, can you suggest any manner in which the exact minimum aperture tension may be ascertained, and the springs set to meet that exact requirement?

"I feel certain a great many projectionists will appreciate any answer you may be able to give to those questions. The excellent and very practical method you suggested some years ago of speeding up the projector to test tension, and setting the same so that the picture was steady at 10 feet above maximum speed, is no longer available for the reason that all projector speed now is fixed at 90 feet of film per minute and speeding up can no longer be accomplished.

"May I add that for years I have profited immensely by your work in BETTER THEATRES and in your Bluebook. Projectionists, theatre people and, in fact, the whole industry owe the Quigley Publishing Company a very great deal for having enabled you to carry your work forward."

Please accept my thanks for your kindly approval. I have tried to do what seemed best for all concerned. . . . And now to your questions:

Yes, it is quite possible to take temperature reading of moving parts with accuracy, provided they be of such dimensions or character that they can be made to lose their temperature slowly. Taking a commutator, for example, obtain a reliable thermometer and, using care, cut away all metal parts surrounding the mercury bulb. Hang the instrument for a time as close as possible to some part of the machine that approximates the commutator temperature. This is merely to warm up the bulb until the rise or drop in communtator temperature will be as little as possible, thus considerably reducing the time element.

Get a ball of very stiff putty, such as window glazers use. It may be had from almost any ten-cent store. If is is too soft, mix in ordinary spanish whiting, procurable from any paint store; a dime's worth will serve. Warm the putty to as nearly the commutator temperature as you can and, after the whole machine has reached full normal working temperature, bed the thermometer bulb in a small ball of the putty, then stop the generator and bed the putty ball upon the commutator (preferably, though not necessarily, in an upright position) so that the ball contacts the metal. You might also wrap several thicknesses of soft cloth around the commutator to retard radiation of its heat. Within two or three minutes, at most, the reading should be at least very closely the correct operating temperature of the commutator.

The surface of the commutator contacting the putty must afterward be wiped thoroughly clean. No harm will be done the commutator.

I referred this answer to Mr. John Hertner, president of the Hertner Electric Company, who replied, "Your plan for getting commutator temperatures is excellent. It may be in order to say that about this time of the year we usually receive complaints of this character. A test of the kind you have outlined will almost invariably show the commutator not to be over-heated. When a piece of metal at 120° F., or even higher, is touched by moist fingers, it will feel very hot, yet the rise above room temperature still is well within permissible limits."

As to the matter of aperture tension matter, it is indeed important. Some months ago, realizing that the old plan you speak of was no longer available, I took the matter up with a manufacturer thoroughly competent to handle such things, asking that the minimum pull of intermittent sprockets which would insure a steady picture, insofar as tension is concerned, be ascertained, and that some instrument sufficiently low in cost to be available to all theatres, be devised, by the use of which projectionists could set the tension exactly to that requirement. This manufacturer agreed to go into the Effect of Film Chemicals on Teeth

Harold Stuker, chief projectionist for the Valuskis Corporation, writes from Buena Park, Calif., warning against dampening the emulsion with the tongue in making splices. He says:

"The projectionist who taught me always moistened the emulsion with his tongue when making a splice, so naturally I did the same, with the result that the nitrate gradually removed the calcium from ten of my teeth. This is going to cost me a total of $17 per tooth, or several weekly pay checks. Seems you might well warn projectionists to avoid this practice. My dentist is willing to forward a written statement of the damage and its cause, if you wish."

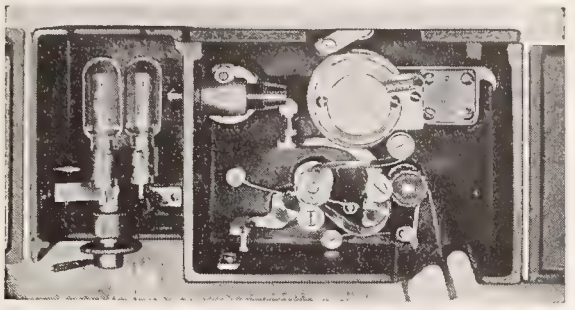
So far as I can remember, this is the first report made to me of such an occurrence. I consulted the dental department of the Cornell Medical Center in New York City regarding the possibility of such damage being inflicted in this manner, and have the following reply from Maxwell Karshan, associate professor of biological chemistry:

"Responding to your request, I have made a number of tests to determine whether or not such film as is used in theatres contains any element that might act on the teeth in the manner described by Mr. Stuker. These tests failed to show that saliva or water can extract anything from the films that might result in withdrawal of calcium from the teeth. You may use this information as you see fit."

matter, but asked that the company not be named so as not to cause needless correspondence. I have just been advised that the work is being carried forward. Meanwhile, I know of no reliable method of setting aperture tension.

SOME FACTS ABOUT FILM — AND ENGINEERS !

AT THE LAST Summer meeting of the Porjection Practice Committee of the SMPE, the engineers took advantage of my enforced absence (so it would seem, at any rate) and allowed their serious deliberations upon motion picture technology to "degenerate" into quite a party. However, it was all very intellectual, I learn; in fact, the only reason I mention it here is that a couple of curious characteristics of film were brought out.



It all started, as I understand it, by someone asking how large a screen would be required if all the images of a feature film were cut out and placed in rows upon the screen surface. A whimsical question, it appears, but it got some interesting results, principally through the good and strikingly competent offices of Dr. Alfred N. Goldsmith, past-president of the Society. Doctor Goldsmith calculated that the total area of all the picture images on the film is approximately equal to the superficial area of the screen. How do you figure it? By multiplying the width and height of the image by the number of frames per foot and by the number of feet in the average feature, which average is said to be 660 feet. This calculation will show that there are 363 square feet of images on the film. Now a screen image measuring 22x16.5 feet, has a total area of 363 feet.

Then someone wanted to know if it would be possible, in a simple way, to relate magnification to the length of the feature film or to some similar factor. Again Doctor Goldsmith jumped to the rescue of this troubled mind and came up with this.

Dividing the area of the screen image 22x16.5 feet by the area of the image on the film, one finds the area of magnification—105,000. Next, multiply the number of frames per foot by the length of the average feature film, which has been taken as 6,600 feet, one also gets 105,000. Therefore, for the average feature-length film the area of magnification is approximately equal to the number of frames in the film.

And just by way of demonstrating the even serious-minded engineers can go temporarily "screwy" if you give them a chance, someone suggested that motoring be made more interesting by placing printed englargements of feature film images along the highway, so that the people in the automobile would get the effect of a motion picture in passing. It was figured out that in order to achieve the illusion, the motorist would have to trvael at a speed of 450 miles per hour.

Pleased Patrons and Showmen asked...

"WHAT SOUND EQUIPMENT IS THAT?"

THE NEW ROSCO, CHICAGO, ILL.

At the opening of the Rosco on April 16th, patrons as well as visiting exhibitors were loud in their praise of the picture presentation. Exhibitors, particularly, are reported to have readily admitted that they had seldom heard such clarity of sound anywhere at any time. Several of the showmen present had already played the same picture in their own theatres and were thus able to judge by comparison the fine presentation at the new Rosco.

IT'S A SMASH AT THE BOX-OFFICE!

Good news from everywhere. Los Angeles Day & Date engagement at Chinese and State biggest at both theatres since "Test Pilot" with extra performance necessary at each one to handle crowds. Capitol, N. Y. beats "Three Comrades" and held for 2nd Week.

Week-end openings in 27 key cities (mostly rainy!) all doing from 125% to 160% of normal business, including Waterbury, Reading, Wilmington, Worcester, Houston, Atlanta, Richmond, Harrisburg, New Orleans, Kansas City, Hartford, Providence.

As we go to press 13 single bill situations doing sensational business!

And how those HARDYS are growing! Wait 'till you compare the business of "LOVE FINDS ANDY HARDY" with "Judge Hardy's Children." More than double at Hartford, St. Louis, Philadelphia, Atlanta, Houston, Nashville and beating "Captains Courageous" in 13 of the first 27 key city engagements.

Small town business absolutely phenomenal! For instance at random, Tom's River, N. J. beats "Test Pilot," "Rosalie," "Double Wedding," "Saratoga" and "Maytime." In York, Pa.; Hazelton, Pa.; Stroudsburg, Pa.; Beach Haven, N. J. and other small towns it leads four out of those five comparative Big Ones!

Just the beginning! Get on the bandwagon and ride right up to the bank!

The Government Action

By Martin Quigley

I

THE action brought by the Department of Justice against the eight major motion picture companies presages consequences unparalleled in importance in the history of the industry.

The suit is intended to effect "the restoration of free enterprise and open competion amongst all branches of the motion picture industry" through the revision of trade practices and by other means.

That some of these practices are due—if not in fact long overdue—for revision and adjustment is disputed by few. The recently constituted Kent committee has already entered upon a program intended as a study of trade practices in light of existing conditions which would eventually lead to such rearrangements as the exigencies of the business permit.

IT must be recognized that existing trade practices are pioneer paths cut through a wilderness. They have grown up apace with the meteoric rise of the industry of motion pictures, a business which in various of its essentials is unique with respect to any other business. It has not been possible for the business of motion pictures to find much of precedent or guidance in the record and performance of other businesses. The prevailing trade practices have been contrived and evolved in face of times and conditions during the swift growth of an industry which within a single generation rose from the lowly status of a penny arcade device to the lofty estate of an industry of vast economic and social importance.

It must also be recognized that however and for whatever reason many of these trade practices came about there have been continuing complaints against them. Many firms and individuals have been seen struggling desperately against difficulties which they have imposed. Only an exhaustive and impartial inquiry can determine in what measure the complaints have been justified and in what measure their plight has been due to the failure of their own efforts and the consequences inescapably associated with competitive enterprise.

All indications have for some time pointed to the need of an overhaul of trade practices and arrangements looking to that end are the announced purposes of the Kent committee. Doubtlessly it would have been desirable if at present intra-industry conference had already made measurable progress toward compromise and conciliation, but it probably will be more generally appreciated in the long run that the problems, which at first blush seem to admit of quick and easy solution, present upon longer and more intimate acquaintanceship a wide variety of perplexing difficulties.

THE pending action by the anti-trust authorities of the government against the film companies which constitute such an important part of the American industry presents an opportunity and a responsibility for all interests and all persons in the business. The incident naturally creates stress and uncertainty which is an atmosphere not conducive to constructive operation in any business. The uncertainty of it is gravely emphasized in the fact that the government's objectives in this case are at several points diametrically opposed to what but a few years ago the same national administration required under the National Industrial Recovery Act. The Blue Eagle has been metamorphosed into a bird of different feather.

It is the declared intention of the government "to encourage and not to retard the development and orderly operation of the motion picture industry." Such an intention may be heartily concurred in and cooperated with by every sensible and constructive person in the business. Such concurrence and cooperation will hasten the advent of more equitable and sounder business relationships within the industry. In the meantime such an attitude will do much to facilitate currently the orderly operation of the business and protect it from mud-slinging and selfish harassment.

Unfortunately there are persons in this and every other industry of scope who are neither sensible nor constructive. These may be depended upon to assume the role of trouble-maker which is so congenial to them. But with the continued success and prosperity of a great industry at stake we hope it may rightly be assumed that the predominating attitude everywhere will be such as to make easy the way toward a right and equitable solution of the problems presented.

The Department of Justice in instituting this anti-trust proceeding against the eight major companies released a statement of challenging importance. The statement is thoroughly comprehensive in its objectives. The American motion picture industry, reformed to meet these objectives, would hardly be recognizable. It is probably reasonable to assume that the prosecution in this case, in keeping with usual practice, has set up formally a goal which represents a point at some generous distance beyond that which it really expects to reach.

II

THE pros and cons of the several government objectives will of course be ventilated in great detail in the months ahead. One of the objectives set forth, which is described as an economic effect of the system of control which is alleged to prevail in the industry, is so curiously worded and so pregnant with implications as to create particular interest. It reads as follows:

"There is no opportunity for new forms of artistic expression which are not approved by those in control of major companies, even though there exist communities which would support them."

It will be interesting to learn eventually just what the Department of Justice is driving at here. It does not seem possible that complaint is made that the eight major companies

During Altercations

Having had a week to study and consider the voluminous Government dossier of complaint against and proposed reform by litigation of trade practices the motion picture industry settled down to business as usual during altercations. Specifically, Sidney R. Kent, speaking for the distributor group who recently have been concentrating on organizing machinery for negotiation with exhibitor organizations with a view toward formulating a definite program of trade practice self regulation, said that plans already undertaken will be continued, pointing out, however, that the questions raised in the Government petition in equity will require a careful reexamination of the problems involved.

Action in the Government suit proceeded little beyond the actual announcement and filing recorded last week. Industry leaders speculated on the advantages or disadvantages of agreeing to a consent decree in the case and pointed out that the court battle, what with the customary preliminary delays and skirmishes, hardly can get under way within six months with an equal or longer subsequent period of court debate. Washington observers believed the suit was a move by the Government in the mood of a "war to end war."

Complete coverage of these aspects of the news is provided in the story starting on page 14. The complete text of the Government's complaint filed in the New York district federal court last week starts on page 47, pictures and thumbnail biographies of the Department of Justice staff members who will conduct the case are on page 17, and extracts from editorial comment of newspapers throughout the country are on page 18.

The Government Action . . . . by Martin Quigley

have been indifferent toward novelty treatments in the motion picture medium. It must be known that only during recent months one of the defendant companies, RKO, released "Snow White," which has received world-wide acclaim as a distinctly new form of artistic expression.

There is also a seeming lack of logic in this complaint. It could hardly be expected that the executives in control of these companies would be expected to create opportunities for either new or old forms of artistic expression of which they would not approve. No intelligent institution, including the Department of Justice, could be expected to create opportunities for policies which are not approved by those in control. Anything else is stupid if not vicious mismanagement.

THE argument, if reference is made to the business of entertainment, is also cloudy when it imputes to these major companies such commercial shortsightedness as to fail to supply pictures which certain "communities" would support.

Speculation inevitably arises on account of this paragraph as to whether the Department of Justice has lent attentive ear to those groups—not communities—which wish to have the entertainment screen perverted from its avowed purposes of entertainment and enlisted in the service of the propagandists who wish to use the medium of great public favor for the propagation of some particular set of notions about social, political and economic reform.

On the surface the paragraph seems to say nothing intelligible. A casual glimpse between the lines makes rather plain that what it is all about is in reality a complaint that there has been no opportunity afforded by the companies concerned to those who wish to have their notions of political, social and economic reform masquerade upon the theatre screen as entertainment.

At this point the Department of Justice seems to have embarked upon an unexpected course in seeking to tell the industry what kind of subject matter it must produce, an objective which enjoys the sanction of the rule in the totalitarian regimes but appears nowhere that we have ever heard of in the laws or the democratic traditions of these United States.

Among the many vitally serious implications of the government's proceeding, several of which must be heartily welcomed as serving eminently constructive purposes, here is one well calculated to create deep concern as to just what influences may be active in the shadowy background of its conception and promotion.

U. S. Project Probe Asked

An investigation of the Federal Theatre and Writers Projects by the Dies Committee created by the House of Representatives to study unAmerican and subversive activities will be demanded by Representative J. Parnell Thomas, Republican, of New Jersey, a member of the committee. Mr. Thomas announced his intention to demand an investigation of the two projects as a result of testimony given before him at informal hearings conducted in New York, preliminary to the opening of the full committee's investigation August 11th in Washington.

Mr. Thomas also announced that he would demand appearance before the full committee of Mrs. Hallie Flanagan, national director of the theatre project in charge of production, to answer questions concerning charges of Communistic activities of the project. Mr. Thomas said she would be asked to explain why applicants for jobs in the project must first join the Workers Alliance, which he characterized as a Communist organization. "It is apparent from the startling evidence thus far," said Mr. Thomas, "that the Federal Theatre Project not only is serving as a branch of the communistic organization but also is one more link in the vast and unparalleled New Deal propaganda machine."

Theatre Tickets

Contracts establishing a code of fair practices for legitimate theatre ticket sales were signed Tuesday by Actors Equity Association and the League of New York Theatres, representing the performers and the producing managers respectively. The agreement will become effective September 1st and will remain in force for a year. It specifies that at least 25 percent of the seats in individual theatres be made available at the box-office at established prices; that no orchestra seat may be sold through a broker for more than the box-office price, and no balcony seat for more than 50 cents, plus tax, over the box-office price. An enforcement fund for the agreement will be maintained by a five-cent levy on every ticket sold through a broker.

Evolution of Genius

A quarter of a century after Irving Berlin was first acclaimed king of Tin Pan Alley his gift for bringing joy and lilt of a blithe spirit into a troubled world still retains its original freshness, originality and fascination. The treasury of popular melody which he has accumulated in that time has formed the nucleus and motif of a new Twentieth Century-Fox triumph, "Alexander's Ragtime Band."

Joseph O'Sullivan elucidates the role of Irving Berlin and his music on page 32.

Universal Financing

Additional financing, said to involve between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000, was negotiated for Universal's production program through General Film Distributors, Universal's associates in Great Britain, during a six-week visit to England by J. Cheever Cowdin, chairman of the Universal Board of directors, he announced when he arrived in New York Tuesday aboard the Ile de France. The new capital is being made available immediately and in return Universal has pledged its foreign receipts to C. M. Woolf, head of GFD, and associates, beginning with the new releasing season and continuing until the amount is paid off. Mr. Cowdin, in an official statement said he had concluded a new distribution agreement with GFD "for a long period of years on a much more satisfactory basis for both."

The statement added that his associates in Great Britain "had arranged for a very large sum of money to be placed at the company's disposal for a substantial length of time, which will enable next year's program to be strengthened still further."

On the day of Mr. Cowdin's arrival in New York, Universal announced that during the next three months it will have nine top-budget productions in work as well as six other films and two serials. The completion this week of the "Road to Reno," the statement continued, "tapers off the big production drive that began with the advent of Cliff Work as studio head."

Box Office Stimulant

Plans for the launching of a nationwide advertising, publicity and exploitation campaign to stimulate interest in motion pictnres were outlined Wednesday when some 300 industry representatives, including about 90 delegates from independent circuits, gathered in the Hotel Astor, New York. George Schaefer, chairman of the distributors' campaign committee, and Howard Dietz, chairman of the advertising and publicity committee, explained that with a budget of $1,000,000 the drive is expected to bring an added $20,000,000 into the box office during the fall and winter.

A report of the meeting and details of the campaign plans are on page 29.

Radio Reunion

Independent radio stations affiliated with networks, alarmed at the investigation of network operations by the Federal Communications Commission will send representatives to a meeting in Chicago August 16th to discuss and possibly bring about the reorganization of their disbanded organization, the Independent Radio Network Affiliates.

Scooped by Press

Newspaper cameramen scooped the motion picture newsreels Tuesday night—although it was no fault of the reels—in filming the actual death leap of John W. Warde, 25 years old, from the 17th floor of New York's Gotham Hotel, where, for 11 hours Warde, standing precariously on the ledge had defied rescue attempts and entreaties of friends, police and firemen.

It was one of the most dramatic run-of-the-day news stories to be covered by press and newsreels in many a month, but darkness defeated attempts of newsreel editors to film the climax. They had placed 15 cameras on the spot.

Police had forbidden the newsreels to mount lights in advance or light the flares that were necessary in the darkness to film Warde's jump, for fear of further aggravating him as he stood 200 feet above the street on the ledge. After the jump they could not, of course, expose lights in time to catch any part of the descent, but they later filmed the victim lying dead in the street. However, from among the army of still photographers there were enough on the alert to catch the actual dramatic action with hand flashes, International News, New York Daily News, Associated Press and Acme getting pictures.

Pictorially and reportorially, it was one of the most widely covered stories of the year, officials observing that practically every cameraman and reporter in New York, on duty or off, was on hand to watch the suicide that was in the making the while four newspaper editions went to press and over a period sufficient to allow the five newsreels to place 15 sound units.

The newsreel did do quite a "build up" story during daylight, and with what scenes they filmed at the end, sent out the pictures in their regular midweek releases.

New Otterson Firm

John E. Otterson, former president of Paramount and Electrical Research Products, Inc., and now in the film importing business, sailed for New York Wednesday on the Normandie after organizing another film exporting company, Compagnie Franco Americaine pour Exportation du Film Cinematographique, with headquarters in Paris. Eugene Barbier, French industrial millionaire, is president, Mr. Otterson, vice-president, and Denys de Anselme and Marc Lauer are managing directors. The company will buy French films for distribution by Mr. Otterson in the United States. They will be shown in the Brandt Circuit, New York City, and elsewhere. The company, it was pointed out, is not connected in any way with previous arrangements made by Mr. Otterson and Corniglion Mollinier for Mr. Otterson's importation of French product into the United States.

"Movies Are Your Best Entertainment"

WITH every promise of enthusiastic support from all factions, industry leaders on Wednesday launched formal plans for a far-reaching institutional advertising campaign to be spread across the nation during the last four months of this year with "Movies Are Your Best Entertainment" as the theme song and slogan. Meeting at the Hotel Astor, the full distributor and affiliated circuit committee which has been working on the campaign presented the results of its study to representative independent exhibitors who promptly began signing pledges for one-quarter of the proposed $1,000,000 budget, of which the distributors and their affiliates will bear three-quarters. BUSINESS AS USUAL DURING ALTERCATIONS

Industry Will Continue Movement for Self-Regulation, Says Kent; Washington Sees "War To End All Wars"

The motion picture industry this week hung out a brand new shingle: "Business going on as usual during altercations."

Specifically, industry leaders have definitely decided that the United States Government's equity suit filed last Wednesday against the eight majors, aiming to divorce exhibition from production and distribution, abolish block booking and 16 other trade practices, and abolish Hollywood's talent pool, will not interrupt the plan for self-regulation now being formulated to govern the buying and selling of motion pictures. There will, however, be some delay.

They see as much as two years passing before the questions of law are decided by the federal courts in the government's actions, and meanwhile are determined to effect the trade practice program on which they have been working for weeks, and which a large number of exhibitors have been demanding for years.

The suit itself faces many delays. Answers are returnable by the defendants within 20 days from the service of subpoenas, but with eight corporations, 24 of their subsidiaries and 133 of their officers and directors to be served—all defendants—the servicing scarcely could be completed in a month. One and possibly more 20-day delays probably will be requested of the court, and undoubtedly granted, which means at least three months even before the first answers are filed. Then, demands on the Government for bills of particulars are possible, making for further delay, with even more postponements of action likely as a result of the usual skirmishes in court cases of such magnitude.

The government spent five years probing Famous Players, through the Federal Trade Commission, and the Justice Department's trust suit to break up the American Society of Authors, Composers and Publishers has been pending three years thus far, with scarcely any action.

Self-Regulation Move Continues

The position of the industry in connection with the relation of the Government's suit to the plan for self-regulation was outlined Monday morning by S. R. Kent, president of Twentieth Century-Fox, acting as chairman of the distributors' committee charged with developing a program. From his vacation headquarters at Rangely, Maine, Mr. Kent said:

"The trade practice questions now raised in the Government's petition demand a most careful reexamination of all the questions involved. This will require further discussion not only by members of the committee, but consideration by the respective counsel of all affected. To that extent, some delay may be inevitable in bringing the deliberations to the point of conference with exhibitor representatives.

"It should be noted that the statement of the Department of Justice in connection with the action filed makes clear its desire to encourage a constructive solution of the industry's problems. In this regard the Department said: 'The Department desires to encourage and not to retard the development and orderly operation of the motion picture industry.' And Mr. Will Hays in his comment on the suit brought by the Government said: 'A committee of leading producers and distributors is now engaged in considering readjustments in the intricate machinery of this business to the end that it may even better serve public interest.'

Committee Work Goes On

"Since the committee was formed, numerous conferences have been held. The problems to be considered are important and the solutions intricate. Clear thinking and deliberate consideration must precede action.

"Action taken will be in cooperation with all exhibitor groups and the committee intends to get in touch with the exhibitors when the useful moment arrives. From then on it will be a matter of working out these problems jointly.

"I might add that we share the general industry belief that the most intelligent and satisfactory solution of our problems eventually will be reached through self-regulation, rather than through litigation. We shall continue the work of our committee to that end."

The delay referred to by Mr. Kent will not be for long, however; the distributors' committee probably will bring in their version of a program within a few days.

Originally, it had been expected that the draft would be completed in time to send out invitations to exhibitor leaders during the weekend of July 16-17 to come to New York for preliminary discussions prior to a formal negotiating conference with exhibitors generally. The distributors sub-committee, however, met some snags in the construction of the program and a delay for a week ensued. By that time the Government had filed its sweeping anti-trust complaint. Meanwhile, the "snags" are being eliminated, and with the return to New York of Mr. Kent this weekend, and the return from Hollywood of his co-chairman, Nicholas Schenck, speedy action is expected. By the weekend, too, lawyers of the large companies will have completed their study of the Government's petition in its possible relation to the trade practice program. In this connection it is pointed out by official spokesmen for the companies that the Government's lengthy complaint really clarifies for the first time the objections of the Government to the industry's trade practices.

Complaints of Three Groups

The program, it was explained, was launched with a view to appease the complaints of three groups: exhibitors, the public and the Government. The distributors for months have had the complaints of exhibitors well defined, as obtained from various statements, demands and programs set down by the exhibitor leaders. They also have been as well aware of the public's mind, studied from thousands of newspaper editorials, letters to newspaper editors and from expressions to the industry by leaders of public groups, all collected in the regular course by the MPPDA.

Determination of the Government's attitude has been more difficult, because of the usual

U. S. Would Break Up Talent Pool in Hollywood Besides Divorcing Exhibition

Many sweeping demands besides those of theatre divorcement and block sales abolition, already mentioned, are made by the United States Government in the equity suit filed last Wednesday by the Department of Justice against the eight majors. These have gone practically unnoticed in the trade.

Complete text of the complaint starts on page 47.

One of the most drastic is that part of the petition which asks the Federal Courts to permanently enjoin the producer defendants from borrowing, loaning, or otherwise making available their respective contract stars, featured players, or other technical personnel to any of the other defendants and from otherwise pooling their production assets.

The reason for this specific action is based on the government's contention that the eight majors have a monopoly on so-called "quality" product through the borrowing and lending and otherwise pooling of the best talent and production assets, to the detriment of non-affiliated independent producers who for years have complained that so-called "big names" are not available to them for their pictures, unless and until the "big names" are fading in popularity.

Motion Picture Herald, April 30th, described the extent of "star-swapping" among majors, listing 64 "top" names most in demand.

Reports from Hollywood a few weeks ago mentioned new moves among the producers pointing toward reputed desires of some of the companies to further cooperate in the pooling of production assets for reasons of economy.

U. S. LISTS 11 GROUNDS FOR ACTION

410 Theatre Construction Contracts Awarded in 37 States in Half-Year

In the first six months of this year 410 contracts for theatre construction projects were awarded in 37 eastern states, according to the Dodge Reports division of F. W. Dodge Corporation. The projects include new construction and substantial remodeling.

The total value of the projects for the half-year was $12,086,000, less than in the same period in 1937 but far ahead of 1935 and 1936. The building provides for 1,576,000 square feet of floor space, compared with 2,121,000 square feet reported for the 1937 half-year.

The trend continues to smaller houses, as indicated in 420,000 square feet for 72 projects in June as compared with 460,000 square feet for 71 projects in May.

In the first six months of 1937 there were 445 theatre construction contracts awarded at a valuation of $14,509,400. In the corresponding 1936 and 1935 periods, the totals were $7,542,000 and $5,797,000 respectively. The figures show that the year 1937 reached a four year peak.

The half-year ended with a strong upturn in theatre building, the summary showing that June was the high month in contracts awards for the six month period.

"There had been some expectations that the June contracts would nearly close the gap between the 1938 and 1937 half-year volumes," says Dodge Reports. "Despite the hopeful June record this could not be accomplished, due to the higher level reached in June, 1937, which was also the top month of the half-year.

"Some encouragement may be found in the fact that last month's total contract value was well ahead of individual monthly totals for the second half of 1937," the report points out.

The figures were compiled on the basis of reports to Dodge Corporation from 750 representatives in the field. The service does not extend to the states west of the Rockies.

The Dodge summary, including a four-year comparison of theatre building contract values in the six month period follows.

January	$1,187,000	$1,416,300	$1,078,800	$1,371,400
February	2,369,000	1,976,500	788,700	713,500
March	2,064,000	2,824,800	1,721,800	797,800
April	2,071,000	1,838,600	2,087,400	576,000
May	1,514,000	2,918,200	1,032,800	1,358,800
June	2,881,000	3,535,000	833,000	979,700
Six-Month Totals	$12,086,000	$14,509,400	$7,542,500	$5,797,200

silence, or vagueness, of governmental agencies—in this case the Department of Justice.

The complaint in the equity suit now gives the distributors an idea of what the Government is trying to criticize in film trade practice. Therefore, distributors feel, the complaint may have some immediate value in formulating a system for self-regulation.

The need for the industry program is as sharp as it was before the Government filed its suit, according to official representatives of the majors, who point out that the filing of the suit does not solve any of the problems which are aimed for solution through the program, although immediate remedies would be forthcoming by self-regulation for many of the complaints described in the suit.

State legislatures with their theatre "divorcement" and anti-play date bills, Congress with its anti-block booking activities, independent exhibitors in the field with their "million dollar" suits against distributors and circuits—all these problems still require solution, regardless of the questions of law now raised by the Department of Justice suit. The distributors feel that the suit will not halt any attacks from the aforementioned sources, and conclude that there is as much reason existing now as before for establishing self-regulation.

What the organized industry does expect from the suit is a clarification by the courts of the legal status of the trade customs of the business.

However, if the Government really intends to insist upon divorcement of theatres and the studios, the abolition of block selling and all the other 16 trade practices which it describes as "unfair," it is difficult to see how far the majors could go along this line, said an official at the offices of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America.

Highly speculative is the question of the industry agreeing to a consent decree in the action. In some quarters it is felt that a consent decree would not determine the questions of law on the trade practices involved, and therefore would not solve the problems of the trade, certainly not on the basis of the demands made by the Government in the complaint.

There were but a handful of copies of the actual bill of complaint in circulation in the motion picture business, and all of them were concentrated in offices of the big executives and their attorneys at the home offices in New York, where contents of the 22,600-word, 119-page document still are being studied. (Complete text of the bill starts on page 47.)

The title of the complaint follows:

EQUITY No. 87-273
In the District Court of the United States for the Southern District of New York

United States of America, Petitioner
v.
Paramount Pictures, Inc., Et Al., Defendants

Petition

LAMAR HARDY,
United States Attorney

HOMER CUMMINGS,
Attorney General

THURMAN ARNOLD,
Assistant Attorney General

WENDELL BERGE,
JOHN J. ABT,
PAUL WILLIAMS,
J. STEPHEN DOYLE, JR.,
JOHN F. CLAGETT,
Special Assistants to the Attorney General

In Charge of Prosecution

The Government agents mentioned represent those who will be in charge of and actually conduct the prosecution for the Department of Justice, Lamar Hardy actually signing the complaint, with others, and Mr. Williams swearing to it, his signature having been witnessed by Dorothy Yost, notary public of the District of Columbia. A "Who's Who" of the principals appears on page 17.

Mr. Williams swears in the complaint, as a special assistant attorney general, that he has been actively engaged in the conduct of the investigation and all other work on behalf of the Government in connection with the proceeding. Mr. Williams is expected to lead the actual prosecution in the courts.

"The source of my information and the grounds of my belief," he declared, "are statements and correspondence of the defendants and their offices and agents, and others, the statements and official reports of Government investigators, and other records, reports, and information relating to the motion picture industry in the possession of the Department of Justice.'"

Specifically, the petitioning Government asks the court for "relief," through the suit, on 11 grounds:

1. That the court issue a preliminary injunction restraining the defendants from building, buying, leasing or otherwise acquiring any additional theatres or any further interest, or interests in any additional theatres, directly or indirectly, through the acquisition thereof by subsidiary or associated corporations or otherwise, until the final decree or until the further order of the court.

2. That the contracts, combinations, and conspiracies in restraint of interstate trade and commerce, together with the attempts to monopolize and the monopolization of the same, be declared illegal and violative of the Act of Congress passed July 2, 1980.

3. That the defendant companies and all of their officers and agents and employees, be perpetually enjoined and restrained from continuing to carry out, directly or indirectly, expressly or impliedly, the attempts at monopolization, the monopolies and all restraints of interstate trade and commerce in the production, distribution and exhibition of motion pictures, and from entering into and carrying out any monopolies or restraints of interstate trade.

4. That the integration of the production and exhibition branches by the producer-exhibitor defendants be declared to be unlawful and violative of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

5. That Paramount, Twentieth Century-Fox and Warner Brothers be ordered and directed to divest themselves of all interest and ownership, both direct and indirect, in theatres and theatre holdings and that each and their successors be enjoined permanently from acquiring any other interests in exhibition or in any persons, firms or corporations which are engaged or may engage in exhibition; said divestiture to be accomplished and carried out upon terms set down by the court, and pending such divestiture, the operation and management of theatres involved by placing in the hands of trustees to be selected by the court, who shall be entirely free from the control or domination of any producer or distributor.

6. That Loew's and Irving Trust, as trustee in bankruptcy for RKO, as exhibitors, be ordered and directed to divest themselves of all interests in all persons, firms or corporations engaged in production or distribution, and that they be permanently enjoined from acquiring any interests in production or distribution, such divestiture to be accomplished under the same conditions as those stipulated for distributors in the paragraph above, and likewise to be placed in the hands of trustees.

7. That the producers be permanently enjoined from borrowing, loaning, or otherwise making available their respective contract stars, featured players, or other technical personnel to any of the other defendants.

8. That the defendants be permanently enjoined from enforcing upon independent exhibitors any and all of the unfair trade practices referred to in Paragraphs 214 and 215 of the complaint: block booking, forcing of shorts and newsreels with feature sales, arbitrary designation of play dates, protection, overbuying, arbitrary, unconscionable and discriminatory film rentals, prohibition of double features, score charges, minimum admissions, and the following benefits, favors and advantages extended by the defendants to each other: sharing advertising costs, optional film contracts, film contract modifications, overage and underage, cancellation of short subjects and move-overs.

9. That the court grant writs of subpoena directed to each defendant ordering him to appear and answer upon oath the allegations and to abide by and perform such orders and decrees as the court may make.

10. That the petitioner have such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

11. That the petitioner recover its costs herein.

Motion picture attorneys saw in the "petition for relief" mentioned directly above a request for recovery of costs that is unusual in governmental actions. Plaintiffs other than the Government in civil suits usually ask the court to grant costs of the suit. It was presumed that the Government is asking the court to order the motion picture business to pay for the court stenographers, cost of transcribing the testimony, cost of Government witnesses and such other costs that might accrue. In non-governmental actions the bulk of the costs are usually represented in the plaintiff's attorney fees, but in federal actions the attorneys are on straight salary, geting no "fees."

The case, of course, will not be heard in jury trial, but before a single federal court judge.

Film attorneys voiced surprise at the language used by the Department of Justice in their complaint, asserting it lacked the usual precise legal language to which the courts are accustomed, and in which manner virtually all petitions are written. This one, they said was done in the non-legal language of the trade.

Washington Sees a "War To End Wars"

by FRANCIS L. BURT

in Washington

The United States Government's suit against the motion picture industry is a "war to end wars." This is the viewpoint of the anti-trust case in Washington, where opinion holds that if the Department of Justice is successful in this instance, there will be no more criminal suits against the large interests in the industry based on block booking, affiliated competition and other activities of which the independents have long complained. If not successful, the Department of Justice will ask Congress to amend the anti-trust laws so that it can make another try at the same objectives.

In conformity with Department policy, officials in Washington will not discuss the suit further. But enough has been said, at one time or another, from which a very good idea may be drawn of the ideas and aims of the Government's law enforcement agency.

On this basis, it can be said that the Department is "fed up" with anti-trust suits of the "merry-go-round" type, such as the action against the oil industry, where three suits on practically identical grounds have been fired at practically the same defendants, one after another.

Experience has shown, it is said, that the criminal proceeding is most useful as a deterrent, but that better results can be accomplished by a civil suit, sometimes in connection with a criminal case. But the major difference is that a criminal proceeding is punitive; a civil proceeding is injunctive. The criminal proceeding punishes for past actions, but the civil proceeding can prevent continuance of present actions.

Thus, the Department has switched from criminal to civil proceeding in its campaign against the film industry. If successful, all of the practices and situations against which it has moved in past criminal cases would be outlawed. Once outlawed, there will be no need for further criminal cases on the same grounds. Only if a motion picture company violates the decree which the department seeks would criminal action be necessary.

Thus, by a single move, the Government

Uncle Sam Collects $20,800,780 in Ticket Taxes, Mostly from Theatres

The Federal revenues for the fiscal year ended June 30th, 1938, were enriched by $20,800,779 collected from admission taxes, and showed an increase of $1,060,587 over the $19,740,191 collected in the preceding year, it was reported Tuesday by the Bureau of Internal Revenue in Washington. While the taxes were collected on all amusements, the bulk comes from film theatres.

The situation from the standpoint of the exhibitor, however, was less favorable than it appeared, for analysis of the figures revealed that while admission tax collections for the first six months of the fiscal year were $1,233,839 ahead of the corresponding period in 1936, receipts for the last half (January to June of this year) were $173,251 under the total for the corresponding months in 1937.

At the same time, the bureau reported that after two months of declines admission tax collections in June took an upward turn, amounting to $1,624,453.11. This was close to $230,000 above the May total of $1,394,659.49, but more than $250,000 under the $1,874,755.29 collected in June of last year.

Indications were that the improvement in box office conditions were general throughout most of the United States. In the Third New York (Broadway) District, collections of the tax at the box office jumped more than $24,000, from $350,402.52 in May to $374,572.66 in June, while total collections in that area increased only about $8,370, from $415,798.28 to $424,171.49, and while June box office collections were $120,000 under the $494,813.69 collected in June, 1937, total revenues from the district were $128,000 under the $552,841.44 collected in that month.

In addition to box office collections, increases were shown in the New York district in receipts from free or reduced rate admissions, from $4,278 in May to $4,485.66 in June, and permanent use or lease of boxes and seats, from $55.44 to $715.40. Decreases were shown in collections on tickets sold by brokers, from $14,440.23 to $7,903.34; on tickets sold by proprietors in excess of established prices, from $3,642.53 to $672.66, and on admissions to roof gardens and cabarets, from $42,979.56 to $35,821.77.

The Men Who Will Conduct the Government Case Against the Film Industry

HOMER STILLE CUMMINGS is a Connecticut Yankee transplanted from Chicago where he was born in 1870. He was graduated from Yale University and since his elevation to the attorney generalship he has been given honorary degrees by Rollins College, Lake Forest University and Oglethorpe University in 1934 and Lincoln Memorial University and John Marshall College of Law in 1935. He practised law in the city of Stamford, Conn., from 1893 to 1933 and served four years as mayor and four years as corporation counsel in that city. He campaigned for Congress in 1902 and for the Senate in 1916 but lost in both instances. His appointment as attorney general came in 1933 after he had rejected an offer to be made governor general of the Philippine Islands. He wrote "Liberty Under Law and Administration."

WENDELL BERGE was born in Lincoln, Neb., in 1903. He graduated from Nebraska and Michigan Universities and entered practice in 1928 with Root, Clark, Buckner & Ballentine, coming to the Department of Justice two years later. In 1935 he was appointed chief of the appellate section and last year head of the trial section. He is now first assistant to Mr. Arnold and alternate for him on the monopoly investigation committee. During the past 18 months he has had the major responsibility with respect to all anti-trust activities involving New Deal legislation.

J. STEPHEN DOYLE, JR., one of the "young set," 31 years of age, was born in Baltimore. After Johns Hopkins and Harvard, he entered the Government service in December, 1933, as a special attorney in the Department of Justice, later advancing to special assistant.

THURMAN WESLEY ARNOLD was born in Laramie, Wyo., in 1891, studied at Princeton and Harvard and has an honorary degree from Yale. He practised law in Chicago, served as an artillery lieutenant in the war, and returned to civil life to teach at Wyoming, West Virginia and Yale Universities from whence he was appointed assistant attorney general last year. He is the author of "Symbols of Government," "Trials, Judgments and Appeals" and "The Folklore of Capitalism."

LAMAR HARDY, the member of the New York office of the Department who signed the complaint last week, was born in Meridian, Miss., in 1879 but has lived in New York City since 1904 when he was admitted to the bar. He received the degree of Bachelor of Philosophy from Mississippi Univeristy in 1898 and his law degree from Vanderbilt in 1900. Mississippi gave him an honorary doctorate of laws in 1931. An independent Democrat, he served as corporation counsel in New York for two years, 1915 to 1917.

PAUL WILLIAMS, special assistant to the attorney general, is a westerner from Salt Lake City. He was educated first on the west coast and then at Phillips-Exeter Academy, Cornell University and Columbia Law School. He practised law in Salt Lake City and then served with the army on the Mexican border and in the World War. Returning to New York, he practised law until May, 1934, when the attorney general appointed him to the anti-trust division.

JOHN J. ABT, 34 years old, was educated at the University of Chicago. He spent eight months in Paris where he studied at the Sorbonne, returning to Chicago to practice law. In 1933 he was appointed chief of the litigation section of the AAA, later working with the WPA and the SEC. In 1937 he was appointed counsel for the LaFollette Civil Liberties Committee, and last year entered the Justice Department.

ALLIED PLEDGES HELP FOR PEACE

hopes to reduce the number of anti-trust suits which it must bring.

The same reasoning which it has applied to the film industry is extended to other industries by the Department. If the film case is decided in favor of the Government and producer ownership of theatres is barred and all allegedly unfair practices prohibited, similar suits will be filed against other industries in which there is integration, the most outstanding example of which is in the oil industry. Whether the "divorce" theory will be extended to all industries in which producers own retail outlets remains to be seen.

Precedents

Both precedent and recent developments which have focused attention on the film industry are believed in Washington to have motivated the Department in basing its suit on unexpectedly broad grounds.

So far as precedent goes, the suit savors of the Standard Oil, the meat packers' and the railroad-owned mines cases. The government won the latter case and railroads were forced to divest themselves of mines holdings. The packers' case ended in a consent decree, the meat interests divorcing their holdings in retail meat stores. The element of opportunism lies in the fact that the North Dakota "theatre divorce" law, Senate passage of the block booking bill and the SEC investigation of reorganizations and protective committees have for some time focussed public attention upon the film industry and its practices.

The divorce phase of the proceeding, offers a new issue, on which the department is basing a great deal of dependence. In this respect, it has been admitted, the department's policy is to eliminate vertical integration, that is operation controlled by one concern from source of material to consumer distribution, a method particularly marked in the film and oil industries, but followed to more or less extent in the case of shoes, jewelry, and a number of other commodities.

See Appeal to Congress

Department officials are said to firmly believe that control of retail outlets by producers constitutes a restraint on competition. So wedded are they to this idea that it has been formally stated that if the courts rule against the Government's petition for divorce of the major producers from exhibition and the two exhibition companies from production, the matter will be carried to Congress with an appeal for such amendments to the anti-trust statutes as may be necessary to make the department's position good.

The Government's petition, in a word, sums up the whole philosophy of the Administration that the "little man" in industry and trade is to be protected against his large corporate competitors.

Regardless, if the suit goes to a verdict, the United States Supreme Court will get the case no matter how the lower court rules for, this being a civil case, the Government can appeal an adverse decision with the same freedom as the defendants.

What the Newspapers Say Of the Government's Suit

Following are excerpts of editorial expressions in the newspaper press of reactions to the Government's action to force a divestment of concentration of production and theatre ownership in a company and to eliminate block booking:

CHICAGO TRIBUNE

Hollywood is probably in for some trouble, and what it will do to the movies no one can know. If it is the usual governmental socking of the most successful, the patrons will be a long time getting any good out of it.

NEW YORK DAILY NEWS

The Government says this lawsuit is to be much more of a friendly and helpful investigation of the movies than a hostile prosecution for monopolistic practices. We hope the Government bears that thought in mind throughout the suit; and that the end result may be a rebirth of a form of mass entertainment which up to now has spread more happiness and enabled more people to escape temporarily from the boredoms of everyday life than any other art ever did.

HOLLYWOOD CITIZEN-NEWS

If there be a conspiracy among the major companies that works to the detriment of independent companies, that conspiracy should be broken up and its future operation prevented. If there is an evil it is to be found in such a conspiracy. Ordering concerns to abandon legitimate business activity is inconsistent with the policies which have built business in this country.

NEW YORK TIMES

Probably readers of the official statement made by the Department of Justice in bringing Anti-Trust law suits against the major motion picture companies were most impressed by its absence of truculent language or imputation of motive.

ST. LOUIS GLOBE-DEMOCRAT

We cannot believe, as Mr. Hays says, that the assault of the Federal Government upon the industry may "promote the further progress of the screen." That might be the result if the procedure were friendly and constructive. But the government is frankly inaugurating a war on bigness in business and has chosen the motion pictures as a point of attack.

ST. LOUIS POST-DISPATCH

The movie industry just now is, by its own admission, very sick. With the specter of television looming on the horizon, an airing of restrictive trade practices may bring reforms which in the end will prove a boon to the industry.

KANSAS CITY JOURNAL-POST

Whatever the outcome of the anti-trust legislation, let's hope governmental interference never reduces the American movie industry to the status of the state-dictated cinema of Germany, Russia and Italy.

LOS ANGELES TIMES

Whatever remedies are finally found for these difficulties will take time and care in their application. The picture industry is too important to the public and to its armies of wage earners and investors to be made a guinea pig for hasty, inexpert or experimental surgery.

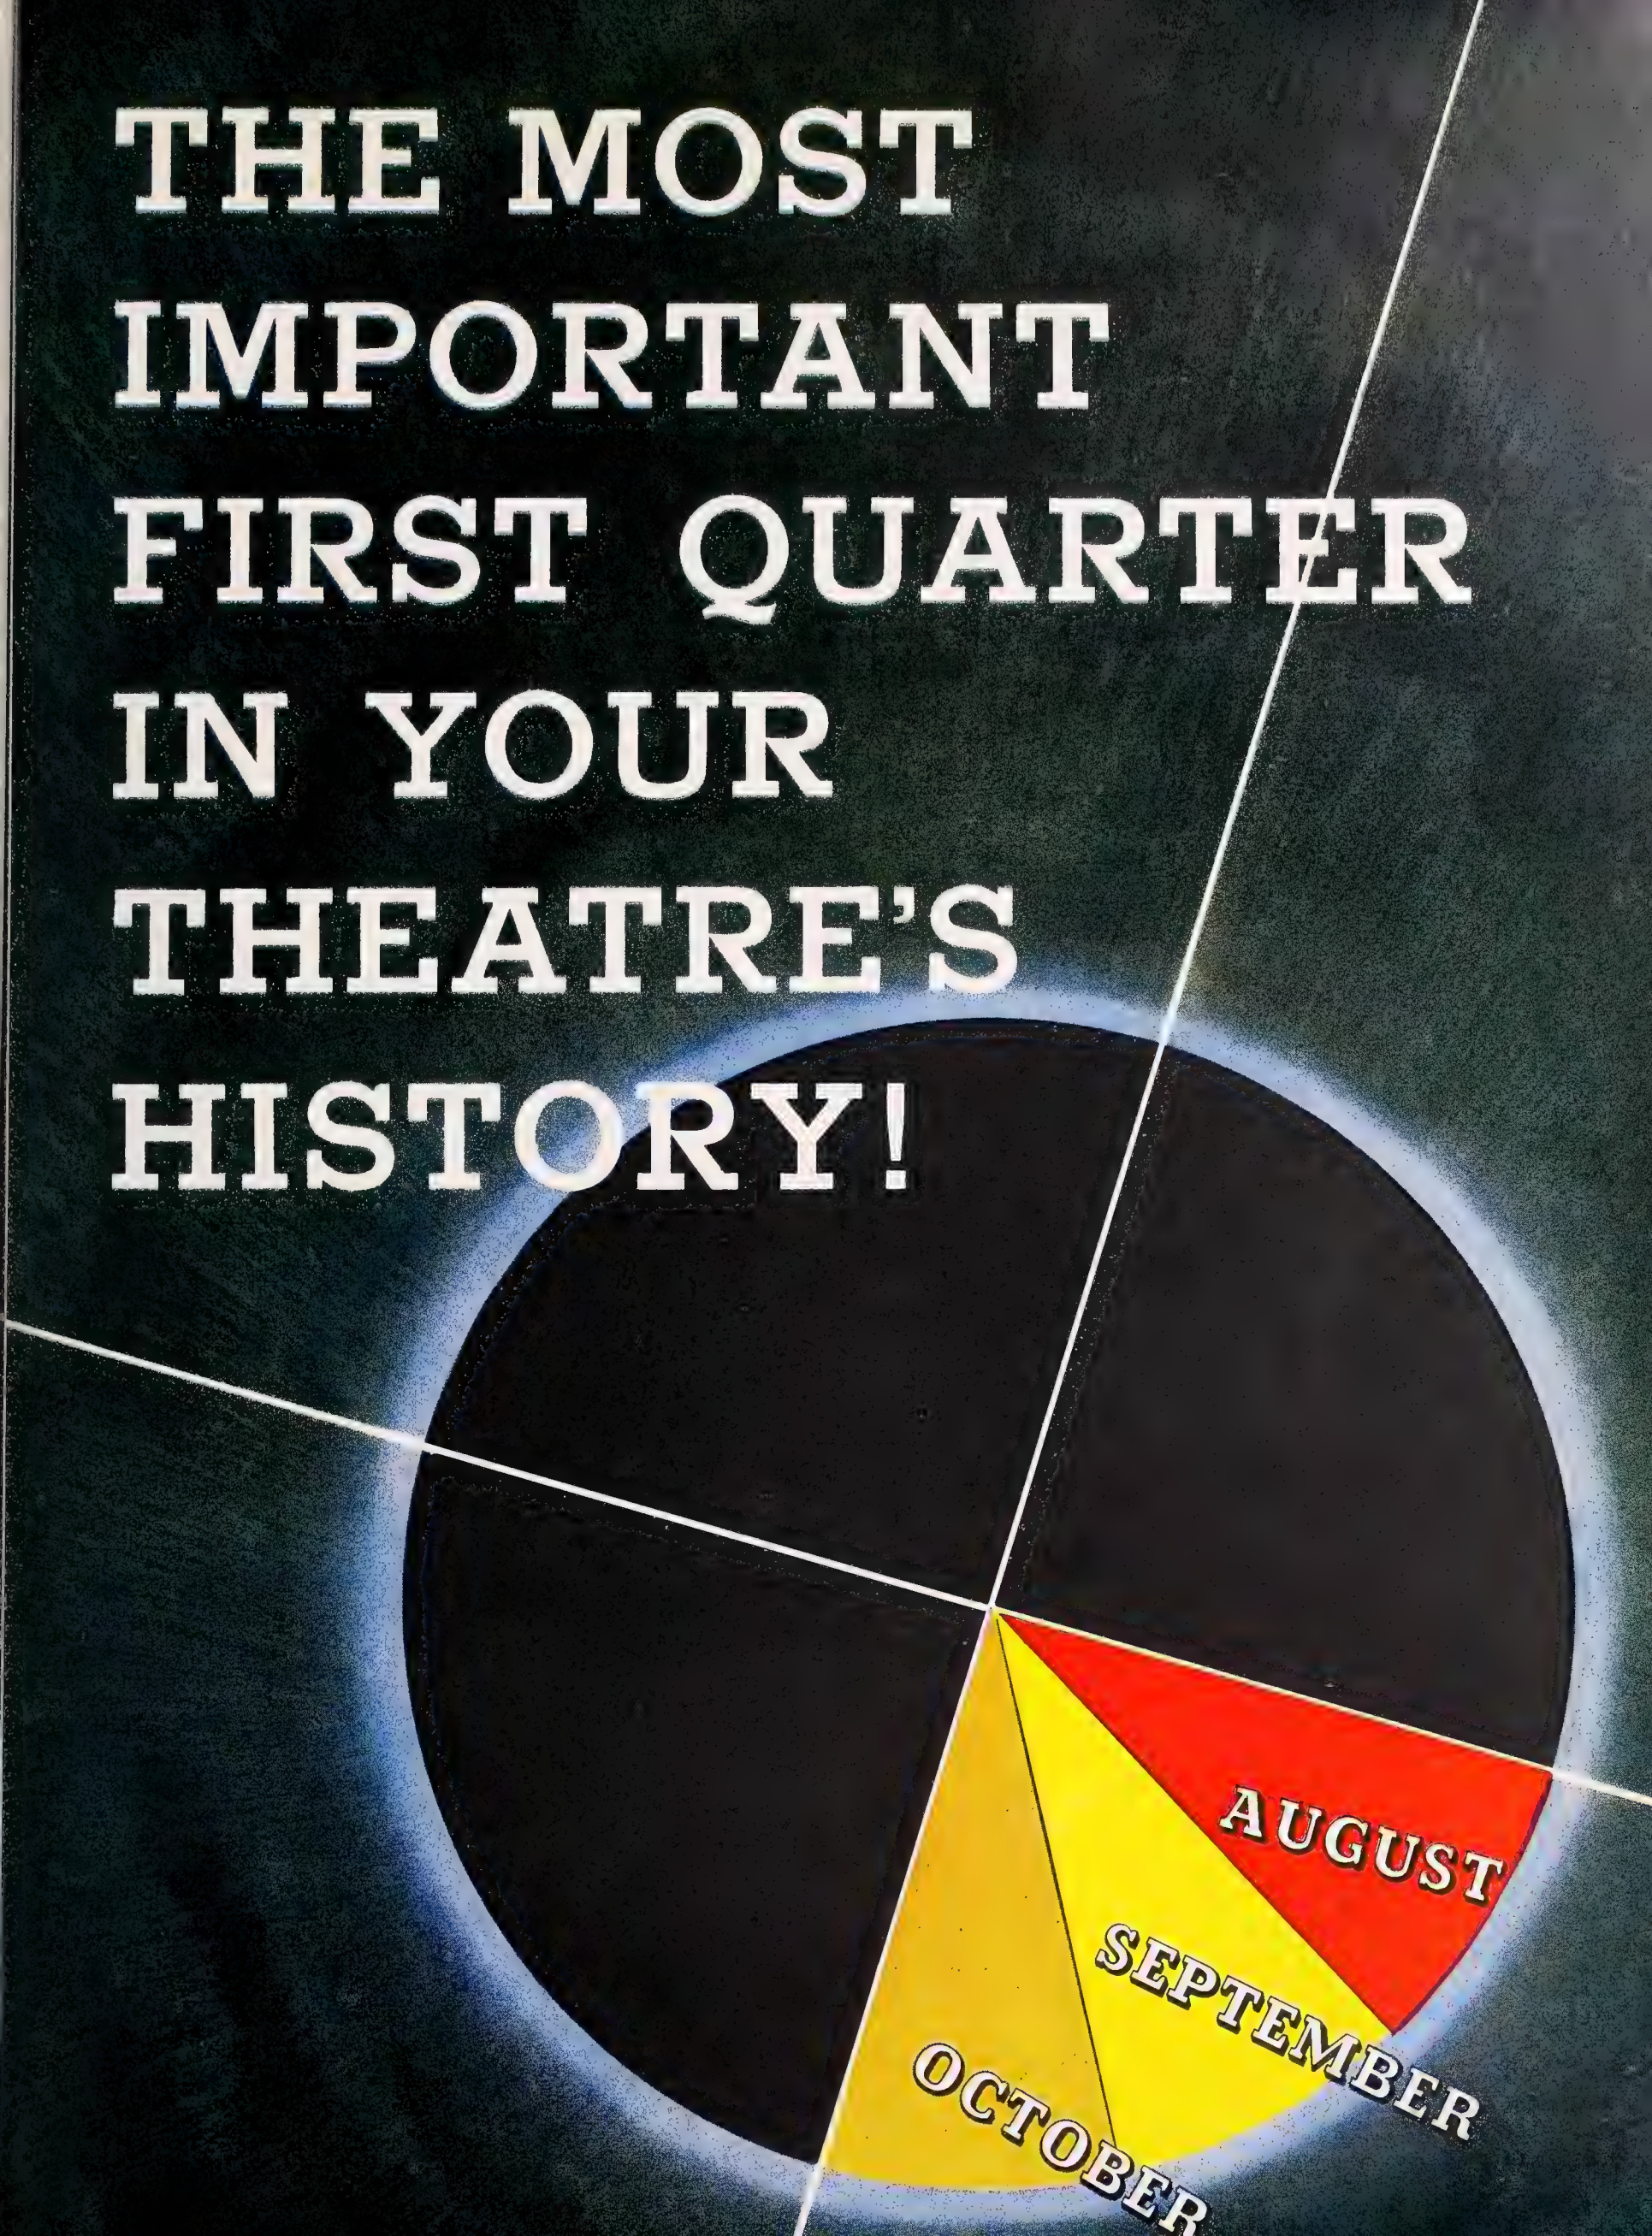
WALL STREET JOURNAL (New York)

Both the government and the industry hailed the suit as at least a semi-friendly one, designed to clarify the application of existing laws to the industry and perhaps to set up a system of self-regulation under government supervision.



However, if the government really intends to insist upon the divorce of the theatres and the studios and the abolition of block bookings as a condition to regulating the industry, it is difficult to see how far the industry could cooperate along this line.

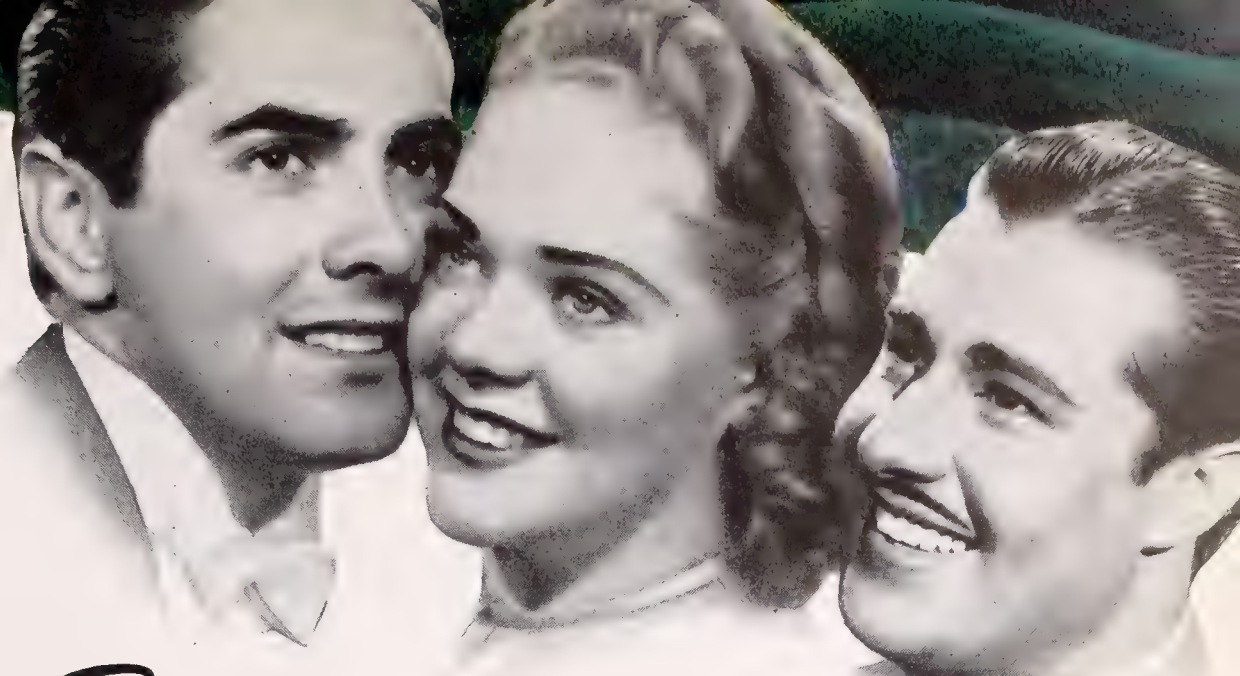
WASHINGTON POST

The present system has been evolved from an inflexible rule to supply the highest quality of entertainment at the lowest possible cost to the ultimate consumer—the public. It is that policy that has made the motion picture the supreme medium of world-wide, mass entertainment and made available to the low-income brackets classics of literature, history, drama and music they otherwise never would have been permitted to enjoy.

THE MOST IMPORTANT FIRST QUARTER IN YOUR THEATRE'S HISTORY!

Through the murk of doubt which has hung over this industry, we now see the dawn of a new season.

The circulation of vast government funds, stronger business activity, greater optimism—all these general conditions indicate that the next three months, August, September and October, will be the most important period in the history of the motion picture theatre.



Never before has it been so imperative that your theatre display the strongest possible attractions. This is the tide which "taken at its flood leads on to fortune."

Since early last spring Twentieth Century-Fox has been preparing for this hour. At that time our studio launched a program of the greatest productions this company has ever undertaken. Practically all of the pictures which Twentieth Century-Fox will release in the first quarter have already been completed. Thus our accounts are in a position to benefit immediately from a continuous flow of great attractions.

On the following pages we describe Twentieth Century-Fox pictures to be released in August, September and October.

You owe it to yourself to compare these pictures—week for week—with the pictures of all other producers.

Just feast your eyes on AUGUST

SEE AID TO SELF-REGULATION

plaint. Likewise awaiting copies of the complaint were independent owners who are not affiliated with Allied States Association. Allied for years has been urging the Department of Justice to take such action, and urging regulation by legislation in Congress and the state legislatures.

Other than a statement issued through national headquarters of Allied, official expressions were lacking this week from state affiliates until they knew more about the full contents of the petition.

Declaring that "exhibitor complaints were responsible" for the Department's action, and asserting that the day of the filing of the suit "will go down in exhibitor history as the month in which Allied's long but persistent battle for exhibitor rights was won," Allied's statement from Washington placed the organization on record as "ready and willing to cooperate with executives among motion picture producers and distributors" who "hope that out of this maelstrom will come dignity, peace and security for a great industry."

"The filing of this action clears the atmosphere, removes uncertainty, provides an opportunity for the industry to clean house and should be welcomed," said Allied.

"Self-regulation is a fine principle and should be practiced by all industries capable of doing so. There is no dodging the fact that in the matter of monopolistic organization and practices, the motion picture producers and distributors, linked together through the Hays Association, have failed utterly to curb their own predatory tendencies.

"The Trade Practice Conference in 1927, the 5-5-5 Conferences, the conferences led by S. R. Kent in 1932, and the N. R. A. proceedings led to no permanent or substantial reforms.

"Some of the commitments made by members of the Big Eight on those occasions were either never put into effect or were soon forgotten.

"All such efforts have been made coincident with some adverse development—an order of the Federal Trade Commission, imminence of block booking legislation, etc. None was initiated in an off-year when there could be no suspicion as to the motive behind the movement.

"The movement recently announced may have been, and as regards some of the participants doubtless was, undertaken in good faith. However, it was problematical whether the movement would have reached a satisfactory conclusion or whether the results would have been enduring.

"Now that this suit has been filed, the Big Eight have a golden opportunity to clean house and to straighten out their relations with the Government, the independent exhibitors and the public. They can now bring forward their proposals for bringing themselves into conformity with the law. If such proposals are acceptable to the Government, they can be embodied in a decree which can not be disregarded whenever the temptation arises so to do.

"The motion picture industry is at the crossroads and its future will be determined by the course it now adopts. The Big Eight must bring about an abrupt change in their public relations policies. They must realize that they can not get by with flagrant violations of the law and unfair and oppressive practices by purely political methods. The 'fixing' days are gone forever. They must make up their minds hereafter to deal frankly, fairly and directly with all who have a legitimate concern with the operations of the industry. It is a job for men of experience, integrity and tact; definitely it can not be accomplished by conniving political methods."

WALL STREET VIEWS GOVERNMENT CASE

"The rally in motion picture shares following a sharp decline which grew out of the Government anti-trust suit reflected the feeling in the Street that the litigation was not entirely punitive." Thus did the Wall Street Journal describe reaction in the financial district to the U. S. suit in equity against the eight majors.

Explaining the decline in stock prices last Wednesday, when the suit was filed, the financial newspaper said, "Times Square reported a lot of motion picture stocks coming out of the industry itself as a result of the suit."

The heavy selling of the amusement issues unsettled the rest of the market, with film shares selling off as much as about $3.40 a share in the case of Loew's common and $10 a share on Paramount first preferred.

The rally, however, brought prices back, with most shares gaining during the week.

"Divorce" Decree in Work Pending Appeal

Paramount and North Dakota state attorneys on Tuesday began work on the preparation of a decree giving effect to the recent Federal statutory court's decision upholding the constitutionality of the North Dakota affiliated theatre divorcement law.

Attorneys estimated that it would require 10 days to two weeks to complete the decree. No appeal can be taken from the decision to the United States Supreme Court until the decree has been completed and signed by the lower Federal court. Efforts will be made to have the decree continue the temporary injunction in force which restrains North Dakota from enforcing the state divorcement law until the case has been decided by the Supreme Court. If no agreement can be reached by opposing counsel, Paramount attorneys will be obliged to start separate proceedings in the form of an application for a writ of supersedeas to continue the injunction in force pending the appeal to the Supreme Court.

Paramount has 90 days after the signing of the decree in which to file an appeal with the high court. Simultaneously, it was learned that the Paramount and Interstate Circuit appeal from the Dallas Federal Court decision holding contracts between distributors and the circuits which sought to enforce minimum admissions and anti-double featuring clauses on subsequent runs to be illegal, has been filed with the United States Supreme Court. The case may be reached for hearing by the end of the year, it was said.

Independents in N. Y. Demand Self Regulation

The Independent Theatre Owners Association of New York declared this week that self-regulation would be best for the industry, despite the Government's contention that its anti-trust suit against the eight major companies is for the benefit of the independents.

Chicago Group Due To Resume Parleys

Jack Kirsch, new president of Allied of Illinois; Edward Silverman and Van Nomikos, circuit operators, and Joseph Rosenberg, attorney for the independent exhibitors of Chicago are in New York and on Thursday will reopen the conferences with Barney Balaban and Austin Keough of Paramount and other distributors regarding Chicago independents' demands for relief from what they describe as unfair local clearance afforded Balaban and Katz theatres.

John Balaban, head of the B. and K. circuit, now in New York, is expected to remain for the meetings, which were begun three weeks ago but were delayed by the death of Aaron Saperstein, succeeded by Mr. Kirsch as president of the allied unit.

It is understood that B. and K. and the distributors are not averse to finding a means of settling the local differences, in view of the general trade practice situation. It is further understood that Chicago Allied's plan for filing an anti-trust action on the matter has been held in abeyance pending the completion of the conferences. However, it is believed to be the intention of the organization to take some such action in the event that an agreement is not reached relative to clearance or double features or both.

If duals are continued the independent operators want five weeks' clearance, while if duals are eliminated, the present 10 weeks' clearance is expected to be declared acceptable.

Japan Bans Time's Nazi Film

According to word received in New York Wednesday from Charles E. Rosselet, manager of General Amusements, at Hong Kong, China, "Inside Nazi Germany," the March of Time pictorial study of Germany today, has been banned by the British censors in Hong Kong.

The film was to show at the Queen's and Alhambra theatres, and Manager Rosselet had been issued a censor's card, when the censor's office unexpectedly recalled the film for showing to a representative from the German Consulate. The banning of the film followed.

Although banned in the British Colony in Hong Kong, this issue of March of Time was passed by the censors in British Isles and in Australia.

NEW GROUP CONTROLS STAGE IN AUSTRALIA

Legitimate Theatres Owned by Williamson, Ltd., Leased to Recently Organized Company

by CLIFF HOLT
in Melbourne

Capitalized at £105,000, a new company known as J. C. Williamson Theatres, Ltd., is being formed to acquire by lease the theatres at present owned and operated by the stage producing company, J. C. Williamson, Ltd.

The new company also proposes to secure by leasing arrangements all of J.C.W.'s stores and copyrights, scenery, wardrobe and stage properties which have accumulated during the past sixty years that "The Firm," as J. C. Williamson, Ltd., is known throughout the Commonwealth, has been in forefront of Australian stage producers.

In an official statement, the chairman of directors of J. C. Williamson, Ltd., John H. Tait, said that Sir George Tallis and Arthur W. Allen were disposing of their shareholdings in the company to a group of investors who will replace Sir George Tallis, Mr. Allen and Sir Robert McAnderson on the Board of Directors.

Frank S. Tait, Stanley S. Crick and George B. Dean will be joint managing directors of the new company. The board will consist of K. W. Asprey (chairman), Sir George Tallis, Sir Hugh Denison, Arthur Wigwam Allen, R. F. Denison and Hugh S. Chambers.

Mr. Asprey said that Messrs. Stanley S. Crick, George B. Dean and Frederick J. Daniell, would act as a committee on behalf of the underwriters of the new company to be formed. The subscribed capital for J. C. Williamson Theatres, Ltd., had been privately underwritten by a strong group of Melbourne and Sydney investors. The company would come into operation during June but would not function for several months. Comprehensive plans for the development of the legitimate stage and concert business would have to be formulated, and the erection of a new theatre would be considered.

The appointment of Messrs. Crick and Dean to the board of J. C. W. Theatres, Ltd., brings the new company into close association with the motion picture industry. Mr. Crick was for many years with the managing director in Australasia of Twentieth Century Fox Films; and Mr. Dean is co-managing director of Snider and Dean Theatres, Ltd., which operates a big chain of city, suburban and country theatres throughout Australia. The appearance of Sir Hugh Denison on the Board, and Frederick J. Daniell as a member of the underwriting committee, is also of particular interest, since they establish a link with the radio field through Stations 2GB and 2UE, Sydney, and 3AW, Melbourne, and allied stations.

Merger in New Zealand

The acquisition of 25 per cent of the stock of J. C. Williamson Picture Corporation (New Zealand) Ltd. by Theatre Holdings, Ltd., has an important bearing on the theatre situation in New Zealand.

Hitherto the circuits have waged a triangular fight for business, with J. C. Williamson Films, the John H. Mason group and the Hoyts-Fox-Moodabe combination each occupying a corner. The amalgamation of the J. C. W. and Mason interests reduces the circuit situation to two rival camps, and gives rise to a state of affairs similar to those obtaining in Australia, where Hoyts and Greater Union Theatres are the major opposition theatre companies.

Theatre Holdings, Ltd. is the new company formed by the financial group represented by John H. Mason, and it is said that the operation of John Fuller and Sons, Fuller-Hayward, Ltd., J. C. W. Picture Group, New Zealand Theatres, Ltd. and Christchurch Cinemas, Ltd., will engage its attention. Beaumont Smith, who founded J. C. W. Picture Corp. in 1925, has disposed of 25 percent of his stock to Theatre Holdings and resigns as managing director. He retains his debentures, which amount to the largest individually-owned on the company's lists, and has been invited to act in an advisory capacity to the company for a minimum of two years. Mr. Smith will permanently reside in Sydney.

Commenting on the Dominion deal, Sir Benjamin Fuller, who has big interests in John Fuller and Sons and Fuller-Hayward, Ltd., stated that the link between J. C. Williamson Picture Corporation and the Mason interests would mean a greatly strengthened buying force and a decreased overhead.

"Referring particularly to freeholds and shares in subsidiary companies," he said, "the new set-up undoubtedly will be the strongest financial force in New Zealand, if not in Australasia."

Quota Law to Stand

The Government of New South Wales contemplates no action looking to repeal or amendment of the new Films Act passed by both houses of the legislature last January, it was indicated authoritatively here today.

The legislation as passed provided new, reduced quota terms, and was described at that time by Premier Stevens as "purely experimental." The new law covered exhibitor rejection privileges, the quota and restrictions on theatre licensing.

Under the new quota regulations the distributor quota is three per cent each for the first and second year of the act, and 2½ per cent for each of the first two years under the exhibitor quota. During the following years the quota percentages will be subject to inquiry by the Film Advisory Committee as to the extent of the production of Australian quota films.

Anna Sten Claim Compromise Approved

Federal courts in Los Angeles this week approved a compromise settlement of a $168,750 claim brought by Ann Sten and United Players Productions, Inc. against Grand National, for a payment of $30,000 and a condition that Grand National produce two pictures with Miss Sten within 90 days. The star and United had charged breach of contract.

Edward L. Alperson, co-trustee with Loyd Wright, under Grand National reorganization under 77-B, disclosed receipts of $211,326, disbursements of $144,298 and a balance of $67,027 for operations from May 28th to July 1st.

Claim of State theatre, Denver, against Grand National, for a breach of product contract was recommended dismissed by special master in bankruptcy David B. Head, in Los Angeles.

ATTORNEYS ABANDON SPECIAL MASTER PLAN

Although the Department of Justice's monopoly action against the motion picture industry will not affect current efforts to draft a plan of self-regulation of trade practices, the suit has caused film attorneys to abandon a proposal for the appointment of a special master to hear trade complaints against Fox West Coast, which involve the consent decree entered into by the circuit with the Government in 1933.

When industry attorneys visited Thurman Arnold, Assistant Attorney General, three weeks ago to discuss the Fox West Coast proposal they became aware of the Government's intention to proceed with the monopoly action. They also became convinced that the Government had little interest in the plan to clear complaints against Fox West Coast through a court appointee who would be satisfactory to the Attorney General's office.

U.S. British Trade Pact Seen Blocked

Refusal by the United States to make further concessions on several major categories of goods has resulted in a series stage in the protracted Anglo-American trade pact negotiations, the New York Times stated this week in a wireless dispatch from London.

The proposed trade pact in which films are expected to be mentioned in some manner has been looked upon by spokesman for the British manufacturers with less and less favor during recent weeks, the article continued. It is understood, however, that the British Government is more concerned with possible unfavorable reaction on other countries whose farm products compete with those of the United States, chiefly the dominions, the Times pointed out.

"As seen here," the dispatch continued, "the Chamberlain Government has reached a parting of the ways and must decide whether the economic and political advantages of an understanding with the United States are worth the price of diminishing the advantages now granted to the dominions against the rest of the world."

"The concessions to the United States obviously mean less preference for dominion goods on the British market, and the interdependence question was demonstrated only last week when the Anglo-Australian system of mutual preference was renewed virtually without change pending the outcome of the Anglo-American negotiations."

MILLION OUTLAY TO BOOST THEATRE GROSS $20,000,000 IS DRIVE GOAL

300 at Joint Meeting Hear Plans for Newspaper Ad Campaign, Theatre Contest and Displays and Promotion Reel

A $1,000,000 budget that it is estimated and hoped will bring a $20,000,000 increase in box office receipts throughout the country this fall and winter, was adopted Wednesday when 300 representatives of all phases of the industry gathered at theHotel Astor in New York, to hear details of a plan that will be executed by distributors and affiliated and independent exhibitors for conducting a nationwide advertising campaign to stimulate public interest in new product in a "greater movie season" project, to run from September 1st to December 31st.

The drive, with the slogan "Movies Are Your Best Entertainment," will be financed jointly by the three branches of the industry and it was for the purpose of obtaining pledges of financial support from independent circuit owners that George J. Schaefer, head of distribution for United Artists and chairman of the campaign committee, called the New York meeting.

Expenses, as outlined by Mr. Schaefer, will be shared in this fashion:

Producing and distributing companies	$500,000
Affiliated circuits	250,000
Independent theatres and circuits	250,000

The producing and distributing companies and the affiliated circuits already have pledged three-fourths of the $1,000,000 budget, Mr. Schaefer explained, with the provision that the remainder be collected.

Cards Signed for 744 Theatres

As evidence of the support to be given the drive by exhibitors, Gradwell Sears, a member of Mr. Schaefer's committee, called upon the exhibitors to sign pledges of financial assistance and before the conclusion of the meeting cards had been signed in behalf of 744 theatres with a total of 750,000 seats.

The pledges call for contributions by exhibitors at the rate of 10 cents for each seat in the houses they operate. Should the unaffiliated theatres' contributions total more than $250,000, Mr. Schaefer indicated that the affiliated theatres are prepared to match the figure.

Affiliated circuits, Mr. Schaefer said, have pledged not less than $250,000, and their total contributions will depend upon the amount subscribed by independent theatres.

$575,000 for Newspaper Ads

Advertising in daily newspapers, "in every city, town and hamlet where there is a daily newspaper," will take $575,000 to $600,000 of the budget, Mr. Schaefer explained. It was understood approximately 4,500 lines of advertising would be used in each newspaper. The remainder will be divided into $250,000 for 5,000 prizes in a national contest, and $150,000 to $175,000 for literature, lobby displays, and for work on a one or two-reel short subject to be produced and made available to every theatre, according to Mr. Schaefer.

The solicitation of subscriptions from independent houses will be carried on through an exhibitors' committee, augmented by local committees in each exchange territory. Invitations to serve were accepted at the New York meeting by Nathan Yamins, president of National Allied States Association and of the New England Allied unit; R. E. Griffith, of the Griffith Brothers circuit of Oklahoma; Joseph Seider, Prudential circuit; Moe Horowitz, Cleveland exhibitor; Ed Silverman, Chicago; John Danz of Seattle and M. A. Lightman, head of the Malco Circuit, Memphis.

To support his plea for active and financial cooperation in the drive, Mr. Schaefer pointed out that the yearly estimated gross of theatres in the United States is $800,000,000, making a weekly gross of about $16,000,000.

20% Increase Expected

Through the drive it is hoped that business will be increased 20 per cent, or $3,200,000 a week, Mr. Schaefer continued.

For the skeptics, Mr. Schaefer declared, "we'll just cut in half the conservative estimate and say that the campaign will stimulate the box office to the extent of 10 per cent." It was with this line of reasoning that Mr. Schaefer arrived at the $20,000,000 box office return from the $1,000,000 expenditure in the three months.

To carry out the campaign there are three committees at work—the distributors' committee, headed by Mr. Schaefer; the advertising and publicity committee, consisting of Howard Dietz, chairman, Charles E. McCarthy and Robert Gillham, and a committee of studio publicity executives headed by Gabe Yorke.

Paul Gulick, former publicity director for Universal, has been appointed coordinator, and Frank C. Walker of the Comerford Circuit and former treasurer of the National Democratic Committee, has been named treasurer.

Three Reasons Cited

Mr. Schaefer cited three main reasons for the campaign being undertaken and pointed to the fact that other industries, such as the automobile, the textile, the railroad, the ice manufacturers and the electrical manufacturers, have organizations set up to handle their advertising and publicity on a national scale.

The number one reason given was "the general depression." Number two on the list was "the seasonal decline in our business along with the use of daylight saving time."

Before naming the third reason, Mr. Schaefer remarked: "And we may just as well be frank about the whole thing, the third reason is that there has been too much loose talk on the part of all of us."

The motion picture industry, he continued, is a perfect target for editorial writers, columnists and commentators.

"There must be no more loose talk," he declared, "even though it will be pretty hard to put the gag on persons who like to break into headlines."

Benefit of New Product

Mr. Schaefer pointed out that by launching the campaign at this time the industry has the advantage of entering a new season and the benefit of new product.

"We don't think that is sufficient though," Mr. Schaefer added. "We think we can give business an added kick and increase the box office by 20 per cent.

"Production companies stand ready to help us in all ways. A committee has been appointed in California and, we hope, through the work of this committee, that we can control some of that loose talk."

Cooperation from producing companies will be in the form of making a one or two-reel short with 1,000 to 1,500 prints. The short subject, Mr. Schaefer emphasized, will not "plug" any individual company or picture.

"We hope to have personalities of all companies doing a bit," he added.

From Theatre Viewpoint

Mr. Dietz elaborated on this point by telling of the informal conferences which he held in Los Angeles last week with publicity and advertising executives.

"A film of outstanding personalities will be made," he said, "and it will be done from a theatre point of view.

"Also, we are at work now finding those players that will be willing to take trips to various points to help things along. I'm confident that we'll gather a small army of players."

The purposes of the entire campaign, as outlined by both Mr. Schaefer and Mr. Dietz, will be to "sell the glamour of motion pictures, to sell the entertainment value of motion pictures, and to make people motion picture-minded so that they will go to theatres and thus stimulate the box office."

Civic Groups Lining Up

To carry out the plan of stimulating interest in the new season's product, Chambers of Commerce throughout the country are being lined up and mayors will be urged to lend their support by pointing out that trade follows the motion pictures, Mr. Dietz explained.

A highlight of the campaign will be the contest in theatres. A booklet listing questions concerning the pictures released from August 1st to October 31st will be issued to the public. The contest, however, will run from September 1st to December 31st. Mr. Dietz used as an example the picture "Too Hot to Handle." In this case, he explained, the question might be "What was the name of the plane in the picture?"

"All attention," Mr. Dietz assured the exhibitors, "will be directed to the theatres."

Publishers To Cooperate

As for cooperation from newspapers, Mr. Dietz said that in the last few days he had spoken to several publishers and they "have told me that they will be only too happy to

SUCCESS CLAIMED IN LOEW'S DRIVE

Good results from a publicity and advertising campaign being conducted by Loew's theatres in an effort to increase July and August business were reported by the circuit this week.

The theme of the campaign is "Loew's Has the Pictures," and in this way the circuit is striving to overcome recent publicity concerning a shortage of product.

Interviews with C. C. Moskowitz and other Loew's officials appearing in newspapers stress that the circuit has no lack of good films.

The campaign was worked out under the direction of Oscar A. Doob.

CAMPAIGN RUNS SEPT. 1 TO DEC. 31

lend a hand to stimulate interest in theatres."

The campaign, Mr. Dietz pointed out, will entail no high pressure sales methods; it will merely be a campaign to "say the movies are very good."

"We are not trying to trick the public," he explained, "we are just trying to discuss some of the things the public would like to hear."

Mr. Schaefer and Mr. Dietz, who is promotional director of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, were the only two speakers, except Mr. Sears of Warner Brothers, who announced that pledge cards would be distributed.

The meeting, scheduled for 10:30 o'clock, got under way at about 11, after the committee discovered the East Ball Room of the hotel was not large enough for the number attending and transferred their activities to a larger meeting room.

Committeemen Introduced

Mr. Schaefer presided, and, after commenting that he would like to "start the meeting with a prayer," introduced the committee members on the platform. They were Spyros Skouras, head of National Theatres; Joseph Bernhard, head of Warner Brothers Theatres; Mr. Sears; Mr. Dietz; Herman Wobber, of Twentieth Century-Fox; Mr. McCarthy of Twentieth Century-Fox; Mr. Gillham, of Paramount; John O'Connor, head of RKO theatres; Y. Frank Freeman, head of Paramount Theatres; Charles Moskowitz, head of Loew's theatres, and Mr. Walker.

"I think this meeting is one of the most constructive things that has ever happened in the motion picture industry," Mr. Schaefer stated, to a round of applause.

He prefaced his explanation of the campaign plans by pointing out that "there are no frills to our story" and by admitting that no perfect plan can be evolved for the first year of a campaign.

"But we believe," he declared, "that this plan is as near perfect as possible."

He pointed to the fact that the automobile industry recently conducted a "Used Car Week" during which they sold more second-hand automobiles than in the previous 51 weeks. Other industries, he said, conduct campaigns and rely upon the newspaper and radio, but the motion picture industry has, in addition to these media, the screens of 15,000 to 16,000 theatres and their lobbies.

Mr. Schaefer's remarks were followed by a general pledging of exhibitor support.

The answering of questions continued until 1:30, when the meeting adjourned for a luncheon given by the campaign committee.

Late in the afternoon the newly appointed exhibitor committee went into conference with Mr. Schaefer.

Circuit Operators Attend

Among those who attended were Lewen Pizor, E. M. Fay, Fred Wehrenberg, J. Myer Schine, L. C. Griffith, R. E. Griffith, Glen W. Dickinson, Leo Brecher, Sam Dembow, Jr., Walter Vincent, Ed Dubinsky, John Harris, George Skouras, Samuel Rinzler, J. Von Herberg, Harry Brandt, Dave J. Chatkin, Si Fabian, E. J. Sparks, John Fitzgibbons, John Nolan, Robert J. O'Donnell, Sam Pinansky, M. Mullin and others.

The Internal Revenue Bureau this week reported that Wallace Beery and his wife have agreed to pay a 1934 income tax deficiency of $6,601.

MONOPOLY CHARGED IN GARY THEATRE CASE

Injunctions restraining the enforcement of clearance clauses are asked in a monopoly action filed in Chicago this week against Balaban & Katz, Warner Brothers Theatre Management Corporation and the eight major companies by the Gary Theatre Company, owners of the Palace, at Gary, Ind.

The plaintiff charges that its contracts require a wait of 10 weeks after national release of films and four weeks after Chicago Loop showings. The provisions, it is claimed, constitute a violation of the anti-trust laws in that they are in restraint of trade.

Kritsberg Named Head of Amkino

Samson Kritsberg has been appointed president of Amkino Corporation, U.S.S.R. film distributor for North and South America. He formerly was vice-president of the organization but had no active position until the appointment in April of V. I. Verlinsky, Amkino president, as head of the newsreel and short subject division in Moscow.

Mr. Kritsberg is now in full charge of Amkino. He formerly was active in Intourist, Inc., and retains his vice-presidency in that Government agency.

Amkino will release 20 features during 1938-39, Mr. Kritsberg said. This is the same number as the current program and represents a fraction of the number of features produced in Soviet Russia.

Included in the new season's films will be "Gorky's Childhood," on the life of the Russian writer; "The Oppenheim Family," from the novel by Leon Feuchtwanger, and "Alexander Nevsky," Sergei Eisenstein's first film in several years. The latter is the story of the defeat of the German invasion in the 18th century by Czar Alexander.

MGM Honors Thalberg

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's new administration building at the Culver City studio has been named The Irving Thalberg Building in memory of the late executive producer. The opening date has been set for August 1st when dedicatory ceremonies will be held.

University Completes Film

Yale University department of drama has completed a film on backstage production entitled "It's Not All Play." The film will be released to drama workers in churches, schools and colleges as the first in a series of educational pictures.

Farley Action on Bank Night Soon

James A. Farley, Postmaster General, is scheduled to act shortly on the application of Affiliated Enterprises, owner of Bank Night, for a rehearing on the order barring Affiliated from use of the mails on the ground that the lottery laws have been violated.

Other developments of the week included the opinion of W. W. Venable, city attorney for Clarksdale, Miss., that theatre Bank Night is legal in Mississippi. He said Mississippi laws "do not prohibit the offering of prizes, large or small dependent on holding the lucky number where there is a sale of something equal in value to the money spent and the prize is something in addition."

The application for a rehearing of the Affiliated action was filed shortly after the ban was issued some weeks ago. Through its attorney, John M. Keating, Affiliated contends that the evidence did not support the older and cited cases to show that such schemes are not illegal.

Affiliated has refrained from using the mails, according to Mr. Keating. It is learned that the company, which has its headquarters in Denver, has virtually ceased operations and is disposing of its territorial franchises to local distributors. All business by the sales representatives is being transferred verbally and collections are being made in person, it is understood.

City Solicitor Jerome I. Meyers, Scranton, Pa., has ruled that Bingo is illegal under Pennsylvania law. The city authorities are conducting a study of the situation before taking action.

The civil appeals court, Galveston, Tex., has issued an injunction restraining the use of Buck Night as a theatre attraction.

The Utah supreme court ruled that the State Trade Commission cannot interfere in the operation of theatre chance games.

GB to Make "Slade" Series

GB will produce a series of feature films based on the novels by Richard Essex and depicting the adventures of "Slade," detective hero of the books. The first of the series will be "Slade of the Yard," with Michael Redgrave in the title role. Redgrave, who makes his screen debut this season after a career on the London stage, will be seen as the gentleman-detective in the entire series.

Cullen Loew District Manager

Michael Cullen has been named midwestern district manager of Loew's, succeeding W. A. Finney, who held the position with headquarters in Columbus many years. Mr. Cullen for many years was manager of Loew's Penn, Pittsburgh.

THE HOLLYWOOD SCENE

Non-Americana

Observers on the local scene are only now becoming aware that there's a battle for supremacy waging here between the various Continental contingents of players and that the current swing of nationalities is towards southern Europe. France and the Balkans are sharing the spotlight as the homelands of numerous imported screen thespians.

Gallic cinema recruits of note, for example, are Danielle Darrieux, Olympe Bradna, Simone Simon, Lily Pons, Annabella, Ilona Massey, Charles Boyer and Fernand Gravet.

Particularly flourishing is the Balkans coterie with Franciska Gaal, Luise Rainer, Miliza Korjus, Luli Deste, Oscar Homolka and Peter Lorre appearing important in the schemes of things.

Meanwhile the Nordics are holding their own, bolstered by such as Madeleine Carroll, George Sanders, Ronald Colman, Basil Rathbone, Merle Oberon, Errol Flynn, Ian Hunter, Henry Wilcoxon, Brian Aherne, David Niven and Herbert Marshall.

It is noted that the English-speaking personalities have an edge in achieving quicker prominence since they are not bothered with language difficulties. But the ladies and gentlemen from France, Austria, Hungary and Italy, etc., learn fast, at least enough to do a picture or two while mastering American pronunciation.

Just where do the Americans fit into all this? They may have to move over to admit a few foreigners into the select circle of the first ten box office stars.

Ten Completed

Interest in Hollywood's picture making activity during this late July period is centered more in the number of pictures completed than in the number started. As ten came off the line only four started. Three of the latter group are series productions. The fourth is the initial effort of a newly formed company.

With Barton MacLane and Glenda Farrell again teamed in the leading roles and with Tom Kennedy and Willard Robertson heading the supporting cast, Warners started "Torchy Gets Her Man."

Republic started "Pals of the Saddle." A "Three Mesquiteers" yarn, it will have John Wayne replacing Robert Livingston in the company of Ray Corrigan and Max Terhune. Doreen MacKay is the girl.

"Camera Dare Devils" went before the cameras at 20th Century-Fox. Gloria Stuart, Michael Whalen, Brian Dunlevy, J. Edward Bromberg and Wally Vernon are the principals.

Republic completed three pictures. "Dick Tracy Returns," a serial, will present Ralph Byrd, James Joyce, Lee Ford, Lynn Roberts, Jerry Tucker, Charles Middleton and John Merton. The cast of "Everything Happens to Us" is headed by James, Lucille and Russell Gleason with Paul Harvey, Harry Davenport and William Bakewell in support. Beverly Roberts and Bruce Cabot are the leads in "Tenth Avenue Kid" which will also feature Ben Weldon and Phillip and Horace MacMahon.

Two productions were finished at Columbia. Lanny Ross, Gloria Stuart, Joan Marsh, Robert Paige, Bess Flowers, Roy Benson, Arthur Loft, Stanley Brown, Robert Fiske and David Newell will be seen in "The Lady Objects." Buck Jones heads the cast of "The Phantom Trail" which also features Dorothy Fay, Hank Worden, Horace Murphy, Hank Mann, Bud Buster, Bob Terry, Walton Merrill and Roy Barcroft.

"The Circus Comes to Town" was finished at Monogram. Anne Nagel, Marjorie Main, Jack LaRue, Grant Richards, Herbert Rawlinson, Betty Compson, Charlene Wyatt and Snowflake are the principals.

"Always In Trouble" was marked off the active list at 20th Century-Fox. Jane Withers is the star. Jean Rogers, Robert Kellard, Eddie Collins, Nana Bryant, Joan Woodbury, Joseph Sawyer and Gene Lockhart will also be seen.

Paramount finished "Touchdown, Army" in which John Howard, Robert Cummings, Mary Carlisle, Owen Davis, William Frawley, Benny Baker, Minor Watson and Raymond Hatton will be seen.

"Carefree" was completed at RKO-Radio. Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers are co-starred. The supporting principals are Ralph Bellamy, Luella Gear, Jack Carson, Richard Lane, Kay Sutton and Jack Arnold.

Dick Powell, Olivia de Havilland, Allen Jenkins, Charles Winninger, Isabel Jeans, Bonita Granville, Melville Cooper and Patric Knowles are the leading players in Warners "Hot Heiress."

FILMS' FREE RADIO TIME ENDANGERED

The curtailment of free radio time used for exploitation of motion pictures is feared by exploitation men in Hollywood due to Station KECA's demanding and receiving payment for time for the premiere of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Marie Antoinette," which was carried by the National Broadcasting Company's Blue network as a sustaining program.

Harrison Holliway, general manager of KFI and KECA, NBC outlets in Hollywood, threatened not to use the NBC carried program on KECA unless MGM paid for it. The studio did, and KECA was the only station which was paid for the radio time.

KFI and KECA are owned by Earle C. Anthony and their contracts as Hollywood outlets for NBC have about four years to run. They are operated independently of NBC strings.

Mr. Holliway backed his demands with the statement: "A can of celluloid is as commercial as a can of beans. Covering a premiere of a motion picture by radio is just like presenting a program for a soup, or any other commodity."

Thunderbuggies

Cecil B. DeMille, energetic purveyor of little known historical incidents, which when they appear on the screen very often set the scholars to debating vociferously, arguments which like as not wind up by having our own professor number one in such matters catalogued as a "history faker" is, at the moment gathering up scads of odd and interesting facts which eventually will become part of his picture "Union Pacific."

For weeks he has been searching the ghost towns and railroad roundhouses of the west for ancient locomotives. As a matter of fact one of the items in his production budget represents the cost of the semi-extinct Virginia and Truckee Railroad, a line which in the boom days of the California gold rush hauled more than $700,000,000 worth of gold and silver from the famous Comstock Lode. Among the assets of the road, including the right of way are two old locomotives which have been reconditioned, have passed rigid Interstate Commerce Commission tests and Mr. DeMille, who has driven them says "they are entirely roadworthy."

Scouting around the Paramount lot, Mr. DeMille also unearthed another old transport veteran, Southern Pacific's hoary old No. 22. Exhibitors may remember seeing it in "High, Wide and Handsome."

No. 22 has a modern history all its own. It hurled Los Angeles into a turmoil a couple of years ago when Robert Gillham, getting wind of it, thought it would be a splendid piece of exploitation for the local premiere of the picture. He had the 50 ton thunderbuggy loaded on heavy drays and the trek from the freight yards to the ritzy Carthay Circle began. It was all right as long as the caravan remained on streets that had been built to accommodate heavy traffic. But when it struck sleek paved Wilshire Boulevard, fun and panic took over. The pavement cracked as egg shells would. Still Robert, riding ahead in a roadster, highballed the engine along. That is, until the cops caught up with him, pointed to signs bearing the legend "Heavy traffic prohibited." Whereupon No. 22 was dismantled and moved to the Circle in sections to be rebuilt again in the theatre's forecourt.

Licensing Agents

The American Federation of Actors has begun to license all agents who book organization members and has set September as a deadline for the completion of the licensing After that date, according to Ralph Whitehead, executive sercetary of the AFA, agents who have not obtained licenses will be placed on an "unfair" list.

The provisions of the licenses, it was said, will require adherence on the part of agents to a "closed shop" agreement. On the other hand, members of the organization will be permitted to deal only with licensed agents. The AFA said that the Rockwell-O'Keefe agency is inserting clauses in its contracts which will specify that the performer under contract must be a member in the AFA, or must agree to become one.

"Alexander" Carries Berlin's Genius From Dirty Eddie's to Carnegie Hall

Action Built Into Framework of Musical Continuity of Hits

by JOSEPH O'SULLIVAN

Syncopation has come a long way since Alexander's Ragtime Band first stirred the musical pulse of the American public, and a modest but very persistent genius of the black key method of tune-creation was first acclaimed King of Tin-Pan Alley.

A quarter of a century after that epochal event, Irving Berlin is still accorded the right to his title; for during the twenty-seven years that have elapsed since the rousing strains of Alexander set the nation's larynxes working overtime and its feet shuffling to its irresistible rhythm, this unassuming little wizard of absolute song has drawn from a seemingly inexhaustible source strains of pure melody, weaving them into lyrics of his own invention, to bring joy and the lilt of a blithe spirit into a troubled world. For Irving Berlin is concerned primarily and fundamentally with the melodic line and the rhythmic beat which find a sympathetic response in the heart of the people. Not a year has passed without a Berlin opus being ranked as an outstanding hit; and with 700 published songs and more than a score of music productions to his credit, the little Master Melodist is still going strong.

From Barbary to Carnegie Hall

It is from this golden treasury of popular melodic currency that the producers of "Alexander's Ragtime Band" have drawn without stint, and expended lavishly in the making of a production that reveals a perennial procession of Irving Berlin musical triumphs down through the years from 1911 to post-war days—from Dirty Eddie's of San Francisco's bawdy Barbary Coast, to the effete high-hat Carnegie Hall, New York.

As a chronological record of the development of syncopation from the era of ragtime, through the various phases of jazz and into the inception of the "swing" craze, the score of "Alexander's Ragtime Band" is an authentic, vital document comprising significant music of each type by the foremost exponent of this distinctively American tonal art that has literally set the world by the ears, revolutionizing and re-vitalizing the old dance forms into a tempo in keeping with the dizzy pace of our times.

Failure as Dance Number

Incidentally, it is interesting to note that "Alexander's Ragtime Band," when first published as a two-step, was a failure! It was only when the composer, six months later, put words to it and republished it as a song, that it became a sensational hit over night and firmly established the composer's reputation as a master of popular song.

As motivating media for the story of "Alexander's Ragtime Band," the music fits into the narration as effectively and as eloquently as though it were written with only this purpose in mind. Actually, it would appear that the producers had in concept a musical continuity of Irving Berlin hits and built the action into this framework, for in spirit, character and locale every musical number fits into the picture as an authentic integer of the production.

Into the production there are woven approximately thirty of the popular master's old songs and orchestra numbers, and two new numbers. In the Barbary Coast rendezvous known as Dirty Eddie's, Stella Kirby (Alice Faye), an entertainer looking for a job, first introduces "Alexander's Ragtime Band," accompanied by the orchestra of Roger Grant (Tyrone Power). The song sweeps the city and nation. Ragtime becomes the rage, and Roger is dubbed "Alexander" by the owner of Eddie's, while the musical aggregation becomes Alexander's Ragtime Band.

The first great classic of ragtime, written by Irving Berlin in 1911, which stirred the musical pulse of the nation as no other popular song has ever done.

It is first introduced by Stella Kirby (Alice Faye) in the Barbary Coast cafe sequence at the beginning of the story, when she sings with the orchestra led by Roger Grant (Tyrone Power). The song sweeps the city and nation, ushering in ragtime, and Roger's orchestra becomes known as Alexander's Ragtime Band, and Roger as Alexander.

The culmination of the story brings Alexander's Ragtime Band to the highbrow audience of Carnegie Hall, New York, with Stella (Miss Faye) again singing the famous old song to thunderous acclamation.

Trailing the triumphs of the band and the ripening romance of Alexander and Stella in the San Francisco sequences, are heard such early Berlin hits as "Ragtime Violin," "The International Rag" (sung by Alice Faye and Jack Haley), "Everybody's Doin' It Now," "When I Lost You," "This Is the Life" and "When the Midnight Choo-Choo Leaves for Alabam." Also a new song, "Now It Can Be Told," sung by Don Ameche and Alice Faye.

Then the War

Into this lusty prelude of musical adventure resound the trumpets of war. With the entry of the United States into the World War, Irving Berlin's inspiring contributions to the patriotic scene are re-created in the exciting recruiting and camp sequences—"For Your Country and My Country," "In the Y.M.C.A.," "We're on Our Way to France"—while that classic of a tired soldier's life—"Oh! How I Hate to Get Up in the Morning"—is given graphic interpretation by Jack Haley.

A stirring surprise dramatic scene climaxes the big army show given at a Broadway theatre, when the show is cut short by orders from headquarters and the company marches off stage and out the front of the house to the inspiring strains of "We're on Our Way to France"—the audience only then realizing that the boys are on their way "over there"—perhaps for the final curtain.

The War over, the cavalcade of music accompanies the adventures, the romances, the conquests of Alexander and his band. Through Greenwich Village, where Alex has reassembled his band . . . to Paris and to London . . . and new triumphs. Back to the States, where Alex gets his big opportunity to introduce "swing" music to the public from hallowed Carnegie Hall!

And at every step the music and the lyrics of Irving Berlin wing the action and point the story in song and melody that long ago captured the hearts of the millions and now awaken nostalgic memories in such haunting refrains as "A Pretty Girl Is Like a Melody," "Blue Skies," "What'll I Do," "Remember," "All Alone," "Marie," "Cheek to Cheek" and the catchy "Pack Up Your Sins and Go to the Devil," "Everybody Step," "Easter Parade" and "Heat Wave."

The culmination of the story, and of the music brings "Alexander's Ragtime Band" to a glorious acclamation in Carnegie Hall, with Stella (Alice Faye) reunited to Alexander (Tyrone Power), singing the famous old number with the band to thunderous applause.

The musical direction, deserving of the highest praise, is accredited to Alfred Newman.

French Exhibit at World's Fair To Feature Films

Motion pictures will have a leading part in the exhibit of France at the New York World's Fair 1939, Commissioner General Marcel Olivier has advised Grover A. Whalen, president of the Fair.

A 500 seat theatre will be constructed in the French Building. The programs will be divided between historical, documentary and travel films. Five smaller rooms in one of the wings of the building will be set aside for showing of pictures dealing with the five French colonies, Morocco, Tunisia, Central Africa, Algeria, and Indo-China. Automatic projectors will be used, and these programs will last from five to eight minutes each.

Guaranteed Acquires Two

Mort Sikawitt, president of Guaranteed Pictures, this week said the company has purchased "Revolt of the Zombie" and "I Conquer the Sea" for all foreign countries exclusive of United Kingdom, Continental Europe and Egypt. Mr. Sikawitt said that all previous litigation in connection with these films has been settled among all litigants.

Milton Schwarzwald, producer and director of Nu-Atlas and Mentone short subjects, will shortly begin production at the Eastern Service Studios in Long Island City on two series of musical films to be released by Universal and RKO Radio.

Filmack Trailer Company, Chicago, continues its planned expansion this week, with the opening of its new and modern sound studios. Virgil Bowers, sound engineer, is in charge of the new department.

Portable motion picture shows are being screened in and around the Belgrade Lakes section of Maine by Clyde Tilton.

Atlas Option on RKO Stock Will Not Be Exercised

Atlas Corporation will permit its option on the remaining RKO securities held by Radio Corporation of America to lapse this week, July 31st, without acquiring any additional securities, spokesmen for both Atlas and RCA said.

The reasons given for the termination of the negotiations were that Atlas considered the $5,500,000 option price on the remaining securities held by RCA as "too high," and RCA's insistence on board and management authority in reorganized RKO in the event the option was extended for six months.

The goverment was made a party in the RKO reorganization proceedings "for the presentation of evidence and argument upon the question of the constitutionality of section 77B of the Bankruptcy Act" under the provisions of an order signed Monday by Federal Judge William Bondy.

The order further provides that the petition of the Government to intervene be deemed an appearance of the Government in opposition to the objections of H. Cassel and Company, Cotia Realty Corporation and the Fabian Operating Corporation to the proposed amendment to the plan of reorganization insofar as the objections are based upon the contention that section 77B is unconstitutional.

Judge Bondy's order was in response to an application of the Government upon certification to it that section 77B was being attacked.

A motion to confirm the report of Special Master George W. Alger approving the RKO plan of reorganization will be heard in United States district court in New York September 8th, Judge Bondy indicated.

Price, Waterhouse and Company, accountants, have applied for an allowance of $3,500 for services in the RKO reorganization proceedings. The petition asked for the allowance for auditing the books of RKO for the first six months of this year.

RKO Executives Return East

S. Barret McCormick and Dave Strumpf returned to New York this week following several days of sales and advertising conferences on new RKO product. They brought back word that RKO's first product announcement will be completed shortly and will include 12 to 16 titles for the first quarter of the new season. The company's 1938-39 schedule will consist of 48 features.

George O'Brien has been signed by RKO to star in six pictures for the coming season. Bert Gilroy will produce and Dave Howard direct.

Ned E. Depinet was to arrive in New York Thursday.

Canadian Circuit Sets Meetings

The annual convention of eastern managers of Famous Players Canadian Corporation, Toronto, will be held at the King Edward Hotel there August 24-26, while the western division convention is scheduled for September 7-9 at Jasper, Alberta. Both meetings will be attended by N. L. Nathanson, president.

Plans for the Union Airway Terminal which will be built at 42nd St. and Park Ave., N. Y. call for the inclusion of a 596 seat newsreel theatre.

RADIO INDEPENDENTS MAY RETURN TO ACTION

Commission's Inquiry Prompts Call for Network Affiliates' Convention, August 16th

A group of independent radio network affiliates, alarmed by the Federal Communications Commission's investigation of networks, meeting independently but approved by the National Association of Broadcasters, convened at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, New York, Monday to discuss whether the Independent Radio Network Affiliates, disbanded after the formation of NAB, should be resumed.

The invitations to attend the meeting were sent jointly by Mark Ethridge, formerly temporary president of NAB and head of WHAS, Louisville, and Samuel Rosenbaum of WFIL, Philadelphia.

As a result of the discussions, it was determined to issue a call to all independent radio network affiliates, of which there are approximately 250, to attend a special convention for that branch of the industry to be held in Chicago August 16-17. Following that meeting, the IRNA will function again officially if the delegates vote in favor of the idea.

Those who attended the meeting in addition to Mr. Ethridge and Mr. Rosenbaum were: Edgar Bill, WMBD; Bill Pape, WALA; Bill Scripps, WWJ; Jack Howard of the Scripps-Howard organization; Peggy Stone of Hearst Radio; John Sheppard of the Yankee and Colonial networks; John Gillen, WGR and WKBW; Donald Willycomb, WFIL; John Kennedy, WCHS; Harry Stone, WSM; Arthur Church, KMBC, and H. K. Carpenter, WHK.

WLW Hearings

Exhibitors in the vast area covered by radio station WLW in Cincinnati have stiff competition, it was indicated this week at hearings before the Federal Communications Commission on the station's application for extension of its authority to broadcast with 500,000 watts power. The hearings were concluded Tuesday.

More than three-fourths of its time on the air is devoted to entertainment features, it was testified by James Shouse, vice president in charge of broadcasting. Night service of the station extends from Maine practically to the Rocky Mountains and from the deep South far into Canada, it was shown by exhibits submitted by G. F. Lyford, WLW engineer.

Called before the commission for the first time, the station is attempting to show that it is engaged in a program of research of value to all members of the broadcasting industry and should be permitted to continue to operate on 500 kilowatts.

Basically, the Crosley Radio Corporation is attempting to convince the commission that it has benefited but little financially from its superpower operations, and presented charts to show that the increase in power from 50 to 500 kilowatts increased its primary service but little, if any, and served only to broaden its secondary service area.

On the other hand, the commission has received complaints that WLW is a network in itself and that advertisers using the facility of the station have been able to discontinue the use of other outlets over an area in which is located 80 per cent of the Nation's population.

It is also felt by members of the commission that the Crosley station has benefited materially financially from its superpower operations, in contravention of the commission's policy that experimental operations should not be commercialized. Advertising rates of the station, it has been charged, doubled following the increase in power. This particular aspect of the company's operations will be subjected to intensive scrutiny during the hearings, which are expected to continue for a week or more.

While officials of the station are apparently none too sanguine that the commission will extend its superpower permit, in view of the agitation against the use of power in excess of 50,000 watts, there is a general belief in Washington that WLW will be permitted to continue but that its authorization will be sharply hedged about with requirements that it undertake what the commission will consider a real program of research and a provision that its advertising rates shall not be at such level as to result in greater profit to the station than it would derive from operation under its regular 50,000 watt license.

Canadian Investigation

Demanding that royalty-free radio goods be kept out of Canada, that radio goods not complying with the Canadian electrical code also be kept out; that the sales tax on radio sets be cut, and that there be a downward revision of duties on radio parts and materials, the Radio Manufacturers Association of Canada opened their case in Ottawa last week before the Tariff Board at the beginning of its inquiry into cost of radio sets, methods of manufacture and distribution.

George Sedgewick, chairman of the Tariff Board, and W. D. Herridge, counsel for the Philco Company of Philadelphia, leaned toward the belief that the spread between American and Canadian prices needed some explanation.

"I have great difficulty in persuading myself that the price spread on radio sets should be greater than the spread on automobile prices in the two countries," Mr. Sedgewick said. In the automobile field it is 25 per cent, he said, while in radio it is 30 to 70 per cent. "I mention the question in this extreme way because there are probably 10,000,000 people in this country who don't understand why these spreads should be."

President A. L. Brown of the Radio Manufacturers' Association of Canada declared that royalty paying firms in Canada were just as anxious as Philco to reduce costs to users. Mr. Brown called Mr. Herridge's suggestion to stimulate the Canadian radio business by drastic price reductions a "dream rainbow."

ACADEMY PLANS RADIO PROGRAM

The Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences this week stated that its proposed radio program would be called "Cavalcade of Hollywood" and would start on a network in the fall under commercial sponsorship. Except to say that the program format would be "entirely different" Academy officers would reveal nothing.

Grover Jones, film writer, is chairman of the committee to arrange full details of the show, which will feature prominent film personalities. It was said the show will be weekly and will be either a half or full hour in length.

REFINANCING PLAN IS PROPOSED BY WARNERS

Optional 6% Convertible Debentures Would Be Exchanged for New Issue Maturing in 1948

Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc. is asking the holders of its optional six per cent convertible debentures, due September 1, 1939, of which there are $29,400,000 outstanding, to deposit their debentures in accordance with a plan of exchange under which the debentures will be exchanged for an equal principal amount of new six per cent debentures maturing in 1948.

The Company's Plan

To the holders of the debentures, Albert Warner, vice-president, addressed the following information:

"Our records show that you are a holder of Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc. optional six per cent convertible debentures, series due 1939. These debentures were issued in a total amount of $44,064,500 of which $14,664,500 have been retired leaving $29,400,000 principal amount now outstanding.

"These debentures mature for payment on September 1, 1939.

"The company has endeavored to secure an underwriting for the public sale of new securities to provide the funds for the retirement of the outstanding debentures. However, owing to general conditions, a satisfactory underwriting could not be obtained.

"From the standpoint of both the debenture-holder and the company, is has become increasingly desirable that steps be taken at this time to meet the approaching maturity of the outstanding debentures. To that end, the management has formulated a plan for the exchange of the present debentures for new debentures. Transferable certificates of deposit will be issued for debentures deposited pursuant to the enclosed deposit agreement. The certificates of deposit will be listed on the New York Stock Exchange and registered holders of certificates of deposit will be entitled to receive interest as it matures on the deposited debentures. Upon the plan of exchange becoming effective, new debentures in an equal principal amount will be deliverd to the registered holders of certificates of deposit, as provided in the deposit agreement.

Same Rate of Interest

"The new debentures will bear the same rate of interest as the present debentures, namely six per cent and will mature September 1, 1948. The debentures will be authorized in the maximum amount of $29,400,000 and will be issued only in exchange for the present debentures.

"The present debentures provided for an annual purchase fund of three percent of the largest aggregate principal amount of debentures which were outstanding at any one time, providing the debentures could be purchased at or below par. Such annual purchase fund was equivalent to $1,287,015 principal amount of debentures. The new debentures provide for a sinking fund under which there will be retired three per cent of the largest aggregate principal amount of debentures which shall have been outstanding at any one time, on December 15th of each of the years 1939, 1940, 1941; four per cent of said aggregate amount, on December 15th of each of the years 1942, 1943, 1944; and five per cent of said aggregate amount, on December 15th of each of the years 1945, 1946, 1947. Since the maximum amount of new debentures which may be issued is $29,400,000, the maximum annual sinking fund for the first three years will be $882,000 principal amount of debentures, for the next three years $1,176,000 principal amount of debentures and for the following three years $1,470,000 principal amount of debentures. In the event that less than $29,400,000 of new debentures are issued, the sinking fund will be correspondingly lower.

"During the years the present debentures have been outstanding, the company has always promptly paid the interest on the day it matured and has promptly retired the full amount of debentures required under the purchase fund."

The company also sent to stockholders copies of the plan of exchange, the deposit agreement, the supplemental indenture under which the new debentures will be issued, the consolidated financial accounts of the company and its subsidiaries for the 39-week period ending May 28th, and the letter of transmittal and acceptance.

"The management believes it is to the best interests of the debenture holders to deposit their debentures under the plan of exchange and recommends such action," Mr. Warner said, requesting the holders to fill in the enclosed letter of transmittal and acceptance and mail it together with their debentures to the New York Trust Company, Mr. Warner acting by direction of the board of directors.

Warners Cite Operating Results of Company for Past Three Years

Accompanying Albert Warner's letter sent to debenture holders this week in explanation of the proposed new plan of refinancing six per cent optional convertible debentures was a comparison of the operating results of the company and its subsidiaries for the three fiscal years ending August 28, 1937, and the 39 weeks ending May 28, 1938, as follows:

Purchase of Muzak By WB Explained

The acquisition by Warner Brothers of Muzak Corporation, a wired music system, and two music companies, Associated Music Publishers, Inc., and Breitkopf Publications, Inc., was explained this week in a quarterly letter sent to stockholders by J. F. Fogarty, president of North American Company, which formerly controlled the companies.

"The business of Muzak Corporation and that of the music companies were developed as an adjunct to wired radio," Mr. Fogarty said in his letter. "While the enterprise affords the possibility of increased use of electricity, progress in that direction will depend on the development of the use of wired radio in the amusement field. In view of this and of provisions of the Public Utility Holding Company it was thought desirable to seek the cooperation of interests identified in an important way with the amusement industry."

The transferring of Muzak, reported in Motion Picture Herald, May 21st, was announced in conjunction with the issuing of North American's financial statement for the 12 months ended June 30th. The report, subject to audit, showed net income of $16,212,549 after federal income taxes, interest, amortization, depreciation, subsidiary preferred dividends and surtax on undistributed profits, equivalent after 6 per cent preferred dividend requirements, to $1.68 a share on 8,574,677 shares of common stock. The net income for the year ended June 30, 1937, was $19,076,402, or $2.01 a share on 8,575,735 shares of common stock.

North American, in its non-utility enterprises, for a number of years has operated Wired Radio, Inc., which has been experimenting in transmitting over light and power wires musical and other programs. Muzak Corporation, which holds licenses under Wired Radio patents, furnishes program services in New York City. The two music companies furnish programs for Muzak.

Mr. Fogarty said Warner Brothers may, within two years, acquire ownership of Wired Radio.

Fortune Claims Films Do Not Satisfy Public

Radio broadcasters are giving the public what it wants, but the movies are not, Fortune Magazine claims in its present "quarterly survey" of "public opinion," published in the August issue.

Warning that Hollywood had better "look to its laurels," the limitedly circulated "class" member of the magazine publishing and magazine-reel producing family of Time, Inc., claims that "public opinion" holds films are lagging behind automobiles, radio broadcasting and air transportation in the progress made in giving the public what it wants.

"The statements are news about Public Opinion, because they are outlines of what the nation thinks about" the subjects mentioned, "gathered by personal interviews with a genuine cross section of the United States population," declares Fortune, without giving any further insight or explanation of the who, how, when or where of the interviewing or "cross-section" represented.

Fortune, whose affiliate, March of Time, is itself in the motion picture business by reason of the magazine newsreel it distributes through RKO, asserts that "public opinion" appraises progress of four industries as follows:

Automobiles	43.1%
Radio broadcasting	29.2
Air transportation	9.8
Moving pictures	9.5
No opinion	8.4

"Evidently the slump in automobile sales has nothing to do with what the public thinks of the product. It is approved by nearly as many people as the other three industries put together, including those that provide the two most popular recreations. This is in spite of the fact that there are nowhere near so many automobile owners as there are radio listeners and movie-goers.

"Evidently, on the other hand, the slump in movie attendance may be traced to the inadequacy of the output," asserts Fortune ($1 the copy, no newsstand sales), in this latest outside belittlement of the motion picture. "People do go to the movies because it is something to do," continues the magazine, "but not necessarily because they are enthusiastic about the fare Hollywood is providing. On the contrary, even revivals of old silent films have recently outsold costly new offerings, and a year ago it was discovered that about three-quarters of the people with preferences (Fortune Survey, July, 1937) like single-feature programs better than the double features the exhibitors continue to provide, although a double feature is, to be sure, more film for the price of admission. The notably poor showing of the cinema in the public favor is further emphasized in comparison with air transport, which, though it affects the average man not at all, rates a shade higher in his estimation.

"Analysis of the answers shows that air travel outranks movies in the approval of each economic level—except the Negroes—even including the poor whose chances of flying are nearly nil. Women and oldsters, still cautious of the hazards of flight, also give the movies a slight edge upon airplanes, but very slight. And only one part of the country, Hollywood's own Pacific Coast, gives the pictures any appreciable preference—14.9 per cent as against 10.3 for air transport. Let Hollywood look to its laurels," says Fortune.

James A. FitzPatrick will make 12 Traveltalks in color for the 1938-39 short subjects program for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release.

SOCIAL PICTURES GAIN SUPPORT

The summer student body and faculty of Columbia University, New York City, are in favor of the production of films devoted to social problems. A vote on the question was held after a recent screening of Walter Wanger's production, "Blockade."

The film, the group decided, is not subversive of democratic ideals.

Disney Acquires New Studio Site

Plans were completed by Walt Disney this week for the purchase of 51 acres in the San Fernando Valley, Los Angeles, from the city-owned Municipal Bureau of Power and Light for a new studio building to cost, with equipment, $1,100,000. The property goes into escrow following 30 days of publication of the deal in legal journals as required by law.

Work on the new buildings, which will house all cartoon production, will start in September and will require about two years to finish. With activities for production expanded to include further features to 1,000 when the new buildings are ready for occupancy. The structure will be completely air conditioned.

With the increased space and enlarged staff Mr. Disney hopes to produce a cartoon feature each year instead of the present schedule of one every 18 months. He is now working on "Pinnochio" and "Bambi." The first will require 18 months of work and the second two years.

The reason Mr. Disney bought so much land was the refusal of the power and light bureau to split up the property. Virtually all of the present equipment of the Hyperion Avenue plant will be moved to the new quarters.

Dunlap Praises Talent Guilds

The prophecy that Hollywood's guilds will become extremely valuable, not only to the little fellows they are primarily interested in helping, but to the studio employers, was voiced in New York this week by Scott R. Dunlap, vice-president in charge of Monogram production.

Mr. Dunlap said the guilds are policing the business and that he is convinced the guilds are going to make contracts work both ways.

"I have said in Hollywood and I'm repeating it," he said, "that this is no time to increase cost of production in any studio. With the present difficulties confronting the film business and all American business, everybody who's working for any business should have a greater sense of responsibility.

"I'm sure the Hollywood guilds recognize this and are planning and acting accordingly."

Coast Liberals Urge "Freedom" For the Screen

With Walter Wanger, United Artists producer, leading the attack on censorship groups, 350 representatives of 60 religious, fraternal, social, labor and veteran organizations gathered in Hollywood's Hotel Roosevelt last week and formed the Conference on Freedom of the Screen.

"The time has come for Hollywood to strike back" at the small groups that are keeping the film industry from producing the pictures the public wants, Mr. Wanger declared. He pointed out that the main function of the screen "is to entertain," but then added, "No one who is trying to thrill a public can afford to ignore current issues."

The right of producers to make films with political and social themes, if they so desire, was repeatedly emphasized at the session which was called and presided over by John Abbott, director of the Film Library of the Modern Museum. The Modern Museum was endowed by the Rockefellers two years ago to establish and maintain "a museum tracing the history of the motion picture."

As a start toward carrying out its plan to fight the critics of motion pictures, the conference appointed Herbert Biberman as chairman of a committee to select a permanent board. On the committee with Mr. Biberman are John Cromwell, William Dieterle, Frank Sheridan, John Ford, Mr. Wanger and Dana Bennett.

Mr. Ford called upon the meeting to protest "any Nazi or fascistic movement designed to tell Americans what they may or may not see on the screen. Mr. Wanger said:

"All organizations whose responsibility it has been to protect the name of the industry and its operations have failed so far. Let us not fail. The Hays organization (Motion Picture Producers, and Distributors of America) has a complicated task and Joseph Breen (Production Code Administrator) has done a wonderful job, but they need help and we should give it to them to strengthen the courage of the distributor and exhibitor who is falling behind his public and thereby suffering financial loss. America has had unquestioned leadership throughout the world in motion pictures until recently and in the interest of artistic, idealistic, commercial pride and progress we must not fall behind."

Mr. Wanger then pointed out that the particular event that prompted the meeting was the production of his picture, "Blockade."

"The issue before us," he continued, "is that an industry so pregnant with talent—writers, directors and actors—can be blocked forever by outsiders who keep it from making pictures the public wants because of the evil restrictions of a small group.

"As an example: Do not forget we were told the Government did not want Sinclair Lewis' 'It Can't Happen Here' produced in films. Yet a year later, the Government flooded the country with WPA production of it on their stages. This is indicative of the betrayal we have been enjoying.

Meanwhile, Mr. Wanger inserted advertisements in the trade press announcing that the National Peace Conference had presented to him a "special award of distinction and service," in "recognition of his understanding of the problems facing the world today as reflected in his screen production of 'Blockade'."

In Boston where a controversy developed over the film last week, "Blockade" opened at Loew's State and the Orpheum and the dispute was credited with tripling normal business.

Sweethearts

(Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer)

Operetta

The five man team responsible for the success of "Naughty Marietta," a production which revolutionized the pattern of modern musicals, join forces again for picturization of another Victor Herbert operetta. Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy will be co-starred for the fifth time. Frank Morgan heads the supporting cast. W. S. Van Dyke again is the director and Hunt Stromberg the producer. "Sweethearts" is the first of six color features which MGM has scheduled for the new season.

Although the Herbert operetta is the basis of the story complications, its production is made incidental to the screen story. The screen play is credited to Dorothy Parker and Alan Campbell and is said to be full of typical Parker witticisms. It concerns the co-stars of a musical show that has been running six years. No matter where they go, they cannot escape its music. Constant demands are made on them for recordings and broadcasts. Hollywood has long been bidding for them. Sick and tired of the show, weary of the tricks the producer plays on them to garner more publicity, they agree to sign a film contract. But all the earlier troubles they experienced are as nothing when the producer, press agent and authors of the show cook up plot after plot to keep the stars from walking out.

While most of the celebrated Herbert melodies will be retained, many new ones have been added by Chet Forrest and Bob Wright, composers of the "Donkey Serenade" number in "The Firefly." A ballet of fifty, directed by Albertina Rasch, will be seen in the spectacular song and dance episodes.

In addition to the name value of Miss MacDonald and Mr. Eddy, exhibitors may do quite a bit of picking and choosing, as the supporting cast lists many wellknown personalities. There will be Frank Morgan, currently in "The Crowd Roars," Florence Rice, presently in "Fast Company," Ray Bolger, Mischa Auer, Herman Bing and Reginald Gardiner. Also playing are Allyn Joslyn, the press agent in "Hollywood Hotel" and the reporter in "They Won't Forget," Fay Holden of the "Judge Hardy series, Olin Howland, Gene and Kathleen Lockhart, Lucille Watson, Raymon Walburn, now in "Professor Beware," Terry Kilburn, the youngster who clicked so impressively in "Lord Jeff," Betty Jaynes and Douglas MacPhail.

Freshman Year

Collegiate Capers

The characters in this forthcoming screen ornament will be (1) a chorus girl, very smart but not in the book of knowledge; (2) a professor who has been giving the same examination for 20 years; (3) a son of sixty families aristocracy made a regular guy by hard times; (4) a freshman coed—the upper classmen hollered "fire" when she passed by; (5) a would be journalist who wrote a student paper editorial that exploded in his face; (6) a country boy who became elected freshman president for leading them to victory over the sophomores in the annual "Hell Day" rites. In person they are, in the order listed, Dixie Dunbar, Ernest Truex, William Lundigan, Constance Moore, Stanley Hughes and Frank Melton.

After many things common to college stories have happened to them, Lundigan, Hughes and Melton form a "flunk prevention" insurance company. All goes well until the whole college flunks Truex's examination, changed for the first time in a generation. To get the money to pay off, the whole gang, with chorus girl Dixie Dunbar starred, stage a college follies. It is to be, after they have found selling tickets impossible, a pay-as-you-leave-if-satisfied proposition. When the professor is hoodwinked into joining the chorus girl in a dance, the show becomes an entertainment and commercial success.

The basis of the production is an original story written by Thomas Ahern and F. Maury Grossman, the screenplay completed by Charles Grayson. It is being directed by Frank McDonald, long with Warners, where he handled several of the "Torchy Blane" series in addition to "Dance Charlie Dance," "Love Begins at Twenty" and "Her Husband's Secretary."

Release date: August 19, 1938 (tentative).

Sons of the Legion

(Paramount)

A Family Picture

"Sons of the Legion" is to be released at a time when it is expected that the news emanating from the national American Legion convention will be centering much public attention on that body and the educational and welfare work which it does. Therefore the picture should be a source of exploitation of particular topical significance.

There is a love story in it, but most of the theme is devoted to demonstrations of Legion activities. A young Legionnaire is endeavoring to form sons of Veterans of the World War into a branch of the Sons of the American Legion. He runs into complications, particularly one that sees a father objecting to his boy joining the organization. Another has to do with the town's tough boy trying to lead the youths into his own petit-gangster racket interests. This situation is rectified when the toughie is appointed post chaplain. The other is solved when the objecting father confesses that he was dishonorably discharged from the army. However, the Legionnaire discovers that the tough member's father, an escaped convict, holds the evidence that will clear up the case. In an exciting climax, the convict is captured, the cloud removed from the name of the man who fought the Legion, the post is organized as a constructive influence and romance has its innings.

Three youngsters, whom Paramount plans to keep together for a series of pictures, Donald O'Connor, Billy Lee and Billy Cook, will be featured. The other cast members are Evelyn Keyes, Tim Holt, Elizabeth Patterson, Lynne Overman, William Frawley and Richard Tucker.

The original screenplay was prepared by Lillie Hayward, Lewis Foster and Robert F. McGowan. It is being directed by James Hogan, whose "The Texans" has just been previewed.

Release date: Sept. 16, 1938.

Gunga Din

(RKO Radio)

Martial Adventure

With other poems, Rudyard Kipling's famous ballad, "Gunga Din," first appeared in print in 1892 in a volume titled "Barrack Room Ballads." Since then hardly a boy, or man, who has taken pride in his ability as an elocutionist hasn't mouthed the stirring lines which conclude with "You're a better man than I am, Gunga Din." The poem tells graphically of the bravery, loyalty and sacrifice of a native water carrier who served with the British forces in India.

The story of the three-musketeer friendship of a trio of British army sergeants and the story of the elderly native water carrier form the dual theme of "Gunga Din." It gives rise to a series of exciting adventures, in quest of treasure, in pursuit of duty and on the trail of romance. But it is the resourcefulness, courage and loyalty of the old native bhisti in keeping them alive during a furious siege, that preserves them from the vengeance of fanatic native rebels, brings a column of soldiers, and as he sacrifices his life, the picture is expected to interpret the Kipling poem in realistic and picturesque fashion.

Four writers combined to write the scenario. "Nothing Sacred," "Viva Villa," "Scarface" and "The Front Page" attest the ability of Charles MacArthur and Ben Hecht. Joel Sayre is known for "Road to Glory," "Come On, Marines," and "Annie Oakley." Fred Guiol's credits include many Wheeler and Woolsey stories. Producer-director George Stevens' most recent pictures are "Vivacious Lady," and "A Damsel in Distress."

The three sergeants will be Cary Grant, Victor McLaglen and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. Sam Jaffe, the Grand Lama in "The Lost Horizon," will enact the part of "Gunga Din." Important supporting players included are Joan Fontaine, Eduardo Cianelli, Montagu Love, Lumsden Hare, Robert Coote, Abner Biberman and Cecil Kellaway.

Release date: To be determined.

Zaza

(Paramount)

Romance

George Cukor has directed many fine photoplays. One cannot recall such films as the present "Holiday," "Camille," "Romeo and Juliet," "David Copperfield," "Little Women" and "A Bill of Divorcement" without having profound respect for Mr. Cukor's ability to handle story material, personalities and production effects and detail. The stars of "Zaza," Claudette Colbert and Herbert Marshall, have been principals in some of the screen's most entertaining and commercially valuable features. The principal supporting players, Bert Lahr, Helen Westley, Constance Collier, Genevieve Tobin and Walter Catlett, are generally known. Zoe Akins, who is doing the screen play, helped prepare "Camille," "Morning Glory" and "Christopher Strong."

The story that will concern the talents of the director and his players is romance. Its major locale is Paris and it is modernly timed. Colbert will be seen in the role of a fiery, lovable favorite of the French music halls. Marshall is a man of position in the business world. They are strangely attracted to each other. Colbert bets that she can make him fall in love with her in five minutes. She does and the five minutes stretches into months of mutual happiness. Despite the pleas of her manager and tippling stepmother she is about to quit the stage when jealousy makes an appearance. But her fury dies when she learns Marshall is married and a father. She sends him away when he approaches her again and plunges into her singing career with an enthusiasm that makes her the toast of Paris. But always she dreams of the one man in her life. When he comes back to her, offering his life and fortune, she gives him her answer in a song she sings from the stage.

The picture is being produced in the style in which Paramount mounts its more pretentious efforts. There is a feeling on the lot that it will be one of the studio's high ranking productions.

Release date: To be determined.

Boys Town

(Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer)

Story of an Institution

With fact and melodramatic fiction blended, "Boys Town" will be the story of the Reverend E. J. Flanagan and the self-governing honor school for unfortunate boys which he established at Omaha, Nebraska, an institution that is the wonder of sociologists. Hollywood actors and some of the boys play the roles. It will be a picture of a priest who realized that boys sent to reform school may emerge as full blown criminals, and did something about it. Through a tough lad whose regeneration eventually is worked out it will show how the boys govern and punish themselves, how they infuse the spirit of loyalty and citizenship into newcomers. All that will be factual. In its fictional counterpart, it will tell the story of the tough boy (Mickey Rooney) who finds the communal discipline too much for him, prevails upon an impressionable boy to run away with him, returns with his injured companion but is ostracized by the other boys. Loitering in Omaha, he becomes involved in a bank holdup, but leads the boys to capture the criminals.

Spencer Tracy will be seen in the role of "Father Flanagan," the second time he has appeared as a priest. Rooney, now as big a star as any on the MGM lot, can be depended upon to be as tough as any tough boy actor is supposed to be. Henry Hull plays the part of "Father Flanagan's" friend and financial backer. Other boys in the cast are Gene Reynolds, Bobs Watson, Sidney Miller, Frankie Thomas, Jimmy Butler and Donald Barry.

The picture, much of which actually was filmed at Boys Town, is being directed by Norman Taurog, whose ability to handle youngsters has been demonstrated by such films as "Skippy," "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer" and "Mad About Music."

Release date: To be determined.

Girls' School

(Columbia)

Girlish Goings-On

For names this production, which stems from the ideas of "Maedchen in Uniform" and its successors, will offer Anne Shirley, notably of "Stella Dallas," Nan Grey, similarly prominent in "Three Smart Girls," "Sutter's Gold" and other Universal features, Ralph Bellamy, now in "Boy Meets Girl," Noah Beery, Jr., Cecil Cunningham, Margaret Tallichet, Doris Kenyon, Marjorie Main, Franklin Pangborn, Marjorie Lord, Gloria Holden, Dorothy Moore and Marjorie Deane.

The story concerns itself with the happenings in an exclusive girls' school, all within 24 hours. The story is an original, written by Tess Slesinger, a collaborator on the preparation of "The Bride Wore Red" and "The Good Earth." She adapted it in association with Richard Sherman, whose most recent screen play contributions are "Alexander's Ragtime Band" and "Four Men and a Prayer." It is being directed by John Brahm, whose recent experiences were "Penitentiary" and "Counsel for Crime."

Representatives of two social orders, wealthy and just plain folks, are brought into conflict as a scandal threatens. A personable boy and moonlight lead a rich girl to violation of a school rule. The poor girl monitor does not tell until her pride and honor have been hurt. Thereupon is set in motion a chain of events that involve the lives, hopes and fears of many. All, it is anticipated, will excite the varying emotions of many, especially femininity of the high school and finishing school ages. Before the picture concludes with an elopement, relations between two social orders are attuned in that harmony which politics defines as democratic Americanism.

Sailors and Girls

During the war, they had a lot of fast little boats called subchasers, which the regular navy knew as the splinter fleet. The little boats became involved in exciting action, all of which is a matter of naval record. It was but natural that, after just about every other branch of the service and its heroic contributions to the salvation of democracy had been cinematographically honored, the splinter fleet was due for a turn, and that in order to make a moving picture in which would be included all the standby elements, the little fleet would be the background for a love story.

Well, while the splinter fleet is given opportunity to chime in the we-won-the-war chorus to the accompaniment of much spectacular and exciting action, during which the bands will play "Anchors Aweigh" very often, the rich boy learns to become a regular sailor and win the heart of the girl who loved him as well as the respect of the old sea dog who didn't think he ever could be a fit lifemate for his only (motherless, of course) daughter.

The picture is being directed by John Ford, who just about everybody knows turns out sometimes odd but always spectacular pictures as attest his record from "Men without Women" to "Four Men and a Prayer," between which were sandwiched such attractions as the "The Informer," "Hurricane," "The Lost Patrol" and "Prisoner of Shark Island." Mr. Ford, a sailor himself, makes background action salty and robust.

Richard Greene, who was with Loretta Young in "Four Men and a Prayer," and Nancy Kelly, a recruit from the stage whence she gained a measure of acclaim for her work in "Susan and God," are the hero and heroine. They will be supported by numerous persons, the majority of whom have been in the picture acting business for quite some time, among them George Bancroft, Preston Foster, John Carradine, Slim Summerville, George E. Stone, Warren Hymer, J. Farrell MacDonald, Douglas Fowley and Ward Bond.

Release date: Sept. 20, 1938.

McConnell and Solomon Form Record Pictures

Record Pictures Corporation has been formed with Fred McConnell, president, and Benjamin W. Solomon, secretary, to handle a limited number of releases. The company will release "about four outstanding independently made productions each year," Mr. McConnell said this week. Physical distribution will be through Monogram exchanges.

He said the reason for the limited number is to concentrate on individual films, "thereby assuring the maximum financial return to producer and exhibitor." The company's staff will consist of men experienced in sales and exploitation, he added.

The first release is Walter Futter's "Dark Sands" (Review on page 64), opening at the Rialto in New York, in August. The second will be "The Gang Show." Herbert Wilcox production, being edited for fall release. Mr. McConnell will handle the sales from his office in the Paramount building. Bruce Gallup has been named advertising and publicity director.

Chicago, Indianapolis and Milwaukee are the three latest offices to sign Republic's new five-year franchise agreement, according to an announcement this week by James R. Grainger, president.

BOTH SELZNICKS BUSY IN PRODUCTION FIELD

Schulberg Product Will Be Distributed by UA—Myron Selznick May Also Join Group

The names of David O. and Myron Selznick, sons of the late Lewis J. Selznick, figured prominently this week in production news from Hollywood, David Selznick strengthening his Selznick International Pictures with the addition of Benjamin P. Schulberg, and Myron resuming active production, after an absence of years, signing Ernst Lubitsch to head the first of a series of producing units to be formed by Myron in partnership with stars, directors and writers.

The David Selznick-Schulberg productions will be distributed by Selznick International through United Artists, where Mr. Selznick is presently distributing and where, it is presumed, he will continue. Murray Silverstone, operating head of United Artists, is now in Hollywood talking with Mr. Selznick about a new releasing deal.

With United Artists enlarging its roster of producers, it was considered a possibility in Hollywood that the new Myron Selznick project would release through the company. In this connection the name of Nat Levine, pioneer independent, was mentioned this week as a possible new addition to the United Artists distributing setup. Denying Hollywood reports that he was going to head Grand National production, Mr. Levine inferred that he was now dickering with United Artists for distribution of pictures he contemplates.

Meanwhile, the proposed "Gone With the Wind" of David Selznick may not go through Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer after all. Mr. Selznick's arrangement with United Artists is such as to allow for release of the picture elsewhere, and it was generally believed that MGM would get the film, Norma Shearer and Clark Gable having been mentioned as the stars in this connection. Now, however, Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew-MGM, declares that distribution has not been definitely set. On arriving in New York Monday from Culver City, Mr. Schenck declared that if MGM does get the "Wind" release, he would favor Miss Shearer and Clark Gable for the leading parts.

From Independent Production

Mr. Schulberg, who first entered the motion picture industry as an associate editor of Film Reports, was in charge of all production at Paramount for seven years and more recently produced pictures independently for release through Paramount.

After serving one year with Film Reports, Mr. Schulberg accepted a dual post of publicity director and scenario writer with Rex Pictures Corporation and a year later, in 1912, he went with Adolph Zukor when the latter launched his Famous Players Company. When Famous Players combined with Jesse L. Lasky's Feature Play Company in 1915, Mr. Schulberg retained his dual post. After several years, Mr. Schulberg decided to try to produce independently and one of the first players he engaged was Clara Bow.

In 1925, he rejoined Paramount as associate producer and he later became general manager of West Coast production. He resigned in June, 1932, and three months later he rejoined the company, making independent pictures as B. P. Schulberg Productions.

Mr. Schulberg was born in Bridgeport, Conn., in 1892 and before joining Film Reports he served two years as a reporter on the New York Evening Mail.

Among the Schulberg productions were "Wings," "The Last Command," "The Way of All Flesh," "Underworld," and "Shanghai Express." He was credited with having discovered the director, Joseph von Sternberg, and with having brought to the screen the foreign stars, Marlene Dietrich and Emil Jannings.

Returns to Active Producing

Mr. Myron Selznick explained his return to active production, from which he withdrew several years ago, as due to his belief that the industry has reached the point where partnerships between important talent and the picture creator using that talent is inevitable.

"This move," he was quoted as explaining, "places screen personalities in the position of gambling on themselves, accepting profits and losses according to how their pictures fare on the world market."

The formation of producing units, it was explained, will not affect Mr. Selznick's agency business which consists of hunting jobs for film stars. Of the six-figure salaries that the stars receive, Mr. Selznick gets at least 10 per cent as commission for his service.

The formation of a company with Mr. Lubitsch—to be known as Ernst Lubitsch Productions, Inc.—was represented as being the first of a series of producing units to be formed by Mr. Selznick "with stars, directors, and writers, and which, like the Lubitsch unit, will bear the names of the personalities involved." The new undertaking is not associated in any way with Selznick International, Mr. David O. Selznick's company.

Schaefer Continues

Murray Silverstone, general manager and chairman of the executive committee of United Artists, set at rest in Hollywood this week all reports that George Schaefer, distribution head, would leave the company at the expiration of his current contract.

Mr. Silverstone declared that Mr. Schaefer would continue with United Artists indefinitely and then added "and I hope that he will continue with us for more than 100 years, as he is one of the finest and ablest men in the business."

The UA head termed his trip to Hollywood a regular business visit to talk with all producers about forthcoming productions. He classified as untrue all reports of friction between UA owners.

Two Foreign Managers Named

Arthur W. Kelly, head of foreign distribution for United Artists, this week appointed William M. Levy as sales manager in Argentina, and Carl Ponedel as manager of the company's office in San Juan, Puerto Rico. Mr. Ponedel succeeds Joseph Barkey, resigned.

After conferring with Alexander Korda on the producer's program for the new season, Morris Helprin, Mr. Korda's United Artists' representative in America, arrived in New York from England Tuesday aboard the Ile de France.

Mr. Korda will make four or five French films at Joinville for world distribution at a cost of $100,000 to $125,000 each, Mr. Helprin said. English versions may be made at Denham.

Directors Attack Studio Associates And Supervisors

The Screen Directors Guild in Hollywood Tuesday issued a 2,500 word analysis of motion picture production in which they called for the abolition of those associate producers and supervisors who are "unqualified, inexperienced and utterly lacking in creative ability." Millions of dollars of loss in production, the statement charges, is caused by the inexpertness of many of these producers' associates.

A statement of policy, adopted at a closed meeting held at the Lakeside Country Club by the Guild, Monday, declared that the rehabilitation of the industry lies in changing the present system of production, "eliminating the involved, complicated and extensive system of supervision which separates director and writer from the responsible executive producers."

The Guild, which will have a hearing August 22nd before the National Labor Relations Board examiner on a petition asking to be declared sole collective bargaining agency for directors, assistants and unit managers, cited figures showing that whereas the number of directors with feature credits in 1926-37 was 246, the number dropped to 234 in 1936-37 and the number of producers, including supervisors and associates, rose in the same period from 34 to 220.

"The director has for 10 years been steadily pushed out of his initiating role and has thereby been less able to offer the industry his technique, inspiration and mechanical skill.

"We speak here of the army of inept who have been promoted to positions of authority for which they are unqualified, inexperienced and utterly lacking in creative ability. A survey of major studios has revealed that 40 percent of cost of production is represented by overhead and miscellaneous items. Never in the history of industry has this cost been so high. Even in the other 60 per cent is to be found record of uncertainty, duplication and waste that characterizes the present system.

"In recent years most studios have faced ever increasing difficulty in meeting their release dates and have fallen short of making a number of pictures yearly contracted for. This in spite of the increasing number of producers and associate producers. In large measure this can be attributed directly to the growing estrangement between producer and director on one hand and director and writer on the other.

"Millions of dollars worth of story properties are in the vaults of studios. Much of this material never was of any value, much of it never will be of any value and most of it was the ill conceived product of the unqualified. A great portion of this money is tied up in fully completed screen plays which will never be made."

Herrick Herrick, executive secretary of the Screen Directors Guild, has presented his resignation to the board of directors. He explained that his quitting was due to ill health and also to a tentative committment to direct a picture.

Donahue & Coe, advertising agency, will appoint no successor to Lynn Farnol, who recently resigned to become advertising and publicity director of United Artists, according to Ed Churchill, agency head. The accounts formerly handled by Mr. Farnol will be absorbed by other members of the organization, Mr. Churchill said.

Mr. Farnol left New York Wednesday for the coast for a week of studio conferences.

officers, said individual defendants actively participate, and have participated, in the direction and management of the business and affairs of the parent corporation, Columbia Pictures Corporation, and its said subsidiary or associated corporations. Each of the officers named may be found at the principal place of business of Columbia Pictures Corporation, 729 Seventh Avenue, New York, New York, except the said Harry Cohn, Mendel B. Silberberg, William S. Holman and Theodore J. Elias, each of whom may be found at 1438 North Gower Street, Hollywood, California, the said Charles B. Mintz, who may be found at 717 North Linden Drive, Beverly Hills, California, the said George Winkler, who may be found at 12024 Hesby Street, North Hollywood, California, the said Charles Schwartz, who may be found at 1450 Broadway, New York, New York, and the said Saul Bornstein, who may be found at 799 Seventh Avenue, New York, New York.

(10) (a) Universal Corporation is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal place of business at 1250 Sixth Avenue, New York, New York, and is engaged in the business of producing and distributing motion pictures, either directly or through subsidiary or associated corporations, in various parts of the United States and in foreign countries, as hereinafter more particularly described.

(b) Universal Pictures Company, Inc., a subsidiary controlled by Universal Corporation, is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, with a place of business at 1250 Sixth Avenue, New York, New York, and is engaged in the production branch of the industry.

(c) Universal Film Exchanges, Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Universal Corporation, is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, with a place of business at 1250 Sixth Avenue, New York, New York, and is engaged in the distribution branch of the industry.

(d) Big U Film Exchange, Inc., a wholly owned subsidiary of Universal Corporation, is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of New York, with a place of business at 1250 Sixth Avenue, New York, New York, and is engaged in the distribution branch of the industry.

(e) Of the individual defendants, Nathan J. Blumberg is President and a Director, J. Cheever Cowdin is a Director and Chairman of the Board of Directors, Charles R. Rogers is Executive Vice-President and a Director, James P. Normanly is Vice-President, Peyton Gibson is Secretary and Treasurer, of said Universal Corporation; Paul G. Brown, William Freiday, Daniel C. Collins, Ottavio Prochet, Adolph Ramish, Budd Rogers, Daniel M. Sheaffer, and Willis H. Taylor, Jr., are Directors of said Universal Corporation; Samuel Machnovitch is Treasurer, Matthew Fox is Vice-President and Director, William A. Scully and Joseph H. Seidelman are Vice-Presidents, of the subsidiary corporation Universal Pictures Company, Inc. As such officers, such individual defendants actively participate, and have participated, in the direction and management of the business and affairs of the parent corporation, Universal Corporation, and its said subsidiary or associated corporations. Each of the officers named may be found at the principal place of business of Universal Corporation, except the said Charles R. Rogers and James P. Normanly, each of whom may be found at Universal Studios, Universal City, California, the said Paul G. Brown, who may be found at the offices of Keystone State Corporation, 1321 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, the said William Freiday, who may be found at the offices of J. Robinson-Duff & Company, No. 1 Wall Street, New York, New York, the said Daniel C. Collins, who may be found at the offices of Electrical Research Products, Inc., 195 Broadway, New York, New York, the said Ottavio Prochet, who may be found at 935 Fifth Avenue, New York, New York, the said Budd Rogers, who may be found at 1270 Sixth Avenue, New York, New York, the said Daniel M. Sheaffer, who may be found at Broad Street Station Building, Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, the said Adolph Ramish, who may be found at 647 South Olive Street, Los Angeles, California, and the said Willis H. Taylor, Jr., who may be found at the offices of Pennie, Davis, Marvin & Edwards, 165 Broadway, New York, New York.

(11) The above described corporate defendants, Columbia Pictures Corporation and Universal Corporation, will be referred to sometimes hereinafter as "the producer-distributor defendants".

(12) (a) United Artists Corporation is a corporation organized and existing under the laws of the State of Delaware, with its principal place of business at 729 Seventh Avenue, New York, New York, and is engaged in distribution of motion pictures in various parts of the United States and in foreign countries.

(b) Of the individual defendants, Attilio H. Giannini is President, a Director and Charman of the Board of Drectors, George J. Schaefer, Harry D. Buckley and Arthur W. Kelly are Vice-Presidents, Lloyd Wright is Secretary and Harry J. Muller is Treasurer, of said defendant United Artists Corporation; Mary Pickford is First Vice-President and a Director, Dennis F. O'Brien is General Counsel and a Director, Edward C. Raftery is Assistant Secretary and a Director, and Charles Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks and Samuel Goldwyn are Directors, of the said defendant United Artists Corporation. As such officers, said individual defendants actively participate, and have participated, in the direction and management of the business and affairs of the said parent corporation, United Artists Corporation. Each of the officers named may be found at the principal place of business of United Artists Corporation, except the said Attilio H. Giannini, who may be found at No. 1 Powell Street, San Francisco, California, the said Mary Pickford, who may be found at 1021 North Formosa Avenue, Hollywood, California, the said Dennis F. O'Brien and Edward C. Raftery, each of whom may be found at 152 West 42nd Street, New York, New York, the said Charles Chaplin, who may be found at 1416 North LaBrea Avenue, Los Angeles, California, and the said Douglas Fairbanks, who may be found at Beverly Hills, California.

(13) The above described corporate defendant, United Artists Corporation, will be referred to sometimes hereinafter as the "distributor defendant".

(14) All of the corporate defendants hereinbefore described will be referred to sometimes hereinafter as "the defendants."

III. HISTORY OF THE MOTION PICTURE INDUSTRY

(15) Upon the optical illusion of motion in pictures has been built, in a period of less than half a century, one of the nation's largest and most important industries. The illusion of motion is created by the projection upon a screen of a series of still photographs of objects in motion. In the modern motion picture the number of pictures thus projected has been standardized at 16 per second.

(16) For several centuries, going back to the invention of the magic lantern, or stereopticon, in 1640 A. D. by the Jesuit Athanasius Kircher, at Rome, the idea of motion in pictures engaged, but baffled, the inventive genius of mankind, both in Europe and America.

(17) Impetus toward the solution of the problem in the United States was given by the efforts of Leland Stanford of California to prove that at a point in the gait of a trotting horse all four feet are off the ground at the same time. A series of cameras with electrical controls, past which the horse moved, was used to establish the fact. The resulting pictures, when shown on a revolving contrivance in 1880 gave the illusion of motion in pictures.

(18) In 1887, Thomas A. Edison, having completed his work on the phonograph, directed his genius toward the invention of a motion picture machine. This effort, with the aid of photographic film, which had been invented by George Eastman in the meantime, resulted in 1889 in the first Edison Kinetoscope. This consisted of a cabinet into which one observer at a time might look through an aperture and there see the series of pictures photographed on a film of fifty feet, move across his vision. The pictures were magnified and illuminated by an electrical bulb placed in rear of the film. The film used in this early Edison machine was about an inch wide, which remains the Standard width today. The pictures were shown, however, at the rate of 48 per second, or about three times the speed of today. The movement of the pictures through the machine was controlled by sprockets which fitted into holes in the film. This idea has been retained in modern motion picture machines. "Peep shows", "penny arcades", containing Kinetoscopes and phonographs with earphones, remained popular forms of public amusement through the first decade of the 20th Century.

(19) In the meantime, the efforts of many men, both in the United States and Europe, were directed toward the invention of a method of projecting motion pictures upon a screen whereby large audiences might view them instead of one person at a time, as in the peep shows.

(20) In 1895, Major Woodville Latham, a Virginia professor living in New York, and Thomas Armat, of Washington, D. C., invented projectors containing the principles upon which the modern machines operate. The Armat invention, called the Vitascope, was manufactured at first under arrangements with the Edison Company of Orange, New Jersey, which Company soon became the foremost manufacturer of projectors, either domestic or foreign.

(21) The Motion Picture Industry is commonly regarded as having had its origin with the presentation of moving pictures at Kosta & Bial's Music Hall, Herald Square, New York City, on April 23, 1896, through the device of Thomas A. Edison's latest marvel, the "Vitascope", as it was referred to upon the programme of the Music Hall.

(22) The novelty of motion pictures soon gripped the nation and gained great popularity for a time in vaudeville houses and music halls. However, motion pictures were but a single item upon the program of these houses, and within a few years it was thought that the novelty of motion in pictures had worn off and, consequently, motion pictures were largely eliminated from the programs of the variety shows of that day. However, Nickelodeons—occupying, for the most part, old vacant stores and rooms—sprang up like mushrooms all over the country.

QUOTES ZUKOR'S 1928 STATEMENT

(23) The commercial possibilities of the motion picture fired the imaginations of many men from the beginning. Soon manufacturers of moving picture machines and projectors appeared in various cities of the country. Within two years after the first public presentation of motion pictures at Kosta & Bial's Music Hall, the Edison companies instituted a series of suits to protect Edison's various patents covering motion pictures, which he claimed were being infringed by others who had entered the field. The patent war thus started did not end until the formation of the Motion Picture Patents Company in 1908.

(24) At first, motion picture films were sold outright to exhibitors upon a footage basis. Soon a situation resulted where exhibitors all over the country had films on their hands that had been exhibited in their own theatres. This gave rise to film exchanges in various parts of the country, operated wholly on a local basis, where the various exhibitors could go and exchange stale films for ones that had not been shown in their respective theatres. From these earliest exchanges the distribution of pictures upon a rental basis by distributors who maintained and operated them soon developed and the distributor thus became the middle man between the producer and the exhibitor.

(25) The art of narration in moving pictures began in 1903 when Edwin S. Porter, an Edison cameraman, after some preliminary experimentation, produced "The Great Train Robbery".

(26) The use of artificial light in photography was introduced in 1899 in the filming of the Jeffries-Sharkey prize fight at Coney Island. By 1906 studios were adopting artificial instead of day light in photography.

(27) The length of a film became fixed at a single reel of 1,000 feet, and the demand for films in the hundreds of small theatres springing up in all parts of the country caused a rush of production which was absorbed by the distributors as fast as it could be made. Quantity, not quality, was the leading consideration. In the early days, the business of making pictures, where the product was sold to the distributors outright upon a footage basis, was thought to be comparable to any other manufacturing business.

(28) By 1908 there were ten well established companies in the United States which were either producing or importing motion picture films and selling them to exchanges scattered throughout the country, but still operated on a local basis. From these exchanges films were distributed to exhibitors upon a rental basis. At that time it was estimated that there were between 125 and 150 exchanges and 6,000 exhibitors in the United States. Up to that time, in excess of $100,000,000 had been invested in the industry.

(29) In 1908, largely to escape the ravages of the patent war conducted chiefly by the Edison companies, the ten leading manufacturers decided to pool their interests and patents in the Motion Picture Patents Company. These companies were: Biograph, Kalem, and Pathe, New York; Vitagraph, Brooklyn; Edison, New Jersey; Lubin, Philadelphia; and Essanay, Kleine, Meli, and Selig, Chicago.

(30) Each manufacturer took a license from the Patents Company entitling it to produce and lease motion pictures. By a system of licenses extending to distribution and exhibition, control of the industry was contemplated. The licenses generally covered all branches of the industry, including cameras, film, and projectors. Relying upon rights extended by the United States Patent Laws, it was anticipated that the control of the industry would be complete.

(31) Soon the General Film Company was organized to distribute the films of the ten producers on a national scale. Exchanges were either established or independent exhanges bought out. Distributors either had to find independent production to supply them with films, and exhibitors who would take their product, or go out of business.

(32) But the Patents Company was met by a militant group of independent producers, distributors, and exhibitors, and a number of litigations followed. Private suits for damages under the antitrust laws were instituted by independents, and finally the Government, in a suit in equity instituted in 1912, brought about the dissolution of the Motion Picture Patents Company by a decree dated January 24, 1916.

(33) Meanwhile, the motion picture art had been going forward. The Standardized Film of one reel of 1,000 feet was rapidly displaced after 1912 by the feature picture of four reels or more. While the Motion Picture Patents Company adhered to the idea of short, standardized films of one reel and a daily change of program to be sold on a footage basis, others who had made a careful study of audience reaction were convinced that the time had arrived for further advances in the art. Complete stories, plays, and books were to be translated by the motion picture. Among the early advocates of this change was Adolph Zukor, who formed the Famous Players Company in 1912, imported "Queen Elizabeth," in which Sarah Bernhardt appeared, and soon "The Prisoner of Zenda" with James K. Hackett, a well known actor, was produced and distributed. Other feature productions soon followed. The appeal of motion pictures was extended, the tone of the entertainment lifted, the character of the theatres improved, and the industry in the brief period of a few years was to grow beyond all anticipation.

(34) The introduction of feature pictures brought about important changes in the marketing of films. Therefore, films were generally sold at a flat price for a daily program, with the price fixed according to the size and location of the theatre. Under this system, many theatres in the same city might show the same picture on the first day of its release, or "day and date" as this practice has come to be called in the industry. With the appearance of feature pictures, the better theatres were willing to pay higher rentals for the right of exclusive exhibition before the pictures were made available to others upon subsequent run. As a result, first run was given protection over second or subsequent runs for a week or two only. This protection period is sometimes called "clearance," denoting the period or length of time between a prior and a subsequent showing of a picture. A "zone" indicates a specified geographical area within which a definite clearance schedule is operative. As ordinarily used in the industry, protection embraces both clearance and zoning. Protection has come to be and is one of the most contentious trade practices with which the industry is confronted. It will be referred to more specifically hereinafter.

(35) From a position of comparative obscurity in 1912, by 1916 Adolph Zukor and his Famous Players Company had become one of the dominating influences in the industry. The feature pictures of his company were in demand the country over and were recognized generally as the best pictures on the market. A national distribution system had been secured through the acquisition of the control in that year of Paramount Pictures Corporation, which had been organized two years before by William W. Hodkinson, a San Francisco distributor. Four other companies producing the same type of pictures were merged with Famous Players; namely, Jesse L. Lasky Feature Play Company; Bosworth, Inc.; Morosco Photoplay Company; and Cardinal Film Company. Later, all these companies, with Paramount Pictures Corporation and Artcraft Pictures Corporation, were merged into the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation, one of the predecessors in interest of the defendant Paramount Pictures, Inc.

(36) These years marked the tremendous increases in the salaries of star players, and, at that time, Zukor was planning to dominate and control the industry by placing popular stars under contract. A great many of them actually signed up with the Zukor organization.

(37) The cost of making pictures had mounted abruptly, due principally to the rise in salaries of stars, directors and technicians of all kinds. When these costs were passed on to the distributors and exhibitors, who had largely remained independent of producers, great alarm was felt by the persons engaged in these two branches of the industry, and resulted, in 1917, in the organization of First National Exhibitors Circuit, an association of exhibitors, which through a system of franchises, sought to assure its membership of a constant, satisfactory supply of pictures.

(38) Many of the theatres in the new association were and had been customers of Famous Players. Thus the market for the pictures of that company was being threatened, and soon stars and feature players, with directors and other personnel, were being bid away from Famous Players by First National Exhibitors Circuit.

(39) Out of this situation grew a trade war which was to have far-reaching effects upon the industry.

(40) After dissolution of Motion Picture Patents Company in 1916, competition in the industry was free, open and untrammeled. With a few minor exceptions, the three divisions of the industry remained separate and independent of each other. Production was plentiful and uncontrolled; an abundance of film exchanges existed upon which the exhibitors might call for motion picture product.

(41) A prevalent opinion throughout the industry believed that the future health, growth, and prosperity of the industry generally depended upon a continued separation of the three branches of production, distribution, and exhibition. In the course of the trade war with First National Exhibitors Circuit, Adolph Zukor, after careful deliberation, issued an exhaustive statement of his views upon this subject on October 25, 1918, in VARIETY, a trade publication. In this statement, Mr. Zukor said, in part:

The evil of producing and exhibiting coalitions is one of the gravest perils that has ever confronted the motion picture industry. For some time past this condition has been developing and now threatens to halt the industry's progress if indeed it does not set it back beyond the point at which it first took its place among the organized industries of the day. It has been permitted to develop this far because no one individual, either producer or exhibitor, has dared face the facts himself, and compel other producers and exhibitors to face them with him.

Young as the motion-picture industry is, it has progressed so rapidly and so far within a short space of time as to develop unique talents and create a new variety of specialists. No less true than the physical law that a body cannot occupy two places at the same time is the psychological law that a mind cannot do two separate things equally well.

We should all realize that the most effective way to develop the industry to its largest capacity is to maintain a broad open field of endeavor in its every branch. The exhibitors now enjoy the advantage of having the choice of several well-established feature programs from which they can select any range of subjects suitable to their individual requirements. Also because these producing firms are well established they are in a position to produce pictures far ahead of release date, giving the exhibitor an added advantage in being able to arrange his bookings far in advance, and therefore avail himself of a careful selection of subjects. The producers, in feeling that they have all the exhibitors in the country as prospective customers, are encouraged to make greater efforts and expend bigger sums for their productions and equipment. On the other hand, the exhibitors, in keeping all their lines open, have the choice of all the productions on the market. In this manner the business opportunities of both factors are unrestricted and permissible of any possible expansion. The moment exhibitors limit the market of producers, or the producers limit the buying opportunities of the exhibitor, the business is retarded and its growth is stunted.

Let them grow and develop in one sphere of activity, let them become experts, specialists. Do not let them scatter their energies and distribute their talents over so wide a field as to have no weight in any one. This appeal extends to the leaders as well as the followers, to the chiefs as well as the subordinates, engaged in whatsoever branch of the industry. Let us coordinate all our work, producing, distributing, exhibiting, to the best of our mutual interests—which all the better elements of the trade are now trying to do—but let us avoid such a close unification that the exhibitor becomes wholly or partly a producer, or the producer slightly or extensively an exhibitor.

If the business is to progress it must advance upon the basis of free and unhampered selection of product for exhibitors, large and small, and the exhibitors alone can cure this evil by a resolute refusal to be drawn into any allied booking scheme, even if the results promised are of temporary benefit to themselves. * * *

I see it today as clearly as I saw the need for better pictures in 1912 that if the producer and exhibitor do not coordinate their interests and permit full and unlimited activity in their own spheres, the industry will drift into the same chaotic condition out of which it emerged only in recent years.

If exhibitors establish or rent studios for the production of pictures, the producers will have to build theatres, not in order to rebuke the exhibitors, but for the simple reason that that will be the only means open to them to protect their producing investments. Such a condition would result in ruinous competition in both branches of the industry—but the producer would have the advantage because he would already have the goods to sell, and the ability and experience to make the better pictures.

I hope the situation never develops to such a point. So does everyone else who has analyzed the business and looks forward to a brighter future for it. Every branch of the motion picture business is big enough, at present and for future growth, without seeking new worlds to conquer. . . .

(42) Mr. Zukor thus foresaw that expansion by producers and distributors into the exhibition field would result in great friction, particularly with former customers of the producers and distributors, with whom they would come into competition as exhibitors. He likewise foresaw the danger inherent in the acquisition of production facilities by exhibitors.

Period from 1919 to date

(43) After some ineffectual efforts to adjust threatened competitive differences with First National Exhibitors Circuit, Mr. Zukor determined to go into exhibition. This he did in 1919, notwithstanding his pronouncements of the year before that the future well-being of the industry demanded a continued separation of production, distribution and exhibition.

(44) Financed through a ten-million-dollar preferred stock issue underwritten by the New York banking house of Kuhn, Loeb and Company, Zukor moved swiftly in the acquisition of extensive theatre interests throughout the South, in New England, in many large cities throughout the country, and finally, by the acquisition in 1925 of the Balaban & Katz theatre interests in and around Chicago.

(45) In many places First National Exhibitors Circuit franchise holders were bought out, thus weakening that organization and, at the same time, strengthening Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

(46) The entry of Famous Players-Lasky Corporation into the field of exhibition in 1919-1920 brought about the struggle for market control foreseen by Mr. Zukor and was followed by a train of events leading up to the combinations and conspiracies, the monopoly and the monopolization, violative of the Sherman Act, of which complaint is made hereinafter.

(47) Other producers expanded their activities in an attempt to control a portion of the market. Such activities manifested themselves in at least two ways: First, the producers acquired their own theatres; second, they merged or affiliated with companies controlling theatres.

(48) Marcus Loew, the founder of defendant Loew's, Incorporated, owner of a large chain of vaudeville and motion picture theatres situated largely in the metropolitan area of New York City, and his associates became frightened because of the fact that the producer, the man who makes the pictures, was buying theatres. They felt that they would have to protect themselves by having a producing company of their own. As a consequence, Metro was acquired by Loew's, Incorporated, in 1920. In 1924 Metro was merged with the Goldwyn and Mayer companies under the name of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, all of whose capital stock is owned and held by the defendant Loew's, Incorporated.

(49) In the struggle for theatres which continued through the 1920's, five companies emerged with production facilities and large theatre holdings, to wit, the defendants Paramount Pictures, Inc.; Loew's, Incorporated; Fox Film Corporation, the predecessor of Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation; Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, created by a merger of production, distribution, and exhibition interests, including Robertson & Cole, which had been reorganized under the name of Film Booking Office of America, Inc., and Keith-Albee-Orpheum Theatres, Inc., and, finally, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.

(50) In acquiring theatre circuits, these five producer-exhibitor defendants did not enter the same territory, or territories, to any great extent. This has resulted in a virtual division of territory between them. Thus the theatres affiliated with the defendant Paramount Pictures, Inc., are located, for the most part, throughout New England, through the South, in Chicago, Detroit, and in certain areas of the Midwestern States, Rocky Mountain States, and Northwestern States. The theatres of Loew's, Incorporated, are located principally in larger cities of the United States. Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation holds a large interest in National Theatres Corporation, which controls Evergreen State Amusement Corporation, operating theatres in the States of Washington and Oregon, Fox West Coast Theatres Corporation, operating theatres on the Pacific Coast, Fox Inter-Mountain Theatres, Inc., operating theatres in Rocky Mountain States, Fox Midwest Theatres, Inc., operating theatres in Midwestern States, and Wisconsin Amusement Enterprises Corporation, operating theatres in Wisconsin. The defendant Universal Corporation formerly engaged in exhibition, owning and operating its own theatres. At the present time, however, it is only engaged in the production and distribution branches of the business. The defendant Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation owns and operates theatres located mostly in large, metropolitan cities where the population is of sufficient density to afford ample patronage wherever its theatres come into competition with the theatres of Loew's, Incorporated, or of others.

(51) A detailed description of the location of theatres owned, controlled or operated by the five producer-exhibitor defendants is made in paragraphs 122 to 126, infra.

(52) Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., not having acquired any extensive theatre holdings down through the year 1926, was gradually having its market for pictures shut off through the acquisition of theatre holdings by the other producer-exhibitor defendants. Its financial condition was weakened as it felt the lack of a satisfactory market for its product. The entrance of talking pictures into the moving picture industry completely changed the situation for Warner Bros. Securing the rights to Vitaphone, which had been developed by the engineers of the Bell Telephone Laboratories, the Warner company, within a few brief years, with the success of talking pictures, turned from the brink of ruin to prosperity. It became, and still remains, one of the largest and most powerful companies in the industry. Little time was lost by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., in acquiring theatres, once affluence returned. In 1928, it acquired control of Stanley Company of America with its large theatre circuit extending through the Middle Atlantic States and the District of Columbia, and also that company's control of First National Pictures Corporation, which retained only its production interests, having disposed of its theatre holdings to Paramount and others as time had gone on.

(53) During the depression, two of the parent company defendants, or their predecessors in interest, went into bankruptcy. Paramount Publix Corporation, the predecessor of Paramount Pictures, Inc., filed a petition in bankruptcy in the Federal District Court for the Southern District of New York in 1933 and was reorganized under Section 77B of the Bankruptcy Act on June 17, 1935, under name of Paramount Pictures, Inc. Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation went into bankruptcy on January 27, 1933, and its reorganization has not been approved by the District Court for the Southern District of New York, where its petition in bankruptcy was also filed. Fox Film Corporation, the predecesor of the parent company defendant, Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation, was voluntarily reorganized with the consent of its creditors and security holders in the summer of 1933, and, in 1935, acquired, through merger, the Twentieth Century Company.

(54) The years 1935, 1936, and 1937 saw the return of prosperity to the motion picture industry. Attendance at theatres has increased so as to compare favorably with 1929 and 1930. Theatre expansion was again undertaken, particularly by the producer-exhibitor defendants, and, with the return of better business, admission prices were increased by them.

IV. DESCRIPTION OF THE INDUSTRY

(A) Branches of the industry

(55) The industry is composed of three branches, namely, (1) production, which com-

prises the preparation for and actual making of motion pictures and the preparation thereof for market; (2) distribution, which has to do with the maintenance of facilities for the distribution of films from various key cities throughout the country, and the actual distribution of films to the theatres or exhibitors; and (3) exhibition, which has to do with the actual exhibition of motion pictures in the theatres.

(56) In the early days of the industry, these three branches were separate and independently operated by specialists in each field. Gradually, however, the three branches of the industry were integrated by large and successful companies. Today, the following defendant parent companies have integrated the three branches under their respective controls: Paramount Pictures, Inc., Loew's, Incorporated, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation, and Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation. Production and distribution have been integrated by the defendants Columbia Pictures Corporation and Universal Corporation. The remaining defendant, United Artists Corporation, is engaged in the distribution of motion pictures made by associated producers, some of whom are owners and holders of its capital stock.

(57) The three branches of the industry will now be described separately in the order named, to wit, (1) Production, (2) Distribution, and (3) Exhibition.

(1) Production

(58) Definitions of some of the terms used in connection with production are as follows:

(59) Producer.—This term includes, without limitation, all persons, partnerships, associations and corporations who engage or contract to engage in the production of motion pictures.

(60) Major producer.—A major producer is one of the eight parent companies defendants herein. Strictly speaking, however, the defendant United Artists Corporation is a distributor rather than a producer.

(61) Independent producer.—A producer who is not in any way affiliated with the major producers.

(63) Positive film.—Positive film is photographic stock to which the images upon the negative film have been transferred in normal black and white relationship by a printing device. Positive film is used in projection machines which throw upon the screen the images on the film.

(64) Motion picture.—The "motion picture" consists of a number of minute photographs of moving objects taken at the rate of 15 or more pictures per second, the positive prints of which are projected upon a screen in rapid succession.

(65) Reel.—A reel is the spindle upon which motion picture film is wound, or, as more ordinarily used, designates approximately 1,000 feet of positive motion picture film wound upon a spindle.

(66) Feature.—A feature is any motion picture, the length of the film of which is approximately four thousand feet (usually four reels) or more.

(67) Short Subject.—Short subject is a motion picture the length of which is less than four thousand feet (four reels).

(68) Star.—A star is a motion picture actor or actress who is especially popular among the motion picture public and who is featured in the pictures in which he or she appears.

(69) Western Picture.—A western picture is a feature motion picture which deals with life upon the western frontier of the United States, generally depicting the dangers and adventures of the lives of cowboys, Indians or miners, or other inhabitants of those areas.

(70) In the early days, motion pictures were made in any improvised studios that could be found, located, for the most part, in the large eastern cities of the United States, such as New York, Philadelphia, Boston, Cleveland, and Chicago.

(71) In the year 1907, or thereabouts, the first studio was opened near what is now Hollywood, California. Slowly, at first, and then with a rush all motion picture producers with sufficient means opened studios or obtained studio facilities at or in the vicinity of Hollywood, with the result that today about ninety per cent (90%) of the American production of motion pictures takes place in Hollywood; most of the remaining ten per cent are made in New York City or its environs. Climatic conditions permitting the production of pictures the year round account for the migration to California.

(73) Independent producers operating in California either maintain or lease studio facilities in or near Hollywood.

(74) Three general types of motion pictures are produced: (a) feature pictures of four reels or more in length, (b) short subjects of less than four reels in length, and (c) news reels. Approximately 80% of the better motion picture films contained in the first class, or type (a) above, are produced each year by the defendant companies herein, their respective subsidiaries, and associates.

(75 For the five exhibition seasons, 1932-33 to 1936-37, inclusive,—an exhibition season covering the period from September 1 of one year to August 31 of the following year—the release of feature films by the defendant major companies has been as follows:

Columbia	26	35	37	40	58
Fox	44	47	45	58	66
Metro	44	39	44	51	42
Paramount	59	57	52	65	52
RKO	45	41	42	42	54
United Artists	16	15	24	20	34
Universal	26	35	36	36	39
Warner	52	54	48	54	60
Total	312	323	328	366	405

(76) Motion pictures of the finer type featuring well known stars, and having the greatest public appeal, are produced almost exclusively by the major companies, defendants herein, who, by reason of their position in the industry, their finanacial power, equipment and organization, are able to command the services of the finest stars, the most accomplished directors, and the most skillful technicians, whose combined efforts insure the production of successful pictures.

(77) Without access to the product of the major companies, or some of them, an exhibitor's opportunity for the successful operation of his theatre is small.

(78) Statistics compiled by the United States Department of Commerce indicate that 28,500 persons are employed in production.

(2) Distribution

(79) Definitions of some of the terms used in connection with distribution are as follows:

(80) Distributor.—A distributor is a person, firm or corporation engaged in the business of licensing the exhibition of motion pictures and distributing the positive prints of these motion pictures to the exhibitors whom it licenses to exhibit them. The prints are usually licensed to the exhibitor. However, the arrangement is frequently referred to in the industry as a sale.

(81) Major Distributor.—A distributor who is one of the eight parent companies defendants herein.

(82) Independent Distributor.—A distributor who is not in any way affiliated with the major distributors.

(83) Exchange.—An exchange is an office maintained by a distributor for the purpose of soliciting contracts for the exhibition of its pictures in theatres situated throughout the territory surrounding the exchange, and for the physical distribution of such films throughout this territory. An exchange usually has facilities for the receipt, storage and subsequent shipment to exhibitors, of films and advertising matter concerning them. The word "exchange" was first applied to organizations formed by groups of exhibitors to exchange, somewhat in the manner of a circulating library, films produced by companies independent of General Film Company. Later, the word came to be applied to all branch offices of distributors.

(85) Booking.—Booking is an arrangement between distributor and exhibitor whereby playing dates are determined and fixed for the showing of pictures which have been licensed for exhibition. The term is sometimes loosely used in the sense of licensing pictures or entering into licensing agreements for the exhibition of pictures.

(87) Block Booking.—Block booking is the simultaneous licensing of a number of pictures to exhibitors for exhibition, the pictures being offered together and the aggregate price for all of the pictures being dependent upon the quantity taken by the exhibitor, and requiring the exhibitor to contract for all of the pictures offered in order to get any of them. The unfair use of block booking is more fully set out in Paragraph 214, section 1, hereof.

(88) Distribution of motion pictures is accomplished through a system of national exchanges. At first, exchanges were established locally—by exhibitors, as a rule—and operated on what was known as a "States rights" basis, whereunder an exchange would secure the right from a producer to distribute or lease his pictures in a given area, extending into one or more adjacent States. Gradually, however, the more successful producers secured national distribution of their films through exchanges of their own.

(89) To some extent, at least, independent producers still rely on States rights exchanges for the distribution of their pictures.

(90) From figures compiled as of August 1, 1937, by the United States Department of Commerce, it is indicated that there are 103 distributors of theatrical film in the United States operating 431 film exchanges located in 40 key cities.

(91) The eight major producers, defendants herein, maintain their individual film exchanges

in the following twenty-six (26) key cities: Atlanta, Georgia; Boston, Massachusetts; New York and Buffalo, New York; Charlotte, North Carolina; Chicago, Illinois; Cincinnati and Cleveland, Ohio; Dallas, Texas; Denver, Colorado; Detroit, Michigan; Indianapolis, Indiana; St. Louis and Kansas City, Missouri; Los Angeles and San Francisco, California; Milwaukee, Wisconsin; Minneapolis, Minnesota; New Haven, Connecticut; New Orleans, Louisiana; Omaha, Nebraska; Philadelphia and Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; Salt Lake City, Utah; Seattle, Washington; and Washington, District of Columbia. In addition thereto, all except United Artists have exchanges in the following key cities: Albany, New York; Des Moines, Iowa; Memphis, Tennessee; Oklahoma City, Oklahoma; and Portland, Oregon. Paramount, Loew's and Columbia maintain exchanges in Butte, Montana; Paramount and R-K-O maintain exchanges in Jacksonville, Florida, and Sioux Falls, South Dakota; while Paramount alone maintains exchanges in Columbus, Ohio; San Antonio, Texas; and Portland, Maine.

(92) The distribution of motion pictures by film exchanges involves the mastery over a great amount of detail, and has been reduced, through years of experience, to a fine science which includes the booking of pictures for all exhibitions in an exchange area, the fixing of play dates in the various theatres, and the duty of keeping the films flowing in a constant stream to and from theatres to whom the pictures have been licensed, in order to meet contractual obligations, and the constant repair of films after they have played one theatre and before they move on to the next. A sales force is also maintained in connection with each film exchange, whose efforts are largely directed toward the sale of films to independent exhibitors, as will be more fully pointed out hereinafter.

(94) As of August 1, 1937, 12,500 persons were employed in the distribution branch of the industry.

(3) Exhibition

(95) Definitions of some of the terms used in connection with exhibition are as follows:

(96) Exhibitor.—The term "exhibitor" includes, without limitation, all persons, partnerships, associations, and corporations engaged in the ownership or operation of theatres for the exhibition of motion pictures.

(97) Affiliated Exhibitor. — By the term "affiliated exhibitor" reference is made to an exhibitor engaged in the business of operating a motion picture theatre which is owned, controlled, or managed by a major producer or distributor, or in which a major producer or distributor has a financial interest in the ownership, control, or management thereof.

(98) Affiliated Theatre.—This is a theatre owned, controlled, or managed by a major producer or distributor, or in which a producer or distributor has a financial interest in the ownership, control, or management thereof. All major producers and distributors are defendants herein.

(99) Unaffiliated Theatre.—This is a term applying to an exhibitor engaged in the business of operating a motion picture theatre the business of which is not owned, controlled, or managed by any major producer or distributor, or in which no producer or distributor has any financial interest.

(100) Legitimate Theatre.—A legitimate theatre, or legitimate house, is one in which productions of the spoken stage are given.

(101) Legitimate production.—As ordinarily used in the industry, a legitimate production refers to theatrical performances.

(102) Motion Picture Season.—The motion picture season is generally spoken of as covering the period from September 1 of one year to August 31 of the next. It is customary for producers to announce their program of pictures for the coming motion picture season several months before its commencement.

(103) Screen.—A screen is a rectangular piece of white fibre or cloth varying in size depending upon the size of the theatre in which it is placed, but whose minimum size is six by eight feet. It is set vertically upon the stage or in the front of the theatre and the motion picture to be viewed is projected upon it.

(104) Screening.—The screening of a motion picture is its projection upon a screen where it may be viewed.

(105) Release.—The term "release" is used in the motion picture industry to designate either a motion picture or the making of such picture available for distribution to exhibitors.

(106) Release Date.—This is the date upon which a motion picture is made available for distribution. It is now usual, because of exploitation and financial advantages, to have a common release date throughout the whole of the United States. There may be, however, a considerable period, sometimes as much as a year, between the release dates for different sections of the country.

(107) Pre-Release.—A "pre-release" is a public exhibition of a motion picture, prior to the date of its general release, usually given in legitimate theatres situated in one or more of the larger cities of the United States.

(109) Key City.—The term "key city" is not capable of exact definition. It is used in the trade to denote a city (a) in which the best motion pictures are regularly given their first-run exhibition, and gross their largest returns, in the district in which such city is located, (b) which is of such a size that the exhibition of a picture in a first-class first-run theatre situated in it advertises such picture among the exhibitors and the motion picture public throughout the district in which such city is located, and (c) in which companies distributing motion pictures maintain exchanges. Generally speaking, each key city (no matter which definition of the term is adopted) has a population of 25,000 or more. Estimates as to the number of key cities in the United States vary from 50 to 200. Obviously, whether any city is a key city in the first or second sense is a question of opinion and degree. Smaller or less important key cities within the sphere of influence of a larger, important key city are often called sub-key cities.

(110) First Run.—A first run is the initial exhibition of a motion picture is any zone, and the run which regularly grosses the largest returns for a given area. The run immediately following a "pre-release" run is often called a first run. The term has great latitude of meaning, because of indefiniteness of determination of the confines of the zone with reference to which the term may be used in particular instances. An exhibition of a picture may be a first run for a particular section of a city even though it has already been exhibited in another section of the same city, depending upon the limits which are placed upon the section in which it was first exhibited.

(111) Second Run.—A second run is the exhibition of a motion picture in any zone next subsequent to its first run.

(112) Repeat or Subsequent Run.—A repeat or subsequent run is any exhibition of a motion picture in a zone subsequent to its first run therein.

(113) Single and Double Feature Programs.—A single feature program is ordinarily composed of the exhibition of a single film of feature length accompanied by other entertainment, either in the form of short subjects and news reels or, sometimes, vaudeville. A double feature program is one composed of the exhibition of two feature-length films on one program for a single admission price. As a rule, no other form of film entertainment accompanies a double feature program.

(114) Neighborhood House.—A "neighborhood house" is a motion picture theatre located in a residential neighborhood of a city, where there is little transient trade.

(115) Shooting Gallery.—This is a term applied to a poorly equipped motion picture theatre which has been converted into such from a store or other commercial building and in which cheap, melodramatic pictures, such as westerns, are exhibited. The name arose because numbers of shooting galleries, which likewise housed penny arcades, were, in the early days of the motion picture industry, converted into these theatres.

(116) Statistics compiled by the United States Department of Commerce from reliable sources within the industry covering the theatres extant in the United States for the years 1932-1937, inclusive, are as follows:

	Total	Seating Capacity
1932	20,100	10,767,411
1933	19,311	11,161,193
1934	18,371	11,028,950
1935	18,263	11,132,595
1937	18,818	11,470,899

(117) The division of theatres between Affliated Circuits, Unaffiliated Circuits and Independent Theatres for the years 1933-1937 is set out below. By affiliated theatres are meant those theatres affiliated with the major companies in the industry, which are the eight parent-company defendants herein.

Affiliated Circuit Theatres

	Total	Seating Capacity
1934	1,954	2,586,643
1935	2,073	2,718,701
1936	2,192	2,908,226
1937	2,397	2,940,070

Unaffiliated Circuits

	Total	Seating Capacity
1933	3,189	2,561,726
1934	2,846	2,493,382
1935	3,070	2,539,416
1936	3,464	2,766,806
1937	3,910	3,005,038

DEPENDANTS' THEATRES, BY STATES

Independent Theatres

	Total	Seating Capacity
1933	13,796	5,585,830
1934	13,571	5,948,925
1935	13,120	5,874,478
1937	12,511	5,525,790

(118) An analysis of these statistics indicates that for the year 1937 affiliated circuit theatres, numbering 2,397, constituted 13% of the whole number of theatres and furnished 25+% of the total seating capacity. Unaffiliated circuit theatres, numbering 3,910 constituted 21+% of the whole number of theatres and furnished 26% of the total seating capacity. Independent theatres, numbering 12,511, constituted 66% of the whole number of theatres and furnished 49% of the total seating capacity. The average seating capacity of the affiliated theatres for the year 1937 was 1,226+, of the unaffiliated, 768+, and of the independent theatres, 441+. A steady increase in the number of affiliated and unaffiliated circuit theatres is indicated from 1934 to and including 1937. A steady decrease in the number of independent theatres from 1933 to and including 1937 is indicated.

(119) For exhibition purposes, theatres are generally divided into the following classifications:

(a) First-run theatres, which are the theatres which enjoy, by contract or otherwise, the primary outlet or run of pictures in the communities where they are located. In the larger cities and metropolitan areas, these first-run theatres are sometimes termed "metropolitan first-run theatres."

(b) Second- or subsequent-run theatres are theatres having the right or privilege of showing pictures on second or subsequent run in the respective communities where they are located. In large metropolitan areas, second or subsequent runs are sometimes considered as "continuous first run" for the purpose of fixing clearance over following runs. As heretofore defined, "clearance" denotes a period of time between the completion of a showing of a picture in one theatre and the beginning of a showing in a subsequent-run theatre.

(c) First-run neighborhood theatres are theatres which are located in the residential or suburban parts of large cities and over which the first-run metropolitan theatres have protection, or clearance.

(d) Subsequent-run neighborhood theatres are theatres located in the residential or suburban parts of large cities and which are subject to protection enjoyed by first-run neighborhood theatres.

(120) Metropolitan first-run theatres, sometimes referred to in the industry as Metropolitan DeLuxe Theatres, supply a market for motion pictures which is of vital importance to their profitable exhibition and subsequent exploitation. By their exhibition in these theatres, coupled with the various forms of advertising that accompanies such exhibition, such theatres promote and control the value of pictures to subsequent-run exhibitors. The owners of subsequent-run theatres as well as the public are thereby made conscious of the existence of particular motion pictures. The reaction of audiences to the exhibition of pictures in Metropolitan DeLuxe Theatres is largely determinative of the popularity and success of pictures on subsequent run. Furthermore, a large part of the gross revenues from the exhibition of a picture is derived from the first-run exhibition in Metropolitan DeLuxe Theatres.

(121) The five producer-exhibitor defendants now and for many years past have dominated and controlled almost all of the metropolitan de luxe theatres the country over. Incentive to independent production is very much decreased by reason of the inability of independent producers to gain access to this market.

In compiling the hereinafter contained lists of metropolitan first-run theatres, or metropolitan de luxe theatres, as they are sometimes referred to in the industry, a selection of 36 of the larger and more important key cities was taken. The said lists, as prepared, indicate the approximate number of first-run theatres of the various producer-exhibitor defendants located in those cities as of the present time. These theatres afford the primary first-run market for feature films in the cities thus selected.

Theatres of Defendant Paramount Pictures, Inc., throughout the United States

(122) Theatres operated by Paramount Pictures, Inc., its subsidiary or associated companies, throughout the United States are as follows:

(a) Metropolitan DeLuxe Theatres:

Theatres of defendant Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation throughout the United States

(126) The theatre holdings of Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation are operated through various subsidiaries, of which National Theatres Corporation, incorporated in the State of Delaware, is the holding company. Fifty-eight percent of the capital stock of National Theatres Corporation is owned and held by The Chase National Bank of the City of New York, and the remaining 42% by Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation.

Theatres operated by defendant National Theatres Corporation, its subsidiary or associated companies, throughout the United States are as follows:

(a) Metropolitan DeLuxe Theatres:

City	No. of theatres	City	No. of theatres
Denver, Colo.	4	Portland, Ore.	3
Los Angeles, Calif.	4	Seattle, Wash.	6

(127) In addition to the theatres operated by the defendant producer-exhibitors, as hereinbefore described, there exist additional theatres in practically every section of the United States which have been pooled by two or more of the said producer-exhibitor defendants, or in which they or two or more of them have joint interests pursuant to various operating arrangements or pooling agreements. The instances and locations in which such operating arrangements and pooling agreements have been entered into by the said producer-exhibitor defendants are too numerous to mention herein. However, examples of such operating arrangements or pooling agreements are cited as follows:

(a) At St. Paul, Minnesota.—A five-year pooling agreement dated June 26, 1936, between the Minnesota Amusement Company, an affiliate of the defendant producer-exhibitor Paramount Pictures, Inc., and St. Paul Theatres Company, an affiliate of the defendant Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, which covers the operation in St. Paul, Minnesota, of three theatres of the Minnesota Amusement Company and one theatre of St. Paul Theatres Company.

(c) At Cleveland, Ohio.—A five-year pooling agreement, dated August 13, 1934, together with several amendments thereto, between General Theatres Company, an affiliate of the producer-exhibitor defendant Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., and Keith-Ohio Corporation, an affiliate of the producer-exhibitor defendant Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, relating to the operation of the Hippodrome and Lake Theatres operated by the Warner Bros. affiliate and the Palace and Allen Theatres operated by the Radio-Keith-Orpheum affiliate.

(128) A metropolitan first-run theatre cannot be successfully operated unless it has access to the product of one or more of the major companies, the defendants herein, on fair and reasonable terms.

(129) An independent producer cannot successfully produce motion pictures of the better quality unless access to the first-run metropolitan market is assured to him upon a fair, competitive basis.

(130) Statistics compiled by the United States Department of Commerce, show that the average weekly attendance at moving picture theatres in the United States for the years 1922 to 1936, inclusive, is as follows:

1922	40,000,000	1930	110,000,000
1923	43,000,000	1931	75,000,000
1924	46,000,000	1932	60,000,000
1925	48,000,000	1933	60,000,000
1926	50,000,000	1934	70,000,000
1927	57,000,000	1935	80,000,000
1928	65,000,000	1936	88,000,000
1929	95,000,000

(131) The estimated total gross box office receipts for these theatres for the years 1934-5-6 are as follows:

1934	$700,000,000
1936	1,000,000,000

(132) As of January 1, 1937, 241,000 people were employed in the 16,258 theatres then operating.

(B) Competitive conditions in the industry

(133) The motion picture industry is dominated and controlled in all its branches by the defendants and their affiliated interests.

(1) Exhibition in affiliated first-run metropolitan theatres

(134) By reason of the ownership and control by the producer-exhibitor defendants of substantially all of the first-run theatres in metropolitan key cities throughout the country, an independent producer is unable to secure entrance to this vital first run market, except at the sufferance of on or more of the defendant major producer-exhibitors.

(135) Because of this control, the major producer-exhibitors are enabled to exclude, and do exclude, as a general rule, all independent producers from the first run market.

(136) Of the feature pictures played in the first-run metropolitan houses of the defendant Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., for the exhibition years 1934-35, 1935-36, and part of 1936-37, 95.54% were released by the major producers, defendants herein, or by their affiliated interests.

(137) Of the feature pictures played in the first-run metropolitan houses of the defendant Loew's, Incorporated, for the exhibition years 1934-35, 1935-36, and part of 1936-37, 99.22% were released by the major producers, defendants herein, or by their affiliated interests.

(138) Of the feature pictures played in the first-run metropolitan houses of the defendant Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation for the exhibition years 1934-35, 1935-36, and part of 1936-37, 95.59% were released by the major producers, defendants herein, or by their affiliated interests.

(139) Of the feature pictures played in the first-run metropolitan houses of the defendant National Theatres Corporation for the exhibition years 1934-35, 1935-36, and part of 1936-37, 94.89% were released by the major producers, defendants herein, or by their affiliated interests.

(140) Approximately similar percentages apply to the metropolitan first-run theatres operated by the defendant producer-exhibitor Paramount Pictures, Inc.

(141) As a result, the independent producer does not have access to a free, open and untrammeled first-run market in metropolitan cities in which to dispose of his pictures. Entrance to this market by an independent producer is only at the sufferance of the defendants herein, who control it.

(142) A producer-exhibitor defendant, on the other hand, controlling its own first-run theatres, can, and usually does, exhibit pictures produced by it in its own theatres, no matter whether those pictures are good, bad, or indifferent. Access to the first-run market is thus secured by the producer-exhibitor defendants herein without the necessity of subjecting their pictures to competition with the pictures of any other producer.

(144) In metropolitan first-run theatres feature pictures are usually exhibited at least a week, thus making the requirements of such a theatre about 52 pictures a year. Some of the producesr-exhibitor defendants produce this many features in a year, but it is seldom that they use their own pictures exclusively during the course of any year.

(2) Exhibition in affiliated circuits

(145) The five producer-exhibitor defendants owning circuits of theatres, located generally in widely separated parts of the country, have entered upon a series of contracts, agreements, and franchises usually covering a year or more, whereby priority and preference are given to theatres affiliated with producer-exhibitor defendants in the selection of the product of the other producer-exhibitor defendants or the producer-distributor defendants or released by the distributor defendant.

(146) As a general rule, under competitive conditions now existing in the industry, wherever affiliated theatres of the producer-exhibitor defendants come into competition with an independent exhibitor, the independent exhibitor is relegated to a secondary, inferior position. He is compelled to accept pictures for exhibition after the affiliated theatres are through with them, and usually subject to rental terms and conditions of availability, including clearance and zoning, that are harsh and arbitrary.

(147) Furthermore, the long-term franchises, agreements, contracts, and understandings, whereby prior rights and preferences are extended to each other by the producer-exhibitor defendants for the exhibition of their respective product in the theatres of the other, or others, generally contain provisions making said agreements appliable to after-acquired theatres as well as to theatres then in existence.

(148) As a result of provisions of this nature, a producer-exhibitor defendant is enabled to move into any new competitive area which appeals to it, even though that area is already served by independent exhibitors, and be assured of access to the product of the other major companies.

(149) Whenever a producer-exhibitor defendant moves into a territory served by an independent exhibitor, such independent exhibitor is generally reduced to a second, third, or other subsequent run, no matter how long the independent theatre has served the community nor how good its facilities for serving the public may be.

(150) As a result of this monopolistic condition existing in areas where affiliated theatres operate, the independent exhibitor is deprived of access to a free, open, and untrammeled market in which he may buy product based upon his ability and willingness to pay fair and reasonable film rentals.

(3) Affiliated theatre market comfortably filled by product of defendants, to exclusion of independent producers

(151) Since the struggle for the acquisition of theatres by major producers commenced in 1919, the number of feature films released by the major companies has gradually decreased. To illustrate this gradual diminution of distribution of feature films, it is alleged that from 1916, the year in which the Motion Picture Patents Company was dissolved, until 1919 the distribution of feature films by all producers in the United States was as follows: 1916, 865; 1917, 1,046; 1918, 1,016; 1919, 815. From 1920 to 1923, distribution of feature films by all producers was as follows: 1920, 735; 1921, 830; 1922, 707; 1923, 527. In 1927, the major companies, the defendants herein, or their predecessors in interest, released 510 feature films; in 1936, 362. For the calendar years 1929 to 1936, inclusive, an average of approximately 352 feature films have been released annually by the said defendants.

(152) When it is considered that a large majority of the motion picture theatres in the United States, affiliated as well as independent, utilize double-feature programs either as a general policy or sporadically during the year, the aggregate number of feature pictures released in recent years by the defendant companies is approximately enough to fill comfortably the screen time of affiliated theatres. Thus, under the existing arrangements among the defendants for the prior, preferential showing of their respective pictures in theatres of the producer-exhibitor defendants, each producer-exhibitor defendant is assured of a satisfactory selection of the pictures of the defendant companies for exhibition in its theatres.

(4) Loaning of players

(153) The assurance of a market for the product of the defendant companies in all parts of the country, through the theatre facilities of the producer-exhibitor defendants, has made possible a practice in the production of pictures whereby the defendants engaged in production are willing to, and do on frequent occasions, loan their most valuable assets, which include, among others, contract stars, writers, cameramen, directors, sets, and other facilities for the production of pictures, to other defendant producers.

(5) Marketing methods, overselling and overbuying

(154) In marketing films, the major distributors, defendants herein, first license their product, as a general rule, to the five major producer-exhibitor defendants or their respective affiliated theatres, either under long-term franchises or agreements of shorter duration, a great many of which franchises and agreements are selective in character. Next, films are licensed by said distributors, as a general rule, to large unaffiliated theatre chains in accordance with their size, extent, and buying power, for all the separate situations in which said chains operate theatres. Films are licensed to both affiliated and unaffiliated theatre chains, as a general rule, without regard to competitive conditions existing in the various separate areas in which they operate and without regard to the film rentals that smaller independent exhibitors would be willing to pay for films in such separate areas if they were given an opportunity to compete upon a local basis. As a result of this method of marketing, the smaller independent exhibitors are compelled to await subsequent runs in all situations occupied by chain theatres and until the said chain theatres have either utilized or rejected product available to them under their respective licensing agreements. Furthermore, in such situations the smaller independent exhibitors, being dependent upon the product of the major distributors for the successful operation of their theatres, are often compelled to pay film rentals to the said major distributors which are unconscionable and excessive as compared with the film rentals paid by theatre chains, affiliated or unaffiliated, for the same competitive areas. The difference between film rentals paid by small independent exhibitors in such situations and the film rentals paid by theatre chains for the came competitive areas as a rule bears no reasonable relationship to the difference in the cost of selling between the said small independent exhibitors and the said theatre chains.

(155) In selling to the larger chains, whether affiliated or unaffiliated, the defendants, as a rule, make no effort to ascertain what the specific exhibition needs of such exhibitors may be in their various theatres, nor how many pictures of other producers said exhibitors may have placed under contract. This method of selling opens the door to overbuying on the part of unscrupulous exhibitors, and in many instances, permits them to overbuy product for the purpose of keeping it away from competitors.

(156) Each instance where a distributor sells to an exhibitor who has already placed under contract sufficient product to meet his exhibition needs, constitutes an unreasonable restraint of trade, in that it keeps product from other exhibitors needing it. The exhibitor's needs cannot be met elsewhere, because, in the motion picture industry, there is a limited supply of the quality films.

(6) Refusal to sell second or other subsequent run

(157) A further practice is prevalent in the industry whereby major distributors refuse to sell second or subsequent runs in small towns with a limited population, or in situations where it is felt that the selling of second or subsequent runs will injure first-run exhibition and detract from the gross returns sought to be derived from first-run accounts in the towns. This refusal is put upon the ground that large numbers of people in such communities would wait to see the pictures when played at a lower admission price at a later time. Protection, it is claimed, would not make amends for this alleged injury to first runs in such small communities. As a result of this practice, there are innumerable towns and communities throughout the country where the smaller exhibitors are willing and anxious to buy films but are unable to procure an adequate supply of them.

(7) Buyers' and sellers' markets in the motion picture industry

(158) Producers of motion pictures and their product, in the aggregate, constitute the market to which exhibitors must resort in buying (licensing) motion pictures. On the other hand, motion picture theatres afford the ultimate market for the distribution and licensing of motion pictures. The distributor sells (licenses) to the exhibitor alone and to no one else. In this respect the motion picture industry is sui generis and not to be compared with industries dealing in consumable goods where the public itself and the people thereof provide the ultimate market.

(159) The producer-exhibitor defendants herein, acting singly and in combination as hereinafter described, through the integration of production and exhibition facilities of the industry, effectively control the most valuable markets for both the production and exhibition of motion pictures. Market control, whether by buyers or sellers, is incompatible with the free competition sought to be protected and preserved by the Sherman Anti-trust Act.

V. INTERSTATE COMMERCE

(160) The defendants Paramount Pictures, Inc., Loew's, Incorporated, Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation, and Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., are all engaged, either directly or through subsidiary or associated corporations, in the business of producing, distributing, and exhibiting motion pictures.

(161) The defendants Columbia Pictures Corporation and Universal Corporation are engaged, either directly or through subsidiary or associated corporations, in the business of producing and distributing motion pictures.

(162) The defendant United Artists Corporation is engaged in the business of distributing motion pictures.

(163) The business of producing motion pictures embraces the photographing of scenes on reels of celluloid film, said scenes having been prepared in advance by the assemblage, at the studios or upon location, of the necessary directors, actors, actresses, extra players, and other persons and facilities necessary to complete the scenes to be photographed. The personnel necessary to the production of a motion picture is usually assembled at the studios in California, where most of the pictures are made, and is drawn across State lines from all parts of the nation. Costumes and raw materials entering into the making of pictures, in many instances, are manufactured outside the State of California and shipped across State lines to the studios for use in production.

(164) Approximately 276 different industries, arts and professions are represented in the making of a single feature motion picture.

(165) Approximately two billion feet of negative stock celluloid film are used in the production of motion pictures annually, practically all of which is manufactured at plants located in the States of New York and New Jersey. Approximately 90% of the raw negative stock is shipped across State lines to the studios in California to be utilized in the production of motion pictures.

(166) After the scenes going to make up a motion picture have been photographed, they are developed, cut, fixed, edited and arranged at the studios in California. Then the negatives are shipped to laboratories located principally in California, New York and New Jersey, where the required number of positive prints are made (usually between 50 and 250) to fulfill the contractual requirements for the picture in question. The positive prints so prepared are the motion picture films which are projected through motion picture projectors onto the screens of the motion picture theatres after having been shipped across State lines to the Film Exchanges maintained in the various exchange cities throughout the country.

(167) In the spring of each year producers of motion pictures announce their prospective programs for the coming exhibition season. This program describes the pictures to be produced, so far as known, giving their titles, the names of the stars and other featured players, the directors, and such other pertinent material as may be available. Plans are then made for the production and release of the plays upon the program, at approximately regular intervals throughout the exhibition season, which begins on September 1 of each year.

(168) When programs have been arranged and fixed, the producers proceed, through their salesmen, who work out of the film exchange cities, to solicit exhibitors to enter into license agreements covering exhibition of photoplays for the coming season in so far as such exhibition is free from commitments under long-term franchises or other agreements to others of the producer-exhibitor defendants herein. Each photoplay is copyrighted under the Copyright Laws of the United States by the producer, and the solicited license agreements as signed by exhibitors are, by the terms thereof, usually transmitted to the principal office of the producer, usually in New York, where such agreements are either approved or rejected by the producer.

(170) Upon receipt of the motion picture films by the various exchanges, they are delivered to the various exhibitors who, under their license agreements with distributors, have the first or prior right to exhibit the respective films, and are then transported to the exhibitors having the next succeeding right to exhibit, and so on until all exhibitors who are to exhibit the photoplays have been served. Many shipments of films from exchange to exhibitor, and from exhibitor to exchange, cross State lines. When the films are worn out, they are shipped or returned to laboratories for scrapping; which shipments, as a rule, cross State lines, the final destination usually being New York City.

(171) Thus, in the course of producing, distributing and exhibiting motion pictures there is a constant, continuous stream of trade and commerce between the States, in and between the territories and the States of the United States, and with foreign nations, consisting of the solicitation and the making of contracts for the future delivery over periods of time of films to be produced and delivered as hereinbefore described; the assemblage of personnel, property and material at the studios for the production of pictures; the transportation of negative films from the studios to the laboratories where positive prints of motion picture films are prepared, and from thence shipped to film exchanges throughout the United States; the continuous distribution of said films from the exchanges to and from motion picture theatres located in the areas served by the respective exchanges; the interchange of said films between each exchange and other exchanges of the same distributor located in other States of the United States or in the Territories thereof or in foreign countries; and, finally, the shipment of said films from said exchanges throughout the United States to points within the State of New York or elsewhere for scrapping.

(172) The activities of each branch of the motion picture industry are either in or directly affect trade and commerce among the several States.

VI. OFFENSES CHARGED

(173) The defendants, each well knowing all the matters and things hereinbefore alleged, for many years last past have violated and are now violating the provisions of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act by monopolizing, attempting to monopolize, combining and conspiring with each other to monopolize, and contracting, combining, and conspiring to restrain interstate trade and commerce in the production, distribution, and exhibition of motion pictures, and unless restrained and prevented by this Honorable Court, the said defendants will continue to violate the provisions of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act as aforesaid. Said monopoly, attempts to monopolize, combination and conspiracy to monopolize, and contracts, combinations, and conspiracies to restrain interstate trade and commerce in the production, distribution, and exhibition of motion pictures, together with the means and instrumentalities by which they have been brought about and accomplished, will now be described in detail.

(A) Monopoly of exhibition in first-run metropolitan theatres

(174) The producer-exhibitor defendants herein, to wit, Paramount Pictures, Inc., Loew's, Incorporated, Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., and Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation, have integrated the principal production and exhibition facilities in the motion picture industry, and, having so integrated said facilities, have attempted to monopolize and have monopolized, and have combined and conspired with each other and with the producer-distributor defendants and with the distributor defendant, to monopolize the market for the exhibition of motion pictures in first-run metropolitan theatres throughout the United States. The number of first-run metropolitan theatres owned, operated or controlled by each of the said producer-exhibitor defendants in thirty-six (36) selected key cities of the United States are set out in Paragraphs 122 to 126, inclusive, supra.

(175) Through the instrumentality of their respective first-run theatre holdings as aforesaid, coupled with the monopolization of the production of quality, high-class feature films distributed by all of the defendants, as hereinafter alleged, the said producer-exhibitor defendants, or their predecessors in interest, have been empowered to exclude, and have excluded, from said first-run exhibition in said first-run motion picture theatres all other producers of pictures and their product for many years past, commencing at least as long ago as 1927.

(176) As alleged in paragraph 136, supra, in the first-run metropolitan theatres owned, controlled, or operated by the defendant Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., for the exhibition seasons 1934-35, 1935-36, and for one-half of the season of 1936-37, 95.54% of the feature motion pictures exhibited therein were released by the eight parent companies, either directly or through subsidiary companies, and the remaining 4.46% were released by all other motion picture distributors, domestic and foreign.

(177) As alleged in paragraph 137, supra, in the first-run metropolitan theatres owned, controlled, or operated by the defendant Loew's, Incorporated, for the exhibition seasons 1934-35, 1935-36, and for one-half of the season of 1936-37, 99.22% of the feature motion pictures exhibited therein were released by the eight parent companies, either directly or through subsidiary companies, and the remaining 0.78% were released by all other motion picture distributors, domestic and foreign.

(178) As alleged in paragraph 138, supra, in the first-run metropolitan theatres owned, controlled or operated by the defendant Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, for the exhibition seasons 1934-35, 1935-36, and for one-half of the season of 1936-37, 95.59% of the feature motion pictures exhibited therein were released by the eight parent companies, either directly or through subsidiary companies, and the remaining 4.41% were released by all other motion picture distributors, domestic and foreign.

(179) As alleged in paragraph 139, supra, in the first-run metropolitan theatres owned, controlled, or operated by the defendant National Theatres Corporation, for the exhibition seasons 1934-35, 1935-36, and for one-half of the season of 1936-37, 94.89% of the feature motion pictures exhibited therein were released by the eight parent companies, either directly or through subsidiary companies, and the remaining 5.11% were released by all other motion picture distributors, domestic and foreign.

(180) Approximately the same percentages apply to the first-run metropolitan theatres owned, controlled, or operated by the defendant Paramount Pictures, Inc., for the exhibition seasons 1934-35, 1935-36, and for one-half of the season of 1936-37; that is to say, that of the feature photoplays exhibited first run in the metropolitan theatres of that defendant, approximately 95% thereof were released by the eight parent companies, defendants herein, or by their respective subsidiaries, and the remaining 5% were released by all other motion picture distributors, domestic and foreign.

(181) In addition to exhibiting their own product in their own theatres, each producer-exhibitor defendants has used, and generally uses, the product of other defendant companies in order to fill up and complete the surplus screen time in its theatres that is not consumed in the exhibition of motion pictures of its own production.

(182) Licenses for the exhibition of motion pictures produced by the defendants herein are created and provided for by innumerable agreements, contracts, and understandings either in the form of long-term franchises or by contracts of shorter duration whereby the product of each defendant company herein is made available for exhibition in the first-run theatres of the producer-exhibitor defendants, to the exclusion generally of the motion pictures of all other producers, domestic or foreign.

(183) As a result of the monopolization, as aforesaid, of the market for the exhibition of motion pictures in first-run metropolitan theatres throughout the United States by the producer-exhibitor defendants as aforesaid, independent producers of motion pictures have been denied, and are generally denied, by producer-exhibitor defendants and each of them, all access to the market for the exhibition of pictures in first-run metropolitan theatres. First-run exhibition of feature films in first-run metropolitan theatres, as is alleged in paragraph 120, supra, is of the utmost importance to the producer for the successful exhibition and exploitation of motion pictures.

(184) As a result of the monopolization of the market for first-run exhibition of pictures in metropolitan theatres by the producer-exhibitor defendants, the independent producer has been and is excluded from access thereto except at the sufferance of the producer-exhibitor defendants, or one or more of them, and subject to terms dictated by them.

(185) The monopolization of the market for first-run exhibition of motion pictures throughout the United States has been brought about by the producer-exhibitor defendants herein through the instrumentality of ownership, operation, and control by the various producer-exhibitor defendants of substantially all of the first-run metropolitan theatres throughout the country and as an instrumentality of monopolization such control of the exhibition branch of the industry, coupled with control of production by the producer-exhibitor defendants, or any of them, as hereinafter alleged, is illegal as violative of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

(B) Nationwide monopoly of exhibition by producer-exhibitor defendants

(186) In addition to the monopolization of the market for the exhibition of motion pictures in first-run metropolitan theatres, as hereinbefore alleged, the producer-exhibitor defendants have also attempted to monopolize, have monopolized, and have combined and conspired with each other and with the producer-distributor defendants and with the distributor defendant to monopolize, the first- or preferred-run exhibition of motion pictures throughout the United States wherever any theatres affiliated with the producer-exhibitor defendants, or any one or more of them, operate or exist.

(187) As pointed out in paragraph 50, supra, the producer-exhibitor defendants, in acquiring circuits of affiliated theatres, have not gone into the same competitive areas to any appreciable extent, and then only in certain densely populated metropolitan areas where patronage is sufficient for all producer-exhibitor defendants operating in such areas. On the contrary, generally speaking, each producer-exhibitor defendant has gone into a territory, or territories, for the acquisition of theatres by it, not occupied by any of the other producer-exhibitor defendants. A statement of the affiliated theatre holdings of each of the producer-exhibitor defendant producer-exhibitors has acquired one or with the location of the theatres of each, by States, appears in paragraphs 122 to 126, inclusive, supra.

(188) In the acquisition of theatres, each of the defendant producer-exhibitors has acquired one or more theatres through purchase, lease, or operating agreement from independent exhibitors. By reason of the power and position in the industry enjoyed by the said producer-exhibitor defendants, and each of them, and, as a result of their assurance of product for exhibition in those theatres, independent exhibitors, in some instances, have been compelled to sell or dispose of their theatres to the producer-exhibitor defendants, or some of them, as a result of coercive methods employed by the said producer-exhibitor defendants, or some of them. The said coercive methods so employed are sometimes referred to in the industry, particulary by independent exhibitors, as "distress methods." The said methods have included the following: threats of building a theatre, or theatres, in opposition to the independent exhibitor if he does not agree to sell; threats to deprive the independent exhibitor of product, or desirable product, if he does not agree to sell; the purchase of theatre sites in the neighborhood of the independent exhibitor, with the suggestion conveyed to the independent exhibitor, either directly or through third parties, that the major producer-exhibitor in question intends to build and open a theatre on the new site if the independent exhibitor will not agree to sell; threats to purchase an equity or interest in the independent theatre for the purpose of gaining control through reorganization or otherwise and the imposition upon the independent exhibitor of arbitrary and unreasonable clearance and zoning schedules. The occasions and circumstances wherein and whereunder some or all of these methods have been used by the producer-exhibitor defendants, or some of them, are too numerous to mention herein, but have occurred in all sections of the United States.

(189) The acquisition of affiliated theatres in different sections and areas of the United States by the producer-exhibitor defendants has resulted in a division of territory between them, so that, in effect, each producer-exhibitor defendant, acting in combination with the other defendants herein, has an independent monopoly of the market for the first run exhibition of motion pictures in the respective area, or areas, where each operates. The following table indicates the location of the theatres affiliated with the five producer-exhibitor defendants, arranged by States, excluding from the tabulation first-run metropolitan de luxe theatres:

(190) Aided by the monopolization of the production of the high-grade, quality feature films by the defendant producers, as hereinafter alleged, the producer-exhibitor defendants have attempted to monopolize, and have monopolized, and combined and conspired to monopolize, the exhibition of motion pictures upon first or preferred runs in every section and through every area of the United States where the affiliated theatres of any of them exist or operate.

(191) The said monopolization is accomplished in pursuance of a common purpose, plan, and design whereby each producer-exhibitor defendant is given, in a particular area, or areas, where it owns, operates, or controls an affiliated theatre or an affiliated chain of theatres, priority and preference over all other exhibitors in the exhibition of mottion pictures distributed not only by itself but also of motion pictures distributed by all other distributor defendants herein.

(192) The said common purpose, plan and design is carried out and accomplished through a system and series of franchises, contracts, agreements and understandings entered into severally by the defendants herein for the exhibition of the pictures produced by each of them as producers in the theatres operated by producer-exhibitor defendants as exhibitors in the various parts of the United States where each one operates or controls affiliated theatres. As a general rule, each producer-exhibitor defendant and also each producer-distributor, as well as the distributor defendant, reserves its respective motion pictures for licensing by the producer-exhibitor defendants until such time as such pictures as are desired by each and all of said producer-exhibitor defendants have been selected and exhibited.

(193) In the large metropolitan areas where two or more of the producer-exhibitor defendants operate affiliated theatres within the same competitive area, or areas, a convenient division of the motion pictures produced by the other defendants is usually arranged between the producer-exhibitor defendants operating within the same area, or areas. Such a division of product is commonly referred to in the industry as a "split" of product.

(194) As a result of the monopolization of the exhibition of the first or preferred runs of motion pictures by the producer-exhibitor defendants in affiliated theatres throughout the United States, as alleged, all independent exhibitors who operate a theatre, or theatres, or chains of theatres, in competition with the producer-exhibitor defendants, or any of them, are systematically excluded from the right to procure, and opportunity to procure, or from attempting to procure, under fair competitive conditions, first or preferred run of high grade, quality films, a large portion of which are produced by the defendants herein, as hereinbefore set out.

(195) Furthermore, as a result of said monopolization, all independent exhibitors operating in competitive areas where affiliated theatres operate or exist are denied access to a free, open, and untrammeled market for the licensing of motion pictures for exhibition in their respective theatres.

(196) The franchises, contracts, agreements, or understandings, whereby the motion pictures produced by any and all of the defendants are first made available to affiliated theatres of the producer-exhibitor defendants, are negotiated, arranged, and executed by the several defendants herein before any of said pictures are made available to independent exhibitors upon any terms.

(197) As a result, in every area where an independent exhibitor is in competition with an affiliated theatre or an affiliated circuit of theatres, he is systematically relegated to a secondary, inferior position where he may only obtain product on second or subsequent run, no matter how fine his theatre, or theatres, may be and no matter how much he would be willing to pay for pictures in a free, open, and untrammeled market.

(198) The monopolization of the exhibition of quality films on first or preferred runs in all sections of the United States where affiliated theatres operate or exist has been brought about by the producer-exhibitor defendants herein through the instrumentality of the ownership, operation and control of affiliated theatres, and as such instrumentality, as aforesaid, theatre ownership and control, coupled with the control of production by the producer-exhibitor defendants, or any of them as hereinafter alleged

(C) Monopoly of production

(199) The producer defendants herein, to wit, Paramount Pictures, Inc., Loew's, Incorporated, Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation, Columbia Pictures Corporation, and Universal Corporation, and their respective affiliated interests have attempted to monopolize, and have monopolized, and have combined and conspired to monopolize, the production and distribution of feature photoplays, and particularly feature photoplays of the better grade and quality, from the exhibition of which the greater part of the industry's revenue is derived.

(200) The said monopolization is accomplished in pursuance of a common purpose, plan and design whereby the said defendant producers, and each of them, place under contract, and for many years past have placed under contract most of the valuable stars, featured players, directors, technicians and others who have gained fame, prestige, renown, artistic, technical or other great value in the industry, and particularly in the production branch thereof.

(201) In recent years said personnel have been placed under contract in great numbers by one or the other of the aforesaid defendant producers; and, in some instances, certain of the said personnel have been placed under contract by more than one of the said defendants during the same periods of time.

(202) Said personnel, however, are seldom, if ever, placed or permitted to be placed under contract with an independent producer, nor are the services of said personnel available to said independent producers, as will be more fully set out hereinafter.

(203) For the exhibition years 1935-36, 1936-37, and 1937-38, the defendant producers, placed under contract directors and players as follows:

(1) Contract Directors

Producer	1935-36	1936-37	1937-38
Columbia	10	10	12
Twentieth Century-Fox	16	17	20
Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer (Loew's)	23	17	20
Paramount	19	23	13
Radio-Keith-Orpheum	17	15	20
Universal	17	8	14
Warner	22	22	22

(2) Contract Players

Producer	1935-36	1936-37	1937-38
Columbia	34	43	53
Twentieth Century-Fox	60	69	85
Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer (Loew's)	72	87	90
Paramount	77	82	96
Radio-Keith-Orpheum	48	52	78
Universal	30	29	71
Warner	72	79	81

In addition, various types of technicians, such as writers and cameramen, were also placed under contract.

(204) These stars, featured players, directors and other technicians include practically all of the artists who have gained prominence and favor in the industry.

(205) In recent years and in pursuance of the common plan, purpose, and design heretofore referred to, the defendants herein, and each of them, has inaugurated, and each of them has become a party to, a practice whereby the various stars, featured players, directors, and other technicians who have been placed under contract by the various defendant producers, are made available and loaned by the defendant producer to whom they are bound by contract, to another or other of the defendant producers for use in the production of pictures which are to be produced by the latter.

(206) Except as to defendants Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., Loew's, Incorporated, and Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation, the exact terms and conditions upon which said stars, featured players, directors, and technicians are made available or loaned to each other are unknown to your petitioner. As a general rule, however, the defendant producer who loans a star or other person under contract to it does so under conditions whereby, among other things, the payment of the contract terms are assumed by the borrowing producer for the period during which the services of the borrowed star are required. Thus the burden of the contract obligations assumed by the various defendant producers in placing said stars, featured players, directors, and other technicians under contract is shared and divided, in fact and effect, by the other producing defendants who, in the manner described, avail themselves of the services of said stars, featured players, directors, and other technicians.

(207) Likewise, through the manner and method of exhibiting said pictures resulting from the use of borrowed personnel, the said defendant producers who are parties to said loaning and borrowing in each instance, as well as all the defendant producer-exhibitors, stand to participate in the division of the profits and returns which are realized from the exhibition of said pictures.

(208) The practice thus described, whereby the contract stars, featured players, directors, and technicians, as well as production sets and other studio equipment, of one defendant producer are made available to another defendant producer, constitutes both in law and in fact a pooling of the assets of the defendant producers who participate and have participated in this practice, contrary to and violative of the provisions of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

(209) It is alleged that the aforesaid practices of pooling stars, featured players, directors, and other technicians is an outgrowth from and is intimately connected with, in an economic way, the control of the production and exhibition branches of the industry by the defendant producer-exhibitors, as hereinbefore alleged, whereby the returns to be derived from the exhibition of pictures which result from the use of borrowed stars, featured players, directors, or other technicians, will be shared and enjoyed by all of the producer-exhibitor defendants.

(210) This is particularly true when it is remembered that there is a virtual division of exhibition territory in the United States between the said producer-exhibitor defendants, so that, as a result of this division of territory and the ownership and control of virtually all of the first-run metropolitan theatres, the greater the success that is realized at the box office from any picture produced through the use of borrowed stars, featured players, or other personnel, the greater will be the returns that are shared and enjoyed generally by the said defendant producer-exhibitors. And, furthermore, the greater the success of a picture produced by a producer defendant, not engaged in exhibition, through the use of borrowed personnel, the greater will be its share of the resulting profits under the usual methods of licensing films.

(211) As a rule, the independent producer is and has been systematically excluded from this practice and the benefits to be derived therefrom. The services of said stars, featured players, and other technicians have not been made available, nor permitted to be made available, to said independent producers, or any of them. As a result of the exclusion of the independent producer from the practice alleged, his opportunity and the possibility of his producing feature photoplays of quality are rendered negligible.

(212) As a result of the monopolization of production, as hereinbefore described, by the defendant producers, the independent producers are denied access to a free, open, and untrammeled market in which they may strive to make feature photoplays of the finer grade and quality, and, for the most part, are driven to resort to and limit their activities and energies to the making of cheaper pictures having entrance to only a limited market which, for the most part, is unoccupied by affiliated theatres operated by producer-exhibitor defendants herein and in which only small admission prices and revenues are obtainable.

(213) Except for the monopolistic control of production and exhibition by the five producer-exhibitor defendants and their respective affiliated theatre interests, as hereinbefore alleged, the practice of pooling stars, featured players, directors and other technicians, as well as physical properties herein complained of would not take place, for the reason that in a free, open, and untrammeled market for the exhibition of pictures where every producer was compelled to engage in genuine competition with every other producer, the loaning of assets, as described, would be directly opposed to the competitive interests of the producer, or producers, so loaning their assets.

(D) Trade practices imposed upon independent exhibitors

(214) By virtue of the power resulting from the attempts to monopolize, the monopolization, the combinations and conspiracies to monopolize the interstate trade and commerce in motion pictures by the defendants herein, as hereinbefore alleged, and by reason of the dependence of unaffiliated exhibitors upon the motion pictures produced by the defendants herein for the successful operation of their respective theatres throughout the country, the said defendants have placed themselves in a position to impose, and have imposed upon unaffiliated exhibitors throughout the United States a series of harsh, onerous, and unfair trade practices, each of which tends to restrain and does restrain and obstruct interstate trade and commerce in motion pictures in violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act. Among such trade practices so imposed are the following:

(1) Block Booking.—Block booking is a practice whereby unaffiliated or independent exhibitors are compelled to take blocks or groups of pictures in order to obtain any of them. Compulsory block booking, such as is enforced against the independent exhibitor, should not be confused with voluntary block booking whereunder a group or block of pictures is purchased as the result of a voluntary agreement freely entered into between distributor and exhibitor. Block booking is seldom, if ever, enforced by the producer-exhibitor defendants against each other. On the contrary, the exhibition contracts between and among the defendants herein are usually placed upon a selective basis, whereunder each defendant and its affiliated theatres may play such product or pictures of the other, or others, as it may select. In the case of the independent exhibitor, however, he is compelled to contract and pay for a whole block or group of pictures in order to obtain any of them which he may desire. This practice has the effect of imposing upon the independent exhibitor a great number of pictures that are not desired by him, and tends to arbitrarily fill up and consume his screen time, thus preventing him from securing other pictures through other distributors.

(2) Forcing of Short Subjects and News Reels.—Forcing of short subjects and news reels is a practice generally enforced only against the independent exhibitor, whereby he is compelled to license and pay for short subjects and news reels in order to procure desired feature photoplays, even though it is impossible for such independent exhibitor to utilize and exhibit such short subjects and news reels. This practice, as a rule, is never enforced by one of the major companies, the defendants herein, against another major company and its affiliated theatres.

(3) Arbitrary designation of play dates.—This is a practice usually employed only against the independent exhibitor, whereby the major producer defendents herein, in selling to the exhibitor, compel him to play the films to be licensed upon designated play dates, usually the most desirable, such as Saturday, Sunday, or holidays. The independent exhibitor is forced to accept such arbitrary designation of preferred playing dates in order to obtain the product necessary to the operation of his theatre. The effect of this practice is to subject the management of the independent exhibitor's theatre to the will of the producer and to relieve the exhibitor of his own judgment as to how his own theatre shall be operated. The independent exhibitor, as a result of this practice, is often compelled to operate his theatre in the interest of the distributor and contrary to his own best interests.

(4) Protection.—Thus a practice which includes clearance and zoning, by which first-run exhibition is given the protection of a period of time before the same picture may be played upon subsequent-run. The producer-exhibitor defendants herein, in all areas where they or any of them own, control, or operate theatres, generally contract for the first-run exhibition of all feature pictures produced by any of them, and in the negotiation of said contracts the said defendants often impose upon the subsequent-run exhibitors arbitrary and unreasonable clearance and zoning schedules. As a result, the independent exhibitor, in many instances, is unable to exhibit feature photoplays until after their box office value is practically exhausted, and their novelty and freshness have worn off.

(5) Overbuying—Through methods of distribution employed by the major distributors, defendants herein, exhibitors are permitted in many instances to contract for more films than can be legitimately displayed in their theatres. The said methods of distribution employed by the defendants permit unscrupulous exhibitors to place more films under contract than can be properly displayed in their theatres under reasonable exhibition programs, with the result that thereby the said unscrupulous exhibitors are enabled to withhold product from other independent exhibitors who may need it for the operation of their theatres. If unused pictures are released for the use of others by such exhibitors, it is usually only after sufficient time has elapsed to diminish greatly their exhibition value.

(6) Arbitrary, unconscionable, and discriminatory film rentals.—Independent exhibitors, as a result of their dependence upon the major producer defendants herein for product, are, as a general rule, compelled to pay arbitrary, unconscionable, and discriminatory film rentals in order to procure licenses for the exhibition of pictures upon subsequent run which the competing affiliated theatres have played upon first run in the same competitive areas. In some instances the independent exhibitor has been compelled to pay four or five times as much, or even more, for the exhibition of film upon subsequent run as the major producer-exhibitor defendant paid for the same film on first run in the same competitive area. In order for the independent exhibitor to secure feature pictures produced by the major producer defendants herein, he is often compelled to license said pictures under exhibition contracts, the terms of which are based upon a percentage of the gross box office receipts derived from the exhibition thereof, with the right exacted by the major defendants to inspect the books of the exhibitor in order to verify the film rentals realized from such exhibition. In addition, a minimum license fee is frequently demanded, enabling the major distributor defendants to share the profits, if any, but not the losses. As a result, film rentals are determined in such cases not by what would be a fair return to the major distributor for its product, but, on the contrary, by the greatest amount that the independent exhibitor can possibly pay. Thus the major defendant distributors realize the principal financial benefit from such exhibition of their pictures, leaving the independent exhibitor with scarcely enough to keep their theatres open. The power which, under present conditions in the industry, has been thus vested in the major companies, the defendants herein, to impose arbitrary, unconscionable, and discriminatory film rentals upon independent exhibitors, enables them, through the exercise of that power in instances where they desire to use it, to drive such independent exhibitors out of business.

(7) Prohibition of double features.—In exhibition contracts with independent exhibitors in various parts of the United States, provisions often are insisted upon by the major companies, the defendants herein, whereby said exhibitors are prevented from playing any of the feature films covered by said contracts as a part of double-feature programs. Such prohibitions are not insisted upon in the contracts of the defendants herein with each other, but, on the contrary, the practice of double-featuring is often encouraged in such cases and reduced film rentals are often given when pictures are exhibited as a part of double-feature programs in their own or affiliated theatres. The practice of seeking to prohibit the exhibition of films by independent exhibitors upon double-feature programs has heretofore been decreed to be illegal, as violative of the Federal antitrust laws by the Federal District Court for the Eastern District of Pennsylvania, and the decree was affirmed by the Circuit Court of Appeals for the Third Circuit.

(8) Score charges.—The practice of imposing score charges upon exhibitors by the defendants herein originally grew out of the introduction of sound motion pictures. Originally, sound came from a disc, or record, the playing of which was synchronized with the picture. A charge was made for the use of the disc, which came to be characterized as, or called, a "score charge." With the change made in sound whereby the sound track was superimposed on the celluloid film, the disc fell into disuse and was discarded. Nevertheless, the imposition of score charges upon exhibitors has continued, and in reality amounts to additional film rental under existing conditions. The score charge is not applied uniformly to both affiliated and independent exhibitors, but, on the contrary, the affiliated theatres pay the charges under about one-half of their contracts only, while the independent theatres are generally compelled to meet and pay said score charges in all situations.

(9) Minimum admissions.—In many instances the defendants herein, in negotiating contracts for the exhibition of their product, fix, or attempt to fix, the minimum admission prices to be charged by the independent exhibitor, and in certain instances have agreed, in contracting with first or prior run exhibitors affiliated with one of the defendant exhibitors herein, to impose terms upon subsequent-run exhibitors which are harsh and unreasonable. As a result, the film has little, if any, exhibition value to the independent exhibitor.

(E) Benefits, favors, and advantages extended by the defendants to each other

(215) In addition to the above named trade practices imposed by the defendants upon independent exhibitors, the said defendants, in their dealings with each other, generally extend certain benefits, favors, and advantages which enable them to operate more profitably than the independents. The benefits, favors, and advantages thus extended also have the effect of consolidating in the defendants the control of production, distribution, and exhibition of motion pictures in interstate trade and commerce, hereinbefore described. Among the benefits, favors, and advantages generally extended by the defendants herein to each other are the following:

(1) Sharing advertising costs.—The box office value of feature films is increased greatly by various forms of advertising, which generally involve the expenditure of large sums of money. In many instances the contracts between the defendants as producers and other defendants as exhibitors provide that the advertising costs in the areas covered by such contracts shall be borne partially by the producer. Such benefits are rarely, if ever, extended to independent exhibitors.

(2) Optional contracts.—In dealing with each other, the defendants, or some of them, as producers and others of them as exhibitors frequently enter into contracts whereby the exhibitor is given the right and privilege to play certain specified feature photoplays, but without assuming any binding obligation to do so. This, in form, is a selective contract and provides for the exhibitor a wider selection of pictures without obligation to take them. Such benefits are seldom, if ever, extended to independent exhibitors.

(3) Contract modifications.—In numerous instances material changes and alterations are made in contracts existing between the defendants, or some of them, as producers and others of them as exhibitors. Among the types of modifications thus allowed are the following:

(a) Reduction of film rentals where box office receipts upon the exhibition of pictures covered by the contract have been disappointing.

(d) Reduction in film rentals where pictures covered by the contract are shown in connection with a premium give-away, by which attendance at the theatre is encouraged.

(e) Changing pictures covered by a contract specifying percentage of box office revenue as rental, to a flat rental, so-called, which means a fixed rental designated in terms of dollars and cents.

(f) Elimination of pictures covered by contracts by repeating or extending the playing time of other pictures covered by the same contracts.

(g) Transference of pictures contracted for exhibition in one theatre to another theatre operated by the same defendant.

(4) Overage and Underage.—This a practice extended by the defendants, as producers, to others of the defendants as exhibitors, whereby the exhibitor defendants are permitted as to one theatre or group of theatres to play fewer pictures than the minimum contract commitment requires, and to charge the deficit thus created against pictures played in excess of the commitment relating to another theatre or group of theatres operated by the same defendant. This privilege is seldom, if ever, extended to the independent exhibitor.

(5) Cancellation of Short Subjects.—The defendants, as exhibitors, are often permitted by other defendants, as producers, to cancel short subjects contracted for in instances where they enter into spot contracts for feature pictures. This privilege is seldom, if ever, extended to the independent exhibitor.

(6) Move-overs.—A practice whereby the defendants, or some of them, as exhibitors, are permitted by other defendants, as producers, to move a picture from a theatre where its exhibition has been completed, to another theatre operated by the same defendant for a continued run or exhibition. This practice affects adversely the box office value of a picture when it reaches subsequent-run exhibitors. This practice is generally confined to metropolitan areas. This privilege is seldom, if ever, extended to the independent exhibitor.

VII. CONCLUSION

(216) The petitioner's case is based, in part, upon the fundamental proposition that the free competition enjoined upon American industry by the Sherman Anti-Trust Act, and which competition is sought to be protected and preserved by that Act, demands the existence of free markets.

(217) Free competition means a free and open market among both buyers and sellers, in which the buyer does not control the seller and the seller does not control the buyer.

(218) An analysis of the motion picture industry, its component parts and its methods of transacting business, demonstrates that the ultimate market, and the only market, in which motion pictures produced for entertainment purposes may be distributed and licensed is made up solely of the motion picture theatres of the United States.

(219) In soliciting the purchase of licenses for the exhibition of its pictures, the producer, through its salesmen, deals only with the owners or operators of motion picture theatres.

(220) Nothing tangible in form is delivered to the public or any of the persons comprising it. All that the public receives from the theatre owner or operator is an intangible article in the form of entertainment, for which an admission price is paid.

(221) The exhibition of a motion picture film may constitute only a part of the intangible theatre program, and that film, after exhibition, is returned to the producer's exchange for delivery to another exhibitor, who constitutes another part of the market, no matter how infinitesimal.

(222) In securing control of the motion picture theatres of the United States, particularly the first-run metropolitan theatres, and the better chains of theatres, coupled with production facilities, the defendant producer-exhibitors herein have effectually monopolized the market for motion pictures upon a nationwide scale and have drawn unto themselves the power of effectually excluding from that market both independent producers and dependent exhibitors.

(223) As long as the most important markets for motion pictures are under the domination and control of any producer, or any group of producers, free, open, and untrammeled competition in the motion picture industry is impossible. It is equally destructive of free enterprise and free competition for any exhibitor or any group of exhibitors to dominate and control production. Control of theatres by the same interests which control production in the motion picture industry means the control of the market by the very elements which should compete for it.

(224) To compel all producers to acquire their own theatres in which to exhibit their own pictures or all theatres to acquire their own production facilities is an impracticability under any system of free competition and is to place upon the motion picture industry unreasonable standards of competition.

(225) In addition to the fact that the motion picture theatres of the United States constitute the ultimate market for the distribution and licensing of motion pictures, and wholly apart from that fact, under conditions as they exist today in the motion picture industry, the instrumentality of theatre ownership, domination and control has been utilized, and is being utilized, by the defendant producer-exhibitors herein as one of the means whereby they have achieved a monopoly, or monopolies, of the various branches of the industry, as hereinbefore described. Likewise the domination and control of production by any exhibitor or any group of exhibitors is destructive of free enterprise and free competition. As an instrumentality of monopolization, domination of production and exhibition by the producer-exhibitor defendants or any of them is unlawful and is a violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

(227) The only way in which free competition may be restored to the motion picture industry is by the complete, permanent, and effectual separation of the production and exhibition branches of that industry, to the end that the ultimate markets of the industry shall be placed wholly beyond the domination and control of any producer or group of producers of motion pictures upon the one hand or of any exhibitor or any group of exhibitors of motion pictures upon the other hand.

VIII. PRAYER

WHEREFORE, Petitioner prays:

(1) That the court issue its preliminary injunction restraining the defendants herein, and each of them, from building, buying, leasing, or otherwise acquiring any additional theatres or any further interest, or interests, in any additional theatres, either directly or indirectly, through the acquisition thereof by subsidiary or associated corporations or otherwise, until the final decree herein or until the further order of this court.

(2) That the contracts, combinations, and conspiracies in restraint of interstate trade and commerce, together with the attempts to monopolize and the monopolization of the same, hereinbefore described, be declared illegal and violative of the Act of Congress passed July 2, 1890.

(3) That the defendants herein, and each of them, and each and all of their respective officers and directors, and each and all of the respective agents, servants and employees, and all persons acting or claiming to act on behalf of the defendants, or any of them, be perpetually enjoined and restrained from continuing to carry out, directly or indirectly, expressly or impliedly, the attempts at monopolization, the monopolies and all restraints of said interstate trade and commerce in the production, distribution, and exhibition of motion pictures described herein, and from entering into and carrying out, directly or indirectly, expressly or impliedly, any monopolies or restraints of interstate trade and commerce similar to those alleged herein to be illegal.

(4) That the integration of the production and exhibition branches of the industry by the producer-exhibitor defendants herein, and each of them, be declared to be unlawful as an instrumentality of monopoly and restraint upon interstate trade and commerce, and violative of the Sherman Anti-Trust Act.

(5) That the defendants Paramount Pictures, Inc., Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation, and Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., and each of them, both as producers and distributors of motion pictures, under the direction and supervision of the court be ordered and directed to divest themselves of all interest and ownership, both direct and indirect, in theatres and theatre holdings and that they, and each of them and their respective successors be permanently enjoined from acquiring directly or indirectly any other interests in the exhibition of motion pictures or in any persons, firms, or corporations which are engaged or may engage in the exhibition of motion pictures; said divestiture to be accomplished and carried out upon such terms and conditions as the court may deem proper, and that pending such divestiture the operation and management of said theatres and theatre holdings be placed in the hands of trustees to be selected by the court, who shall be entirely free from the control or domination of any producer or distributor of motion pictures.

(6) That the defendants Loew's, Incorporated, and Irving Trust Company, as Trustee in Bankruptcy for Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation, and each of them, as exhibitors of motion pictures, be ordered and directed to divest themselves of all interest, or interests, direct or indirect, in all persons, firms or corporations engaged in the production or distribution of motion pictures, and that they, and each of them, and their respective successors, be permanently enjoined from acquiring directly or indirectly any other interests in the production or distribution of motion pictures or in any persons, firms or corporations which are engaged or may engage in either the production or distribution of motion pictures; said divestiture to be accomplished and carried out upon such terms and conditions as the court may deem proper, and that pending such divestiture, the operation and management of said production interests be placed in the hands of Trustees to be selected by the court, who shall be entirely free from the control or domination of any exhibitor of motion pictures.

(7) That the producer defendants herein, and each of them, be permanently enjoined from borrowing, loaning, or otherwise making available their respective contract stars, featured players, or other technical personnel to any of the other defendants and from pooling their assets in the manner described herein, or in any other manner.

(8) That the defendants herein, and each of them, be permanently enjoined from enforcing upon independent exhibitors, or any of them, any and all of the unfair trade practices referred to and described in Paragraphs 214 and 215 of this petition.

(9) In order that the petitioner herein may obtain the relief to which it is justly entitled in the premises, may it please Your Honors to grant to it writs of subpoena directed to each of said defendants, commanding it, or him, to appear herein and answer upon oath the allegations contained in this petition and to abide by and perform such orders and decrees as the court may make in the premises.

(10) That the petitioner have such other and further relief as the court may deem proper.

(11) That the petitioner recover its costs herein.

Garden of the Moon

(Warner Bros.)

Swing Music Comedy

Turn on the radio and, three out of five times, swing music comes out. Go where young folk dance—night clubs, ballrooms, honky tonks or vacation resorts—and all the bands are playing swing music. Put a swing band on the stage and nothing short of fire-hoses can cool off the heat. A swing music picture, the comedy quality of which is also swing, should wield a potent influence on young and old alike. Warner Brothers has such a picture in "Garden of the Moon." It's amusing entertainment with wagon loads of exploitation possibilities.

The whole thing is built around a feud between a swing band leader and the manager of a hotel supper-dance room. A girl press agent has a potent finger in the doings. Two main gag ideas and four of five supplementary ones are the basis of the thematic plot and action. "Don Vincente's" swing band, used to playing in beer gardens, chop suey salons and clip joints, gets a bid to a fancy hotel's swank night club. Before it can play a note, manager "Quinn" issues a two weeks discharge notice. Thereupon the fuse to the feud is lighted.

The "jitter-bugs" and "ickies" up in the gallery went wild on the noise swelling up from the floor down below. All thought that swinger John Payne and his swing band were all right and that the young actor who has been kicking around Hollywood for a couple of years was a promising screen personality. For Pat O'Brien, who is always in there swinging, no matter what kind of picture he's in or what sort of role he has, they had nothing but enthusiastic applause. Likewise, the crowd whooped it up for Margaret Lindsay, Johnnie Davis, Curt Bois, who was the Maharajah, and all the rest of the ensemble. They had a lot of approval for Granville Bates and Edward McWade, sharp-tongued, pinchpenny hotel owners.

The plot idea stems from a Saturday Evening Post story by H. Bedford Jones and Barton Browne for which Jerry Wald and Richard Macaulay wrote the comedy-packed screenplay. Swing music composed by Harry Warren, Al Dubin and Johnny Mercer, with orchestrations by Ray Neindorf and Frank Perkins, is swing and more swing. Busby Berkeley's direction keeps the dialogue, action and music swinging along continually.

Previewed in the Warner Hollywood theatre, Hollywood. The piece seemed to be beyond the comprehension of only a few hardshells to whom the appeal of swing apparently is weird, strange and freakish.—GUS MCCARTHY.

Distributed by Warner Bros. Lou Edelman associate producer. Directed by Busby Berkeley. Screen play by Jerry Wald and Richard Macaulay. Story by N. Bedford Jones and Barton Browne. Music and lyrics by Harry Warren, Al Dubin and Johnny Mercer. Robert Ross, assistant director. George Amy, film editor. Photographed by Tony Gaudio. P. C. A. Certificate No. 4237. Mother Carey's Chickens

(RKO Radio)

Family Episodes

Several years ago RKO-Radio made "Little Women," a picture which came close to being the essence of sympathy stimulating human interest. "Mother Carey's Chickens" is a worthy successor to that film. It is a simple story simply told, down-to-earth sentiment. It is well acted by a competent cast, each member of which fits naturally into the role. Based on a novel and play by Kate Douglas Wiggin, the screen play by Gertrude Purcell and S. K. Lauren balances dialogue and action, develops good characterizations and blends romance, comedy and a dash of melodrama in ways that accentuate their best entertainment values.

The story concerns events and incidents in the lives of a widow and her children. She rents a house in Rhode Island after her husband's death in the Spanish-American War. With the aid of a friendly school teacher, with whom both her maturing daughters fall in love, and a kindly though irascible general store keeper and real estate agent, she fixed up the ramshackle old Colonial mansion and plans to support the family by taking in boarders. A mercenary pair of Yankees see it, want it and make a deal with the absentee landlord to purchase it. His son comes to give the widow and her brood their eviction notice. But he falls in love with one of the daughters. Then all join forces to make the would-be purchasers regret their bargain. They do it by staging a faked demonstration that the house is haunted, and there is romance and happiness all around.

There is nothing spectacular about "Mother Carey's Chickens." The picture merely uses tested and proved entertainment elements. The general treatment is light, yet pointed to stir the emotions, but inasmuch as the comedy is emphasized, it is not a tear-jerker.

The Chaser

Metropolitan Comedy-Drama

No—nothing like that—it's about an ambulance-chaser. This ambulance-chaser is a lively young shyster, kind to his pals, especially the drunken doctor who fakes his evidence for him, and merciless only in his attitude toward the local traction company and its chief counsel, who once outwitted him in court. So that showmen may not be hesitant about enlisting the interest of lawyers, doctors and utility companies in behalf of a successful engagement, be it known that the picture makes it quite clear that these unworthies, here dealt with, are exceptional cases.

Dennis O'Keefe, a personable young man whom Hollywood regards as possessing much of what it takes, plays the unprincipled but likeable barrister forthrightly. Lewis Stone, just now becoming the screen's best loved actor as Judge Hardy in the Hardy Family series, gives to the performance of the drunken doctor in this film an equal measure of his mellowed talent. Ann Mirross is a goodlooking feminine lead, Henry O'Neill has a characteristic assignment, Jack Mulhall plays a secondary principal effectively, while Nat Pendleton and John Qualen get a lot out of two straight comedy parts.

The story, worked on by six writers duly listed in the fine type appended hereunto, shows how cleverly "Thomas Brandon," attorney, bilks the street car company with phoney law suits, until tripped up by "Dorothy Mason," a young woman employed by the utility to fascinate him, obtain evidence and then betray him. They fall in love, of course, and after that the complications come thick and fast, but always coherently. He finally goes straight.

Frank Davis produced and Edwin L. Marin directed, formally, efficiently, effectively.

Dark Sands

(Futter-Record Pictures)

Desert Adventure

"Dark Sands" presents exhibitors with a ready made exploitation possibility. It is different from most other product in that it was filmed against authentic backgrounds. The greater portions of the story is laid in the Soudan area of Africa and that is where a camera crew, the director and the actors went to "shoot" the story. What has been accomplished by that move becomes the outstanding element of the picture. The shots of the vast wastelands of the Sahara desert, the endless procession of the camel caravan in the trek across the Sahara in search of salt and the other location shots are all stirring.

The picture was presented in England under the title, "Jericho," and was originally reviewed from London in MOTION PICTURE HERALD, issue of September 4, 1937. Since then the picture has undergone revision and re-editing for American distribution. The picture was produced for Buckingham Films, an English company, by an American, Walter Futter, and directed by another American, Thornton Freeland.

The cast has Paul Robeson, American negro singer and former Rutgers University football star who now resides in Europe; Wallace Ford, whose drawing power has been enhanced by his performance in "Of Mice and Men," successful Broadway stage play of this season; Henry Wilcoxon, English player who has appeared in several Hollywood productions, and Princess Kouka, a real life Soudanase princess.

Robeson sings several songs including "My Way" and Deep Desert," both by Michael Carr and Jimmy Kennedy. Ford who handles the small amount of comedy, is killed in a battle betwen the natives and a bandit tribe.

The picture has a tendency to drag in spots through lack of more action sequences and the dialogue is for the most part uninspiring. The photography is excellent and as noted above reaches great heights in the desert sequences.

I'm from the City

(RKO Radio)

Comedy

"I'm from the City" is farce action comedy which calls for emphasis of comedy in the exploitation. For the most part, in its present shape, the picture is pretty ridiculous all the way. It probably will be less so after another visit to the cutting departments has removed some of the incidents that don't have any special entertainment significance or bearing on the story. At least the running time will be shortened and the action should proceed at a faster clip.

In his lucid moments, "Pete Pepper" is very scared of horses, but when hypnotized by "Ollie Fitch," who uses a fossilized acorn to do the trick, "Pete" becomes a sensational bareback rider in the circus. Out west a couple of rival ranchers, "Grandma Martindale" and "Bixby," are staging an annual cowboy horse race. "Grandma" makes "Ollie" a lucrative offer to have "Pete" ride her horse so that her colors may wave proudly again. As plans for the race proceed, complications set in, there's a bit of romantic conflict and "Pete" lands in the middle of a tug of war waged by the competing outfits. The plots to make the race a sure thing for "Bixby" go awry and "Ollie" loses his hypnotic acorn, but the the race goes on anyway, with the panic stricken "Pete," astride "Grandma's" steed. The race is a wild and woozy affair in which a pig and duck get mixed up, but "Pete" wins it and of course "Rosie" is his best reward.

A Desperate Adventure

(Republic)

Comedy

This lightly, politely told story opens in Paris, ships for New York and ends on arrival there. Principally pertained to by the dialogue and action is a painting which, in a sense, has come to life. That is to say, an artist who has painted a faintly clad full length portrait of his dream girl meets her living image, and the story evolves from that circumstance. The surprise at the end is that he doesn't marry her, but her sister.

Ramon Novarro plays the artist, a successful Parisian painter, and Marian Marsh the American heiress who looks like his subject. Margaret Tallichet is the sister he finally marries, and Andrew Tombes plays, humorously, the girls' father, a capitalistic slave to chamber-of-commerce and society-column opinion. Eric Blore is the artist's not always helpful but consistently comic manservant.

The story is by Hans Kraly and M. Coates Webster, the screen play by Barry Trivers. John H. Auer produced and directed. The film is becomingly mounted, the costuming of the ladies is fetching, the tone is evenly well bred and the pace is moderate. The photography of Jack Marta is easy on the eyes.

Give Me a Sailor

(Paramount)

Comedy with Songs

Exhibitors, meet Hollywood's new glamour girl—Martha Raye.

Paramount's "Give Me a Sailor" presents Miss Raye as a kitchen drudge who becomes the winner of a "legs beautiful" contest, mistakenly but deservedly.

Of such stuff and Paramount's decision to use a reverse play and subsequently exploit Miss Raye's other physical attributes is a showmanship campaign made.

The story has a Cinderella theme, not the sickly sweet kind, but a hilariously farcical type, albeit substantial in content. Laughs, of which there are many, are based on situation and dialogue. Cinderella gets her Prince Charming, but not the one for whom she originally set her cap.

Other exploitable possibilities in the picture are the up and coming Bob Hope; the beautiful Betty Grable, of whose shapeliness Terry De Lapp's publicity department has told the world; Jack Whiting, wellknown on Broadway and better known in England. Also, in the cast are Clarence Kolb, who has been quite busy since winning critical acclaims in Republic's "Portia on Trial," J. C. Nugent, little Bonnie Jean Churchill, and Nana Bryant.

Participation of the Navy, indicated by the title, is limited to the fact that the principal male characters are Navy men. Sufficient shots of the fleet in action are used to justify the title, and a campaign for communities in which service men reside.

The screenplay written by Doris Anderson and Frank Butler, based on a play by Anne Nichols, is 80 minutes of laughs. "Letty," upon whose shoulders fall the kitchen duties in a motherless home, pines for "Walter," who is in love with "Nancy," sister of "Letty." "Jim," brother of "Walter," is also in love with "Nancy," who is very beautiful. However, "Letty" wins a beautiful legs contest, when a cousin mistakenly photographs her legs instead of her specially baked cake and sends in the picture to the wrong contest. "Walter," attracted by her glamour, and fame, is about to marry her, when "Letty" realizes that it's "Jim" she loves.

This marks the initial screen credit of Paul Jones as associate producer. He rose from assistant director. Jeff Lazarus was executive producer.

Credit for carefully restraining the story from getting out of bounds—and there were opportunities—goes to Elliott Nugent, who directed.

Ralph Rainger and Leo Robin wrote three songs for the film—"What Goes on Here (In My Heart)," "The U. S. A. and You," and "A Little Kiss at Twilight," the first of which looms as the best popular bet.

Previewed at the Paramount theatre, Los Angeles, where the audience seemed tickled at the change in Martha Raye, whom they and radio fans have come to regard as a prime example of hoydenism. There was constant laughter throughout the picture, and generous applause at its finish.—VANCE KING.

Crime Ring

(RKO Radio)

Crystal Balls Exposed

The particular species of underworld racketeering activity placed under the white light of police investigation in this instance is a super colossal organization of confidence men who through the medium of fortune telling and allied psychic prognostications dupe the patrons of "black magic" parlors into parting with their gilt edged securities. The value of such an expose, besides the educational one of awakening the public to the operations of clairvoyant fakirs, will afford the average screen audience an hour and ten minutes of compact, if not altogether novel, melodramatic entertainment.

IN THE BRITISH STUDIOS

by AUBREY FLANAGAN
in London

Filming Royalty

Already held up by the vagaries of Scottish weather—notoriously several degrees more incalculable than British weather—Herbert Wilcox last weekend started filming scenes at Balmoral and Braemar for his Anna Neagle production, "Sixty Glorious Years."

Following the precedent he created by filming the Royal Castle at Windsor, Mr. Wilcox further obtained permission to shoot sequences at Balmoral, Scottish seat of Britain's royal family and background of many of the domestic incidents in Queen Victoria's lifetime.

After the filming at Balmoral, the Wilcox unit moved over to Braemar where the historic Highland Games were photographed, and highlights of the games, like tossing the caber and throwing the hammer, were performed by leading Scottish athletes, past and present. The background was formed by Highlanders from the surrounding estates, without makeup but dressed in their kilts and traditional tartans and with a pipe band.

To add further triumph, Mr. Wilcox moves back to London, where he again is to create screen history by filming in the hallowed regions of Buckingham Palace.

Collaborating with Miles Malleson on the script of "Sixty Glorious Years" is Sir Robert Vansittart, playwright and distinguished English diplomat, whose knowledge of the Victorian era is reputedly considerable.

Satisfied with the team work of Sir Robert Vansittart and Miles Malleson, Herbert Wilcox has placed them under contract for two further subjects.

With his "Sixty Glorious Years" invading the privacy of Britain's royal homes, Mr. Wilcox's "A Royal Divorce" unit has been centering upon production at Denham, where Jack Raymond is directing the film, and Ruth Chatterton and Pierre Blancher are playing the roles of Josephine and Napoleon.

A recent incident in production was the filming, on the most spectacular lines, of the Coronation of Napoleon Bonaparte and his wife of Josephine at Notre Dame as Emperor and Empress of France. The scene was copied in detail from a canvas by the French Artist David, with minor incidents in the painting picked out for individual treatment by the camera.

The film will be distributed by Paramount Pictures.

Dogs

In one scene of "Keep Smiling," the Gracie Fields production being directed for Twentieth Century Productions by Monty Banks, some 75 dogs including Bull-mastiffs, Pekes, Borzois, Dachshunds, Great Danes, Sheepdogs and mongrels appear. They are featured in a sequence in which a world famous pianist, played by Peter Coke, appeals for the return of a missing wired-haired terrier.

Gracie Fields' brother Tommy Fields has been added to the cast of "Keep Smiling."

Among the locations which are shortly to be filmed for the production are Bournemouth Pavilion and Clacton Pier, both noted resorts of British holiday-makers.

George Formby is an aviator in the new Basil Dean production, "It's in the Air," now nearing completion under the direction of Anthony Kimmins at the ATP studios. Songs in the approved Formby manner, with banjolele accompaniment will not be missing, however.

Zoltan

Work is underway at Denham on the Zoltan Korda production "Four Feathers," adapted by R. C. Sherriff from A. E. W. Mason's novel.

John Clements has the role of Harry Faversham, recipient of the white feathers, and Ralph Richardson plays the part of John Durrance, blinded in the Sudan War.

Few other members of the cast will be known to American audiences, but they, together with June Duprez, who has the feminine lead, are to be built up by Alex Korda as international players. Later this year he will take a unit to film exteriors in the Sudan.

The film is being shot in color.

"The Citadel"

Production on Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer British's "The Citadel" has now passed the halfway mark, and up to the moment of writing over forty days had been spent in filming, with 120 scenes shot and more than 50,000 feet of stock printed.

The Cronin novel is being shot in sequence by King Vidor, and action has passed from the Welsh hills to London's Bayswater, whither Robert Donat's Doctor has advanced towards his West End goal.

Fishing Village

What the cameraman, Philip Tannura, describes as the finest set upon which he ever has shot a scene, has been used recently at Pinewood for the Elizabeth Bergner film "Stolen Life." It represents a Brittany fishing village with a narrow cobblestone street leading down to the harbour, and fishermen's cottages, called hundreds of years old, standing on either side, and in the background, rising above the harbour walls, the masts of fishing boats rocking at their moorings.

With its forty-odd extras representing Brittany fisherfolk, the scene forms the background for one of the most turbulent and dramatic passages in the Bergner film and supplies an atmosphere which, Tannura says, adds dramatic point to the scenes that are shot there.

Directed by Paul Czinner from a script by Margaret Kennedy, the film is to be distributed throughout the world by Paramount.

Burmese Life

Bent upon obtaining research details to add importance to his production of "Burmese Silver" for London Films, Michael Powell, distinguished English director of "Edge of the World," has left by air for Rangoon. He is to photograph aspects of Burmese life to add an authentic flavour to the film, and will take photographs of the Palace of Mandalay, travel up the famous Irawadi river and explore the Chindwin. He will also get pictures for research and guidance of Burmese hair and dress styles.

Mr. Powell will be away several weeks, and on his return it will be decided whether Conrad Veidt and Sabu actually will go on location to Burma.

Start Canterbury Film

The latest production to go on the floor at the behest of RKO Radio is "Weddings are Wonderful," a Canterbury production, produced by George Smith and directed by Maclean Rogers at the Welwyn Studios, with Esmond Knight, June Clyde and Rene Ray sharing principal honours.

Itemized

Teamed again in "Many Thanks, Mr. Atkins," a Warner Bros. First National production, are Claude Hulbert and Reginald Purdell, who are being directed by Roy William Neill. Hulbert and Purdell scored recently in the Teddington production "Hail and Farewell."

Film rights of A. P. Herbert's best seller, "Holy Deadlock," have been purchased by Jerry Jackson for production at the Warner Bros. First National Studios, Teddington. A script has been approved by the British Board of Film Censors.

At Pinewood, into the can went the last shot on the Twentith Century production "Keep Smiling," which Monty Banks has been directing with Gracie Fields in the leading role. The final shooting was followed by a party.

DONALD DUCK TACTICS ADOPTED BY COUNCIL IN THEATRE FIGHT

London Municipal Body Accepts CEA Challenge for Immediate Court Battle on Legality of Price and Seating Regulations

by AUBREY FLANAGAN
in London

Britain's most enlightened and progressive municipality, the London County Council, would almost certainly disrelish a comparison which likened them to Donald Duck. None the less, the recent experience of London exhibitors in the crucial matter of seat and price regulation, must have shown an uncanny resemblance in the fact that when challenged they "wanna fight"—and to fight without further delay.

As readers of Motion Picture Herald already know, the Council have not waited long to counter the CEA threat that they would test the validity of the new seating regulations in the courts. At the next available opportunity, less than a week from the CEA's challenge, they have announced that with the direct and considered objective of bringing the legal battle nearer, and avoiding a wait till the management rules come into force on New Year's Day, 1939, they are going to apply the rules to every new licence issued before that date.

Immediate dramatic effect of this will be to bring the test case several months nearer, to place the onus on the very first picture house proprietor to be granted a license after July 19th, and, ipso facto to clear the air either to the gratification or embarrassment of the London exhibitors.

Early Test Seen Beneficial

In view of the almost inevitability that this infection will spread to licensing areas farther afield than the metropolis, and that exhibitors in various parts of the country will be faced with similar problems and predicaments, the speeding of the legal processes is not unmixed in its blessings, for it will enable exhibitors to know where they stand and to arm themselves for the forthcoming fight.

There is, however, a gradually spreading belief, a belief the stronger for the CEA's hush-hush policy in the matter, that the whole situation has been somewhat aggravated by misplaced tactics and errant campaigning. It is a view, however, against which there is considerable argument. That the CEA have played into the London County Council's hands by a direct challenge, is patent. That they have very little option, and that whatever they do they are likely to lose, is likewise believed by many.

Both Sides Sure of Rights

Of the logic of their case and of their own wide powers in theatre licensing, the London County Council are emphatically convinced. That the powers the Council hold are not so wide as to permit them to interfere with free trading the CEA are also fairly sure. The 1909 Act, upon which the whole of theatre licensing powers are based, which gives the Councils their rights to operate, and in the framing of which the exhibitors themselves helped, is essentially concerned with public safety and not with private trading, is the CEA contention.

As Thomas France, the spirited and combative chairman of the London and Home Counties Branch of the CEA put up at the recent bi-annual meeting:

"The Council for the first time intend to force regulations on their licensees which it is thought rightly or wrongly are not the function of a licensing authority. . . . The Cinematograph Act which the exhibitors helped frame is primarily for the safety of the public and they regret that such an able authority as the London County Council should attempt to use their powers under the Act to interfere with the business of the licensees."

Seen As Bid for Votes

Whatever be the legal ethics of the situation there are hardly two views about the social ethics. The London County Council may have —though it would seem to be an outside chance —a doubtful case in law. From the point of view of social ethics their case is almost impregnable for its foundations are the defense and protection of the public against the alleged depredations and exploitations of the supposedly rapacious and cunning exhibitor. Since the consumer in this case numbers some eight millions, and the provider of the commodity less than a thousand, the Council are probably justified in refusing to be perturbed in the matter. It is, in fact, a very astute move on the part of London's Councillors, and another potent bid for further proletarian votes.

Elected for a second three-year term of office in the face of a ruthless and strongly organized Tory campaign, the Labor Council who, even their political opponents admit, have done splendid social work for London, have once again a magnificent propaganda weapon in their hands, and can once again consolidate their position by a public fight, with all the attendant limelight of press publicity, for that harassed and persecuted animalcule, the Man in the Street, yclept John Citizen.

In the face of this, and in the face of the superficial thesis that the new management rules of the Council will prevent exhibitors from manipulating their seats so as to compel the potential sevenpennies to pay a shilling or keep the ninepennies waiting whilst there are in fact plenty of available seats inside, the CEA have, whether wisely or not, decided on no counter propaganda. Deliberately and with full intent they have decided to make no public or press reply to the Council, in no event to state their own case against the onslaught, preferring to wait until January when the waging of a test case would attract all the publicity necessary.

It is perfectly obvious that the dice are heavily loaded against them, and the Council's case inevitably commands and will retain public sympathy. With this in view, an exhibitor policy of golden silence has followed. This may prevent public discussion, but it is increasingly clear that it also persuades a growing body of the public that the cinemas in fact have no case.

One of the greatest ironies of the whole situation is that it has brought about and imposed on the entire exhibitor community in London by an infinitesimal minority of offenders. That certain picture houses have in the past manipulated their available seats by the judicious use of the gangway ropes, in the conviction that those compelled to wait in the outside queues would sooner pay a little more (to find that they are occupying precisely the same seats as others who had paid less) is perfectly true. That shuffling and juggling with blocks of seats in some cases follows the movements of the box office barometer is equally patent. But it is emphatically true that these are exceptional cases confined for the most part to London's West End, with its floating clientele. The vast majority of exhibitors operate their seats on an inflexible and immovable basis, for no other process is possible with a regular patronage.

Reputable Operators Resent Move

They are thus incensed at having to pay to the tune of restrictions on their trading, for the offenses of others. They are justifiably determined not to let this imposition pass without a protest on the grounds of essential trade principle. They are logical in their argument that they have as much right as the butcher and the fruiterer to decide, according to the laws of supply and demand, what shall be their commodity price from day to day or hour to hour. They are no less resolute in their fight for their conviction that though it is London today, it will be the whole country tomorrow, and that 'ere long cinemas up and down the country will be compelled to show seat plans unchangeable during the day, and lighted indicators of seats and price in the auditorium itself.

It is not likely to be long or even a bitter battle, but it will be a crucial one. And the way it is likely to go is possibly indicated in that ancient English proverb and guiding star of a merchant nation: "The customer is always right."

GB Board Gets Support

An almost complete absence of dissent marked the annual meeting last Friday of the shareholders of Gaumont British Pictures Corporation in spite of criticism from Charles Nordon, attorney who represented a group of shareholders, and an informal suggestion that the meeting should accept but not approve the financial statement offered. The statement was approved, however. John Maxwell who resigned recently as a member of the GB board was not present.

Isidore Ostrer, chairman of the board, refused to comment on the inquiry into the company's affairs by the Board of Trade or on the resignation of Mr. Maxwell. Mr. Ostrer said he thought GB, with Baird, held the kev to the future of theatre television but that collaboration with the British Broadcasting Corporation was essential.

CAMERAMEN INVADE COMMONS PRECINCTS

A new chapter in film history in England was written last Friday when for the first time cinema cameras were allowed within the sacred precincts of the House of Commons. Permission was granted Bruce Woolfe, of the instructional division of Gaumont British to film with three cameras the traditional ceremonial of the opening, the speakers and the procession to the House.

The sequence will be part of the first in a series of new films aimed at the propagation and popularization of the principles of democracy.

SHOWMEN'S REVIEWS OF NEW FILMS

It is to be regretted that the story was not given a fresher turn.

For the promotion campaign there are the fortune telling, crystal gazing, and assorted tricks of the trade.

Allan Lane and Frances Mercer, who it will be recalled stepped into ring prominence by trading socks with Ginger Rogers in "Vivacious Lady," are the couple most active in the crime expose. In support are Clara Blandick, Inez Courtney, Bradley Page, Ben Welden, Walter Miller and Frank M. Thomas. Director Leslie Goodwins has given some streamlined action pacing to the joint scripting of J. Robert Bren and Gladys Atwater.

Lane as "Joe Ryan," a typical film edition of a crusading reporter, employs Miss Mercer in the role of "Judy Allen" to impersonate a seer by the name of "Haidee" in order to run to earth or behind prison bars a gang of racketeers who are using the fortune telling game to enable them to dupe the gullible. When the pseudo mystic is contacted by the mob for the payment of protection money, a clue to the identity of the "big boss" is obtained. Further evidence is obtained against the crooks when the newspaper man, pretending to be working on the advice of the mystic on how to invest his savings, visits a "bucket shop" and there gathers more clues. Learning of the police investigation, the thugs kidnap "Judy" but are prevented from doing the little lady any harm by the trigger brained deduction of "Ryan," who without the aid of mirror or crystal ball traces the gang to their hideout.

Bulldog Drummond in Africa

(Paramount)

Melodrama

In "Bulldog Drummond in Africa," Paramount harks back to the era of motion pictures when the villain wore a beard and committed many dastardly crimes against the hero and heroine, which the fair haired boy avenged after escaping a horrible fate such as being cut up by a buzz saw, ground to death by mill stones or eaten by lions, the while the scoundrel leered and stroked his hirsute adornment.

The picture, which again presents John Howard as H. C. (Sapper) McNeill's chief character, is unvarnished melodrama, with the villain being tossed to his own lion, a destiny which he had reserved for his victims. Howard is supported by Heather Angel, H. B. Warner, J. Carrol Naish, Reginald Denny, E. E. Clive, Anthony Quinn, Michael Brooke, Mathew Boulton and Neil Fitzgerald. Garnett Weston wrote the screenplay, based on the McNeill novel "Challenge." Louis King directed and Edward T. Lowe was associate producer.

"Lane," international spy, kidnaps "Nielson," taking him to an African hideout. "Phyllis Clavering" discovers the plot on the eve of her wedding to "Drummond," and he, she, "Algy" and butler "Tenny," take off in a plane for Africa. The rescue is effected, "Lane" being tossed to his own lion in a fight with "Drummond."

Porky and Daffy

(Vitaphone)

A "Looney" Looney Tune

A collection of animated drawings and gag situations as dizzy as a "punch drunk" pugilist is staged in the fisticuff exhibition between Porky's ringside protege, Daffy Duck, and a cartoon champion. Together with the opening sequence depicting the preparations for the bout, the slug fest provides one reel of continuous fun. Fight fans, who consider present day flesh and blood champion contests far from funny, will raise the rafters of any theatre with loud howls of gleeful reaction in seeing the battling birds go to work on the cocky champ. Running time, seven minutes.

Fistic Fun

Prize Fighting

In this sports reel the art of prizefighting is pictured from the bare knuckle days to the present style of boxing. The reel has been edited with an eye to comedy as well as the different styles of boxing. A little bit of most all the styles have been included. There are matches with female pugilists, the popular French idea of fighting with the feet as well as the hands and known as La Savate, battling infants, a rousing laugh-provoking blindfolded free-for-all battle among sailors, a navy match and scenes from the Golden Gloves contest. Narrative by Jack Kofoed and described by Ford Bond. Running time, 9½ minutes.

Night Intruder

(Vitaphone)

Dramatic Stuff

When a quartet of the ladies sit down for a quiet and sociable table of bridge, they never suspect that anything more dramatically disturbing than a trumped ace would ruffle the atmosphere. But, when a neighbor spies a night prowler sneaking into an upstairs bedroom window and informs the hostess and the police, the lady of the house must play a "show must go on" part. Tension is increased by the knowledge shared jointly by the woman and the audience that the thief is ransacking a room in which the elderly mother of the hostess is tossing in uneasy sleep. The minions of the law arrive to kill the burglar, whereupon the girls become hysterical and the old lady is aroused from her slumbers to ask if it is morning. This newest Gibbons' thriller from the "True Adventure" group resumes the tension tight style of narrative.—Running time, 14 minutes.

Screen Snapshots — Series 17, No. 11

(Columbia)

Eighteenth Anniversary

This number of the Screen Snapshots marks the eighteenth anniversary of the series. To celebrate the occasion the Screen Snapshots Reporter has delved into the files for shots of the screen celebrities and has contrasted them with present day shots of the same personalities. They include Mary Pickford, Charles Chaplin, Douglas Fairbanks, Norma Shearer, Jack Holt and a host of others. There is also a section devoted to children, kid stars, who have grown up. They include Jackie Coogan, Jackie Cooper, Mickey Rooney and Frankie Darro. All in all more than two score screen celebrities who have been in the business of acting in motion pictures a long time appear on the screen. Running time, 11 minutes.

Music with a Smile

(Vitaphone)

Melody Master

What the leader man, "Happy" Felton, lacks in musical skill to make this latest number of the Melody Masters is more than compensated by his jolly style of "m. c."ing. The customary manner of staging the band routine is followed by an introductory popular tune followed by the usual trio of women harmonizers, in this case identified as "The Three Reasons," and ballroom dancing by Bob Robinson and Virginia Martin. The remaining portion of the program is devoted to the vocalizations of Mr. Felton, all done in a song plugging style faintly familiar of the Ted Lewis technique, and several musical turns by "Happy's" lads.—Running time, 10 minutes.

Paramount Theatre Men Hold New York Meeting

The first of a series of business conferences between Paramount theatre operating associates and home office officials was held in New York this week. The conferences were arranged in place of the annual convention of the Paramount theatre partners such as was held in Florida last year. A second meeting will be held in Chicago, although no date has been set.

Those attending the New York meeting were Y. Frank Freeman, vice-president and theatre head of Paramount; H. F. Kincey, North Carolina; M. A. Lightman, Memphis; William Jenkins, Atlanta; Martin Mullin and Samuel Pinanski, Boston; J. J. Fitzgibbons, Toronto; R. J. O'Donnell, Dallas; Ralph Branton, Des Moines; John Balaban, Chicago, and Hunter Perry, Virginia.

IN COURTS

End Depositions Of Loew Officers

Depositions in the Loew minority stockholders' suits challenging salaries and bonuses paid to company executives were completed on the west coast this week. Earl K. Ellis, attorney for the plaintiffs, examined Loew's studio executives.

Leopold Friedman, Loew's general attorney, and J. Alvin Van Bergh of Proskauer, Rose and Paskus, legal firm handling the suits for Loew's, now in Hollywood, are expected to return to New York shortly.

Deny Restraint Plea

Federal Judge Vincent L. Leibell has denied an application of William L. Gross as assignee of Theatre Magazine Company to restrain the further exhibition of the picture, "George White's 1935 Scandals" by Twentieth Century-Fox for it is charged the plagiarism of the August, 1929, cover of Theatre Magazine in the picture. Judge Leibell set the suit down on the calendar for trial December 5, 1938. A cross application of Twentieth Century-Fox for a dismissal of the complaint was granted by Judge Leibell, with leave to Mr. Gross to amend his complaint within 20 days.

Asks Suit Details

Twentieth Century-Fox this week in United States district court in New York filed a demand for a bill of particulars of the complaints of the Superior Fire Insurance Company of Pittsburgh and nine persons who claim injuries in a fire occurring in the company's warehouse at Little Ferry, N. J., in 1937.

Harold Lloyd Sued

Harold Lloyd Corporation and Harold Lloyd have been named defendants in a $75,000 damage suit filed in the United States district court in New York by William Jordan Raff and Lowell Brentano. The suit is based, it is charged, on the breach of a written contract by the defendants which purportedly provided for the production of a picture.

Warner Action Transferred

On the petition of Warner Brothers, the suit of Booth Tarkington to restrain the exhibition of the Warner film, "Penrod and His Twin Brother" and for an accounting and damages, has been transferred to the United States district court in New York from the New York supreme court. The transfer was made on the ground of diversity of citizenship.

Sloane Quits Disney Post

Hal Sloane, Walt Disney's general representative and publicity director in the east for more than four years, has resigned. He was in general charge of the Disney office until the appointment of Hal Horne several months ago.

Arthur Cole of Paramount has been renamed head of the publicity committee of the Allied Charities Campaign for the film industry during 1938-39.

FROM READERS

DOESN'T WANT CHICAGO POST, SAYS STEFFES

To the Editor of the Herald:

I just returned to the city this morning and find on page nine, your issue of Motion Picture Herald of July 16, 1938, an article headed: "Steffes and Chicago Allied."

In the second paragraph you state: "Steffes has had ambitions to enter Chicago exhibition organization activity since 1928."

For your information, and I desire a complete retraction of that assumptive statement, I have never had an ambition to have anything to do with the Allied organization of Chicago or any other exhibitor organization in that town.

In 1928 I was requested by the Board of Directors and officers of Allied of Chicago to meet with them and give them what advice I could on an issue that was vital to them. I, being a good soldier, acquiesced and attended that conference.

In 1929, the Board of Directors of that same organization and all of its officers in a joint resolution requested that I come to Chicago to again confer with them on an issue that was vital to them. I again attended the conference and returned to Minneapolis.

Shortly thereafter the Board of Directors and officers of Chicago Allied wired Commissioner Myers, who was national president of Allied, asking him if he would not use his influence in getting me to come to Chicago for a few weeks. At Myers' request and at the urgent request of the Board of Directors, I left for Chicago for what I supposed was to be for a few days but remained there several months and did not leave Chicago until the satisfactory termination of the strike was arrived at and saved the theatre owners of the city of Chicago hundreds of thousands of dollars.

If I was visited by persons reputedly representing Al Capone, it must have been while I was asleep because I remember no such callers.

The only feeling I have towards the Chicago Allied Unit is that it continues to function as efficiently in the future as it has in the past and will continue to grow until it has every independent exhibitor in its territory as a paid-up member.

Under no consideration would I, for one moment, think of having any other connections with Chicago Allied than those which I enjoyed under the late Mr. Saperstein's reign as I am not looking for any position with Allied.—W. Al. Steffes, President, Allied Theatre Owners of the Northwest, Inc., Minneapolis, Minnesota.

"Antoinette" Price Scale Set

The prices for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's two-a-day showing of "Marie Antoinette" at the Astor theatre, New York, will be $2.20 top, nights, with matinees at $1.10 top. Three shows will be given Saturday and Sunday. Because of the crowds that viewed the "Marie Antoinette" museum at the Astor the opening day it is estimated that 200,000 will have viewed the collection by the opening of the picture, August 16th. The film is being roadshown at the Carthay Circle in Hollywood.

OBITUARIES

Sedley-Brown Dead; Produced Air Shows

George Crosman Sedley-Brown, radio and theatrical figure known professionally as Sedley-Brown, was found dead in the living room of his New York home Monday. An autopsy was ordered.

Mr. Sedley-Brown was 50 years old and a native of Youngstown, Ohio. He made his theatrical debut at the age of seven as Cedric in "Little Lord Fauntleroy." Later he attended Princeton, but left college without graduating to return to the stage. His father was an actor and dramatic director.

About 1929 he became associated with Mrs. Allie Lowe Miles in writing and producing radio programs and in 1931 they formed Brown-Miles, Inc., radio production firm, now at 30 Rockefeller Plaza, New York. Mr. Sedley-Brown was president and Mrs. Miles is secretary-treasurer.

He brought the late Will Rogers and Charlie Chaplin into early commercial programs, according to Mrs. Miles.

John C. Warner Dies

John C. Warner, 41, vice-president of Radio Corporation of America, was found dead in his wrecked auto, July 21st, which had overturned after climbing a 10 foot embankment near West Orange, N. J.

Lester Potter

Lieutenant Lester Potter, 62, Detroit police censor for 27 years until his retirement over a year ago, died suddenly last week from a heart attack. He is survived by his widow and seven children.

Harvey Clark

Harvey Clark, character actor, died in Hollywood last week. He was a stage director with the Craig Players in Boston several years ago and had appeared in numerous pictures.

Jack M. Frank

Jack M. Frank, 35, owner of the Coed theatre, Chicago, died there last week from a heart attack. Mr. Frank also controlled the Princess in the loop.

Owen Wister

Owen Wister, 78, famed as author of "The Virginian," which was made into a motion picture, and other novels, died July 21st after a short illness in North Kingstown, R. I.

Ernest J. Martin

Ernest J. Martin, scenic artist in the film industry, died July 26th at New Rochelle, N. Y. Mr. Martin was 69 and a native of Chelsea, Mass. He migrated to New Rochelle about 25 years ago to design scenery for the Tannhouser Motion Picture Company. Later he operated his own company, designing scenery for theatres.

Homer Blackwell's Independent Film Distributors has signed to distribute "Son of the Sheik," Artcinema Associates' reissue of the Rudolph Valentino picture, in Western Missouri and Kansas.

ASIDES and INTERLUDES

By JAMES P. CUNNINGHAM

From the office of Paramount Pictures in New York comes the following announcement:

"Blood donors are being sought today among Paramount studio property men to obtain nourishment for Sam and Sadie. Sam and Sadie are 'human' fleas sent to Hollywood from Hubert's Museum Flea Circus in New York City for a career in the movies.

"Following instructions accompanying the fleas when they arrived in Hollywood by airplane saying that Sam and Sadie live by drawing nourishment from the arm of their trainers, Russ Pierce of the Paramount studio property department began calling for volunteers.

"A bonus of $100 was posted for any property man who would agree to serve as a flea commissary during the term of the fleas' engagement in Hollywood.

"Meanwhile Sam and Sadie are installed on the set of 'Zaza' in a tiny canvass dressing room which is a replica of the dressing room which Claudette Colbert occupies on the set."

To which United Press added: "One of the fleas will crawl into Claudette Colbert's blouse and be scratched."

A special Paramount home office messenger just arrived with the following:

"Without so much as a rumor in the Broadway columns preceding the blessed event, Sadie, of Broadway and Hollywood, today became a mother. There are six that we know about," reported Paramount, "but an awful lot of people around here are scratching."

Tombstone's citizenry want the town to become a permanent movie "prop" to be used in making western pictures.

NEW RED FILM DICTATOR BRINGS EISENSTEIN BACK

Dukelsky Leaves Political Police of Russia to Succeed Shumiatsky, "Missing in Purge"

Semyon S. Dukelsky, described as "a tough-minded young man," has started functioning as the new dictator of the state-owned and state-operated motion picture industry in Red Russia. He arrived in his new post direct from the NKVD, the political police, to succeed Boris Shumiatsky, who has been "missing" as a result of the "Great Purge" of last winter, apparently for political reasons, charged at the time with "sabotage" of the Soviet industry. Subsequent reports, never verified, had Shumiatsky shot, hanged, exiled and whatnot.

With Dukelsky's appointment comes the return of Sergei Eisenstein, acclaimed one of the greatest of Soviet directors, who had been the target of Shumiatsky. It would seem that his return has approval where approval matters in the Soviet Union, in view of his selection by Dukelsky of the political police.

Discovery last January of "a catastrophic lump in the film industry, attributed to wrecking and mal-administration," led to the removal of Boris Shumiatsky under "violent denunciation," as part of Dictator Josef Stalin's "purge," by assassination and jailing of enemies of the state.

Purging of the Red's film structure was started immediately, and it was said at the time that Dukelsky would head the new Soviet Cinemas Committee, formed "by a decision of the Council of Peoples Commissars of the U.S.S.R."

"This committee will manage the production of (Red) films, the opening of new motion picture theatres and the distribution of films throughout the Soviet Union," it was said.

Headed Mission in 1935

Boris Shumiatsky headed a Red Russian screen "mission" to the United States in June of 1935, ostensibly to study the American industry because of its "superior technological attainment, its facility with the tools."

The now defunct New York Motion Picture Club brought Mr. Shumiatsky and his party to one of its weekly "forums" and luncheons in the Bond Building, on Broadway, where they were interviewed through Colonel Boris Morros, then managing director of Paramount's theatre in Times Square, as interpreter, at a meeting presided over by Louis Nizer, New York film lawyer.

Terry Ramsaye, on the occasion, wrote in MOTION PICTURE HERALD:

"If one may deduce, and one may deduce amply, the representations of the representatives of the Soviet industry indicate nothing beyond a continuance of the rigidly state controlled motion picture program of the years since the Red Revolution. There is not even remote prospect that the Russian cinema will go any farther into the amusement than is absolutely necessary to keep the populace looking at the propaganda laden screen. If the words of the Soviet's spokesman (Mr. Shumiatsky) before the Motion Picture Club are to be taken for what they said, the State is still and ever will be the Screen, over there, for the State's purpose."

Mr. Ramsaye further observed, "The occasion leaves Russia's motion picture relations with the American industry in a state somewhat kindred to the diplomatic status between the nations, a recognition without recognition, a lot of conversation and no business. Meanwhile bouquets and polite exchanges of kind words with thorns under the blossoms were abundant.

"The cautiously rehearsed expressions of the Russians aimed at substitution of the word 'education' for propaganda, and an inference that henceforward art should count for more than in the heated direct-action days, but the only modification in the Red screen tune are in the suavity of words used, not in the policies themselves."

Accompanying Mr. Shumiatsky to America from Moscow at the time were Friederich Ermler, president of the Association of Directors and Actors of the U.S.S.R.; Vladimir Nilsen, president of the Faculty of Cinema Technique of the Motion Picture Institute of Moscow, and G. Melamed, a Soviet consulate officer.

No Pictures in Seven Years

First insight into the functionings of the "new deal" in Red Russia's industry came last week from Joseph Barnes, correspondent in Moscow for the New York Herald-Tribune.

"After seven years in which they have not produced a single picture for exhibition in their own country, Sergei Eisenstein and his cameraman, Eduard Tisse, are again at work," reports Mr. Barnes, explaining that in a Moscow studio and at Kolomna, south of Moscow, they are filming a historical picture about the life of Alexander Nevsky, legendary Russian hero of the thirteenth century.

"That these specialists in revolution, who built their fame with pictures of the mutinous Black Sea fleet in 1905, of Mexico, and of tractors tearing down village churches, should now turn to the 13th century for material is in itself a comment on the state of the cinema in Russia," observes Mr. Barnes. "It is the 21st year of the revolution, but the second year of the Great Purge. Artists cannot be blamed for avoiding political subjects when even Communist politicians are baffled by them.

"But the simple fact that they are at work is also a comment on the Soviet scene. A year ago Eisenstein was being roundly denounced as a 'formalist.' His last picture was ostentatiously scrapped. Boris Shumiatsky, then 'dictator' of the Soviet cinema, covered himself with laurels for his political vigilance in having detected the heresies in Eisenstein's scenario anl in his cinema technique.

Wilted Laurels

"Shumiatsky's laurels wilted more quickly than Eisenstein's," according to Mr. Barnes, who adds, "He has joined the Soviet Union's 'missing persons' and the new 'dictator' of the Soviet screen is a tough-minded young man named Semyon Dukelsky. The fact that he came to picture industry fresh from the NKVD, or political police, is guaranty that Eisenstein's return to active work has been approved where approval matters in the Soviet Union.

"The collaboration which has been given to Eisenstein for his new picture suggests that the approval amounts to a blessing. Of the scenario, he is joint author with Pyotr Pavlenko, probably the most popular young author now writing in Russian. In directing, he is assisted by D. Vassiliev, with E. S. Telisheva, a director of the Moscow Art Theatre, added to the lineup for special work with the cast."

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD

I have just seen our production of "Four Daughters" by Fannie Hurst and I want to go on record that this is one of the finest motion pictures of the last 10 years. It is a very human story, beautifully treated by the same crew which produced "Robin Hood." Although most of the cast have never appeared on the screen before, I believe we make three great stars through this picture in John Garfield, from the Broadway stage; Jeffrey Lynn, of the road company of "Brother Rat," and Priscilla Lane. This picture definitely answers the demand for new faces on the screen and we are taking a big chance putting new faces in such an epic production at great cost. I have never wired this way before but I am willing to stake my personal judgment on the fact this picture is destined for Academy award honors.—S. CHARLIE EINFELD, Director of Advertising and Publicity, Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., Hollywood.

Submitting Condor Plan To Court August 10th

A plan of reorganization of Condor Pictures, which is in 77B, is scheduled to be submitted to the federal court in Los Angeles about August 10th, according to Lou Rantz, a former official of the company.

The plan will be proposed by Albert H. Lieberman of Philadelphia, representing the largest group of stockholders. It will provide capital of $200,000 to satisfy creditors and for production of a series of eight action films for Grand National release, Mr. Rantz said. Mr. Lieberman formerly was treasurer of Condor.

Mr. Rantz left New York Tuesday for Hollywood to start production of "Topsy." The cast will feature Eileen Porter and Clarence Muse. A second film scheduled by Mr. Rantz, in collaboration with Ted Richmond, producer, is "Show Them No Mercy," described as an expose of penal institutions based on a series of newspaper stories.

Legion Approves Nine of Ten Films for General Patronage

Of 10 pictures reviewed and classified by the National Legion of Decency in its listing for the current week nine were approved for general patronage and one was listed as unobjectionable for adults. The films and their classification follow.

Class A-1, Unobjectionable for General Patronge: "Army Girl," "Booloo," "City Streets," "I'll Give a Million," "Die Korallenprinzessin" (German), "Letzte Liebe" (German), "Mother Carey's Chickens," "Por Mis Pistolas" (Spanish), "The Texans." Class A-2, Unobjectionable for Adults: "El Anonimo."

WHAT THE PICTURE DID FOR ME

Columbia

FIGHT TO THE FINISH, A: Don Terry, Rosalind Keith—This picture did good but I must give the companion picture most of the credit. Running time, 59 minutes. Played June 23-25.—Walter Currell, Gem Theatre, Logan, Utah. General patronage.

GIRLS CAN PLAY: Charles Quigley, Jacqueline Wells—Plenty of pretty girls, but that's all. Running time, 60 minutes. Played July 7-8.—Walter Currell, Gem Theatre, Logan, Utah. General patronage.

HIGHWAY PATROL: Jacqueline Wells, Robert Paige—A pretty good programer; story of a state trooper taking charge of an oil refinery plant to track down a gang plotting to destroy the plant as a result of gasoline price war. Good for action lovers. Running time, 57 minutes. Played July 3.—Bob Elliano, Palace Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

HOLIDAY: Katharine Hepburn, Cary Grant—An unusually fine picture that drew more than ordinary business. Many patrons were free with their praise for the picture. The direction, photography and sound were exceptionally good. With more product like this an exhibitor might renew his interest in life and business. Running time, 95 minutes. Played July 3-5.—Wm. Powell, Lonet Theatre, Wellington, Ohio. Small town and rural patronage.

LITTLE MISS ROUGHNECK: Edith Fellows, Leo Carrillo—Nice business on this one. Suitable for a double bill.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada.

PENITENTIARY: Walter Connolly, Jean Parker, John Howard—A good photoplay. Minor drawing power, however. Many recalled the original, "The Criminal Code," and it hardly seemed they changed a line of that script. Played June 24-25.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

First National

SHE LOVED A FIREMAN: Dick Foran, Ann Sheridan—Just another picture with enough action in it for the children to enjoy. Running time, 57 minutes. —A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

SLIGHT CASE OF MURDER, A: Edward G. Robinson, Jane Bryan—An Edward G. Robinson picture that is different and it will be sure to please. Running time, 85 minutes. Played July 3, 4, 5.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash. General patronage.

WOMEN ARE LIKE THAT: Kay Francis, Pat O'Brien—Poor fare to offer any audience. The stars must have blushed when they saw themselves in this "much-ado-about-nothing." Played June 15.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

WOMEN ARE LIKE THAT: Kay Francis, Pat O'Brien—A good picture, although we got a bad print, that did nothing at the box office. Pat usually brings them in, but evidently the public couldn't see this team. Running time, 78 minutes. Played July 13-14. —M. L. DuBose, Majestic Theatre, Cotulla, Tex. General patronage.

Grand National

SONG OF THE GRINGO: Tex Ritter—Tex is okay here for weekends, but not in class of Autry or Jones for business.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

FAST COMPANY: Melvyn Douglas, Florence Rice —Picture only fair. It's okay on a double bill. Douglas isn't enough box office by himself. Team him with Irene Dunne or any big name and he will come out okay. Running time, 74 minutes. Played July 15-16.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

LORD JEFF: Freddie Bartholomew, Mickey Rooney —Just ordinary. No extended runs. Very little entertaining value. Running time, 85 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

MOTION PICTURE HERALD
Rockefeller Center, New York

MANPROOF: Myrna Loy, Franchot Tone—Very good and everyone pleased. Running time, 71 minutes.—Ouida Stephano, Grove Theatre, Groveton, Tex. Small town patronage.

PORT OF SEVEN SEAS: Wallace Beery, Frank Morgan, Maureen O'Sullivan—Fairly good, but not what it was cracked up to be. We did a fair amount of business on it. This isn't a real "name" picture, but it's okay for a little above average picture. I publish my own weekly paper, "The Schroon Lake Observer." Write me, enclosing stamp for free copy. You may get some ideas from it. Running time, 81 minutes. Played July 10-11.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

SWISS MISS: Laurel and Hardy, Della Lind—They laughed and laughed, and thought they never would stop, but I think it's very silly. About 30 minutes would have been enough. Young people really enjoyed it. Running time, 96 minutes. Played July 3-4. —Ouida Stephano, Grove Theatre, Groveton, Texas. Small town patronage.

SWISS MISS: Laurel and Hardy, Della Lind—Entertaining and where they are liked this picture, supported by a good western, will make you some money. I find the people are just dying for someone or something to make them laugh. Running time, 72 minutes. —W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

TEST PILOT: Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Myrna Loy—Fine entertainment. Played June 12-13.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

THREE COMRADES: Robert Taylor, Margaret Sullavan, Franchot Tone, Robert Young—One of the finest pictures ever made. The finest performance Robert Taylor has ever turned, and as for Margaret Sullavan, where has she been all this time. Personally, I think this is the best picture in years. Every exhibitor should play it, for it's a picture everyone will be glad they saw. Running time, 98 minutes. Played July 14-15.—Ouida Stephano, Grove Theatre, Groveton, Texas. Small town patronage.

THREE COMRADES: Robert Taylor, Margaret Sullavan, Franchot Tone, Robert Young—A picture that puts Franchot Tone in the niche he belongs. This man who we have predicted would do big things has finally come into his own. He so far outshadows the balance of the cast, with the exception of the small part Young has, that the gropings and gestures of Taylor are pathetic. I feel that Taylor was afraid to act and his posing is getting to be a joke. An excellent picture, very sordid, that should spell great things at the boxoffice. Hats off to Tone. Running time, 98 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

Monogram

CODE OF THE RANGERS: Tim McCoy—A fair western; will be enjoyed by the kiddies. Running time, 56 minutes. Played July 3.—Bob Elliano, Palace Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

ROSE OF THE RIO GRANDE: Movita, John Carroll—This company Monogram is really delivering good pictures and this one is no exception. Movita and Carroll do a good job of acting. Both should go a long way. Give us poor exhibitors more pictures with them and so will we. It certainly is a pleasure to run a picture like this one. Played June 12, 1938—Ritz Theatre, Vivian, La.

SHADOWS OF THE ORIENT: Regis Toomey, Esther Ralston—This might be good entertainment, but you can't prove it by me nor my box office report. Running time, 69 minutes. Played June 19-22.—Walter Currell, Gem Theatre, Logan, Utah. General patronage.

Paramount

BIG BROADCAST OF 1938: W. C. Fields, Martha Raye—This was a flop for us. It looked as though they started out without a story and made it up as they went along, sifting in a little singing and dancing every ten minutes without much of a reason at any time. Not very well received by those who did see it, but this type of picture doesn't go over for us and hasn't for the past year. Played July 10-11-12.—Bill Simon, Rialto Theatre, Saguache, Col. Small town patronage.

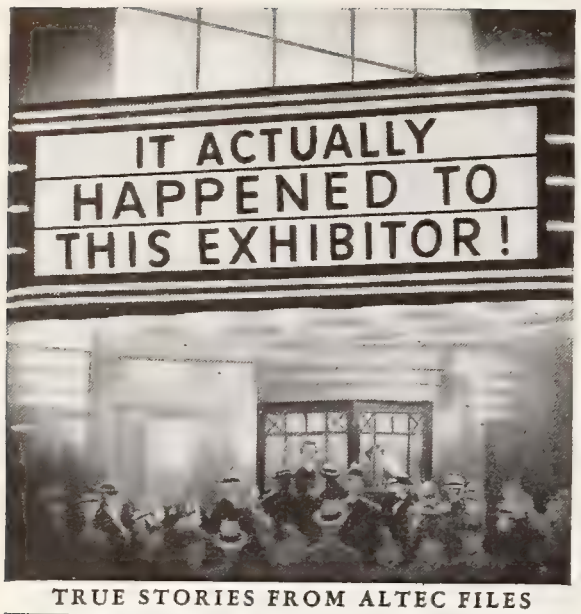
BLUEBEARD'S EIGHTH WIFE: Claudette Colbert, Gary Cooper—We've played a lot of comedies this summer; some very silly, some impossible. But for real entertainment, this one takes the cake. Ernest Lubitsch, the director, deserves a lot of praise for perfect timing of music and wisecracks. Colbert's performance is perfect. Running time, 87 minutes. Played July 10-11.—M. L. DuBose, Majestic Theatre, Cotulla, Tex. General patronage.

COLLEGE SWING: Burns & Allen, Martha Raye —Funny. Gracie Allen in top form. Rather screwy plot. However, fair box office. Played June 29-30.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

DANGEROUS TO KNOW: Anna May Wong, Akim Tamiroff, Gail Patrick, Lloyd Nolan—If this picture had a title or if we had run it a week, we'd have done some business on it. Used in on Bargain Night and they liked it. Tamiroff and Nolan are very popular here. Running time, 70 minutes. Played July 12.—M. L. DuBose, Majestic Theatre, Cotulla, Tex. General patronage.

DANGEROUS TO KNOW: Akim Tamiroff, Anna May Wong—Very good melodrama with the finest cast of supporting players we have had in a picture in a long time. The picture, however, was one of those that Paramount has been guilty of all this season. Having nothing better to put into a higher bracket, they have been putting program pictures up in higher allocations. For when all is said and done, this is only a program picture good for double billing. Running time, 70 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

DOCTOR RHYTHM: Bing Crosby, Mary Carlisle, Beatrice Lillie—Not too bad and not too good. Your musicals seem to be getting stale and tiresome, although this is so far better than some that you have put out that I won't complain on that score. Use your own judgment on this one, Mr. Exhibitor. Running time, 80 minutes. Played July 14.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.



DOCTOR RHYTHM: Bing Crosby, Beatrice Lillie, Mary Carlisle—A good Crosby picture that did only moderate business. No good reason for title switch as we see it. Played June 26-27.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

PARTNERS OF THE PLAINS: William Boyd—Here we had been thinking it was Hopalong Cassidy the kids had been coming to see, but if you had heard what they had to say about them leaving out old "Windy." Don't do it again, Paramount. We don't want to get mobbed. The sameness of these Westerns gets monotonous; but they still come in. Played July 9.—M. L. DuBose, Majestic Theatre, Cotulla, Tex. General patronage.

THRILL OF A LIFETIME: Eleanore Whitney, Johnny Downs—Was afraid of this one when we booked

TRUE STORIES FROM ALTEC FILES

FRED SCHWEPPE,
Owner-manager of the Capitol Theatre, Elmira, New York

Effects Repairs While Emergency Kit Carries Show

ELMIRA, N. Y.—"In the middle of a matinee, recently, my sound failed," said Fred Schweppe, owner-manager of the Capitol Theatre here. "With everything on, the sound was barely audible.

"The regular Altec man here was sick in bed, but Altec had sent another inspector from New York to cover this territory. W. B. Essex was in my theatre within five minutes. Finding our main amplifier was defective, he connected up an emergency amplifier which he carried in his car. Sound was restored so quickly the audience hardly noticed the interruption. While operating on the Altec emergency amplifier thru the evening and night show, the main amplifier and short-circuited filter were repaired.

"We saved an entire day's receipts, a tidy sum that almost equals the cost of Altec protection for a year."

it but pleased very well on Bank Night. This is a better show than "Big Broadcast of '38." Ben Blue and Judy Canova are really the stars of this picture. They turn out some comedy that pleases. Played July 13-14.—Bill Simon, Rialto Theatre, Saguache, Col. Small town patronage.

Republic

HAPPY GO LUCKY: Phil Regan, Evelyn Venable—A fair picture for a double bill. The sound was not what it should have been. Running time, 65 minutes. Played June 26-29.—Walter Currell, Gem Theatre, Logan, Utah. General patronage.

MANHATTAN MERRY-GO-ROUND: Phil Regan, Ann Dvorak, Leo Carrillo—Enough diversified entertainment to do business. Business above average.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada.

PORTIA ON TRIAL: Frieda Inescort, Walter Abel, Ruth Donnelly—By all means, play this one. Don't be afraid to spend a little extra on advertising. It's a honey. Think Republic got something if they will make more of Inescort pictures. Running time, 68 minutes. Played June 29-30.—Ouida Stephano, Grove Theatre, Groveton, Texas. Small town patronage.

PUBLIC COWBOY NO. 1: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, Ann Rutherford—Republic, I salute you. This is a picture that I consider among the top-notchers for my business. On July the Fourth I packed them in for ten hours and can say the other three days were almost double average business. Mr. Autry, I salute you, and you, too, Smiley Burnette. Running time, 62 minutes. Played July 3-6.—Walter Currell, Gem Theatre, Logan, Utah. General patronage.

ROARIN' LEAD: Three Mesquiteers—This is my dish for weekends. The kids go for this in a great big way. They are always asking, "When does the next Mesquiteers play?" Thank you, "Three Mesquiteers." Running time, 56 minutes. Played June 23-25.—Walter Currell, Gem Theatre, Logan, Utah. General patronage.

RKO Radio

BLIND ALIBI: Richard Dix—Rather slow in starting but works up to a tremendous climax. A very clever story that is different from the run-of-mine. Dix, his new leading lady, and Ace, the wonder dog, make the most of every situation. A few more pictures like this and Dix will be back at the top. Running time, 80 minutes. Played July 14-16.—Wm. Powell, Lonet Theatre, Wellington, Ohio. Small town and rural patronage.

BORDER G-MAN: George O'Brien—This one is above the average run of westerns. Theatres using outdoor operas need not be afraid of this one. Running time, 59 minutes. Played July 4-5.—Bob Elliano, Palace Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

CONDEMNED WOMEN: Louis Hayward, Sally Eilers, Anne Shirley—Good in any spot. Not extended runs, but well done, well acted, full of audience appeal. Plenty action. A darn good picture. Running time, 77 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

FIT FOR A KING: Joe E. Brown, Helen Mack—I played this with "Public Cowboy No. 1" and consider it one of Joe's best for RKO, although some people disagree with me. After playing this I had to repair the seats which were broken from laughter. Running time, 73 minutes. Played July 3-6.—Walter Currell, Gem Theatre, Logan, Utah. General patronage.

FORTY NAUGHTY GIRLS: James Gleason, Zasu Pitts—Played this with "Happy Go Lucky" and consider it the best of the two, although I had several comments the other way. Running time, 63 minutes. Played June 26-29.—Walter Currell, Gem Theatre, Logan, Utah. General patronage.

GO CHASE YOURSELF: Joe Penner, Lucille Ball—"Life of the Party" was good, but the one above was poor. Running time, 70 minutes. Played July 10-11.—Ouida Stephano, Grove Theatre, Groveton, Texas. Small town patronage.

GO CHASE YOURSELF: Joe Penner, Lucille Ball—One of those crazy comedies by cops, grabbed by gangsters, runaway trailer, and Joe Penner, but it is all right and well done, and Penner will drag them in. Double with a western and you have a honey. Running time, 77 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

GUN LAW: George O'Brien—One of the best westerns. Entertaining all the way. Full of zip, and plausible. Will fill any spot where you want a good picture. Running time, 60 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

GUN LAW: George O'Brien—An excellent western, O'Brien's first good picture under the RKO banner. With good material, O'Brien is one of the best drawing cards in this theatre, but the last few features in which he has starred have not done him any good. Business was better than average. Running time, 60 minutes. Played July 7-9.—Wm. Powell, Lonet Theatre, Wellington, Ohio. Small town and rural patronage.

GUN LAW: George O'Brien, Rita Oehmen—The best western O'Brien has made in a long time. RKO has copied Republic in adding music to their westerns and have helped matters considerably. Keep up the good work. The photography could be improved a lot, as many shots were very dark. Running time, 60 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

HAVING WONDERFUL TIME: Ginger Rogers, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Peggy Conklin, Lucille Ball—Many metropolitan papers praised this one but some panned it unjustly in comparing it with the original stage play, and apparently the critics that panned it forgot that we have a strict censor board that would not pass any of the smut that existed in the stage version. It was gratifying to note that Pandro Berman, despite the censorial obstacles, which prevented the picture from following the play too closely, has given us a picture which broke another box office record previously established by "Vivacious Lady." Proof of this is manifested by our holding over the picture, which is something we never yet have had to do. Our audience consisted mostly of those who had seen the original stage version, and they liked the film very much, so that I would question the qualifications of those critics who panned the picture. My best argument is that I had to put up the S.R.O. sign, for which credit should be given to Mr. Berman, Ginger Rogers and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. Played July 10-12.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

HAWAII CALLS: Bobby Breen—A very pleasing picture, but without much drawing power. Bobby Breen features do very poorly here due to the adverse reports by W. W. Ward Marsh, Cleveland Plain Dealer critic. Was able to get by with "Hawaii Calls" by double billing it with a Hopalong Cassidy western. Running time, 71 minutes. Played June 30-July 1-2.—Wm. Powell, Lonet Theatre, Wellington, Ohio. Small town and rural patronage.

LAW OF THE UNDERWORLD: Chester Morris, Anne Shirley—Entertaining underworld story for low half of double bill. Running time, 61 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

LAW OF THE UNDERWORLD: Chester Morris, Anne Shirley—Just another underworld story. Not bad, not good. With "Gun Law," March of Time and a musical short, it was pulled along and no one complained about it. Running time, 60 minutes. Played July 7-9.—Wm. Powell, Lonet Theatre, Wellington, Ohio. Small town and rural patronage.

SNOW WHITE AND THE SEVEN DWARFS: Walt Disney—While business was considerably higher on this than usual, there wasn't any profit in the engagement for us, all things considered, at percentage rental. Pleased generally, otherwise. Played June 19-21.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

STAGE DOOR: Katharine Hepburn, Ginger Rogers, Adolphe Menjou, Andrea Leeds—Ginger Rogers has established herself as an outstanding box office personality in this town through her work in "Vivacious Lady." Hepburn and Menjou naturally helped this picture just as much as Ginger Rogers. Hepburn and Rogers are not poison to my box office and I look forward with great anticipation to any picture these stars will make in the future. Played July 8-9.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

STAGE DOOR: Katharine Hepburn, Ginger Rogers—Good story and cast. Only fair draw, nevertheless. Played June 22-23.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

THIS MARRIAGE BUSINESS: Victor Moore, Vicki Lester—I was scared to death of this one, but received a pleasant surprise. It's entertaining all the way. 'Way in front of "Toy Wife" and "Lord Jeff" by a mile. Running time, 71 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

THIS MARRIAGE BUSINESS: Victor Moore, Vicki Lester—So-so. OK for Bargain Nights. Running time, 70 minutes. Played July 12-13.—Ouida Stephano, Grove Theatre, Groveton, Texas. Small town patronage.

THIS MARRIAGE BUSINESS: Victor Moore, Vicki Lester—A clever little home-town comedy that will fit fairly well on a double bill and there only. Not much to the story, but then you do not expect anything from this company, so we cannot complain. Vicki Lester is no great shakes as an actress and Victor Moore carries the entire production. Running time, 60 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

WISE GIRL: Miriam Hopkins, Ray Milland—Many walkouts on this. First half of picture not so hot, but it finishes better. All the same, we should have left it in the film exchange. Played June 24-25.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

CHECKERS: Jane Withers, Stuart Erwin—Quite the best Jane Withers to date, but the box office wasn't very active during the engagement. No good reason apparent. Played June 17-18.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

IN OLD CHICAGO: Tyrone Power, Alice Faye,

Don Ameche—Perfect entertainment that failed to do the business that we anticipated.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada.

ONE WILD NIGHT: June Lang, Dick Baldwin—This one will please the cash customers once you get them past the doorman. A good programer with plenty of laughs. Running time, 71 minutes. Played July 8-9.—Bob Elliano, Palace Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

TARZAN'S REVENGE: Glenn Morris, Eleanor Holm—As entertainment, it's poor, but it still drew in a few extras. However, we doubt after seeing this one they'll ever come again. Played June 14.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

United Artists

ADVENTURES OF MARCO POLO, THE: Gary Cooper, Sigrid Gurie.—Personally I thought very interesting, but my patronage stayed away from this one. Running time, 104 minutes. Played June 30.—Ouida Stephano, Grove Theatre, Groveton, Texas. Small town patronage.

ADVENTURES OF TOM SAWYER: Tommy Kelly, May Robson—An excellent picture and a good draw. Just let your customers know you are playing it and they will turn out in a big way. Has an appeal for both young and old alike. Played July 3-4-5.—Bill Simon; Rialto Theatre, Saguache, Col. Small town patronage.

BLOCKADE: Henry Fonda, Maledeine Carroll—This feature didn't draw nearly as well as we expected although it is a fine picture. Madeleine Carroll is lovely and an excellent actress. Henry Fonda does a fine job. Has plenty of exploitation possibilities. Step on it. Get them in and they'll go away happy that they've seen a good show. Played July 17-18-19.—Bill Simon, Rialto Theatre, Saguache, Col. Small town patronage.

BLOCKADE: Henry Fonda, Madeleine Carroll—A wonderful picture. By all means play this one. It's a swell picture and it means real money at the box office, too. Every one of my six audiences was so enthralled with the picture that when it ended they sat in their seats in a sort of daze for about a minute, and then started applauding the picture for all they were worth. I highly recommend this picture, and I believe it will win one of the picture awards. Running time, 85 minutes. Played July 12-13.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

I MET MY LOVE AGAIN: Henry Fonda, Joan Bennett—This is a very odd picture and the opinion was evenly divided on this picture. I had to play it so old that it was necessary for me to play it on Bargain Night and I just made out and that is about all I will say. Henry Fonda and Joan Bennett did a swell job of acting but it seems that in a small town the folks do not care for the acting. They want entertainment and action. Running time, 80 minutes. Played July 8-9.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash. General patronage.

Universal

BEHIND THE MIKE: William Gargan, Judith Barrett—Very poor picture, the usual thing in story value. Running time, 68 minutes. Played June 16-18. —Walter Currell, Gem Theatre, Logan, Utah. General patronage.

FOUR DAYS' WONDER: Jeanne Dante, Kenneth Howell—Miss Dante may be a new find in the pictures, but it'll take a high powered telescope to find any cash in our drawer after the run. Running time, 72 minutes. Played June 19-22.—Walter Currell, Gem Theatre, Logan, Utah. General patronage.

IDOL OF THE CROWDS: John Wayne, Shelia Bromley—This is just a program picture of the lowest caliber. It will do on a double bill. Running time, 62½ minutes. Played June 30-July 1-2.—Walter Currell, Gem Theatre, Logan, Utah. General patronage.

LET'S MAKE A NIGHT OF IT: Charles Buddy Rogers, June Clyde—You'll probably never regret it if you skip this one. It hasn't got what it takes to entertain today's audience. Rogers and June Clyde are good but can't overcome the rest of the show. Played June 17-18.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

MAN WHO CRIED WOLF, THE: Lewis Stone, Tom Brown, Barbara Read—A nice little picture which gave me a very pleasant surprise. Received quite a few comments as to its entertainment value. Running time, 77 minutes. Played June 16-18.—Walter Currell, Gem Theatre, Logan, Utah. General patronage.

OH, DOCTOR!: Edward Everett Horton—I lost plenty on this. Running time, 74 minutes. Played July 7-8.—Walter Currell, Gem Theatre, Logan, Utah. General patronage.

RAGE OF PARIS, THE: Danielle Darrieux, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Mischa Auer, Louis Hayward, Helen Broderick—Another money maker for us. Seeing the lovely Darrieux in this picture reminds me of Gloria Swanson in her original version of "Bluebeard's Eighth Wife" and "Zaza," and I do hope her producers will produce vehicles for her similar to the type that made Gloria Swanson famous. Played July 14-16.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

Warner Brothers

ADVENTURES OF ROBIN HOOD: Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland—This picture is the answer to a showman's dream. It has all exploitation possibilities that any picture has ever had. The only thing that anyone can say is that there are not more Robin Hoods made in place of so many socalled "quickies." If you have not played this one do so by all means and step on it. The results will not disappoint you. Running time, 102 minutes. Played July 10-11-12.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash. General patronage.

LOVE, HONOR AND BEHAVE: Wayne Morris, Priscilla Lane—This picture is sure a sleeper. It has everything that will make a good comedy. Can be used as a filler for a double bill or will stand alone if it is built up with a lot of good shorts. Personally I think that a picture of this type goes over big played as a single bill. Running time, 71 minutes. Played July 6-7.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash. General patronage.

OVER THE WALL: Dick Foran, June Travis—Good. Foran's singing makes it the better. Pleased everyone. Draw weak in spite of local dance school revue on our stage to help out. Played June 28.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

Short Features

Columbia

BOY WHO SAVED A NATION, THE: Strange As It Seems Series—This is the first of this series I have played and they will have possibilities after my clientele gets acquainted with them. Running time, 11 minutes.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash.

BROKER'S FOLLIES: Broadway Follies—Not so good. Running time, 10 minutes.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash.

COMMUNITY SING: A wonderful short that went over big in this town. I was surprised it did so well. Give us more like this, Columbia.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y.

COMMUNITY SING: No. 7—People were a little slow in warming up to this series, but now I cannot play them often enough. This is a fine series. Running time, 9 minutes.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash.

HALFWAY TO HOLLYWOOD: Broadway Comedies—Boy! Columbia knows that they have a comedy team in this pair (Johnny Arthur, Tom Kennedy) and therefore these are ace high comedians. Running time, 21 minutes.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash.

PLAY BALL: Special Sport Thrills—If your local people are all baseball-minded, such as mine, then by all means find a place for this reel on any program and feature it. If they are not, then they should be after seeing this reel. This reel is better than better. Running time, 11 minutes.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash.

SNOWTIME: Color Rhapsodies—Very good and the color is the most perfect of any cartoon we have run. Running time, 10 minutes.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash.

THREE DUMB CLUCKS: 3 Stooges—This trio of comedians are the hit of the show. They are nine-tenths of my box office appeal for the kids. You can have your Marx Brothers and your Laurel and Hardy, but give me just one feature length Stooge picture and I'll be out of the red for a good while. Thank you Curly, Larry and Moe. You are tops with me. Running time, 17 minutes.—Walter Currell, Gem Theatre, Logan, Utah. General patronage.

Educational

BIG APPLE, THE: Song and Comedy Hits—Many stayed to see this twice. Very good.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

CALLING ALL CROONERS: Song and Comedy Hits—Okay.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

GANDY THE GOOSE: Terry-Toons—Fair.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

HOW TO SKI: Treasure Chest—Very good.— L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

LOVE AND ONIONS: Two-Reel Comedies—Fair comedy.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

PARDON MY ACCIDENT: Two-Reel Comedies—This comedy wasn't too bad, considering how much better it might have been.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y.

SKY FISHING: Treasure Chest—Only fair minus. Okay to any fisherman, they should go for it in a big way.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

COPENHAGEN: FitzPatrick Travel Talks—Exceptional.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

FORGOTTEN STEP, THE: MGM Miniatures—Very interesting. Another "perfect" crime that missed.

L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

HOLLYWOOD HANDICAP: MGM Miniatures—Fine racehorse single with a lot of Hollywood stars.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada.

HOW TO RAISE A BABY: Robert Benchley—Not up to the usual standard for this reel. Misses.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind.

LITTLE BANTAMWEIGHT: Harman-Ising—This is superior to most any cartoon. Metro never will get the response on the Captain and Kid series that they could with Harman-Ising's work.—L. A Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

ROMANCE OF CELLULOID: Trailer—It's okay except that it is nothing more than a glorified theatre trailer plugging coming pictures and Metro. Running time, 18 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y.

THAT MOTHERS MIGHT LIVE: MGM Miniatures—Excellent. One of the best shorts we have had the privilege to play. Not especially adapted for children, but still it gives their little minds something to think about. Running time, 10 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind.

THREE MEN IN A TUB: Our Gang—The usual hilarious comedy we expect from this troupe. The Gang always pleases. Running time, one reel.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kan.

THREE MEN IN A TUB: Our Gang Comedies—Highly amusing.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

Paramount

BIG CHIEF UGH-AMUGH-UGH: Popeye—The best Popeye we have had in a long time. Something different. Running time, 8 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind.

LISTEN TO LUCAS: Clyde Lucas—This short was not so hot. There are too many other companies out on the road selling now.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y.

PARAMOUNT NEWSREEL: Very good. Paramount newsreels always good. Give them a try and see for yourself. Running time, nine minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y.

STAR REPORTER, THE: No. 3: Ted Husing—Excellent groups of entertainers presented in this Ted Husing ramble.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

RKO Radio

CLOCK CLEANERS, THE: Mickey Mouse—A crackerjack of a cartoon. Very funny.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

CLOCK CLEANERS: Walt Disney Cartoons—One of Disney's best. This got more laughs than many two-reel comedies. Running time, eight minutes.—P. G. Held, Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

DONALD'S BETTER SELF: Walt Disney—No better than the balance he has given us, but very good. Instead of giving us cartoons, Disney seems to be trying to give us a screen lately. A cartoon should be a cartoon and a lecture a lecture. Do not try to mix them up. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind.

HAWAIIAN HOLIDAY: Mickey Mouse—A dandy laugh-getter.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

LONESOME GHOSTS: Walt Disney Cartoons—Pretty good Mickey Mouse, but not as good as many of his others. Running time, nine minutes.—P. G. Held, Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

RADIO HOOKUP, A: Nu-Atlas Productions—Fair. Running time, eight minutes.—P. G. Held, Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

SHOULD WIVES WORK: Leon Errol Comedies—RKO has slipped terribly with their short subjects, but somehow these have retained their popularity. Running time. 21 minutes.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash.

Twentieth Century-Fox

MODERN DIXIE: Magic Carpet Series—This short is too poor. I wouldn't advise you to book this one without giving it a little careful overlooking from all angles. Running time 10 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y.

MUSIC FROM THE STARS: Treasure Chest—Another one that I was disappointed in. Use caution when booking it.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y.

Vitaphone

ALIBI TIME: Vitaphone Varieties—This one is a fair comedy. Running time, 21 minutes.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash.

CARL "DEACON" MOORE AND ORCHESTRA: Melody Masters—We have been giving Vitaphone bands the raspberry this season as they certainly have been poor. This one is an exception and should be enjoyed by all for novel entertainment and ideas. The band is not the tops but the presentation will be enjoyed by all. Running time, 9 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind.

HOLD THAT BALL: Preisser Sisters—The best Broadway Brevity we have seen this season. We thought that Vitaphone had forgotten how to make shorts. Perhaps they have, but this one is very good. Running time, 20 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind.

ISLE OF THE PINGO PONGO: Merrie Melodies—The best cartoon of the season, including Disney. The takeoff on FitzPatrick Travel Talks is excellent. Do not waste this one because it cannot be praised enough. Again, the best of the year. Running time, 9 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind.

JAN RUBINI AND ORCHESTRA: Melody Masters—This one is the best of this series I have played. Running time, 10 minutes.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash.

LITTLE PIONEER, THE: Broadway Brevities—Very good. Color is good.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

OUT WHERE THE STARS BEGIN: Broadway Brevities—Very beautiful dance routines in color in this. A good subject.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

PORKY AT THE CROCADERO: Looney Tunes—The only way these could be better is in color. Is it an idea or not, Mr. Warner? Running time, 9 minutes.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash.

PORKY'S POPPA: Looney Tunes—This one is a knockout. Running time, 8 minutes.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newoprt, Wash.

PORKY THE FIREMAN: Looney Tunes—A better cartoon than Vitagraph has given us for some time. Hope they continue to improve. Running time, seven minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind.

SEPTEMBER IN THE RAIN: Merrie Melodies—These melodies are positively unique, there is nothing like them on the market, and they get better all the while. Running time, 9 minutes.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash.

SWING YOUR LADY: Humphrey Bogart, Penny Singleton—Good picture and Singleton stole the show. Played July 5-6.—Ouida Stephano, Grove Theatre, Groveton, Texas. Small town patronage.

UNDER THE WIRE: Joe and Asbestos—This pair are certainly good comedians. Running time, 19 minutes.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash.

WANDERLUST: Floyd Gibbons' "True Adventure"—Fair. Not very exciting, however.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

WANDERLUST: Floyd Gibbons' "Your True Adventure"—The first poor True Adventure that Gibbons has put out. We cannot complain as the balance have been tops. Running time, 11 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind.

Miscellaneous—American Red Cross

WHY NOT LIVE?: It's the duty of every exhibitor in the country to get this reel and play it to the limit. The title means just what it says. With people losing their lives through carelessness, et cetera, it points out just how many of these fatal accidents can be avoided both in the home and outdoors, and what the Red Cross is doing to help avert all this.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash.

Serial

Columbia

JUNGLE MENACE: Frank Buck, Esther Ralston—Twelve chapters played. Notice quite a following of people enjoying it. Doing extra business.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada.

Golden Joins Universal

Max H. Golden, who produced the Jones Family series for Twentieth Century-Fox, has been signed by Universal as associate producer. His first assignment will be "Swing That Cheer," the second of Universal's college series.

Rowland Producing Spanish Picture for RKO Radio

Contracts were to be signed this week whereby William Rowland, independent producer, will make one film in Spanish for RKO Radio release with option for several more. Production is to be at Eastern Service Studio, Long Island, with native cast.

RKO thus joins other distributors which have begun to handle native language films for the Latin American market. Paramount and Monogram are financing the production of features for that area and Columbia and United Artists are finding such releases profitable.

Ben Y. Cammack, RKO general sales manager for South America, says that the future of Spanish films in that market is uncertain because of the necessity of sustaining production on an expensive scale.

Hutchinson on Half Year Tour

Walter J. Hutchinson, Twentieth Century-Fox director of foreign distribution, will leave New York July 29th for a survey of South America and South Africa, to be gone until December. Irvin Maas, foreign manager, will leave August 20th for his first visit in Europe. He will confer with Ben F. Miggins, managing director for the Continent, on service prints. Charles Mayer, Dutch East Indies manager, sails August 8th for Shanghai, where he will confer with Dell Goodman, Far East manager, before proceeding to Batavia.

Delay ITOA Drive

The Independent Theatre Owners Association of New York has postponed indefinitely its intended membership drive in New Jersy in retaliation for the organization of an Allied unit in New York state, which, according to Harry Brandt, president of the ITOA, violated a long standing agreement.

Starts Booking Service

Harry Rackin has opened Exhibitor's Service, Inc., in Hollywood, furnishing a booking service to independent theatres. The Paramount, Casa, Grande, Ariz., Holtville, Holtville, Cal., and Plaza, Hawthorne, Cal., are among the clients.

Kent Drive Overseas

The overseas Sidney R. Kent Drive will be started September 4th by Twentieth Century-Fox, continuing for 15 weeks to December 17th. The domestic drive starts August 14th and terminates at the same date.

Theatre Managers To Meet

The annual convention of the West Virginia Theatre Managers' Association will be held August 22nd, and 23rd, at the Greenbriar Hotel, Sulphur Springs, West Virginia.

Fox Midwest To Meet

Fox Midwest Theatres, Inc., will hold its annual convention of managers, representing 100 theatres in Illinois, Missouri, Iowa, Kansas and Nebraska, in Kansas City August 16th and 17th.

Collins with Monogram

Jess Collins, formerly with Republic in the Des Moines territory, has joined the Monogram exchange there under F. E. Judd.

ANSWER TO QUESTION NO. 120

Bluebook School Question No. 120 was: (A) Name possible results of overloading a generator. Is it safe to apply an overload to a generator and, if so, how much temporarily, and how much for an indefinite period of time? (C) What would you regard as evidence of a weak field and how does a weak field affect a motor? (D) What causes a weak field and how would you proceed to test for it?

The following made acceptable answers: C. Rau and S. Evans; J. R. Prater; G. E. Doe; C. Cimikoski; H. Edwards; W. E. Limmroth; T. F. Bochert; R. and K. Wells; C. Champney, who also should have been credited as correct on 119. Apologies. O. H. Schmidt; E. H. Toedte; J. A. Zachritz; W. Schoneman; M. and J. Devoy; C. A. Whitlock; G. Burdis; J. J. Petersen; C. L. Horn; C. G. Jones; T. W. Redhouse; C. Umphrey; D. and W. Porter; L. Johnson; T. and W. Turk; B. L. Kent; W. R. Matthews and J. R. Davidson; G. L. Goss; H. Bunker; L. F. and G. Brown; C. H. Lowrie; S. T. Logan; R. R. Robbins and W. Winkler; P. and L. Felt; L. A. Beachwood and M. F. Robinson; R. B. Kent; S. U. Lamont, M. A. Cordell and L. B. Daniels; G. and T. A. Johnson; F. H., S. and P. Dalbey; W. B. Hunter; D. R. Spencer; H. T. Plum and D. A. Shea; E. and F. Wentworth; S. L. Maxwell; L. and F. Saylor; K. L. Brant; H. T. Randolph; L. M. Richardson; S. Hewitt; E. Davis; K. Irwin; H. J. Benjamin; W. Jones and T. L. Ward; E. Exline; B. and M. Walker; C. A. Whitlock; R. M. Schnider; M. D. McGuire; R. E. Bullard and J. K. Robinson; E. Lomax; L. D. Tomlinson; L. Day; W. V. Henderson, H. M. Jackson and B. L. Morris; P. L. Goldstein and M. Samuels; F. W. Brandenburg; H. A. Ames and F. E. Dorp; S. True; A. W. Baxter and J. M. Kelner; N. S. Reid and H. T. Watkins; D. N. Logman; A. Leonard and G. T. Jones; M. F. Brown and R. Davis; W. B. Hennesy; L. N. Schofield; P. Slobodny; R. Smith and B. L. Odeon; W. R. Davis and B. L. Bunt; W. R. Allen; T. S. Anderson; L. W. Whitmore; A. C. Greene; B. B. Hornstein and R. R. Jacobs; A. D. Lonby; L. E. Dodson and H. H. Todd; T. W. Williams; G. L. Baxter; G. Thompson.

L. Cimikoski replies to section A as follows: "Possible results of overloading a generator are (1) possibility of blown fuses, (2) sparking at brushes that cannot be stopped, though possibly somewhat controlled by shifting the yoke slightly from its normal position, (3) temperature of the whole armature, including brushes, commutator, etc., will rise above normal in proportion to amount of the overload."

G. E. Doe says, "Evils of overloading generators may be summed up as (1) an amount of strain not intended is imposed upon all electrical and magnetic parts of the machine, (2) an excessive temperature is imposed, which is, to say the least, not beneficial to the insulation, (3) sparking at the brushes cannot be wholly suppressed, though it may be somewhat controlled by shifting the yoke slightly, (4) an overloaded generator will not work at maximum efficiency, (5) possibility of blown fuses, (6) if too long continued or if the overload be too heavy, there is possibility of breakdown of armature insulation."

(B) J. R. Prater says, "Provided the machine be well designed and well constructed, and further provided it be given proper attention with regard to lubrication and care of commutator and brushes, a generator should be able to withstand even so much as a 100 per cent overload for two or three minutes without injury. Generators for projection work are usually designed for such overload at change-over time. However, no generator should be expected to carry in excess of 10 per cent continuous overload. In fact, even that much will gradually lower the efficiency of operation and cause rapid deterioration. Furthermore, one highly excessive overload may permanently injure insulation, armature windings and commutator."

(C) C. L. Horn says, "Weak field is indicated in a generator when it fails to pick up its load promptly as its speed accelerates, or when it refuses to maintain normal voltage output while in operation at normal load. A weak field will decrease a motor's starting power, at the same time increasing its speed and current consumption."

(D) C. Champney replies, "A weak field may be caused by a loose connection somewhere in the field circuit; a short circuiting of the current through the field windings because of weakened insulation probably due to abnormal heating, or it may be caused by a metallic short in the field coil. To locate the defective coil one must test across each coil with a voltmeter, the defective coil being the one showing the least drop. If all readings are the same, the trouble is due to a loose joint in the magnetic circuit."

BLUEBOOK SCHOOL QUESTION NO. 126

(A) Quote Ohm's law and explain its action.

(B) What various things will or may happen if circuit wires be overloaded? Compare resistance of a carbon lamp filament when cold and when hot and does resistance of insulation materials usually increase or decrease as temperature increases?

(Note: Remember, this is a Bluebook school and the answer to all save possibly some special questions can be found in that book.)

New Cinecolor Plant Started in Burbank

Cinecolor has started construction of its new $250,000 plant near the Warner Brothers studio. Ground was broken this week by A. J. McCormick, president, with Mayor Frank Tillson of Burbank among the speakers.

The two story building will have 24,000 square feet of floor space and facilities to handle a million feet of film weekly.

Ezell Plans New Game

Claude Ezell of Dallas, who was general sales manager of Bank Night since its inception about four years ago, will shortly place a new theatre audience game on the market. He said this week that he withdrew from Bank Night two months ago and turned his interest back to Affiliated Enterprises of Denver, which owns the copyright. The appointment of a new sales manager for Bank Night and distribution activity are being held in abeyance by Affiliated until the determination of its forthcoming appeal from the Post Office Department's ruling terming Affiliated a lottery.

New Film Delivery in Memphis

Establishment of motor film transportation service between the Memphis exchanges and the theatres in that territory was authorized this week by the Interstate Commerce Commission in an order granting a certificate of convenience and necessity to the film Transit Company. The proposed service will operate between Memphis and points in Tennessee, Kentucky, Mississippi, Arkansas and Missouri, furnishing the special delivery, pickup and forwarding services required by the exchanges and exhibitors.

Two Join Supply Company

F. B. Ostman, formerly service manager for RCA Manufacturing Company in Camden and later district sales manager for Texas, and C. Tappan, formerly connected with General Talking Pictures in charge of sound engineering, have joined the sound sales staff of National Theatre Supply Company.

Helen Mason, formerly in charge of the film division of Victor Animatograph Company, has joined the staff of General Films, Ltd., Toronto.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE

An international association of showmen meeting weekly in MOTION PICTURE HERALD for mutual aid and progress

A-MIKE VOGEL, Chairman and Editor GERTRUDE MERRIAM, Associate Editor

YES, ONCE—

Once upon a time this business was entirely different from any other business. It was composed of illusion, glamour, excitement, anticipation, romance, color. Its heroes and heroines were fabulous princes and princesses set against fairy-book backgrounds. The theatre was a temple of delightful mystery and theatremen the magi of showmanship who turned the harshness of reality into a world where dreams always came true.

But, alas and alack—"not no more" and not for a longer time than we care to measure. The merchant has superseded the showman and the motion picture theatre is just another retail establishment. If there are those who still believe differently, then hark to Fred H. Wehrenberg, president, M.P.T.O.A. of St. Louis, Eastern Missouri and Southern Illinois, who in a recent communication to exhibitors calling attention to the dangers of price cutting, is reported to have said:

"We must realize that our business is no different than any other business."

Let others point out the thousand and one illnesses that are said to beset the motion picture. None is more serious than the one encouraged by exhibitors who believe with Mr. Wehrenberg that the operation of the motion picture theatre should follow the conventional lines of drygoods and grocery merchandising.

COMMUNITY BUILDERS

By the very nature of his work, the theatreman is most aptly fitted to engage in extra-curricular activities. These have to do with community fund-raisings, civic celebrations and such-like dependent for success upon the same species of showmanship and quick action on which the theatre flourishes. Thus we find Round Tablers called to lead drives for this or that, to resuscitate worthy movements languishing for the want of a showmanly shot in the arm.

For instance, Ed C. Paul, of the Chakeres-Logan, in Logan, Ohio, is now again engaged as chairman of the local committee in behalf of the Boy and Girl Scouts. Paul, incidentally, appointed in 1937, after the drive had twice failed, did an immediately successful job. Then, too, there is Kroger Babb, Chakerers Circuit ad head, leader of lost community causes and now working his magic at the head of a civic drive to speed up business.

Ralph E. Phillips, of this State, Sioux Falls, S. D., besides taking over the presidency of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, leads the Chamber's Territorial Acquaintance Committee. He will also plant publicity for the annual National Corn Husking. Only a few days back was announced the appointment of Vic Gauntlett, Hamrick-Evergreen theatres ad head, to the chairmanship of the important "Potlatch" festival in Seattle. And George F. Tyson, on a leave of absence from the Harris-Pittsburgh theatres, right now is up to his ears putting over Atlantic City's annual national beauty contest.

The smart job so many Round Tablers do in such directions makes one wonder why other communities fail to take advantage of the services performed by these stalwarts. And the solid theatre goodwill they build makes one wonder further why so many superiors frown upon participation in these gainful activities.

NEW JULY CONTEST DEADLINE

Well, folks, we've got a new deadline for the July Contest and it's all on account of those Canadian theatremen who want to be in on those free all-expense trips to New York—and why not? Seems that Canadian release dates on all the pictures in the July Contest do not allow folks across the border enough time. They've asked for a bit of a break; so, in accordance with the unanimous decision of the six participating companies, a new deadline has been set ahead to August 27th, and that goes for dates on all the pictures concerned.

So, come one, come all, Canadian and American theatremen. The Big Town is waiting. They're dusting off the welcome signs and polishing the key-to-the-city for the six winners. Those who hanker to get a gander at New York in September now know what to do and how long they have to do it.

A-Mike Vogel

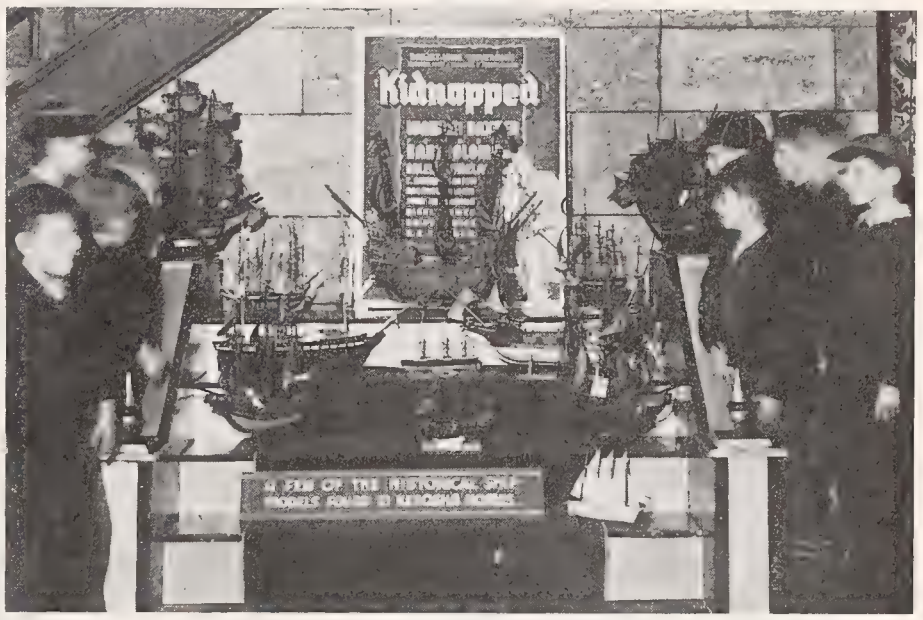
Reported to have attracted the anticipated attention was lie detector set up in the lobby of the New York Strand for the engagement of "The Amazing Dr. Clitterhouse" at the Broadway house. Man stationed at machine queried onlookers who were invited to step up and be tested. Gag questions were asked, much to the merriment of listeners.

Touring through the streets of Hong Kong was the bally arranged by Terry Leung, for the advance buildup on "The Buccaneer" at the Queens' Theatre there. Monster cutout figure of Fredric March was mounted atop sound truck which publicized the opening.

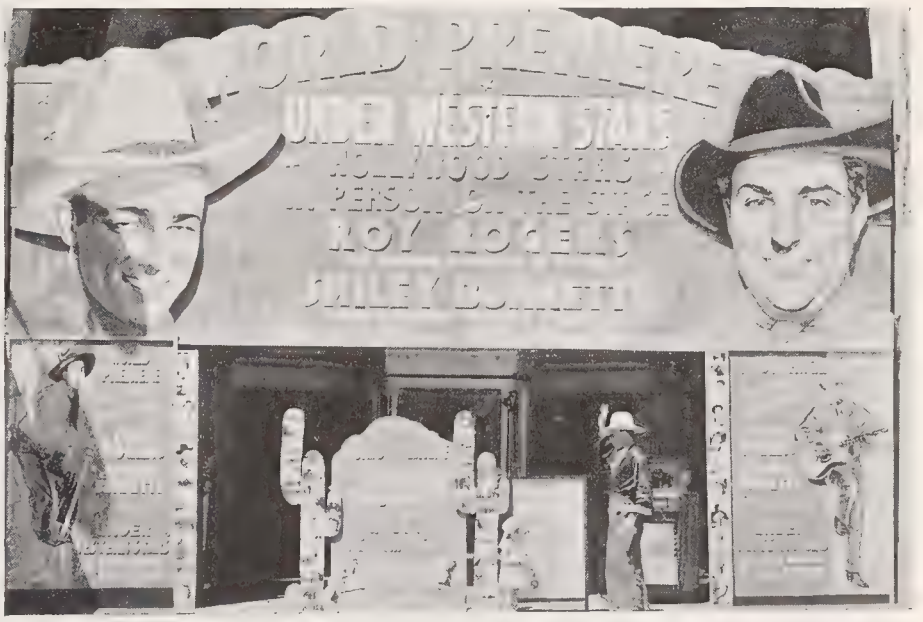
Round Table In Pictures

To create an atmospheric effect for his "Jungle Love" front at the Palace, Monahans, Texas, Manager E. M. Berg sent to southernmost part of his state for jungle moss, which was hung under marquee and sidewalk in front of house. Boxoffice was converted into hut, door of which was covered with bamboo poles. Drums, war clubs, shields, spears and cutout figures of the stars completed the display.

Entire lobby of the Strand, Ft. Madison, Ia., was turned into a "Robin Hood" castle by J. Earl Hayes for that date. Display was built of beaver board and painted by theatre art man. Over all was cutout figure of Errol Flynn on his charger.



J. D. Hillhouse, Mirror, Dallas, Tex., tied in with traffic department on their safety campaign in connection with his "Speed to Spare" opening. Despite city ordinance prohibiting commercial advertising in downtown areas, the theatreman was granted permission to tack cards as shown above on all light poles plugging his date.



Front of the New York Astor Theatre to advertise the special M-G-M exhibit of antiques, costumes, jewelry and furniture used in the production of "Marie Antoinette," an unusual buildup in advance of the picture slated to open in August.

Delving into back newspaper files, Phil Arbeit, Marcy, Brooklyn, on "Old Chicago" unearthed copy of Chicago Tribune telling of the big conflagration. This, together with pictures secured from the Chicago Historical Society, provided nucleus of lobby display. Various type firemen's hats were also promoted and included in the exhibit.

Leo Kulik, Assistant to Bill Exton, Kenosha, Kenosha, Wis., for "Kidnapped" tied up with local newspaper seeking old model ships for lobby display. Above is shown some of the boats received from localities, who received guest tickets for their cooperation.

Typical of the kind of fronts turned out by Louie Charninsky, was the one constructed by him for the world premiere of "Under Western Stars" at the Capitol, Dallas, Texas. Simulated cactus plants were covered with scene stills and cutout star heads atop marquee.

SHOWMEN'S LOBBY LAFFS

This cartoon was created by Curley Bowers, Paramount, Austin, Minn.

Local Tom Sawyer Sought by Harwell

Bill Harwell, Roxy Theatre, Logan, Utah, arranged a tieup with leading department store whereby they, the newspaper and theatre sponsored a contest to select a local Tom Sawyer as advance publicity for that picture. Store offered complete Sawyer outfit as prize, other merchants giving fishing poles, photographer taking pictures of the winner and restaurant playing host to the lad and his mother. Tieup was also effected with local automobile dealer for a car to be put at their disposal and local bottling plant supplied soft drinks to all contestants.

Kids met at designated hour Saturday morning, at which time the winners were selected by a body of four judges. Prizes were presented from stage. Day ahead of opening Harwell staged a hay ride as street bally with six boys dressed in overalls and sun hats riding atop the hay. Public address system set up on wagon played "School Days" record as the bally roved about town.

"BEAT THE HEAT"

Model Plane Contest Planted for "Test Pilot"

Through the cooperation of the Jacksonville Airplane Club, Robert Heekin, Florida Theatre there for "Test Pilot" put on a model airplane contest. Models were displayed in lobby and promoted gifts were awarded winners. Local pilot flew over city with 100 foot banner carrying title and playdates, various window displays were secured and entire staff wore imprinted sashes during run.

For "Merrily We Live" utilities company aided Bob by inserting card carrying copy calling attention to kitchen featured in the picture in all outgoing mail week ahead and during run. In return for gas equipment display in lobby, theatreman received large window from company for picture breaks. Department store also gave cosmetic display with specially posed stills of Ann Dvorak, lobby setpiece of novelties with gag copy was constructed and entire staff wore imprinted chest bands.

Merchants Tell How To "Bring Up Baby"

Effective merchant tieup was arranged for "Bringing Up Baby" by Murray Lafayette, Warners' Avon Theatre, Utica, N. Y., with five stores tying in on a letter contest. Prizes went to those submitting the best letter on "How to Bring Up Baby" with their merchandise. Stores advertised the stunt in their ads and baby departments.

For his street bally, a lad wheeled a carriage about town in which was a goat dressed in baby clothes, copy on perambulator reading: "Don't be a goat, see," etc., etc. Tieup was also effected with used car agency whereby cards were tacked on all cars to the effect that the car was for sale because the owner needed money to see the picture. Teaser ads were placed in paper ahead of opening, together with stories on Katherine Hepburn and gag herald's were distributed.

"BEAT THE HEAT"

RKO Theatres Offer 75 Free Vacations

In conjunction with the showing of "Having Wonderful Time," the film saga of young New York vacationists, the RKO Theatres in Manhattan, Bronx, Brooklyn, Queens, Long Island and Westchester are inaugurating a "Having Wonderful Time" post card contest, in which the winners will be given free vacations at a well-known country club.

The contest, rules of which are announced in issue of the "Newsette," the official publication of the RKO Theatres, consists of writing original vacation messages on post cards which may be obtained at any RKO theatre.

The messages are to be short and snappy, not over twenty words, and will be judged on the basis of originality. The names of the seventy-five winners will be announced by August 9th, and these lucky vacationers will be able to start "Having Wonderful Time" during the month of August or September.

Awards Rulings

Competitions are now divided into four Quarter Periods:
Jan. 1–Mar. 31; Apr. 1–June 30; July 1–Sept. 30; Oct. 1–Dec. 31.

Entrants will compete in five classifications, according to population and situation:
A—Cities, 250,000 and over.
B—Cities, 100,000 to 250,000.
C—Cities, 25,000 to 100,000.
D—Cities, up to 25,000.
E—Neighborhood and subsequent-run theatres.

Quigley Quarterly Awards will be given as follows:

Silver Plaque to best entry in each classification.

Citation of Merit Sheepskin Certificate to runner-up in each classification.

First and Honorable Mention Sheepskin Certificates in each classification to be awarded other entries deemed worthy of recognition.

An additional Citation of Merit will be awarded each Quarter to the entry selected as best from among that Quarter's Plaque winners, regardless of classification.

Every contribution, including institutional campaigns, to the Round Table will be considered in determining the Quarter winners. Although it is not necessary to forward complete campaigns, they are also eligible for consideration.

Entrants will be judged on their contributions to the Round Table over each Quarter period and not upon single picture campaigns, as heretofore.

Entrants will all "start from scratch" in each Quarter. Winners of the Annual Awards will be selected from among contestants making the highest scores over the four Quarters of the year.

SECOND QUARTER JUDGES NAME QUIGLEY WINNERS

Vote Awards Honors to Forty-two Theatremen in Five Divisions; Additional Citation of Merit to Bell for Top Entry

by A-MIKE VOGEL

It was ding-dong all the way, folks, and, according to the Committee of Judges, a more than tough job to arrive at a list of winners for the Second 1938 Quarter of the Quigley Awards. In quality and quantity of entries in the five classifications, a very high standard of competition was maintained which calls for an extra bow for the following voted the Silver Plaques. They may consider themselves fortunate to have nosed out a fast-finishing field in the five divisions.

By majority vote, the top honors go to Ray Bell, Morris Rosenthal, Harry Rubin, Chet McSwain and Jack Lexey. For the best entry among the Plaque winners regardless of classification, the judges select Ray Bell for the Special Citation of Merit.

Next at the finish line and the boys who gave the Plaque winners many an anxious moment before the final decisions were made, are the five who took down the Citations of Merit in their respective classifications. They include E. V. "Dinny" Dinerman, Allan Sparrow, John Tucker, Sid Holland, and John Burhorn, the latter two having the added distinction of being Plaque winners in the First Quarter. Rosenthal, McSwain and Tucker were also listed among the First Quarter "Firsts" and "Honorables." In voting a Citation to Dinerman, the Judges took into consideration the unprecedented total of 192,000 lines of free publicity rolled up by the RKO Midwest ad head during the three months of the Quarter.

"Mentions" to 35 Entrants

The twelve First Mentions voted in the Second Quarter go to 13 entrants and 25 theatremen share the 23 Honorable Mentions. Complete details of all Awards including winners, theatres and situations will be found on this page and the following.

An extra vote of thanks to the Judging Committee which carried through conscientiously and thoroughly despite the high temperature, is offered Dan Michalove, Twentieth Century-Fox Films, Arthur Mayer, operator of the New York Rialto and to Harry Goldberg, Warner Theatres advertising manager.

Included in the various entries were campaigns previously publicized in these pages. Additional exploitations arranged by the Plaque winners are detailed in brief on this page and the following to give readers a general idea of what was done to take down the honors.

Second Quarter Plaques, Citations

Class "A" (Cities 250,000 and Over)

This issue marks the ending of the first month of the third Quarter of the 1938 Quigley Awards, the third period of the Competitions ending on September 30th. Since entries in the third Quarter will cover campaigns during the summer, extra consideration will be given efforts to build grosses during these months.

Ray Bell Stresses Effective Contests

Topping the tieins made by Ray Bell which helped to win for him the Plaque in Class "A" was cooperation of the National Peace Conference in the interests of "Blockade." Representing over 40 national organizations, the Conference presented to Walter Wanger, a special Award of Distinction and Service, with Carter Barron, Loew division chief, accepting the honors on behalf of the producer. Bell also arranged for a long-distance interview between the local press and Wanger in Hollywood which netted out of the ordinary publicity.

RAY BELL

Featured newspaper contest on the picture offered a plane trip to Hollywood for best answers to eight questions based on situations from the picture and which ran eight days. Other contests had to do with identification of players, camera street stunt for tickets, classified ideas, and a night club tiein with a pair of Madeline Carroll slippers to girl whom they best fitted.

On "Girl of Golden West," Bell arranged a newspaper contest on "unforgetable moments" with prizes to those sending in 100 word descriptions of experiences in past five years. This was tied to picture via "unforgetable romance" copy. Also effective was a musical memory idea tied in to local shoe store which furnished entry blanks. Contestants were requested to fill in name of song hit in various pictures listed starring the two principals. Society pages also featured a Wild West party by local socialites which credited picture for idea.

Star Meets Celebs

Newspaper readers had an opportunity to flash their knowledge of explorers through a contest for "Marco Polo" wherein a number of questions were offered for cash and ticket prizes. A "hard luck" yarn slant was also put on with further prizes for the best answers.

Personal appearance of Olympe Bradna on behalf of "Stolen Heaven" was exploited effectively, Bell arranging for visits with Mrs. Roosevelt, Jim Farley, Vice-president Garner, among others, all of which cracked the dailies. He also saw to it that Bradna received key to the city, met the press, put on a lot of gag stunts that made the wires and photo services, in a driving 10-day campaign.

For "Jungle Love" Bell went contest

HIGHLIGHTS OF WINNING ENTRIE

Ace Tieins Mark Rosenthal Entry

A running account of Morris Rosenthal's activities which netted him the Class "B" Plaque would start with the spring fashion show tied in with date on "Judge Hardy" at the Majestic, Bridgeport, Ct. Six stores cooperated and to aid the stage showing, Rosy promoted a full page co-op, planted windows in all stores which also distributed heralds ahead of the date. In addition, Morris sold local daily on jig saw puzzle tiein which brought thousands of answers.

M. ROSENTHAL

As "Bringing Up Baby" was dated at the time National Want Ad Week broke, the Round Tabler was able to tie in the picture to the drive by offering guest tickets in conjunction. This brought page one boxes, streamers on classified page and co-op house ads which continued during the entire week. For "Mayerling" an out of the ordinary publicity campaign was waged followed up with a special drive among organizations to whom Rosy addressd letters on the date. Pete Smith's "Penny's Party" short was the means of effecting a tiein with local gas company.

For Mother's Day, telegrams were promoted from Western Union, copy suggesting a holiday for mother at the theatre. Wires were also tacked to bulletin boards in every factory in the area. And on "Swiss Miss," a newspaper caricature contest was evolved, with readers invited to fill in a laughing expression in the outlines of heads of the two stars.

Police Aid on "Blockade"

Local police department was employed to aid the campaign on "Blockade" wherein special cards were distributed in a traffic drive to do away with blocking of streets. Title was prominently mentioned in block letters to be seen from a distance away. All street construction jobs were dotted with large cards carrying the title in bringing attention to "detour" copy. Special newspaper puzzle contest brought further publicity and street stunts were topped with parade to theatre of local Sea Scouts where drill was held.

Since Rosy's date on "Yellow Jack" came coincidently with the article of the same title in the Saturday Evening Post, Rosy was able to interest the local Post representative to work with him on the promotion. Tiein cards suplied by the Post were distributed to all news dealers and special blowups of the article with picture copy were planted in lobby. Distributor's delivery trucks were bannered. Newspaper publicity topped with a feature.

Bell Promotes Pension For "Yellow Jack" Hero

offering such prizes for name for Lamour, such as "Siren of the Sarong," etc. To girl guessing ingredients of cocktail named after the picture, prize of original Lamour sarong was offered. In addition to tieins with five radio stations, Ray also put on a dramatization with local players with cup given for best individual performance. Store tieins included a full window on the picture in series arranged by leading establishment to illustrate campaign on "career woman" and their professions.

Also listed high in the accomplishments of the Class "A" winner was the campaign on "Yellow Jack" wherein John R. Kissinger, one of the original group of soldiers who volunteered for tests on which the story was founded, was located and brought to the Capitol. Bell had a resolution introduced to rename a local street after the retired soldier and also a bill to Congress to vote him a pension. Special screening for leading legislators and government officials was another feature of the campaign.

Exploitations to promote stage appearances of leading band leaders at the Capitol were also listed by the winner who put across ideas of many kinds to publicise the dates for such names as Abe Lyman, Shep Fields, Sammy Kay, among others. Also included among Bell's campaigns were numerous window displays, co-op ads and other merchandise tieins.

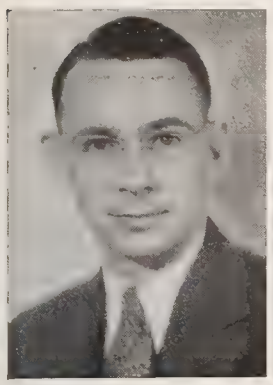
Rubin Queries Kids On 'Snow White'

Harry Rubin, Tivoli Theatre, Michigan City, Ind., Plaque winner in Class "C", received cooperation of local daily in connection with a contest for "Snow White." Daily, for a week, cut was run of each of the dwarfs and readers were invited to save these until the seven were collected and presented at the office of the paper in exchange for a gratis colored photo of Snow White. In addition, paper ran daily picture plugs and playdates.

HARRY RUBIN

Two weeks ahead leading downtown restaurants imprinted their daily menus on reverse side of colored photo of the princess and the seven dwarfs. Taking the proverbial bull by the horns, Rubin promoted front page gossip column for a controversial discussion of whether or not the picture was terrifying for children. Letters were run from mothers, giving reactions of their youngsters. Numerous windows were obtained, full co-op ad pages secured from leading merchants and pocket size programs with cut of the dwarfs were liberally distributed.

Main tieup for "Rebecca of Sunny Brook Farm" was arranged with local wholesale grocer whereby the theatre received 50 windows for picture copy and scene still display. Certain product was advertised by grocers who offered gratis colored photos of Shirley to those bringing in certain number of wrappers from cans. Second contest was planted in paper which ran large two-column ad in which were listed certain questions pertaining to advertisers on the classified page. To those submitting correct answers, guest tickets were awarded.



Postal Authorities Aid

Cooperation of post office was enlisted for "Test Pilot" with permission granted to set up a temporary booth in lobby for airmail letters. This was supplanted by appropriate airplane material and copy. Big tieup was classified contest with the newspaper on the strength of which they sold a huge classified section. Paper gave a 60-inch ad announcing the fact that 2,000 heralds would be dropped from plane day ahead of opening and 100 theatre tickets were given as prizes to holders of lucky number heralds. Numbers corresponded with those listed in classified section. Entire cost to Rubin was gas for plane and passes. Plane was properly bannered with title and playdates and in addition all important street corners throughout city were stencilled with airmail week copy.

OTED PLAQUES IN SECOND QUARTER

Chet's Marbles Sell 'Sawyer'

Contests played an important part in campaigns put on by Chet McSwain, Granada Theatre, Plainview, Texas, which landed this theatreman the Plaque in the "D" classification. To sell his date on "Tom Sawyer," a marble-playing contest was planted. Small imprinted envelopes were distributed in which were placed two marbles, copy on the outside reading "Pick up the marbles, fellows, the champion of them all is coming," etc., etc. On reverse side information regarding the local contest was detailed.

CHET McSWAIN

Special letters were written to all teachers to the effect that the winner of an essay contest would be presented with a complete Tom Sawyer outfit, promoted from cooperating merchant. Also that if all boys in any one room would submit an essay, the whole room would be admitted to see the picture.

Distributes Wedding Rings

For "Girl of the Golden West," Chet distributed cards, attaching to each a brass wedding band, copy on card to the effect that the picture was a wedding of romance and song. Special lobby setpiece was constructed week ahead of opening which carried a head of Jeanette MacDonald, catchlines and star credit and title with scenic effect for the background. "Merrily We Live" found the showman stenciling streets with title five days ahead.

Tieup with local utilities company brought lobby display of ranges and hot water heaters surrounded by cards and panels carrying tiein copy. Company also inserted picture plug cards in all monthly statements going to consumers, and further cooperation was secured from local baker, who served free coffee and doughnuts to patrons attending midnight prevue.

Various were the street ballys, which included a "headless" man gag; man on crutches carrying back banner to the effect that he fell out of the balcony laughing; old gray mare roved streets, copy attached reading "This is our last plug on," etc., etc., and donkey was also used with banner copy, "Everybody is going to see 'Merrily We Live' but you and me and you know what I am."

On "Kentucky Moonshine" Chet built a replica of an old outlaw moonshine whiskey still and placed it in parking lot next to theatre. Barrels with gag copy, old whiskey bottles and other paraphernalia used in stills were planted about the display, which the theatreman reports attracted considerable attention.

Lexey Ties Clubs to "Neediest" Idea

Search for Philadelphia's neediest boy was highlight of Jack Lexey's "Boy of the Streets" date at the Broadway Theatre, a campaign in his entry that won the class "E" Plaque. Stunt involved the cooperation of the Philadelphia Daily News, American Legion, University Settlement House, Catholic and Hebrew Welfare Associations, Big Brothers, American Sons and Daughters of Italy and others. In addition to the aforementioned, Samuel Diamond, Assistant Attorney General of Pennsylvania, joined the various organizations which co-sponsored the search with Thomas Weatherbery, head of the Crime Prevention Bureau; head of retail chain stores and radio stations.

JACK LEXEY

Careful search went on by use of radio, newspapers and word-of-mouth via the cooperating organizations. Schools were also contacted and when boy was finally selected by the committee of judges, he was completely outfitted and given job as usher at the theatre. Reams of special publicity from both daily and weekly papers were garnered, and Lexey reports this as the first time such acclaim was given to a neighborhood house.

Churches Also Cooperate

Churches were also contacted in connection with their drive to get children off the street and into Sunday School classes. Parents were advised from pulpits to see the picture with their families. Special screening was held for local prominents.

Tieup was effected with the Safety Patrol Motor Squad, an organization then conducting its safety campaign. Through their cooperation all motorcycle squad-men wore arm bands reading "Be careful; don't kill Boys on Streets, also see," etc., etc. Lexey and several prominent persons appeared on the stage throughout the week in advance of playdate and offered sincere endorsements of the picture.

Broadway Safety Patrol boys were stationed at street intersections to direct child pedestrians, boys wearing picture plug armbands and Crime Prevention Bureau head made brief talk on stage on "Why Crime Does Not Pay."

Among his other campaigns submitted for this second quarter was "Yellow Jack," previously detailed in our section. To be recalled was Lexey's blood donor's movement in connection with this date. Also highlighting his campaign was a neighborhood search for the prettiest nurse, a stunt which also garnered plenty of publicity for the date.

YOU ARE INVITED TO JOIN UP

JOHN A. CHERRY

joins the Round Table from Lincoln, Nebraska, where he manages the Stuart Theatre for J. H. Cooper Enterprises. John began his career as extra usher at the Ottumwa Theatre, Ottumwa, Ia., later was advanced to doorman and then made assistant manager. After a special John also took over assistant managership of the Capitol, writing all newspaper ads. From there Cherry was transferred to the Orpheum in Des Moines, handling all publicity, and left there in May, 1937, to work for the Hollywood Advertising Company, from which spot he went to the Stuart.

manager of Warners' Prince Theatre, Ambridge, Pa., paid a visit to Hollywood, staying there two years working in different capacities. Brien then returned to his home town, Pittsburgh, completed his college work at the University there and then entered the motion picture field, starting at Warner Brothers Kenyon Theatre; later Lige was transferred and then promoted to the Prince.

is the assistant manager of the Edison Theatre, Miami, Fla., an independent. Mac started as part time usher at the State Theatre about six years ago and then became Chief of Service of the same house. A year ago this showman was made assistant to John A. Cunningham, under whom he is now working.

manages the Liberty Theatre in Sharon, Pa., and has been associated with Warner Brothers for the past seven years. Previous to that time Currie was with Loew's at their Penn Theatre in Pittsburgh. This new Round Tabler started as a barker and says he held every position, including doorman, usher, assistant, manager, in the advertising department and distribution end. Houses that Bill has worked in include in addition to the above the Ritz, Kenyon and Palace in Pittsburgh, Enright and Cameraphone in East Liberty and the Strand in New York.

is the assistant manager and publicity man at the Court Theatre in Auburn, Ind. He started showbusiness in 1934 as usher at this same house and two years later became manager of the Smart Theatre. When the Smart was closed he returned to the Court but is still doing a smart job of work.

started as doorman at the Green Street Theatre, San Francisco, Cal., in 1929 and within the next few years acted as usher and doorman at the Milano and Verdi Theatres. He secured the assistant managership posts at the Haight and Irving houses in 1937 and soon after became the house manager at the Liberty for a period of three months. He was transferred to assist at the Amazon for a couple of months and for the past two years is managing there.

LEO A. GUIMOND

is the manager of the Newton Theatre, West Newton, Mass., and is another showman to join the Round Table from the M. & P. Circuit. Leo started at the Paramount Theatre there as part-time usher in 1932, later becoming full-time usher and then promoted to chief of service. In December, 1937, Guimond was transferred to the Newton while it was under construction and then received his first managerial assignment.

manages the Sierra Theatre in Susanville, Cal., which, he informs us, is the only theatre in that city and a right modern one at that. He entered showbusiness in 1929 starting as doorman at the Fox Capitol in Sacramento and six months later was promoted to advertising and assistant manager, then transferred to the Fox Hippodrome as assistant. After a year he switched from theatre business to work for General Electric but when an opportunity presented itself he returned to the Fox Capitol in his former capacity.

started his career in 1930 for Warner Bros., in the advertising department. Several years later he became the assistant manager of the Regent Theatre in Pittsburgh, Pa. and then promoted to manage the Cameraphone in the same city, where we now find him. We kinda like Pittsburgh and it will be nice hearing from another member.

who is the manager of the Forest Theatre in Detroit, Mich., entered the theatrical business when a lad of sixteen, acting as doorman at the Old Blackstone Theatre. His next spot was the Majestic, as usher and then back to the door at the Colonial and Capitol Theatres. He finally became assistant manager of the latter house, also handling all the publicity and promotion work. In 1937 he acquired his present managerial post, also receiving the job of promotion manager for the Advance Theatrical Operation Corp.

down in Austin, Texas, as the assistant manager of the State Theatre. Raines started as usher-doorman at the Queen in Austin, 1931, and from there became doorman and chief of service at the Paramount, on to assistant manager of the Capitol and thence to his present assignment. We have several active Round Tablers in Austin, Gerald, and we're hoping you'll help swell this list.

now at the Brown in Louisville, Ky., started at the Strand there as usher in 1930. Service three years there during which period he was promoted successively to chief usher, doorman and assistant manager. Then followed a brief spell out of showbusiness, but the lure was too great and we find him back again as assistant at the Strand until April of this year.

NOTE: The totals for running time are the official figures announced by the home offices of the distributing companies.

When a production is reviewed in Hollywood, the running time is as officially given by the West Coast studio of the company at the time of the review, and this fact is denoted by an asterisk (*) immediately preceding the number. As soon as the home office has established the running time for national release, any change from the studio figure is made and the asterisk is removed.

Running times are subject to change according to local conditions. State or city censorship deletions may cause variations from the announced and published figures; repairs to the film may be another reason.

J C JENKINS—HIS COLYUM

Center, Nebraska

Dear Herald:

This town of Center is the county seat of Knox county. A lot of people may think this is a peculiar name for a town, but there is a reason for this. Knox county has had a lot of fights over the county seat question. Creighton wanted it, Bloomfield wanted it and Niobrara wanted it and they couldn't agree, so they decided to locate it in the center of the county, and that's how it comes to be called Center.

City folks no doubt will wonder why people would live in a little town like Center, as she has no railroad, no trolley line, no monuments, no theatres, no Madison Square Gardens, no Rose Bowls, no sky scrapers or night clubs, but she does have something like two hundred mighty fine folks. The absence of night clubs at Center would hardly be considered a detriment to the town since they are considered not to be the best finishing schools for presidents, governors, senators or congressmen. Knox county is a fine county, but there is a reason for that, too; it joins our county of Antelope on the north, and Antelope county, you know, is another "gateway to the west." Center, as we told you, has about two hundred folks, and that's aplenty for a town of that size. When you go to Center you will know you have gone places.

Our good friend, Joe Hewitt of the two theatres at Robinson, Ill., writes us a very interesting letter except that he had been ailing for over a year. We were sorry to learn of this and we hope he is well on the road to recovery by now. He writes us that he has been in the theatre business for 32 years. Can any of you beat that record?

Joe says that Oscar Turner, partner of Steve Farrar in the theatre business at Harrisburg, Ill., is on his way to the Black Hills of South Dakota on a vacation. We want to say to Oscar that if he doesn't stop at the "gateway to the west" on his way home and make us a visit we are likely to vote the other ticket.

The paper this morning reports that the Roxy theatre at Table Rock, Neb., was partially destroyed by fire with only partial insurance. We were sorry to learn of this and send the management our sympathy.

If it wasn't so doggone far, and it wasn't so hot, we'd like to go up and call on our two old friends, Andy and Herb Anderson, of the Detroit Lakes theatres at Detroit Lakes, Minn. Then on our way we could stop and see P. G. Estee of the two theatres at Parker, S. D., Mr. and Mrs. Abbott of the theatre at Arlington, S. D., H. J. Longaker at Glenwood, Minn., besides the RKO folks at Sioux Falls, S. D. Sherm Fitch, the RKO manager, has a fine lodge on a good "musky" lake at Park Rapids, Minn., and maybe he will give us an invitation to go fishing with him.

Quite a lot of folks seem to have it in for Hollywood, but that's a mistake. Hollywood has a lot of very fine people, including Bill Weaver and Mildred Early at the HERALD office, Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Charlie Ruggles, Pat O'Brien and Louise Fazenda and a lot more folks of the films, besides Bob Burns, a grandson of grandpa Snazy.

Of course, Hollywood has her cat and dog hospitals, clairvoyants, palm readers, fortune tellers, snake charmers, a few filling stations and several beauty shops, and just because they are all doing a thriving business is no reason for people to get jealous of her.

Every time we think of Neosho, Mo., and the fine hotel they have, with a trout stream running under it, we recall the time when Hugh Gardner of the Orpheum theatre skinned the hide off of us playing golf. There's no darm sense of a fellow treating a friend like that.

We often wonder if Roy Culley still operates the Pastime theatre at Medicine Lodge, Kan. Medicine Lodge, you know, was the home of Carrie Nation, and Carrie, like little Georgie Washington, was very fond of using the hatchet.

Glen Rock, Wyo., is where a lot of coal used to come from and that's where Mr. and Mrs. Jung operated the Glen Rock theatre and where they were swindled out of 14 bucks by a magazine peddler, but we hope it never happens to them again.

There is this about Bob Smith of the two theatres at Mission, Texas (and several other theatres scattered around the country) that we can't quite understand. When we were fishing with him in Red Fish bay and a big one got away from him, all he would say was "doggone it." He left the use of a more emphatic language to us.

Back in Indiana in the spring of 1873—but then we won't go back that far, those were the "horse and buggy days," so we will unhitch right now.

Foreign Picture Unit Organized

Formation of National Pictures Corporation which will specialize in the importation and exploitation of foreign pictures in the United States and Latin American and in the exportation of American product to Europe was announced this week by Edwin M. Fadman, managing director of Films Red Star of Paris and Brussels.

Mr. Fadman, whose foreign companies will continue to operate as French production and distribution organizations, arrived in New York from his Paris office three weeks ago to handle organization details for his French and Belgian associates. His foreign companies, he said, will act in close cooperation with the newly formed American organization, particularly as a source of product.

Mr. Fadman described the new company as being the first foreign-film organization in American that will rely on its own direct contact on the continent for product. He also said that National Pictures will offer the first complete annual program of importations.

The company's first release is "Legions of Honor," starring Marie Bell and with Charles Vanel, Pierre Renoir and Jacques Baumer. Four additional releases are now being subtitled in English and will be ready about the end of August, Mr. Fadman said.

The company has established temporary offices in the Paramount Building, New York City.

ON for THE RIDE

NOW that the dust of impact of Equity No. 87-273, otherwise the U. S. versus the Majors, has settled, the nation, its press and pontificators and its quaint personages once known as "captains of industry" are looking the situation over and measuring its meaning.

There have been those aspects of the public manifestations and official utterances between the Plaintiff and the Defendant calculated to remind one of a certain early Chaplin one-reeler. The little comedian and the ponderous Mack Swain were really engaged in trying to chew each other's ears off, but when the eye of the Keystone cop was upon them they pretended to be dancing.

Some observers of the confetti shower of gentle phrases—"cooperation", "judicial survey", "clarification", "common end"—tossed to and fro over the scene, are marveling at the wonders of this new day.

IT was not at all like that in the days of the Northern Securities case, for instance, when the late Mr. James J. Hill was so hot that even reporters were singed in the lava of his responses. And maybe you might be remembering when Mr. Henry Miller, "Thousand-dollar-a-day Miller", speaking in behalf of his clients, the packers, in the first beef trust case, made two thousand dollars worth of remarks about the Government in Federal court in Chicago. Also possibly there will be memories of the forensics when Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis fined Standard Oil $29,000,000.

In those days, too, a dollar had a hundred cents in it and when you got one it was yours to have and to hold. The country really did have some good five-cent cigars and Old Taylor was two drinks for a quarter. Also a lawsuit was a lawsuit.

For some those were the good old days, and for some bad old days, too. Laws marked boundaries of the field, but within the lines men and industries were on their own.

A considerable nation evolved that way.

THE Government's suit concerning motion picture operations is one of many manifestations of the arrival in this year of grace 1938 of a turning point in the long straight road of capitalism and individualism in industry that has run from the day the first trader landed on these shores.

To many this sharp turn seems directly to the left.

We are not concerned here with the merits or demerits of any phase of contention in the documentary content of the Government's suit itself. The suit, after all, pertains, on its face, to the Sherman Act, which itself pertains to the long, long ago. It is just a handy old relic, of current convenience in a maneuver pertaining to this new day.

We have indeed "turned the corner", and ahead is the era of Government in industry, not the regulator but the senior partner, holder of an invisible preferred with the voting power.

That is why the Department of Justice released a statement to the public along with the filing of its suit the other day. The suit was what editors call "the news peg" on which the more significant document was based.

It was a Sherman Act suit, understandable in terms of business, as of the days when it was enacted. The suit contains sundry charges and allegations, subject to trial on the facts as they might be developed by evidence. The statement is, in contrast, of the new day and the New Deal. The statement is a discourse which presumes judgment before trial and proceeds to talk of the motion picture business as though from a chairman's seat in a corporation meeting.

It is not what was said that matters so much as who said it.

The New Deal has drawn up a chair and is sitting in, at the head of the table.

Even in the initial document the Government, as Mr. Martin Quigley pointed out on this page last week, is talking about what manner of pictures should be made.

FURTHER significant of this turning point, for all of American industry, all business, great and small, is the plain assertion of the official statement that this is also for the guidance of other interests. The motion picture, with its automatic publicity, makes an illuminated example.

The Government, or the Administration, has made up its mind what it wants and has stated what it will have—or else. That is, for the time being. There is no assurance about how much more it will be wanting or when. Production and distribution are getting the heat of attention now, but exhibition is what makes the motion picture important and when the New Deal looks at the motion picture industry it sees screens, screens, screens, thousands of them, all holding the attention of about 80,000,000 persons of whom many a million are voters.

The process is direct. The motion picture is, says the Government, "not a private affair. . . . " The contenders for consideration of the motion picture as a public utility seem to have Government backing. There was a time when industry and industrial considerations ruled in such a utility as electric power. The Government is in the power business all over the map, including TVA. Any mention of Passamaquoddy at this time is irrelevant, no matter if it is funny.

Speaking of TVA reminds one, too, of that grand array of alphabet bureaus and all of the other businesses in which they participate as commercial factors—HOLC, FHA, RFC, SEC and so on, and on.

Those are the labels on pieces of a jigsaw puzzle. A good many suspect that when they are all fitted together they will be found to spell totalitarianism.

Just incidentally, one is not to forget that along with shipping, power, farming and finance, the Government is also in the show business with the WPA theatre. And there is a WPA picture production project under promotion.

Wherever the nation's business is going, the motion picture is on the ride—by special invitation.

—TERRY RAMSAYE

This Week

The Buying Season

Doubt and uncertainty induced by rapidly shifting conditions with little prospect of stability at least for the next few months have combined to make motion picture buyers, both affiliated and independent, wary of committing themselves to product deals until the last possible moment. The buying season, normally well under way at this date, has therefore been appreciably delayed. With 1937-38 product running out, however, and with all of the distributors promising some of their most important pictures for release early in the fall a rapid pickup is expected this month.

For the third consecutive year Motion Picture Herald publishes, starting on page 12, a table showing what product has been contracted for to date by 83 circuits controlling more than 3,500 theatres. These, through their buying power, constitute the key to the market. This year, additionally, the table recapitulates the product purchases of the two previous seasons.

Special Pleading

Replying to a number of persons who, following a circularized suggestion of Albert Benham, director of the moving picture department of the National Council for the Prevention of War, in Washington, D. C., had written to Martin Quigley to protest his stand against invasion of the screen by propaganda, Mr. Quigley issued a communication restating his views and explaining his reasons therefor. Setting forth as untrue and unfair any attribution to him of lack of wholehearted interest in the cause of peace, he emphasized his belief that propaganda masquerading as entertainment would be dishonest procedure, pointed out there are many methods of disseminating ideas including the motion picture medium but not as entertainment pictures, and posed the question of who is to decide what brand of propaganda is to be used.

Mr. Quigley's reply is quoted in full on page 22.

Headquarters Moved

Decision of the International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employees to move their national headquarters which for years have been centered in Washington, D. C., from that city to New York was interpreted as the first step toward carrying out the organization's announced plans for complete organization of the motion picture industry. Centralization of their headquarters in New York, it is believed, will facilitate that end.

Announcement of the change is made on page 62.

Appeal Granted

Edward Cushman, federal judge in Tacoma, this week signed an order permitting the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers to appeal to the United States supreme court its case testing the constitutionality of the Washington state law requiring the filing of musical copyrights. The society's recent suit against the state and county officials was dismissed by a three-judge court because of ASCAP's failure to show that the jurisdictional amount of $3,000 was involved.

$1,500,000 Asked

Sam and Harry Fox and their Sam Fox Music Publishing Company filed a $1,500,000 action in New York supreme court Wednesday against Loew's, Inc., Robbins Music Corporation, Jack Robbins, Twentieth Century-Fox Films, and Movietone Music Corporation. The suit charges breach of contract by Twentieth Century-Fox and Movietone and conspiracy by the other defendants. An application by the plaintiffs for an examination before trial of Sidney R. Kent, Joseph Schenck, Darryl Zanuck and other Fox film executives will be heard August 15th.

Muto To Movietone

Anthony (Tony) Muto, former member of the Washington staff of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, this week resigned as publicity director in the Washington office of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes to become head of the Washington Bureau of the Fox Movietone News.

Mr. Muto will succeed Arthur De Titta who has been transferred to Paris as assistant foreign editor after serving in the Washington office since 1928. (See photos on page 11.)

Mr. Muto, a native of New Orleans, is a former newspaperman, having served with the Morning Telegraph, the World and the Telegram in New York. As correspondent for the London Daily Telegraph, he covered the Riff uprising, North Africa, the Druse Rebellion, Syria, and the Japanese attack on Shanghai. He also was engaged for a time doing publicity for the Italian State Railways. He joined the MPPDA staff in 1933 and resigned this year to join the IATSE.

Mr. De Titta also is a former newspaperman, having worked on the Hudson Dispatch, Union City, N. J., in 1918. He then joined Fox Film, doing general office work, then laboratory work and he later became assistant and second cameramen on several productions for both Fox and Paramount. He became Washington supervisor for Movietonews, Inc., in 1928.

Educational Field

A means by which large distributing companies may enter the educational film field was established this week when the General Education Board of the Rockefeller Foundation gave a grant to the Association of School Film Libraries to support its work for one year. The organization will serve as a clearing house for information on educational films and will serve as a liaison unit between producers of all types of films and users of fims in the educational field. The question of whether the major film companies will make their product available to educational institutions will not be determined until after the association is in a position to go to the various companies and inform them of the number of groups interested in obtaining prints of specified pictures. The film companies have a total of 849 pictures which a committee of educators appointed by the Motion Pictures Producers and Distributors of America last summer classified as suitable for educational purposes without any changes. Another 234 of the pictures reviewed were designated as suitable for educational purposes with minor changes.

The new association and the educational film field are discussed on page 31.

Reorganization Report

A 25-page report approving and recommending the amended RKO reorganization plan advocated by Atlas Corporation was filed in United States district court, New York, this week by George W. Alger, special master. Mr. Alger suggested five minor changes in the plan and termed it fair, equitable and feasible. Mr. Alger also held that the plan is constitutional and cited a federal court decision to substantiate his ruling. The filing of the report places the reorganization in the final stages. Immediately after receiving the report Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard set September 8th, for the beginning of final hearings before Federal Judge William Bondy.

13 Companies' Profits

Financial news of the week concerning companies in the motion picture and allied fields highlighted quarterly, semi-annual and/or annual financial reports, all listing profits, of 13 companies: Paramount, Twentieth Century-Fox, Keith-Albee-Orpheum, B. F. Keith, Radio Corporation, General Theatres, Gaumont-British, Associated British Pictures, General Theatres Corporation, Ltd., Trans Lux, Sonotone Corporation and Columbia Broadcasting.

Detailed statements appear on page 36.

For the Record

Speaking of the Government suit, inasmuch as the Department of Justice has in this document extracted extensively from "A Million and One Nights", or its encyclopedic derivatives, the author, who is also your editor, desires to file some slight amendments and corrections. The Government's statement that the original projection rate of 48 frames a second was "three times the speed of today" is in error. The silent picture was made at a minimum of 16 frames a second, while today's sound picture is, of necessity, controlled by synchronous motors, made and projected at a rate of 24 frames. The Government refers to the birth of the industry at a showing at Kosta & Bial's Music Hall. The name was Koster. It is stated that W. W. Hodkinson was "a San Francisco distributor". He was an exhibitor and a distributor in Utah. He was later in charge of the Pacific Coast territory for the General Film Company. The Government possibly has him confused with his partner and friend, Herman Wobber.

The Government asserts, page 36, "After dissolution of Motion Picture Patents Company in 1916, competition in the industry was free, open, untrammeled." That's a mistake. Your editor was there. It was a free-for-all, but the trammeling was general. —TERRY RAMSAYE

UA Plans

After a series of conferences in Hollywood with producers and producer-owners of United Artists, Murray Silverstone, new managing director of the company, returned to New York this week and announced that Charles Chaplin was in full accord with the company's profit sharing plan for producers. Mr. Silverstone also announced that additional financing of more than $1,500,000 had been given Walter Wanger.

The plans are revealed on page 52.

A Promise

The Department of Justice at Washington this week "promised" that there will be no further court actions taken against the motion picture industry for trade practices, pending disposition of the all-embracing equity suit filed July 20th against the eight majors and their subsidiaries and officers.

Meanwhile the industry found it necessary to postpone for a short period final action on its plan for self-regulation because of the attention required by the "Movie's Greatest Year" institutional advertising-publicity campaign.

Extending their plans for the $1,000,000 advertising and exploitation drive to make this year "Motion Pictures' Greatest Year," industry leaders this week arranged for a total of 18 regional meetings to enlist the support of exhibitors throughout the country. In Hollywood, committees to handle radio publicity, fan magazine releases and byline stories from notable characters were appointed.

The latest plans for the industry-wide drive are included in a story on page 28.

Canada Bars Games

Under new provisions of the Criminal Code of Canada, all slot machines and all chance games such as Bingo, Bank Night and Housie-Housie are banned. The new provisions went into effect this week and police departments thoughout the Dominion have been instructed to enforce the terms of the revised clauses. Teeth have been supplied to the criminal law by amendments adopted by the Parliament of Canada, designating as "a common gaming house" those premises where machines or games are played. Stiff penalties, including fines and prison terms, are provided for upon conviction. In addition, municipal governments are in the position of having the privilege of cancelling, following a conviction, the annual licenses of proprietors or operators for the sale of tobacco, soft drinks, refreshments or other commodities which are regulated by permit.

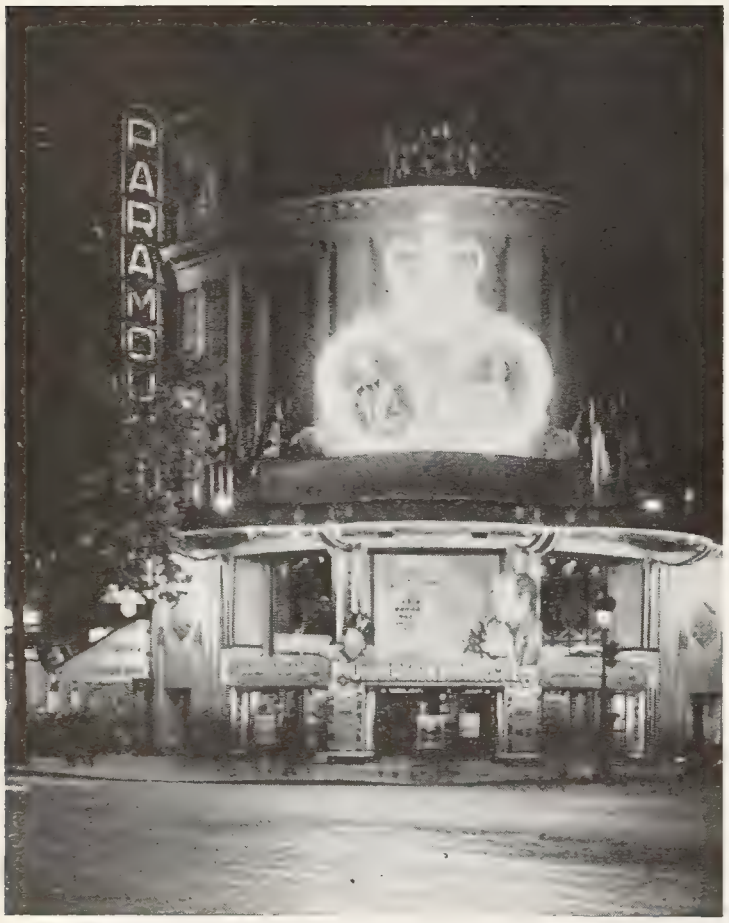
British Holiday

The British exhibitor on vacation, untroubled though he may appear, has sufficient problems before him to make his sleep far from dreamless. Looming on the immediate horizon are questions of rentals for independent exhibitors, the problem of large and increasing circuit control and redundancy. Leaders of the Cinematograph Exhibitors Association, cognizant of the future, have adopted a policy of secrecy regarding opinions and plans for action with the possibility that their own sleep is not to be too dreamless what with disagreement within the ranks threatening to break the united front.

Aubrey Flanagan explains what may spoil many an exhibitor's vacation on page 60.

Profit Sharing

Samuel Goldwyn on Wednesday announced the reorganization of his production company on a profit sharing basis for all executives. Robert Riskin, producer-writer, was made executive assistant to Mr. Goldwyn under the first profit-sharing contract. The producer said he would increase the company's schedule.



This Week In Pictures

Gabriel Pascal, English producer, and Dr. A. H. Giannini arrive in New York on the Normandie, Mr. Pascal bringing a print of his new George Bernard Shaw picture, "Pygmalion", and Dr. Giannini returning from a European vacation upon which he embarked after his resignation from the presidency of United Artists.

J. PARNELL THOMAS, left, Republican representative from New Jersey and a member of the Dies Committee investigating subversive activities, who has demanded an inquiry by the committee into the Federal Theatre and Writers Projects. The WPA theatre, he said, "not only is serving as a branch of the Communist organization but also is one more link in the vast and unparalleled New Deal propaganda machine". He demanded questioning of Mrs. Hallie Flanagan, national director of the theatre project.

Anthony Muto, above left, former member of the Washington staff of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, and more recently publicity head of the International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employees, is the new chief of the Washington bureau of Fox Movietone News. Arthur De Titta, above right, whom he succeeds, has been transferred to the newsreel's Paris office.

A. J. Vanni, Warner circuit Philadelphia zone manager, is congratulated by Mayor Bacon of Wilmington, Del., at ground-breaking ceremonies for the new $600,000 Warner house to be built in Wilmington.

Managers and executives of the Warner Philadelphia theatre zone gather for the presentation of exploitation awards to Dominick Lucente, Alhambra theatre, and Sid Poppay, Rialto theatre, for their campaigns on "Swing Your Lady". 83 CIRCUITS CONCLUDE 164 FILM CONTRACTS

Buying Season Delayed by Many Uncertainties but Rush for New Product Is Expected to Start This Month

Buying for the 1938-39 season is proceeding slowly with only a few of the more important franchise deals completed to date, a survey of 83 circuits which were included in similar canvasses in 1936 and 1937 indicates.

The 83 circuits, representing 3,518 theatres, have signed approximately 164 contracts with eight distributors, covering about 8,533 playdates. The theatres represented comprise 22 per cent of the total number in operation throughout the country but because of their buying power and their situation they constitute the primary goals of the distributor sales forces.

November, 1937, Compared

On November 6, 1937, the same circuits had included 533 contracts for 28,800 playdates and on December 19, 1936, the totals were 702 franchises and 36,000 playdates. The surveys published in these two years indicated that the sharpest increase in total sales usually occurs in the late fall months. The December, 1936 figures were 97 per cent greater than when the survey was first published in September of that year and the November, 1937, totals showed a gain of 75 per cent from October figures.

Distribution officials point out that although an attempt was made this year to advance the selling season several factors, one of which is the movement for trade practice regulation, have operated to retard the conclusion of important contracts. Both exhibitors and distributors have indicated that uncertainty over the immediate future has delayed sales.

Few Long Term Contracts

This uncertainty is further reflected in the fact that few if any long term contracts are being signed. With the exception of Columbia the distributors say that both buyer and seller generally have reached the conclusion that the protection aspects of long term contracts which originally brought them into being are now outweighed by the disadvantages of being committed to a definite product deal for longer than a year. Many of the distributors, however, signed long term contracts last year and in 1936 which have one or two years to run. The exception in this year's situation are Columbia's two year deal with the Loew circuit and three year contract with Wilmer & Vincent which recently were signed.

Early reports from the field indicate that neither percentages nor flat rentals will be increased greatly over those fixed last year which at that time represented a considerable gain over those obtained in previous years. The number of pictures sold on percentage deals is expected to be slightly greater, however, and it is the determination of these percentage deals which is said to be a further factor in delaying the season. Several of the distributors have not completed the bracketing of their new product and discussions of contract terms with buyers are being extended in many cases, weeks beyond their usual dates.

A table showing what product 83 of the larger circuits of the country have contracted to show during the 1938–39 season starts on page 13. In addition, the product purchased by these circuits for the two previous seasons is tabulated.

The deals, except in a few indicated instances, are for the entire product of the companies listed, only this type of contract having been considered for purposes of the survey.

The circuits listed represent 3,518 theatres, about 22 per cent of the total number in the country, but important enough, through their buying power, to constitute the key to the film market.

The table shows, for this year, a total of 164 contracts signed, representing 8,533 playdates.

On November 6, 1937, there were 533 franchises signed for 28,782 playdates, and on December 19, 1936, there were 702 franchises for 35,802 playdates.

None Completes Buying

Examination of the table on the following pages shows that none of the circuits has completed its buying for the year, many of them having completed deals for the product of only one company, representing only previous years. Even the distributor controlled circuits have not arranged their programs as yet.

Only eight distributors were considered in the survey since the circuits included usually complete their deals with the major companies before turning to the small independent producers to supplement their programs. United Artists, however, also is omitted because most of its franchises are sold on a single picture basis. The distributors included and their product totals promised for the 1938-39 season are:

Columbia, 62; Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, 44 to 52; Paramount, 58; RKO, 48; Republic, 55; Twentieth Century-Fox, 56; Universal, 52, and Warner Brothers, 52.

Most of these companies still have several pictures to be deliverd on their 1937-38 programs, a table published on June 18th showing that 180 of a total of 590 scheduled productions had not been released at that time.

Before September, however, most of the larger distributors will be ready to launch their new programs, and circuit operators are expected, in consequence, to settle down to serious buying this month. The last weeks of July brought the first indications of this expected rush for product. Many of the more important deals listed in the accompanying table for next season's product were concluded since July 15th.

Suit Arouses Speculation

There is much speculation, however, among industry leaders on the possible results of the filing of the Government's anti-trust suit in equity seeking the legal abolition of block selling and the divorce of theatre interests from production. In its petition to the court the Department of Justice requested an injunction restraining block selling, among other practices, pending settlement of the suit.

In view of the lateness of the season, it is believed possible that the distributors in many cases will allow the larger circuits, such as those listed in this table to date, the new season product, pending negotiation of full-year contracts. This is expected, because most of the producers are listing some of their most important pictures of the year for release this month or early in the fall and it is believed that they will make every effort to hold the pictures to their scheduled dates whether complete product deals have been made or not.

Studios Active

A review of Hollywood's expectations for the first months of the new season was published in Motion Picture Herald July 23, 1938. In that review Gus McCarthy, writing from Hollywood, said approximately 75 pictures had started since June 15th and that at no time since that date had the number of productions in work averaged less than 50. Much of this activity was concerned with productions which their producers expect will be among their topnotch efforts of the year.

These include "You Can't Take It With You," Columbia; "Too Hot to Handle" and "The Great Waltz," Merto-Goldwyn-Mayer; "If I Were King" and "Artists and Models Abroad," Paramount; "Gunga Din" and "Room Service," RKO; "Head Over Heels," "The Sisters" and "Angels with Dirty Faces," Warner Brothers; "Road to Reno," "Letter of Introduction" and "Youth Takes a Fling," Universal; "Hold That Co-Ed" and "Five of a Kind," Twentieth Century-Fox; "The Young in Heart," "There Goes My Heart" and "Titanic," Selznick International; "The Lady and the Cowboy," "The Daring Age" and "Wuthering Heights," Goldwyn, and "Trade Wind" and "State Coach," Walter Wanger.

PRODUCT BOUGHT BY 83 CIRCUITS

The following table shows the product purchased by the larger circuits of the country for 1936–37, 1937–38 and for 1938–39 season as far as sales have progressed. Long term franchise deals are indicated where such information is available. Many circuits affiliated with distributors have long term contracts but under terms which provide for negotiations each year, the contracts thus amounting to continuing options. Opposite the name of each circuit are the approximate number of theatres included and the territory in which they are situated. The three columns under each circuit's name indicate the product bought for each of the three years. The name of a distributor followed by a figure in parentheses indicates that the product of that company was bought only for that number of theatres.

The Making of a Hit

Add the gentle Edgar Bergen, so persevering with the spirit of his inner-self; a spirit some call McCarthy —a Bergen who exemplifies that freak of entertainment, the comedy foil who is also the master!

"designs of propaganda . . . invasive of motion picture's status . . ."

AT the circularized suggestion of Albert Benham, director of the moving picture department of the National Council for Prevention of War, Washington, D. C., a number of persons have, in the pattern outlined by Mr. Benham, addressed letters to Martin Quigley taking issue with his stand, editorially and on the public rostrum, against the invasion of the screen by propaganda. It is Mr. Benham's notion that the theatre screen should present pleas of pacifism.

Mr. Quigley has by way of response issued a communication to Mr. Benham's respondents, saying:

Because of your evident good-will and sincerity of purpose, I am taking this means to reply to your recent communication which was one of several apparently instigated by Mr. Arthur Benham in the May 10th bulletin of the National Council for the Prevention of War.

Mr. Benham has either misstated or insufficiently explained my position.

To attribute to me either hostility toward or lack of hearty interest in the maintenance of international peace and amity is unfair and untrue. There is, of course, no cause which inescapably commands greater devotion from all right-thinking people than the cause of international peace.

As to the right and proper purview of the entertainment screen, I do advocate an avoidance of propaganda of any character. It is my belief that propaganda masquerading as entertainment would be dishonest procedure. There are many and adequate media open for the dissemination of ideas other than the entertainment screen. The medium of the film itself is commonly available. When theatre audiences pay the admission price, they have the right to be protected against special pleadings disguised as entertainment, however lofty in ideal these special pleadings may be.

Under our guarantee of free speech, what defense could be made against the acceptance upon the screen of an anti-peace picture if a pro-peace picture is accepted? If propaganda is to be admitted to the entertainment screen, whose propaganda is it to be? Have the producers of theatrical films, who are dedicated to the business of entertainment, the right or the responsibility — or even the necessary qualifications—to determine what concepts of the great political, social and economic issues of the day shall be inculcated into the impressionable minds of the patrons of motion picture theatres?

Yes, with every reasonable assurance they might seek to aid the cause of international peace. But how shall this be done? By advocating disarmament to remove the temptations inherent in arms or preparedness as a warning to the potential aggressor?

It is entirely true that the producer, under the influence of the events of the times, may picture scenes or situations susceptible of interpretation as advancing one cause or another. But this is something very different in essence and in long range effect than deliberately embarking upon designs of propaganda.

In my opinion, those who advocate that the entertainment screen shall assume the role of propagandist have not thought the question through.

The adoption of such a role would be invasive of the motion picture's status as the most popular and most generally accepted form of public amusement. And there can be no real assurance that in the long run it might not rather render harm than good to the public welfare.

—MARTIN QUIGLEY

Columbia British Plans To Be Ready Shortly

Joseph A. McConville, foreign sales manager for Columbia, and Joseph Friedman, European manager for the company, promised an early announcement on Columbia's British quota production plans, at a press conference which was held in London early this week.

The two declared the company probably will fulfill its quota obligations with two or three double-quota productions. Mr. Friedman indicated as a certainty that Columbia's British product would be of high grade.

Railway Express Takes Over Southeastern's Business

The Railway Express Agency, which handles thousands of film shipments annually, this week took over express operations on the Southern Railway, Mobile & Ohio and 27 other lines, succeeding the Southeastern Express Company, which has withdrawn from the express business.

The incorporation of the former Southeastern express operations, added 9,642.54 miles of steam railroad lines to the nearly 200,000 rail mileage of the Express Agency, as well as additional miscellaneous mileage on steamship and truck lines.

Otterson Expects 150 Houses to Use Foreign Features

Inter-Allied Films expects to line up a total of between 150 and 200 houses for the showing of French and English "artistic" pictures, John E. Otterson, head of the company, declared Monday when he arrived in New York from France aboard the Normandie. The company, he said, already is assured of showings in 90 houses in Greater New York, Connecticut, New Jersey and Pennsylvania, all within 100 miles of Manhattan.

Mr. Otterson brought with him 12 pictures as the first consignment of about 25 which he expects to import within the next year. While abroad, Mr. Otterson set up subsidiary companies in France and England to handle the negotiations and deals for future product.

Of the 25 films to be imported, it was estimated that from 15 to 17 would be French and the remainder English. Operations are scheduled to start October 1st, with distribution headquarters in New York.

The pictures, the titles of which will be announced in the near future, Mr. Otterson said, were chosen by Mr. Otterson and Harry Lachman, an adviser, who remained in Paris to conclude several deals.

In addition to the 25 features, Mr. Otterson said his company also will import a number of short subjects.

The company, it was explained, is not interested in merely importing foreign product. The pictures, it was explained, must contain some special artistic merit.

All theatres in which the pictures will be shown will be "selected" and exhibition will be on a class basis, Mr. Otterson explained.

Mr. Otterson said his venture is strongly backed by a Paris group headed by Marc Lauer, who is active in film and financial circles.

Nazi "Doctoring" Of Film Denied

Charges made by John Roxborough, co-manager of Joe Louis, heavy-weight champion, that motion pictures of the last Louis-Schmeling fight were doctored for exhibition in Germany, were denied this week by the German News Bureau in New York City after receipt of a cablegram from Berlin. The News Bureau stated that no pictures of the second fight were shown in Germany.

Roxborough had claimed that the fight film shown in Germany as the record of the last battle was, in reality, a combination of the second round of the first fight in which Schmeling was shown battering Louis, and then a slow motion shot of the "kidney punch" that ended the recent bout.

The cablegram was quoted as stating "it is authoritatively stated that film of the second fight was not shown at all, as the film arrived in Germany too late."

'NO FURTHER ACTIONS' AGAINST INDUSTRY, GOVERNMENT PROMISES

But Department of Justice Indicates Exception May Be Taken in Fox West Coast Case Involving Consent Decree

The United States Government has no plans to bring any further court actions against the motion picture industry for its trade practices pending disposition of the suit in equity which it filed through the Department of Justice on July 20th against the eight majors, 24 subsidiaries and 133 of their officers.

This statement of "assurance," made this week by Department officials at Washington, was received with amusing surprise by motion picture officials in New York who wondered how much else the Government could complain about in addition to its all-embracing pending petition, which would divorce production companies from exhibition and exhibition companies from production, eliminate block booking and Hollywood's talent pool and abolish virtually every major form of practice in distribution-exhibition.

Not that the filing of the existing action by the Government prevents it from entering any number of additional suits against the majors. The companies simply have taken it for granted that the extensiveness of the present suit would scarcely warrant any further Governmental moves against them in the courts.

On top of reports from Washington that Justice Department officials are pleased with the "friendly" attitude of industry leaders following filing of the suit, Attorney General Homer Cummings was quoted Tuesday in Wall Street Journal as insisting that the Justice Department is determined to remedy evils of monopolies either through court action or legislation, adding that the Department first would resort to all the avenues of the courts, but if that were unavailing then it would go to Congress for the remedies. The Department said as much in the statement it issued July 20th in explanation of reasons for filing its suit against the film industry.

New evidence of the spurt of activity in the Department of Justice came this week. Following its sweeping and unprecedented action against motion pictures, the Department on Monday moved in Washington for a federal grand jury investigation of the Medical Society of the District of Columbia and the American Medical Association for monopolistic practices in connection with the refusal of the association to permit medical members to participate in the Group Health Association, a community medical plan of Washington. The Justice Department now says the doctors have a monopoly.

Russell Hardy, special assistant to the Attorney General, will leave the Department of Justice this month to engage in the practice of law, it was announced Tuesday in Washington.

Mr. Hardy, who has been connected with the Department for 24 years, was in charge of the trial of the film companies in the St. Louis suit, and it had been expected he would figure prominently in the prosecution of the Department's pending case against the majors.

The Justice Department's Washington statement of "assurance" that no further suits will be brought against the film business at this time also indicated that an exception to the "promise" may be the California theatre circuit situation, which involves charges of violation of an old consent decree in the Fox West Coast Theatres case.

Department officials explained that the present industry-wide case involves every issue which has been raised against the producer-distributors in the many "territorial" cases brought in the past as well as involving the subjects of complaint from independent interests.

While motion picture lawyers this week were continuing their study of the 23,000-word government complaint against the majors, preparatory to writing the answers that must be filed, deputies from the United States marshal's office in New York were scurrying around town with subpoenas for the 167 corporate and individual defendants named in the suit. At the halfway mark this week all but approximately 30 of the corporate defendants and home office executives had been served.

Those served comprise about half of the total defendants.

In most instances, service was preceded by a phone call from the United States marshal's office to ascertain whether those for whom subpoenas had been issued would be available and would accept service. So far as could be learned none refused to accept service.

The United States district court in New York granted a federal petition for authorization to serve Irving Trust Company, which, as trustee in reorganization for RKO, was named a defendant even though it is under the jurisdiction of the same court in which the

Zanuck Defends Interchange Of Talent by Major Studios

Interchanging of talent by the large motion picture companies, one of the items mentioned in the government's monopoly action against the industry, was defended by Darryl Zanuck, vice-president in charge of production for Twentieth Century-Fox, when he arrived in New York aboard the Normandie Monday.

Returning from an eight-week European trip, Mr. Zanuck readily admitted that interchanging exists and then asked: "But why should we make our talent available to smaller studios? What have they to offer?

"The only reason we let other studios have our actors or writers is because they have other talent to give us in return.

"What have the independent producers that we want? Money? We have plenty of money. We will give them our talent if they can offer us something valuable in the way of creative talent in return. I have four assistants who started with me as office boys. There are fine writers among them. We have developed them over a period of years. Why should we make them available to another studio that can give us nothing of value?"

Mr. Zanuck also disclosed that his company is planning a progressive increase in British production. The company made three pictures in England for the 1937-'38 season, will make six for 1938-'39 and plans nine for 1939-'40. This year's films will all be designed for triple quota credits and will be produced with a budget of $2,500,000.

"We are watching the trend of the market on British films and do not intend to expand our British production too quickly, because you can expand yourself out of business," Mr. Zanuck remarked.

The films produced in England this year will be intended for the world market, Mr. Zanuck said, intimating that the rate of increase in British output will depend on the extent to which the world market can absorb it.

During his trip, Mr. Zanuck said he obtained options on stories and negotiations were started for fresh talent, including an unnamed English actress.

The production executive said he was impressed by the progress made in French studios, but pointed out that because of the language used he believes that their consumption is limited and American companies have little or nothing to fear from that direction.

Eddie Cantor also returned on the Normandie and planned to leave for the coast with Mr. Zanuck late this week. During the trip west, Mr. Zanuck, Mr. Cantor and two writers will confer on plans for Mr. Cantor's next picture, tentatively titled "The Average Man."

Mr. Cantor said that on his trip to England he had raised $550,000 to help children in Austria, Germany and Poland.

anti-trust suit was brought. Counsel for Irving Trust asked and was granted several changes in the wording of the petition, but otherwise did not oppose it. It is assumed, therefore, that the court will approve the petition.

20 Days to File Answers

The defendants who remain unserved are either west coast executives, home office executives who are out of the city, or members of company boards of directors whose places of business are not those of the several companies' headquarters, and as listed in the action. Indications are that it will take some time to complete service on all of the defendants. Those served have 20 days in which to file answers.

The corporate defendants who have been served include Paramount Pictures, Inc., Paramount Pictures Distributing Co., Inc., Paramount News, Inc., Loew's, Inc., Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Corp., RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., Keith-Albee-Orpheum Corp., Pathe News, Inc., RKO Proctor Corp., RKO Midwest Corp., Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc., Vitagraph, Inc., Warner Bros. Circuit Management Corp., 20th Century-Fox Film Corp., Movietonews, Inc., 20th Century-Fox Distributing Corp., National Theatres Corp., Chase National Bank, Columbia Pictures Corp., Columbia Pictures Distributing Co., Inc., Universal Corp., Universal Pictures Co., Inc., Big U Film Exchanges, Inc., and United Artists Corp.

Individual Defendants Served

Among the individual defendants who have been served are, from Paramount, Barney Balaban, Neil F. Agnew, Y. Frank Freeman, John W. Hicks, Jr., Austin Keough, Walter B. Cokell, Stanton Griffis and several members of the Paramount board of directors.

Loew's, Nicholas M. Schenck, William F. Rodgers, Isidore Frey, Charles C. Moskowitz.

RKO, Leo Spitz, William Mallard, Jules Levy, David Sarnoff, Lunsford P. Yandell, M. H. Aylesworth, Malcolm Kingsberg and Leon Goldberg.

Warners, Albert Warner, Sam E. Morris, Robert W. Perkins, Joseph Bernhard, Gradwell L. Sears and W. S. McDonald.

20th Century-Fox, W. C. Michel, Felix Jenkins, Herman G. Place, Truman Talley, Spyros Skouras and Herman Wobber.

Columbia, Harry Cohn, Jack Cohn, A. Schneider, Charles Schwartz, Abe Montague.

Universal, J. Cheever Cowdin, Samuel Machnovitch, N. J. Blumberg, Peyton Gibson, Daniel C. Collins, Budd Rogers and W. A. Scully.

United Artists, George J. Schaefer, Harry D. Buckley, Arthur W. Kelly, Dennis F. O'Brien and Edward C. Raftery.

Although definitely determined to go ahead with its program for effecting self-regulation despite the government's suit, the industry this week found it necessary to postpone action for a short time because of the attention required on the development and launching of the industrywide "Motion Picture's Greatest Year" campaign. Virtually all of the sales managers, whose presence would be necessary in New York to complete the self regulation program, have taken on assignments to travel into the field to organize and preside at a series of 18 regional meetings with exhibitors to further the "better movies" campaign (details of which appear on page 28.)

When they are available, the sales managers, along with S. R. Kent, Leo Spitz and Nicholas Schenck, co-chairman of the trade practice committee, will renew their study of the self-regulation program with a view to determine possible changes to conform with some of the complaints listed in the government suit.

With the return of Mr. Kent this week to New York from a vacation in Maine, it was learned that his negotiation committee had rejected a proposal for a clause in exhibition contracts which would provide for adjudication of exhibitor grievances by voluntary conciliation by territorial boards.

It is almost certain, however, that the distributors' program will embrace some form of local conciliation, or grievance board, outside of contractual commitments.

Chicago Conferences Continue

Joseph Rosenberg, attorney for independent exhibitors in Chicago, is continuing conferences there to seek a remedy for the 10-week clearance period accorded Balaban and Katz houses. Mr. Rosenberg denied that plans for the filing of a suit by the independents against B. & K. and Paramount are definitely set.

No agreement to eliminate double featuring in Chicago will be entered into by Paramount or Balaban and Katz with independent exhibitors from that city, who have made the request as a remedy for complaints against the 10-week clearance accorded B. & K. houses it was said in New York this week.

The statement followed conferences in New York last week with a Chicago exhibitor committee consisting of Jack Kirsch, president of Allied of Illinois; Edward Silverman and Van Nomikos, independent circuit exhibitors, and Mr. Rosenberg, attorney for the independents.

It was said that proposals had been made to the exhibitor committee under which B. and K. would modify its existing clearance practice. It was not stated what form the modification would take, but it was emphasized that any agreement involving the elimination of double features in Chicago was regarded as being "completely out of the question" by Paramount and B. and K.

Preparing Dakota Brief

Paramount and North Dakota attorneys are preparing a decree giving effect to the recent decision of the three-judge federal statutory court at Fargo upholding constitutionality of the state's divorcement law. Preparation of the proposed decree is expected to be completed by August 15. After it is entered and signed by the court, Paramount can appeal the decision to the U. S. supreme court, a course which the distributor already has indicated will be followed. Meanwhile, it is expected the decree will continue in force the temporary injunction obtained by Paramount restraining the state from enforcing its law prohibiting theatre ownership or operation by producers and/or distributors. After filing of the decree, Paramount has 90 days to take its appeal to the high court.

GIVES WARNING ON SECURITY CARDS

Reports reaching the Social Security Board that children barred from work by child labor laws are being illegally hired because they happen to have social security account cards, caused John J. Corson, director of the board's Bureau of Old-Age Insurance, this week to issue a warning that possession of such a card is not evidence of the holder's employability.

"The responsibility of an employer to comply with federal and state laws regarding the hiring of minors is not affected by the fact that the applicant for work may display an account card," he said. "Possession of an account number card is not evidence of anything except that the holder has established the right to have set up for him a wage account under the federal old-age insurance system," Mr. Corson said.

New Overbuying Complaint

A complaint on overbuying in Kansas and western Missouri has been registered with Spyros Skouras, head of National Theatres, by Glen W. Dickinson, president of the Dickinson circuit of 40 theatres with headquarters in Kansas City.

Mr. Dickinson, who came to New York, spent an hour with Mr. Skouras and other executives of National Theatres. After the conference he said that he discussed practices of Fox Midwest, which, he claims, are objected to by independents.

The chief complaint concerns overbuying, Mr. Dickinson said, and he charges that Fox Midwest has contracted for more than 100 features a year in excess of its requirement. Mr. Dickinson and Fox Midwest are competitors in a number of towns.

Mr. Dickinson said that in Manhattan, Kan., Commonwealth circuit took over the Wareham on the expiration of the Dickinson circuit's lease. Both Mr. Dickinson and Commonwealth are in the midst of a theatre acquisition race and are strong competitors. Commonwealth has increased its holdings to 38 theatres, from a mere handful a few years ago.

WB Acquires Cartoon Strip

Warner Brothers this week completed a deal with the Des Moines Register and Tribune Syndicate for the acquisition of "Jane Arden," which appears as a cartoon strip in more than 100 daily newspapers and which runs as a radio broadcast series five days a week. The number of films to be produced in the series has not been determined. Jane Arden is a girl reporter.

Hellinger Made Producer

Mark Hellinger, former Broadway columnist, this week was promoted from the rank of screen writer to producer at Warner Brothers Studio. Mr. Hellinger's first assignment will be "Hell's Kitchen." His last assignment as a writer was on "Curtain Call."

Saenger Buys Alexandria House

Saenger Theatres, Inc., this week purchased from C and C Enterprises a new theatre in the Pendleton Building at Alexandria, La. The circuit now has three houses in Alexandria. The new house has not been named yet and no date for the opening has been set.

RKO Radio has given new contracts to three of the studio's department heads: Darrell Silvera, property; Van Nest Polglase, art, and Tom Peer, drapery.

DRIVE FOR 'FILMS' GREATEST YEAR' IS TAKEN TO 18 MEETINGS IN FIELD

Whitbeck Will Produce Campaign Picture and Trailers; Advertising, Publicity and Exploitation Leaders Are Assigned

Backed by pledges of support, financial and otherwise, from producers, distributors, affiliated theatres and leading independent circuits, committees for the "Motion Pictures' Greatest Year" campaign set full speed ahead this week with preparations for the launching of the $1,000,000 drive on September 1st.

The industry-wide plan to stimulate attendance at the nation's theatres and thus bring about a 10 to 20 per cent increase in box office receipts, will be carried to exhibitors in all sections at a series of 18 regional meetings, the first three of which were held this week. Although all meeting places have been decided upon, dates are still to be determined.

Whitbeck To Make Campaign Film

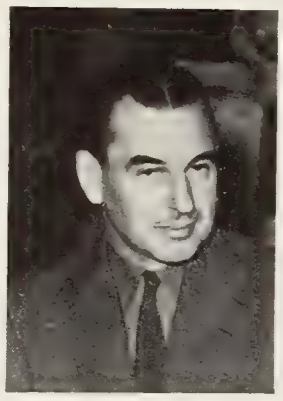
While the eastern office of the campaign was concerned chiefly with arranging for the sectional meetings and making major assignments in the preparatory work, plans for Hollywood's end of the national advertising and exploitation drive were crystalized at a meeting of studio publicity men and theatre representatives. A permanent committee was selected, contact officers named and delegation of primary activities set.

The committee unanimously elected Frank Whitbeck to take charge of and produce a short subject for the general campaign. The picture, which will be one or two reels, will have a cast of leading players. Mr. Whitbeck also will supervise the production of trailers and other film subjects required.

It had been planned to enlist the aid of stars in personal appearances but this plan was discarded because of the difficulty of working out a schedule.

Studio Assignments Made

Working with Mr. Whitbeck will be a committee composed of George Dickson, Disney; Herbert Moulton, Paramount; Edward Selzer, Warner Brothers; Dave Lipton, Universal; Jim Pollack, RKO; Troy Orr, Twentieth Century-Fox; Charles Leonard, United Artists, and Walter Temple, Columbia.



The committee, as in New York, parceled out assignments for publicity material which is to be provided by the studios. Byline stories from Hollywood notables and nationally known writers are being gathered for immediate distribution.

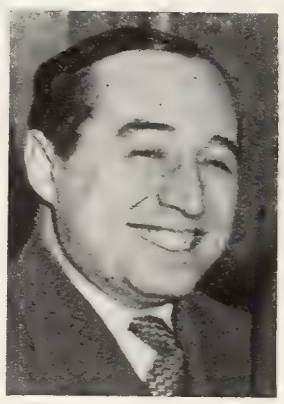
Key Appointments Completed

The organizing work in New York was completed with the assignment of advertising, publicity and exploitation men to the remaining key posts in the campaign.

In addition, Donahue & Coe was designated as the advertising agency through which the preparation and execution of the advertising material and placements will be handled. All advertising agencies who service motion picture distributors, the Biow Company, Inc., Blaine-Thompson, Buchanan & Company, Donahue & Coe, J. Walter Thompson, Lord & Thomas, and the Kayton-Spiero Company have combined their contribution to the industry campaign.

Leading Exploitation For the Campaign

S. Barret McCormick, publicity.



Monroe Greenthal, exploitation.

Oscar A. Doob, circuit promotion.

Al Wilkie, stills, monthlies, weeklies.

Harry Goldberg, circuit promotion.

John Dowd, circuit promotion.

Edward Churchill, president of Donahue & Coe, plans a rapid tour of the larger centers.

Of the total budget of $1,000,000, between $500,000 and $600,000 will be expended on advertising, and the campaign, an institutional one, will have as its keynote "The Movies Are Your Best Entertainment." The remainder of the budget will be for 5,000 contest prizes, $250,000, and for literature, lobby displays and the production of the short subject, $150,000 to $175,000.

The preparation of a booklet containing questions to be answered by entrants in the "movie quiz" contest is already under way, and 100,000,000 copies will be distributed to theatres by September 1st.

Howard Dietz, promotion chairman, has completed assignments for a huge press book which will carry full details of the advertising campaign and the promotion connected with the contest. The press book will be in three sections, publicity, advertising and exploitation.

Monroe Greenthal of United Artists, will have charge of the exploitation section, S. Barret McCormick, of RKO, the publicity section, and the advertising section will be handled by Mr. Dietz, who also will serve as member ex-officio on all committees.

Al Wilkie of Paramount was appointed to handle stills in connection with the drive and also to head the committee which has charge of promotion in monthly and weekly magazines.

Circuit Promotion Committee

A committee of circuit promotion heads consists of Oscar Doob, of Loew's, chairman; Harry Goldberg of Warner Theatres, John Dowd of RKO, and the publicity directors of a number of independent circuits who were invited by letter to serve.

The regional meetings, in addition to stirring up interest in the campaign, also are expected to aid in the drive for the final $175,000 of campaign funds from independent exhibitors. The producing and distributing companies have pledged $500,000 and affiliated circuits $250,000 contingent upon contribution of another $250,000 by independent theatremen. Following a meeting in New York last week independent circuit operators, representing 744 theatres with 750,000 seats, pledged their financial support. Contributions in this group are at the rate of ten cents for each seat in the houses operated by the circuits, making a total contribution of $75,000 and leaving $175,000 yet to be obtained.

First Regional Meetings Held

A meeting was held at the Statler hotel, Detroit, Wednesday. H. M. Richey was named territorial chairman. The 65 present represented 200 theatres. Mr. Richey and David Palfreyman were in charge.

The second meeting was in Cleveland Thursday with M. B. Horowitz and Gradwell L. Sears presiding, and the third session was in Chicago Friday with Mr. Sears and Edwin Silverman in charge.

Mr. Shaefer next week will attend the Boston meeting which will be under direction of Nathan Yamins. In Denver the meeting will be conducted by Rick Ricketson and A. P. Archer; in Washington, D. C., by John Payette, Carter Baron and Robert Smeltzer; in Atlanta, by William J. Jenkins and Robert Mochrie; in Toronto, by J. J. Fitzgibbons and Haskell Masters; in Philadelphia, by Joe Bernhard, Lewen Pizor and Ben Amsterdam; in Dallas and Oklahoma, by R. E. Griffith and R. J. O'Donnell; in Seattle, John Danz and Frank Newman; in Milwaukee, Mr. Sears and Mr. Silverman; in Vancouver, John Danz; in Minneapolis, Al Steffes and A. W. Smith, Jr.; in Los Angeles and San Francisco, Spyros Skouras and Herman Wobber; in Kansas City, Clarence Schultz, Glen W. Dickinson, Elmer Rhoden and Ed Dubinsky, and in Memphis, M. A. Lightman and F. J. Willingham.

Exhibitors who have pledged the standard theatre contributions to the campaign include:

S. J. Switow, 13 theatres; Elmore Heins, four; John Danz, 28; Ed Dubinsky, 12; A. P. Archer, seven; W. S. Wilder, six; Lewen Pizor, nine; J. M. Seider, 31; Edwin Silverman, 27; Arthur Schoenstadt, 16; Jack Kirsh (Villa Theatre, Chicago), one; Van Nomikos,

On Wednesday a purchasing committee was appointed in New York. It is composed of Agnes Mengel, purchasing agent at Paramount; Jerry Loeb, of Warner Brothers, and Ida Garrison of United Artists.

On the coast the committee of studio and theatre representatives this week engaged George Thomas, Joe Shea and Bob Burkhardt to head a clearing bureau for the studios' participation. Offices were opened at 6331 Hollywood Boulevard. In New York, the offices are at 1540 Broadway and Paul Gulick, former Universal publicity director, is coordinator.

Two additions to Mr. Gulick's staff were announced on Wednesday. Miss Beulah Livingstone was granted a five months' leave of absence from Artcinema Associates, Inc., to assist Mr. Gulick with special feature and syndicate stories on the industry's drive and also to serve on the magazine committee.

Al Selig, publicity man, also was added to Mr. Gulick's staff in the capacity of a special writer. He will aid in preparing the campaign's press book.

Beetson To Contact Guilds

Fred Beetson was chosen on the Coast to contact and arrange cooperation by the Screen Actors Guild, Screen Writers Guild, screen playwrights and Screen Directors Guild. John LeRoy Johnston, Wanger publicity director, will have charge of fan magazine publicity. Radio publicity and exploitation will be directed by Irving Rubine of Warner Brothers. Cliff Lewis, Paramount studio head, will supervise all general exploitation.

The permanent studio publicity and theatre representatives' committee is headed by Gabe Yorke. The members are Herbert Moulton, Paramount; Howard Benedict, RKO; Frank Seltzer, Roach; Troy Orr, 20th Century-Fox; Dave Lipton, Universal; Robert Taplinger, Warners; Gregory Dickson, Disney; Al Vaughan, Goldwyn; Paul Snell, Principal; Russell Birdwell, Selznick; John LeRoy Johnston, Wanger; Ted Richmond, Grand National; Joe Reddy, Lloyd; Bill Pierce, Jr., Monogram; Walter Compton, Republic; Charles Leonard, U. A.; Ben Wallerstein, Warner Theatres; Jack Gross, RKO Theatres; Thornton Sargent, Fox West Coast; Fred Marshall, Columbia; Howard Stickling and Frank Whitbeck, MGM, and Murphy McHenry, Edward Small.

A committee headed by N. A. Taylor, chairman of the Moving Picture Branch of the Toronto Board of Trade, will abandon its plan to organize a cooperative business-getting drive during the week of September 19th, under the general name of "Go-to-the-Movies Week," and, instead, will join in the "Motion Pictures' Greatest Year."

The reason for the change in arrangements, which is yet to be officially sanctioned by the Canadian committee, is obviously that a united campaign coordinating with that in the States would have advantages in the use of extensive advertising material under preparation, while announcements in publications having circulation in Canada, together with appropriate radio programs, would be applicable to the Dominion without change.

NATIONAL THEATRES PLANS FALL DRIVE

Spyros Skouras, head of National Theatres, will meet in Kansas City, August 9th, 10th and 11th, with district and division managers from Fox Midwest, the Milwaukee and the Rocky Mountain divisions to discuss plans for a fall drive for business.

The annual convention of Fox Midwest managers, which will be held at the Hotel President August 16th and 17th, will be planned at a meeting in Kansas City, August 1st and 2nd, of district managers with E. C. Rhoden, head of Fox Midwest.

An "August Jubilee of Movie Hits" will be staged by the Standard Theatres of Oklahoma City as a means of overcoming the seasonal decline in business during the current month. A proclamation will be issued by Frank Martin, mayor, and newsreel shots of the event will be made and shown in Standard houses.

A drive to convert non-filmgoers was undertaken this week by the Loew's circuit as a challenge to a recent magazine estimate that there are 50,000,000 persons in the United States who never or seldom attend motion picture theatres. Tieups are being made with newspapers.

American Tobis to Liquidate

W. E. W. Van Bevern, managing director and secretary of American Tobis Corporation this week announced that the company's business will be liquidated. The corporate identity of the company will be maintained so that the company may resume activities under new direction at some future date. Mr. Van Bevern said he hoped to close the corporation's offices by August 15th. He said he would make known his personal plans within a few days.

McGowan Named Secretary

J. P. McGowan, Hollywood's oldest director in point of service, was signed on Tuesday as executive director of the Screen Directors Guild to succeed F. Herrick Herrick, resigned. Mr. McGowan started directing in New York in 1910 and moved to the coast in 1912.

Twenty-eigth managers of Warner Brothers theatres attended an annual convention at the Mayflower Hotel, Washington, this week, to discuss product for the 1938-39 season. Following the meeting an outing was held at Annapolis Roads, Md.

Robert E. Reiley, owner and operator of the Capital in Riverhead, L. I., died July 31st, at Columbia Medical Center, New York. He was 63 years old. Mr. Reiley built the Capital 16 years ago.

Start Long Island Drive-in Theatre

The erection of an outdoor automobile motion picture theatre was started last week on a 12-acre site on the Sunrise Highway in Valley Stream, Long Island. It is said to be the first theatre of its kind in New York State.

The theatre, which is being built under the supervision of the architectural and engineering department of the Chanin Organization, builders and developers, will be completed and opened in about six weeks. The theatre has been leased for a long term to the Sunrise Auto Theatres, Inc., of 30 State Street, Boston, who will operate it.

The theatre will be laid out in a series of semi-circular graded ramps which will elevate the fronts of each row of cars and depress the rear ends so that patrons may view the pictures above the automobiles in front of them.

The pictures will be projected upon a large screen, 60 by 48 feet, placed well above ground level, and the angle of projection will be slightly upward instead of down as in the usual motion picture house.

The screen and the sound-amplifying equipment will be located in a steel and concrete stage structure about 134 feet wide and 80 feet high. Space for offices and workrooms will be provided under the stage. The exterior of this structure, which will be modern in style, will have gray, terra-cotta and blue as the predominating colors.

The projection booth, instead of being placed in the rear of the "auditorium," will be located at the lateral of the fourth ramp, about 245 feet from the screen. The booth will be slightly depressed so that it will not interfere with the view of patrons seated in cars behind it.

The Valley Stream project will occupy a ground area about 10 times that used for the Roxy theatre, New York, which was built by Chanin in 1927.

Emanuel Cohen Returns From Italian Film Study

Emanuel Cohen, producer, returned to New York Tuesday aboard the Aquitania after several months spent in the various capitals of Europe during which he was reported to have made a survey of the feasibility of American participation in Italian film production.

Mr. Cohen said he may announce his production plans in the near future. At present he is planning a vacation in Maine.

Reserves Atlantic Ruling

Ferdinand Pecora, New York supreme court justice, this week reserved decision on the application of Atlantic Film Productions, Ltd., to vacate a warrant of attachment against Atlantic which was obtained by George McLeod Baynes, plaintiff in a suit to obtain $30,000 in alleged commissions from Atlantic.

ROCKEFELLER CASH PAVES WAY FOR INDUSTRY TO ENTER SCHOOL FIELD

Newly Formed Association of School Film Libraries Is Granted Funds to Carry on Work for One Year

The possibility that the large distributing companies will enter the educational film field by making available the 849 pictures selected by a committee of educators appointed by the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America last summer was revived this week when the recently organized Association of School Film Libraries announced it has been granted funds by the Rockefeller Foundation to carry on its work for one year.

Although not connected directly with the MPPDA, the library association first will concentrate on signing up 400 educational institutions as members and then will submit the members' requests for films to the distributing companies. The question of whether the companies will make the films available will not be determined until after the newly formed association surveys the field and is in a position to go to the individual companies and show a demand for the films.

However, the non-profit educational motion picture association will not limit its activities to serving as a distributing outlet for the entertainment film companies. According to Fanning Hearon, executive director of the organization, "the corporation is a direct result of the often-expressed desire of American schools and colleges for one central source to which they may turn for help and advice in securing the films they need in determining the value of motion pictures in education."

In other words, he continued, the corporation will be a clearing house for information on educational films and will arrange, where possible, for availability of the films. He emphasized that the association will not undertake any physical distribution of films.

Limited Membership

The membership of the Association will be limited to educational institutions and noncommercial distributors serving the educational field. For these members the Association will obtain appraisals of films now available and those which could be made available.

It is planned to make the organization self supporting through three sources of income, only one of which has been definitely decided upon, the collection of an annual membership fee of $25. The other two possible sources of income are the sale of catalogs and commissions on films purchased for members.

"Experience of the last 20 years makes it evident that, if the schools and colleges are to discover the potentialities of the film in education, they must have films with which to experiment," a statement from the library association pointed out. "The work of the association seems a way of accomplishing this. Its first job will be to find ways, on behalf of its members, whereby all the sources of films of value in education may be drawn upon."

1595 Films Reviewed

The MPPDA through a committee of educators last summer reviewed 1,595 films of which 849 were listed as acceptable for educational purposes without any changes. Another 234 were designated as acceptable with minor changes. However, once the listings were completed no further action was taken toward making the films available to educational institutions. The cost of studying the films and classifying them was $50,000 and this was supplied by the MPPDA.

Efforts toward forming a library association, Mr. Hearon said, came to a point of action at conferences of educators and film-makers from November, 1937, through June, 1938, when the Association was chartered in the District of Columbia. One of these conferences, he continued, was an open meeting in Atlantic City in February and March, 1938. (Motion Picture Herald, March 12, 1938.)

As the conferences progressed, Mr. Hearon added, it became evident that more than 400 educational institutions favored formation of an association.

"To be helpful is the association's primary aim," Mr. Hearon said, "helpful to those who recognize the educational possibilities of the moving film but aren't certain how to put them into effect.

"The film deserves this recognition as a medium of enlightment come very much of age. With sight, sound and motion as its ingredients, it has no informational or persuasive equal. It is time it were used for what it is so perfectly suited."

Time of Showing

Should the association be successful in obtaining release to educational institutions of the films owned by large distributing companies, Mr. Hearon said, the association would be more than willing to agree to any stipulation as to the hours when the films could be shown.

"If they want our members to use the films only during school hours and only to audiences

Lesser Puts Burden of Production Of Propaganda Films on Educators

Reiterating the contention that the primary duty of motion picture producers is to make films for entertainment purposes, Sol Lesser, head of Principal Productions, Inc., last week invited educational institutions and churches to enter into the production of educational pictures.

Speaking at the National Conference of Jews and Christians in Estes Park, Colorado, last Wednesday, Mr. Lesser asked:

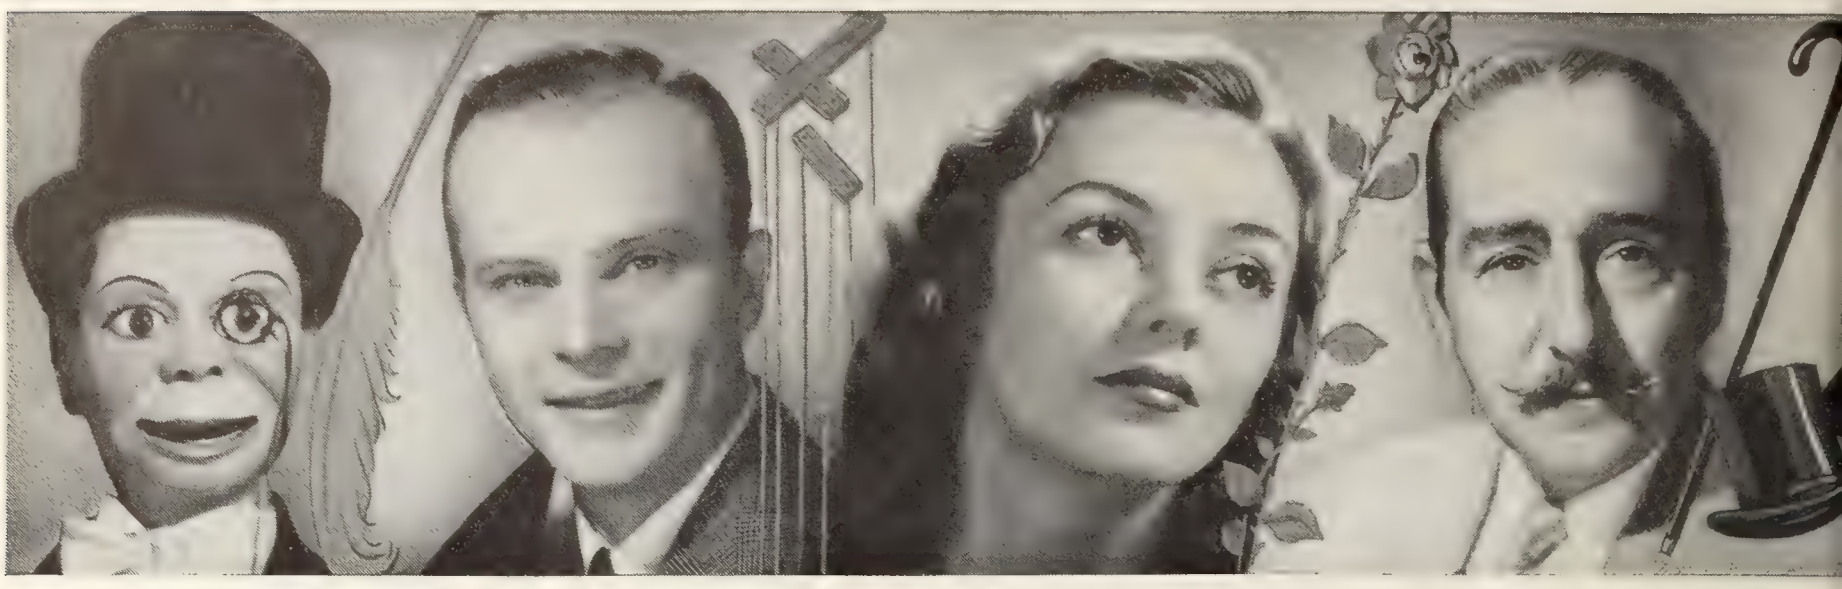
"Again considering the motion picture in two aspects—the entertainment picture and the educational picture—should we not leave the former to the producer qualified to make entertainment pictures, and should not educators enter this inviting field and use this great instrument as one of their media of education along with books, the blackboard and their lectures?

"And should not the great educational institutions of the country, and the churches, enter into the production, or cause the production of the educational type of picture without in any way interfering with the entertainment producers? Such a field is wide open and there is no monopoly preventing such a plan."

Mr. Lesser pointed out that the picture "with a message" is not necessarily outside the field of entertainment, explaining that "pictures teaching the best lessons of life are being shown every night in theatres throughout the land."

The producer, whose address was on "The Motion Picture, an Instrument of Democracy," said 276 different professions, arts, industries, vocations and avocations contribute to the finished product.

"The motion picture theatres," he continued, "occupy a tremendously important place in the leisure hours of the world's population. The hold that the motion picture has on the motion picture public is due to its entertainment and amusement attributes, and the public goes to the motion picture theatre in its leisure hours to be entertained and amused."



Mr. Lesser declared he believed there was a public that would go to see propaganda and educational pictures. "There is plenty of opportunity in the industry to encourage producers of this type of production," he said. "We should first find the ways and means to encourage them, without in any way interfering with the purpose or opportunity of the existing entertainment producer. . . .

"The industry keeps free of propaganda by avoiding subjects that trespass on religious beliefs. Its pictures never take sides politically. Films attacking the political belief of individual nations are seldom made. . . .

"The motion picture will never be the means of organized propaganda, because the minute it does, it will fail.

"Once the screen is accused of partisanship, it ceases to be an entertainment medium. The theatres would soon become hotbeds of political discussion, and if the motion picture is to continue to be the greatest of all media of mass entertainment, we must keep the theatres free of politics."

composed of students, that would be perfectly suitable for us," Mr. Hearon said.

Mr. Hearon, a native of South Carolina, was formerly a newspaperman in the Carolinas and in New Jersey. He resigned as director of the Division of Motion Pictures, United States Department of the Interior, to accept the executive directorship of the library association.

The staff of the association, besides Mr. Hearon, consists of Miss Mary Losey, of New York, formerly with the March of Time Cinema, who is assistant to the executive director, and Mrs. Ruth Y. Miller, of Minneapolis, office secretary.

Offices of the association have been established in the Time and Life Building, Rockefeller Center, New York City.

Visual Educators on Board

Visual educators from various parts of the country make up the association's board of directors. They are J. C. Wardlaw, division of general extension, University System of Georgia, who is the association's president; Boyd B. Rakestraw, assistant director, extension division, University of California, Berkeley, vice-president; Charles F. Hoban, Jr., director, motion pictures project, American Council on Education, Washington, D. C.; Harold C. Bauer, superintendent, New Ulm, Minnesota, Public Schools; Paul C. Reed, supervisor, visual and radio education, Rochester Public Schools; Thomas Fansler, director, research department, division of general education, New York University; John A. Hollinger, director, department of science, nature study, school gardens and visualization, Pittsburgh Public Schools.

The financing of the project by the General Education Board of the Rockefeller Foundation marks the sixth time the organization has advanced funds for the work in the educational film field.

The first venture in this direction was the formation of the Motion Picture Commission of the Progressive Education Association to take over the work of the MPPDA on its "secrets of success" series. This group edits portions of features contributed by film companies and the scenes are shown in schools for their educational value. (Motion Picture Herald, July 5, 1938.)

Financed Film Library

A second step in the film educational field was taken by the GEB when it financed the Museum of Modern Art Film Library to develop a series of films to tell of the evolution of the motion picture.

The GEB followed this action with a grant to the Minnesota University for the development of a technique for the making of teaching films.

The next grant went to the drama department of Yale University and was designed to put Yale in a position to record on film the technique of teaching dramatics.

The fifth grant went to the American Council on Education, an organization to which all other educational groups belong, and was for the setting up of a motion picture commission to give instruction in normal schools on how to teach with films.

Studies Field for 16 mm. films

Walter Kennedy, general manager of Sterling Films, Ltd., subsidiary of Empire-Universal Films, Ltd., who just completed a survey of the possibilities for the exhibition of 16 mm. films in non-theatrical buildings in Ontario this week ascertained that there are 2,921 licensed halls in the province.

The possibilities for presentation of 16 mm. roadshows is practically limitless, Mr. Kennedy said.

FILM ON ARKANSAS FOR WORLD'S FAIR

Arkansas will tell the story of that state to visitors to the New York World's Fair in 1939 by means of a motion picture patterned after "The River" and "The Plough that Broke the Plains," Walter Haun, chairman of the state's exhibition planning committee, said in Little Rock this week.

A film concern has been engaged to make preliminary surveys of material and costs and will prepare a tentative script. Scenes already have been filmed of the movement of the state's 1938 peach crop. They will comprise part of the film dealing with Arkansas agriculture.

The state has leased 3,000 square feet of space at the Fair and will have approximately 100 seats where Fair visitors may view the film.

Unions in Mexico Split on Control

by JAMES LOCKHART
in Mexico City

Trouble has developed for Mexican producers as a result of the war for supremacy that is being waged by the two picture workers unions—the Federation of Movie Workers, which about controls the exhibition end of the business, and the M. P. Workers union, largely in charge of production labor. The Federation is fighting for exclusive control of all movie help.

The Federation already has made good its threat to boycott any and all producers who refuse to let it have its way. It is exerting a stiff boycott against two productions, which have had to be shelved. Appeals for peace have been made to the confederation of Mexican workers and farmers, Mexico's strongest labor organization, of which both units are members.

Radio for Customs Men

Customs regulation by radio has been started by Mexico with the commencement of installation of a big station in Monterrey to control inspectors along most of the American border. Radio, the government is convinced, will curb smuggling which has attained expensive proportions. Another station is planned for the United States border.

Plans are being made to also use radio to guard the Guatemalan frontier.

The premiere of "Tropic Holidays," Paramount's new Mexican picture, which features Augustin Lara, Mexico's ace romantic song composer, was held at the Cine Teatro Alameda, Mexico City, June 24th. The picture has an important cast of Mexican players and six thoroughbred Mexican fighting bulls.

SPA Challenges Interpretation Of Court Ruling

The Song Writers' Protective Association in New York, headed by Irving Caesar, challenges the interpretation placed on the recent court decision in the case of Tobani v. Fischer concerning the rights of an author in assigning copyright renewal rights in a manuscript before such rights are due.

Through its counsel, John Schulman, of the New York law firm of Hays, St. John, Abramson and Schulman, the SPA points out that the interpretation is that the court held that a writer is free to part with his renewal rights at any time he wishes before they come due. The organization and its counsel, however, say they do not read the opinion the same way.

"The purport of the opinion, as we read it," the attorney claims, "is that where an employer claims to be one for hire and therefore the author under the (copyright) statute, he alone may file a renewal registration in his name. If the renewal in such case is filed in the name of the employee, it would seem to be wholly ineffective and the work would then pass into public domain.

"The court does not define with any precision in what instances the employer can be considered the author, but lays stress on the fact that Tobani was only an 'arranger' ", according to the SPA's attorney.

"The opinion," it was explained, "refers to the possibility that an author may divest himself of the renewal either by parting with his entire interest in a work, or by an agreement to convey the copyright for the additional term. It is our belief," said Mr. Schulman, "that the rule so announced should be read only in the light of the holding that the employer became the author within the meaning of the statute, and therefore the person who was entitled to take out the renewal—in other words that Tobani, by virtue of his employment, had lost the status which he might otherwise have had under the (U. S.) Copyright Law.

"This is far different than the interpretation which has been expressed—that even in the absence of an employer-employee relationship, a sale of the author's literary property or an agreement to transfer the renewal made before the renewal period accrues, would have the same effect. We do not think the decision is determinative of the rights of authors and publishers where no employer-employee relationship exists."

Placed Under Probation

Sentence of a year and a day in federal prison against Roye McLeod, former theatre manager accused of writing a threatening letter to E. V. Richards, circuit executive, has been suspended by Judge John McDuffie at Mobile, Ala., and Mr. McLeod has been placed under probation for four years.

THE HOLLYWOOD SCENE

Four and Nine

But four pictures were put into work during the last week in July. In the same period nine were finished.

Ed Finney started his first production for Monogram release, "Starlight Over Texas." It will present Tex Ritter, Carmen LaRoux, Salvatore Daminio, Rosa Turick, Karl Hackett and Charles King.

For Columbia distribution, Larry Darmour started "Not for Glory." Jack Holt and Beverly Roberts are starred. The support includes Noah Beery, Jr., Helen Jerome Eddy, Barbara Pepper, Russell Simpson, Victor Potel and John Qualen.

Although it has been in work for several days, the newest George O'Brien picture still bears the working title "O'Brien Number Four." The featured player group lists Rita Hayworth, Tim Holt, Cecilia Callejo and Ray Whitley.

Universal started "The Comet," in which William Gargan, Joy Hodges, Andy Devine, Louise Stanley, Ruth Donnelly and Florence Roberts will be seen.

Three Finished

Paramount completed three pictures. Each is of more than ordinary importance. "If I Were King," a Frank Lloyd action romance melodrama based on incidents in medieval French history has Ronald Colman, Frances Dee, Basil Rathbone, Ellen Drew, Colin Tapley, C. V. France, Stanley Ridges, William Haade, May Beatty, Adrian Morris, Francis MacDonald, Walter Kingsfor, Ralph Forbes, Henry Wilcoxon and Sidney Toler as its principal players. The musical comedy romance, "Artists and Models Abroad," will present Jack Benny, Joan Bennett, Mary Boland, Charles Grapewin, Joyce Compton, Yacht Club Boys, G. P. Huntley, Punkins Parker, Sheila Darcy and regiments of singing, dancing chorus girls. "Men With Wings," a history of aviation from the beginning down to Mr. Corrigan, will feature Fred MacMurray, Ray Milland, Louise Campbell, Andy Devine, Lynne Overman, Porter Hall, Walter Abel, Kitty Kelly, James Burke, Virginia Weidler, Donald O'Connor, Billy Cook, Willard Robertson and Dorothy Tennant.

Others Completed

Twentieth Century-Fox completed two pictures. More important of the pair is "Five of a Kind," the third Dionne Quintuplets feature. The Hollywood personalities included are Jean Hersholt, Claire Trevor, Cesar Romero, Slim Summerville, John Qualen, Henry Wilcoxon, Inez Courtney and Jack Norton. In "Road Demon," Henry Arthur, Joan Valeria, Tom Beck, Bill Robertson, Henry Armetta, Betty Greco, Eleanor Vrizie, Johnny Pirrone, Inez Palange, Murray Alper, Edward Marr and Lon Chaney, Jr., will be seen.

With Paul Kelly, Rita Hayworth and Frankie Darro heading the cast, Columbia finished "Juvenile Court." The supporting company lists David Gorcey, Hally Chester, Don La Tourre, Dick Selzer, Allan Ramsay, Johnny Tyrrell, Dick Curtis, Lee Shumway and Joe DeStephani.

At MGM "Rich Man, Poor Girl" was finished. It will feature Robert Young, Lew Ayres. Ruth Hussey, Guy Kibbee, Rita Johnson, Lana Turner, Sarah Padden, Don Castle, Gordon Jones, Virginia Grey and Marie Blake.

"The Road to Reno" finished at Universal. Randolph Scott, Hope Hampton, Glenda Farrell, Alan Marshall, Helen Broderick and David Oliver are the principal players. Second picture completed at the studio, "Pals of the Saddle," will present Bob Baker, Hal Taliaferro, Marjorie Reynolds, Forest Taylor, Glenn Strange and Jack Rockwell.

WHO NOW?

In answer to many inquiries concerning the possibility of her playing Scarlett O'Hara in "Gone With the Wind" Norma Shearer said:

"I have decided that I should not play Scarlett. I am convinced that the majority of fans who think I should not play this kind of a character on the screen are right and I appreciate tremendously the interest they have shown. I have advised Mr. Mayer and Mr. Selznick of my feelings in the matter so that they would not consider me for the part should the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer deal with Selznick go through."

The Grand Tour

For years, Barrett C. Kiesling, MGM studio publicity attache, has been making annual tours of the country in behalf of his company's welfare. Officially, he's the emissary of Howard Deitz and Howard Strickling. In a larger sense, he is, more directly, Hollywood's foremost goodwill ambassador to the press and theatres of North America. He is better known in many theatres than most film salesmen. He's more welcome and certainly more trusted and respected in the nation's editorial offices than the majority of local publicity agents.

He has just returned from a five and a half month trip around the continent during which he traveled more than 24,000 miles and in 69 cities talked with the representatives of some 4,500 American and Canadian theatres, contacted 538 editors and publishers of newspapers, magazines and kindred periodicals and addressed scores of civic, social. enonomic, service and fraternal club meetings. He visited 90 radio stations, made 40 broadcasts.

The dominating keynote of his conversations with all, in the courses of which the structure of motion pictures in all their phases was analyzed from cellar to attic, was not a new discovery, nothing that will shake the industry to its foundations. Rather it was a substantiation of that famous tersely inclusive remark—"There's nothing the matter with this business that good pictures can't cure."

A nervously reticent fellow, Barrett is not given to talking very much about himself or what he does. He'd prefer to brush an interviewer off with a reply that his trip was just about what it was like last year, or any other year. One must more or less prod him into conversation. But usually there's an angle by which he can be opened up. We hit it this time by remarking that there must be something to all this "rotten business" talk; that certainly fellows like Bob O'Donnell, Karl Hoblitzelle, Henry Moss, Mike Cullen, W. R. Lynch, Elmer Rhoden, Ed Sparks, Bob Wilby, Erle Hudson and Bill Finney must have had something to say about it, must have had some ideas to combat it.

That led to Barrett's repetition of Mr. Schenck's remark. Then he was off. We sat back with a borrowed pencil and made random notes.

"True, business has been off. But by and large there has been far less 'squawking' among our people than in any of the other industries I contacted. One night at dinner a big manufacturer was yelling bloody murder. I thought he would have to go into 77-B in the morning. Seems his net was about nine per cent off. That's chicken feed to the drop at the very pit of the depression.

"I listened to all the comparisons and castigations. I heard people kill Hollywood, embalm and bury it, but it was very interesting to note that theatre owners everywhere during the worst of things were not trying to save on replacement expenses. Many new houses were being built, everywhere theatres were being modernized. In other words, owners, rather than losing confidence were spending money.

"Of course, there is one reason why theatre owners do not become hopelessly panicky over a recession or depression. They know that come a good box office attraction and no economic power on earth can prevent packed houses.

"I find on all these trips that experienced theatre operators are very seldom bothered by temporary fluctuations in product quality. They have come to understand that they make their money on the average of all pictures.

"To put it another way. I found, during this trip, when business was dipping lower than usual, that theatre owners (of course there were many irreconciliables who never can be satisfied) were much less perturbed about conditions than the public prints would have one believe. One prominent exhibitor said to me, 'I learned a real lesson when I ran "The Sheik." I made a lot of money on it originally as a serious work of film art. I made a lot of money on it this week because it was the funniest comedy of the year! We can talk all we like about good and bad pictures, but what other art has made such an astounding advance in technique in fifteen years?'

"Never have theatre owners been so up on their toes from a showmanship point of view."

Theatrical press contacts, a very important items in Barrett's mission, because it is the purpose of Messrs. Dietz and Strickling that as high a percentage of studio prepared material, either in picture, story, news or feature article form appear in print lead Mr. Kiesling into a complicated analyzation of the national advertising charts. When the depression was most acute, the principal papers of the country lost an average of 44 per cent of national advertising and free space devoted to motion picture news fell off in similar degree. Since June 1, however, national advertising has been increasing and the average now is only about 17 per cent below normal. But in comparison with the statistics accumulated on his first swing around the country about five years ago, the utilization of Hollywood publicity in newspapers has increased about 250 per cent.

13 COMPANIES IN FILM AND ALLIED FIELDS REPORT PROFITS, ONE A LOSS

20th Century-Fox Shows $3,419,658 Net Profit for 26 Weeks, Paramount $1,225,811 for Half Year, $394,945 for Quarter

Motion picture corporations and their affiliates, and companies in allied fields, figured prominently in financial news headlines of the week, balancing well on the favorable side.

Profits of $3,419,658 were reported by Twentieth Century-Fox for 26 weeks.

Paramount earned $394,945 and $1,225,811, respectively, for 13 and 26 weeks.

Keith-Albee-Orpheum reported $388,194 net for 26 weeks, and $1,013,767 for the year.

B. F. Keith Corporation earned $254,538 and $790,839 for 26 and 52 weeks, respectively.

Radio Corporation of America's net profit for six months was $2,524,756.

General Theatres Equipment reported profits of $194,920 for the second quarter.

Gaumont-British Pictures, of England, had a net of £205,595 ($1,027,975) for its fiscal year.

Associated British Pictures, also reporting from London, listed yearly profits at £1,302,777 ($6,513,885).

General Theatres Corporation, Ltd., likewise of Britain, had a net of $1,644,610 for 12 months.

Trans-Lux Corporation earned $90,590 in six months.

Sonotone Corporation for six months earned profits of $101,150.

Columbia Broadcasting reported profits of $2,578,192 for 26 weeks.

Loss of $153,312 was listed by Heywood-Wakefield.

Directors of Roxy Theatres, Inc., New York, declared a cash dividend of $1.50 per share on preferred stock for the year ending August 25th, payable August 10th to stockholders of record on August 3rd.

Loew's, Inc., voted an extra year-end dividend of $1 a share on common, payable August 25 to stockholders of record August 15th.

The committee on stock listings of the New York Stock Exchange this week authorized the listing of Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., certificates of deposit for $29,400,000 optional six per cent convertible debentures, series due 1939. This is in line with the action taken by Warners last week requesting stockholders to deposit their debentures in accordance with a plan under which the debentures will be exchanged for an equal principal amount of new six per cent debentures, series 1948, for refinancing. (See page 34, July 30th issue).

SEC Reports Slight Activity In Motion Picture Securities

Officers and directors of motion picture companies did but little trading in securities of their corporations in June, it was indicated by the Securities and Exchange Commission.

The largest transaction reported was the disposition of 1,000 shares of Paramount Pictures first preferred stock by Stanton Griffis, New York, director and executive committee chairman of the company. The stock disposed of, it was shown, represented his entire holdings in that class.

The only other individual transaction reported involved the acquisition of 200 Universal Corporation common voting trust certificates by Daniel M. Sheaffer, New York, director. At the close of the month, Mr. Sheaffer held 13,000 certificates direct and, through Standard Capital Company, 26,500 certificates and 111,283 voting trust certificate warrants.

Continuing its campaign for acquisition of Loew's Boston Theatres common stock, Loew's, Inc., parent, reported that it purchased an additional 42 shares during June, bringing its holdings to 99,605 shares.

Reports of stockholdings of persons becoming officers of picture companies showed that William F. Whitman, New York, elected an officer of K-A-O on April 19th, held 25 shares of preferred; and Cliff Work, Universal City, elected an officer of Universal Pictures on June 13th, held, through Universal Corporation, 228,927 shares of common, 100 shares of first preferred and 20,000 shares of second preferred stock.

U. S. MEDALS ASKED FOR NEWSREEL MEN

Congresswoman Virginia Jenckes of Indiana will introduce a bill at the next session of Congress calling for authorization of the awarding of special medals to Norman Alley, newsreel cameramen of Universal, and Eric Mayell of Movietone News and News of the Day (Twentieth Century-Fox and MGM), for their recording under fire of the bombing of the USS Panay by the Japanese air forces in China.

The suggestion of Congressional recognition of the feat was made by John Chapman in his column in the New York Daily News last week.

Fox Second Quarter Profits Listed at $1,778,121

*Includes surtax.

William S. Paley, president of the company, said that the 1938 six months' results should not be understood as foreshadowing the full year's results, since indications were that the third quarter profits would be substantially below those earned during the third quarter of 1937.

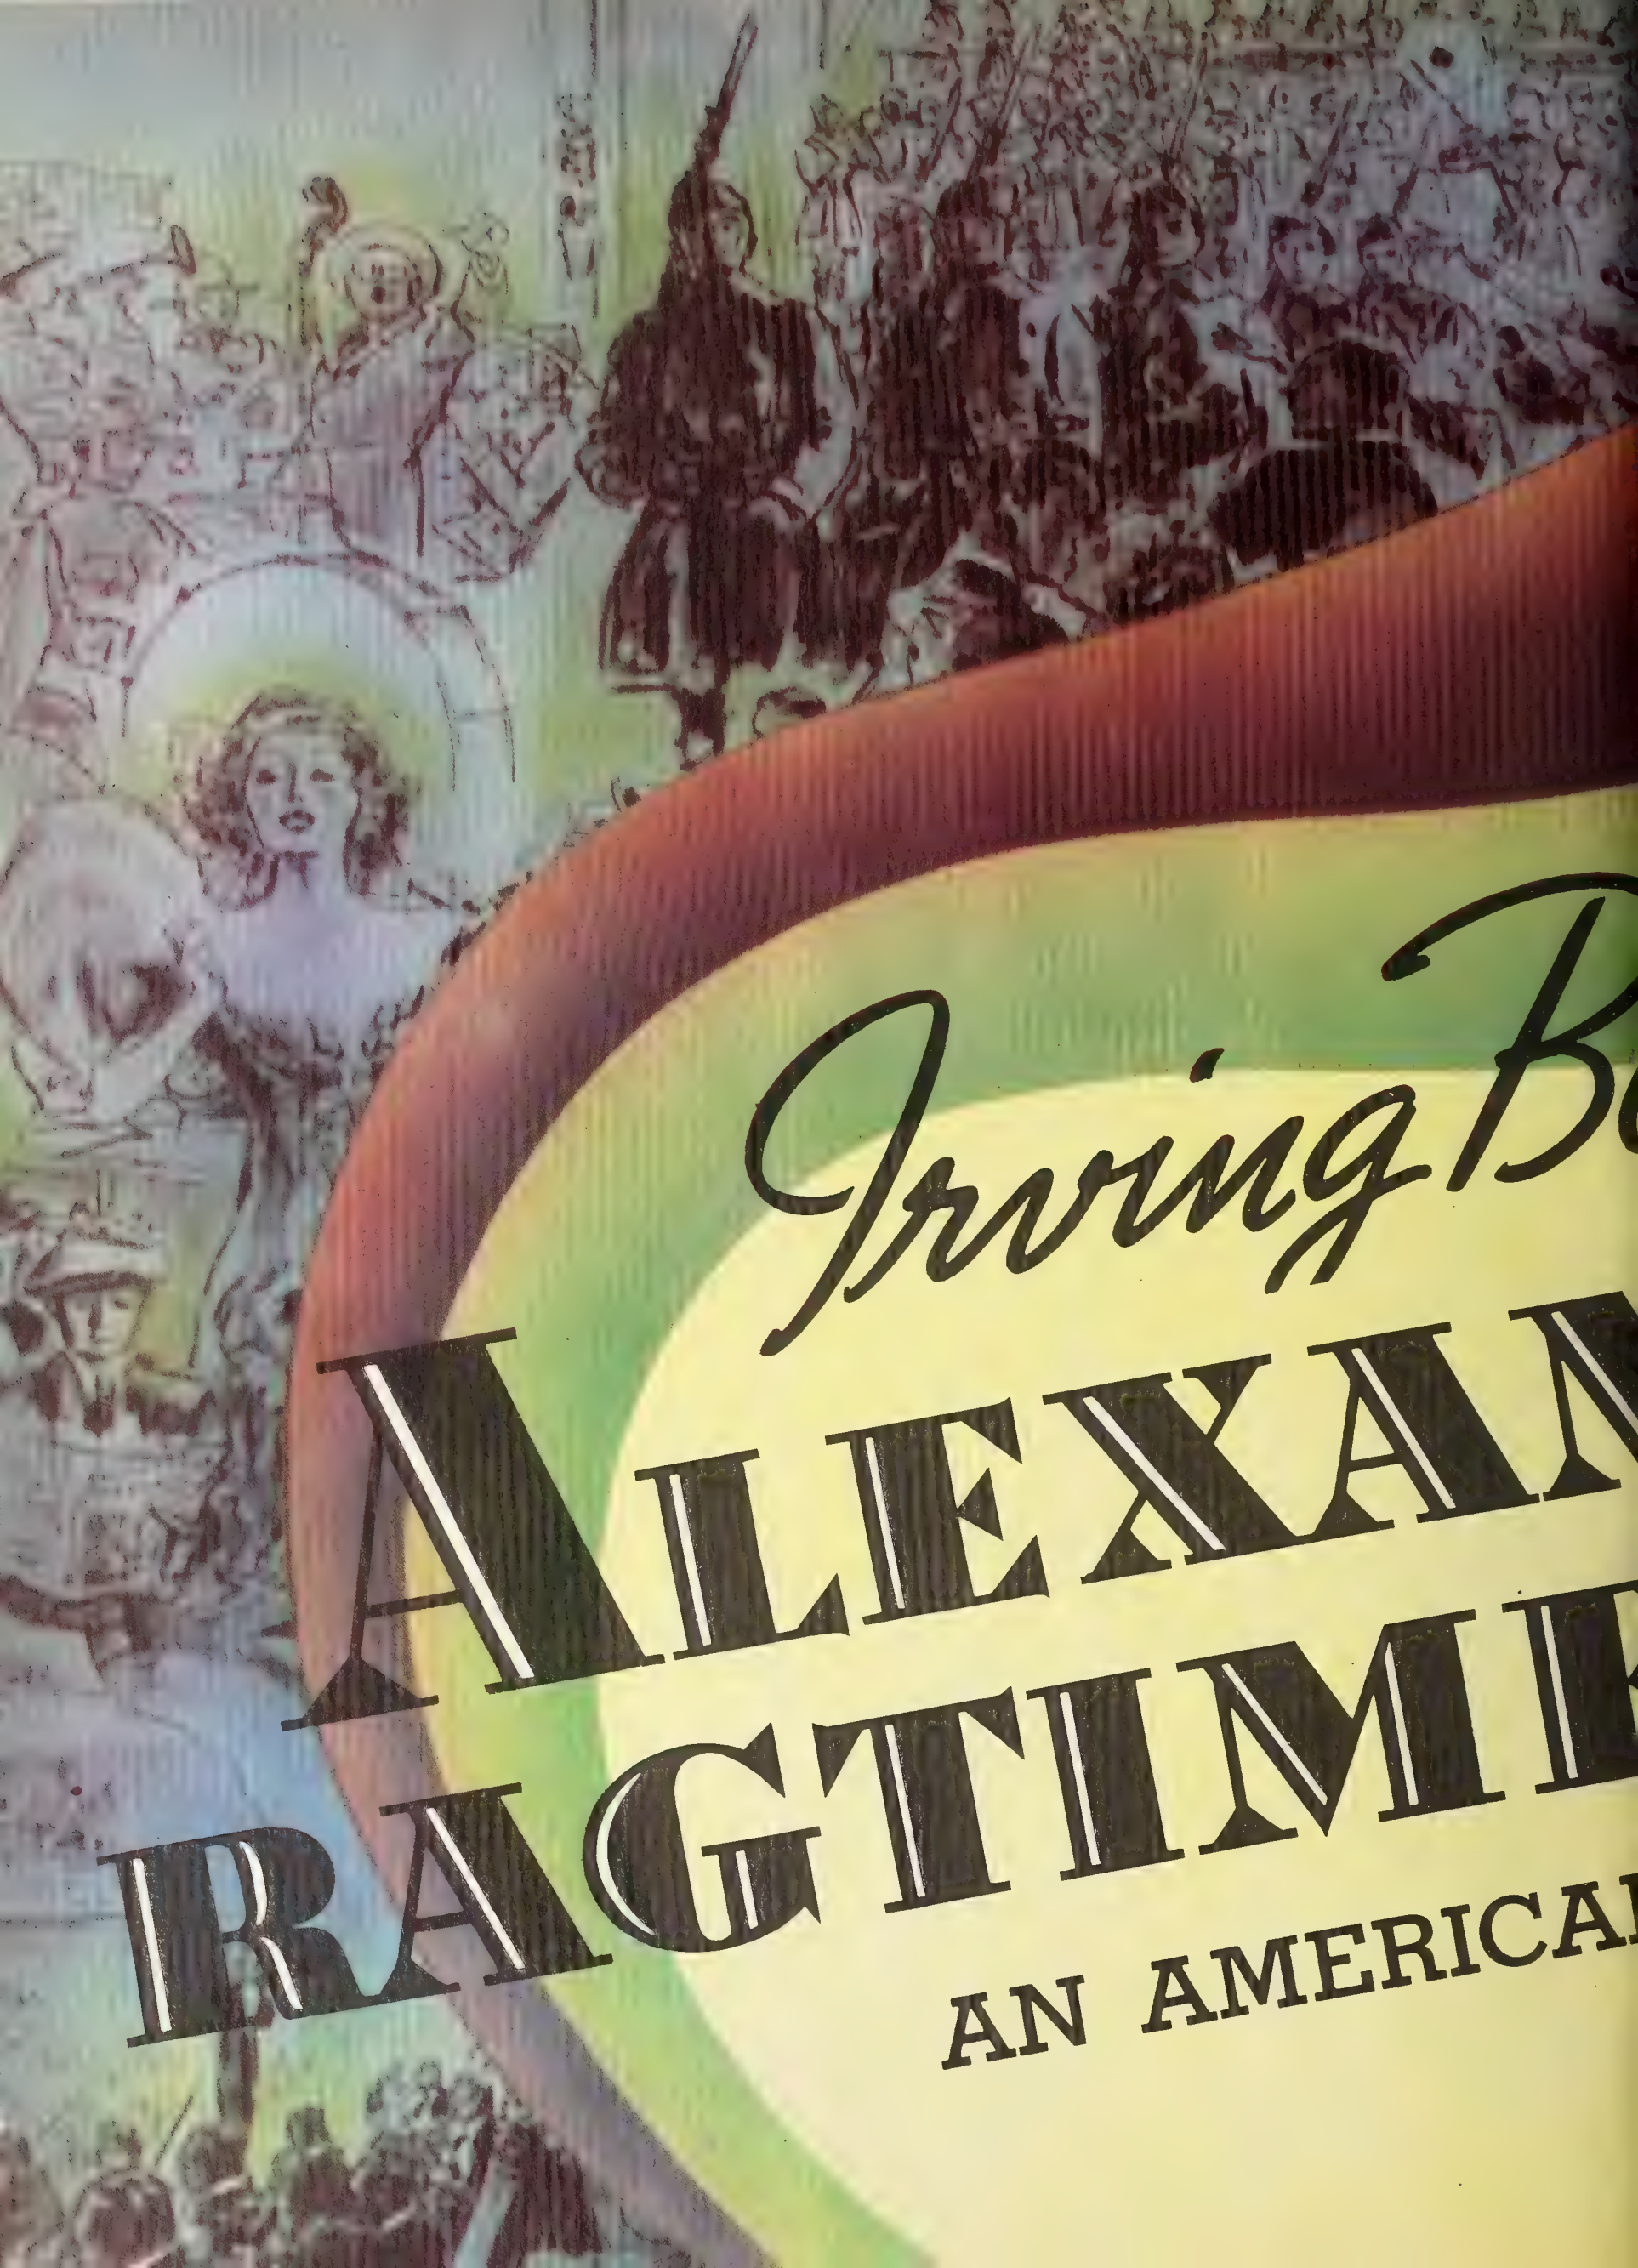
Trans-Lux Corporation and subsidiaries have reported net profit for the six months ended June 30, last, of $90,590, equal to 12 cents per share on 716,802 shares of $1 par capital stock. Trans Lux is the parent of Trans Lux newsreel theatres.

Sonotone Corporation for the six months ended June 30, reports a profit of $101,150 after all charges. This is equal to 12 cents a share on the common stock. Sonotone manufactures hard-of-hearing devices for theatres and elsewhere.

Heywood-Wakefield Shows Six Months Loss of $153,312

The report of Heywood-Wakefield Company, manufacturers of seats, for six months ended June 30, 1938, shows net loss of $153,312 after taxes, depreciation and interest.

This compares with net profit for the six months ended June 30, 1937, of $358,607, equal after dividend requirements on 139,480 shares of Series B first preferred stock (par $25) and 227 shares (par $100 of old) 7% first preferred stock, to $4.51 a share on 60,000 shares (par $25) of common stock.



Liquidation of receivables and inventories to the lower level of current volume afforded an opportunity to reduce bank loans by $100,000 and the bank debt outstanding is now $350,000.

Although a more favorable sentiment has been noted and confidence expressed that the fall season will provide increased business, the recent furniture markets at Chicago and New York failed to develop any marked improvement in the rate of buying and production schedules, consequently remain on a considerably reduced scale, Richard N. Greenwood, president, states.

THE KEYSTONE OF YOUR FUTURE

By JAMES P. CUNNINGHAM

The while one half tends to the business of making, marketing and merchandising motion pictures, the other half seemingly tends to the business of making up methods of cluttering theatres with get-rich-quick schemes for enticing patrons. We've had, for example, "Banko," "Bingo" and "Beano," and dozens and dozens of variations in forms that are recognizable and others that are not,

This week's contribution to the long list of socalled theatre "business stimulators" is called "Magic Eye," a device which is said to automatically snap a picture of a patron as he passes the ticket-taker. From the roll of film thus exposed the picture of one individual is selected, and he becomes the night's prize winner, or something.

The idea sounds pretty much like the system on which the Bell Laboratories had been working for years, with the utmost secrecy, as a "fool-proof" detector of box office receipts for stopping "leaks" in the "till," which the Telephone Company once very privately estimated to run into millions of dollars a year. The mechanical product thus devised was to be turned over to the late Electrical Research Products, subsidiary of Telephone's Western Electric, for marketing, at a time, a few years ago, when the Telephone people began to realize that Erpi's days were numbered as a seller and servicer of theatre sound equipments, and, therefore, Erpi would be needing some new products to sell to the picture business.

The Bell Laboratories had worked out—or, at least, they thought they had worked out—an electric-eye device which registered each person passing as he went by the ticket taker. Someone then discovered that while the electric-eye would give a total for the number of admissions, it would not distinguish between adults, paying one price, and children, paying less. So, they devised a camera, with the aid of Eastman Kodak, which, hooked up to the electric-eye, made a film record of the customers, and distinguished between adults and youngsters.

The story, so far as we know, has never been made public, especially that part of it which embraced an insurance policy for exhibitors buying the service-insurance against box office losses through misappropriations alleged by any staff members. Also, someone dreamed that the "electric-eye" counter would displace theatre checkers, which would probably throw a chill on the device insofar as exhibitor reception was concerned.

Anyway, an experimental installation was made in a certain neighborhood theatre on upper Broadway, New York. The tests went far—but not far enough, and so the insurance companies refused to underwrite. The device just wouldn't work 100 per cent, and the insurance people insisted on absolute accuracy.

Ben Serkowich, press agent for Loew's Capitol theatre on Broadway, rounded up dozens of persons named Hardy the other evening to attend the showing of "Love Finds Andy Hardy." He got their addresses from Manhattan's telephone book and at the same time called in reporters and cameramen from the press. Came the moment for Mr. Serkowich to propose to the gathering that they form a "Hardy Family" Club then and there, with an eye to a healthy press break for the stunt and film.

Imagine his consternation when, after enjoying his hospitality, the Hardys told Mr. Serkowich that they have had a "Hardy Family" Club in this country for over 300 years, since old Thomas Hardy brought a Government charter from England in 1630, the first family group in America to have such a society.

After poring over the 23,000-word text of the Government's arguments in equity against the motion picture business, as advanced by Homer Cummings, Thurman Arnold, Paul Williams and their Department of Justice colleagues, we are reminded of Ernest Trattner's observation on the old theologian, who said that he was entirely open to conviction, but would like to see anybody who could convince him.

We've had the "Suzy-Q" and the "Big Apple," the "Shag" and the "Dipsy Doodle," and now when the "Jitterbugs" are just about quieted down, along comes Paramount Pictures sponsoring the "Za-Za Can-Can," aided and abetted by LeRoy Prinz, Paramount studio dance director. They say it's the original "Can-Can," with a dash of "Za-Za."

Historians define a generation as a cycle of 30 years. The picture business has rounded out a generation, but during it there have been 300 cycles.

Word comes out of the hobo "jungles" that a move is afoot to impeach Jeff Davis, "King of the Hobos," for riding as a passenger, first class, in a Pullman train to Paramount's studio in Hollywood, where he is to act as an "advisor" on "The Arkansas Traveler. Besides, that means going to work, and they feel the "King" will never be the same, that he'll probably be shaved and dressed in new store clothes by the time he leaves Hollywood—if ever.

Annette Kellerman, heroine of plain and fancy diving of three decades ago, has been discovered in Florida, in the quiet of retirement, at 50, writing stories for children.

Miss Kellerman was the subject of Herbert Brenon's early pictorial penchant for filming mermaids and sea-water fantasies.

After filming Miss Kellerman in "Neptune's Daughter," for Laemmle's Imp company, Mr. Brenon moved over to William Fox's film company with the mermaid and another moist story, "The Daughter of the Gods." He persuaded old Bill Fox to undertake its production and sailed for Jamaica with a large company, including Miss Kellerman, cast for the title role. Brenon, one of the industry's most spectacular and volatile personalities, plunged in with tremendous energy and remodeled the Kingston end of Jamaica. He drained and restored an old Spanish fortification, Fort Augusta, at a cost given as $100,000. He built a Moorish city, a city of gnomes, and a great tower for the heroine Kellerman's dive into the sea. He imported 20 camels for five minutes' work at a cost of $7,000. It was super colossal spectacular picture making with a splash.

One day Mr. Fox wrote to Mr. Brenon as follows:

> "Believe me, dear Herbert, I pray for you every night before I close my eyes, that God will spare you so that I will be able to be so proud of you, because I can just imagine how great a man you will be when this picture is assembled and shown throughout the world."

If Mr. Fox did any praying about "The Daughter of the Gods" it was probably with reference to the cost sheets.

Anyway, Brenon, with his Moorish city, his city of gnomes and mermaids and sea-water fantasy, was charming press material until William Fox began to feel that he was being overshadowed in print. Then Mr. Fox's best publicity agent was called to meet the situation with able news releases entitled King by Cable. These related how Fox personally directed every inch of the picture, using the Western Union's cable from New York to Kingston for his megaphone.

That started a war.

A Letter of Introduction

(Universal)

Triple-Threat Comedy-Melodrama

Draw up chairs, ladies and gentlemen of show business, and give ear to the three-ply news about Universal's triple-threat attack upon sales resistance. You, Mr. A, you, Mr. B, and you, Mrs. C, sit close, and we'll look at it from your several points of view. The rest of you folks just listen in.

You, Mr. A, are the fellow who was grumbling a while back that the Chase & Sanborn radio hour was keeping the family trade away of a Sunday because Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy kept the kiddies at the receiver and the kiddies kept their elders at home to watch them. Or maybe to listen to these same.

Well, here's your chance to beat the radio at its own game. All you've got to do is everything you know how to do to inform the family trade that in "A Letter of Introduction" Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy are to be seen as well as heard, and for longer than on any radio program, and that's only two-third of the story. Here's your chance to tell them that in this picture the gifted Edgar Bergen gives them not only the sophisticated Charlie McCarthy but also—and you can bear down on this—his brand new alter ego (that means dummy) named Mortimer, a not at all sophisticated young man of agrarian origin and of such totally different voice and personality as to be able, if anything ever happened to Charlie, to carry on quite notably for C & S or, as might be more appropriate, for the motion picture screen.

Yes, Mr. A, you get more of Edgar Bergen than radio listeners get of him from C & S, more than you got of him in "Vogues of 1938"—about 10 times more—and you not only get to introduce his new stooge (if, indeed, the dummy may in any case be termed the stooge) but you also get to tell them, in the picture and as an integral part of it, the story of Edgar Bergen's climb from where he was, professionally speaking, to where he is. You see, Edgar Bergen plays Edgar Bergen in the picture, and plays him to the nines (whatever they are).

Now you, Mr. B, you old stickler for first principles, don't you get any silly ideas about this being just a film setting for a radio act. You couldn't be wronger. You step right out and tell the folks that you've got Adolphe Menjou playing an aging stage star (they call him John Mannering, but the name won't fool anybody much) and Andrea Leeds playing an aspiring actress (which will remind them, properly, of "Stage Door.") Tell them that this is no ordinary sort of stage story, like the one about the producer who can't seem to find a bankroll until time for the finale, but that it's strong enough, novel enough and powerful enough to have made a top-flight drama without Messrs. Bergen, McCarthy, Mortimer or anybody like them. Tell them the screen play is by Sheridan Gibney and Leonard Spigelgass, which will mean plenty to them if they know their cinema, from a story by Bernice Boone, and be sure to let them know that George Murphy, Ann Sheridan, Rita Johnson, Ernest Cossart and Frank Jenks are among the principals in a big and balanced cast.

You can go to town in your use of those names, Mr. B, and their owners will back you up. Mr. Menjou plays a character not unlike that played by John Barrymore in "Dinner at Eight," but bigger and better, in a manner to make his public forget his job in "A Star Is Born." Andrea Leeds' portrayal of the young actress confirms in spades the practically unanimous opinion, based on her bit in "Stage Door," that this young lady possesses large quantities of what they want. There isn't a soft spot in the cast, and with Bergen trebling in wood, that is saying a bundle.

And now, Mrs. C, what about you? You're probably wrong in thinking that aristocratic mob of yours won't turn out for Bergen and his boys, and you know that even the dilettantes go for Menjou, but never mind that. You tell 'em about John M. Stahl. They've been practically raised on his pictures. They may not want to admit it, but those old gals that get together every Wednesday to read one other stuffy papers on this and that cut their romantic teeth on his "Dangerous Age," learned about life from his "Why Men Leave Home" and "Gay Deceiver," strung along with him, as they aged but he didn't through "In Old Kentucky," "A Lady Surrenders," "Seed," did a row of nip-ups about his "Imitation of Life," and all but expired, ecstatically, when he gave them "Magnificent Obsession."

Your cue, if you still need one, is to tell the folks that this is John M. Stahl's Twenty-fifth Anniversary picture. Tell them he poured into it everything he learned in a quarter century of upper-bracket motion picture production and that even those among them who have to be wheeled up to the box office can't afford not to be. You'll get 'em.

There's the showmanship side of the story, ladies and gentlemen, and are there any among you who would ask for more? Maybe you'd like to ask for a picture that, in itself, makes double billing unnecessary. Well, you've got it. The direct, dramatic story of the aging actor and his protege is as much picture as anybody ought to expect to buy for one admission price. The factual story of Edgar Bergen, which is part and parcel of the principal plot, is, together with what he and his hickory progeny do in it, equal to a tip-top edition of "The March of Time" plus all the Chase & Sanborn programs pared down to their Bergen contents and strung together, illustrated. Yes, ladies and gentlemen, the only possible reason for running a second feature with "A Letter of Introduction" would be to drive out the first-show crowd so the second-show crowd can get in.

That's about all, ladies and gentlemen, except, possibly, one thing. Some of you may read the wrong newspapers, or the more smart-aleck columnists, and if you do you may get a load of innuendo to the effect that the film is spotty, jerky, contains too much, tries to do too many things, etc. Don't believe it. Remember what the art-y gentry had to say about "The Miracle Man," about "The Beast of Berlin"—go back to "Mickey," if you were around then—and remember what happened. The cold fact is that the film, previewed at the Hollywood Pantages for the press, had the art-y and the earthy, the smart, the smart-aleck and all the other varieties of resident correspondents, alternately rolling in the aisles with merriment and weeping into their sleeves. The paying guests present rolled and wept with them, to a man, a woman, a child. You'll have only the paying guests to worry about when the picture gets around to your place, and don't worry.

The Crowd Roars

Pugilistic Melodrama

'Way back when Robert Taylor wore rompers, one Wallace Reid was knocking out motion picture hits wherein his powerful physique and essentially boyish personality carried him through anguish, misunderstanding, turmoil and combat to triumphant fadeout. In "The Crowd Roars" Mr. Taylor has just such a picture as the late Mr. Reid would have revelled in, and plays it just as he would have played it. The picture has the same swift momentum, the same general tone, and it strikes, if preview reaction may be accepted at applause value, with the same power.

A clever showman may be able to convey this happy circumstance to his public by various means, and profitably. But the production offers a wide choice of exploitation materials. Chief of these, from the standpoint of general utility, is the extremely nameful and yet specialized cast. It has Edward Arnold in a role only he could play quite so well, Frank Morgan in one as finely fitted to his talent, Lionel Stander and Nat Pendleton in eminently suited characterizations and William Gargan in another. Maureen O'Sullivan and Jane Wyman have the top feminine roles in a picture which gives relatively little emphasis to the romantic side of the story.

The screen play by Thomas Lennon, George Bruce and George Oppenheimer, from a story by Mr. Bruce, departs importantly from the routine. Early in the action a character who has been favorably established is killed tragically, an early D. W. Griffith plot device which never has failed to intensify suspense, and toward the end death again is employed beneficially. The net result of this departure is to have the audience hanging on with both hands in fear that the ring battle raging in Madison Square Garden isn't going to come out right.

The production is a tribute to Sam Zimbalist and to Richard Thorpe, the director. Interest is firmly engaged in the early footage and never released. Plausibility is constantly maintained throughout, and humour is smartly distributed.

Gene Reynolds plays the boy who grows up to be "Tommy McCoy," light heavyweight boxer. Frank Morgan plays the tipsy father whose weakness of character finally delivers "Tommy," as he rises in his profession, into the managerial control of "Jim Cain," a New York gambler whose sheltered daughter, "Sheila," believes him an investment broker. "Tommy" tries to quit the ring after a bout in which he kills his former mentor, but can find no other employment and returns intent upon making a quick stake and retiring. "Cain's" double-crossing of "Pug Walsh," racketeer, leads to the kidnapping of "Sheila" and "Tommy's" father, whose lives are to be taken if "Tommy" does not lie down in the eighth round of an important match. From there on the story is one to be seen, not synopsized.

Gateway

Immigration Episodes

This picture deals with the problems, their consequent joys and sorrows, of people, native Americans and aliens, who either make their entry into this country or are denied that privilege via New York's Ellis Island. It tells the continued story of two persons, an American war correspondent and an Irish girl who hopes that a man will be waiting at the dock to marry her, and the short short stories of many others, principally a woman suspected of moral turpitude, a political refugee, a radical, a gangster, a pseudo Russian noble man whose fantastic exploits and the fact that he was born in Brooklyn have been widely publicized, a peasant family and a mob of desperate deportees. Other than preliminary sequences aboard an ocean liner, the detention depot is the only locale.

The basic love story, through which the other material is interspersed, is a romance of no little human interest appeal. A second class passenger, "Catherine," is urged by "Dick" to participate in some of the joys of first class passengers. The incident has a potentially scandalous result, menacing the girl's opportunity to enter the United States. When "Dick" appreciates what he has done, he sets about righting the wrong, and as she, as well as the others mentioned, are detained, he contrives to be held also. In episodic fashion, the stories of the others are told. Some are comic, some pathetic, and one is tragic. But when "Dick" sees the man "Catherine" hoped to marry, realizes what a nincompoop he is, his determination that the girl shall enter the country, married but married to him, is greater than ever. His plan messes things up, but when he contrives to prevent the jailbreak of a gang of desperate deportees, his heroism, when wounded, wins the admiration of immigration officials and the sympathy and love of the girl.

Previewed in the Village theatre, Westwood, Cal. The audience reaction was not what the producing organization expected. The reason therefor is easy to understand. The gathering was what might be termed 100 per cent. Americans, very few of whom came through Ellis Island and consequently were entirely unfamiliar with all the heartbreak, the joys and sorrows of those who became Americans via that station. However, in communities where the population and theatre patronage is composed to some extent of men, women and children who did come into the U. S. through Ellis Island, it is possible that "Gateway" will have an unique and personal entertainment value.—Gus McCarthy.

In Old Mexico

(Paramount - Harry Sherman Prod.)

Romantic Adventure

Twenty previous Harry Sherman "Hopalong Cassidy" features have made a large portion of the theatre-going public and exhibitors familiar with the series. While some noticeable alterations in the general treatment are made in "In Old Mexico," especially in the manner in which love interest is handled and the melodramatic suspense plotted, the film nevertheless contains all the elements which have combined to give the series unique audience appeal. While there is plenty of action (riding, shooting, fighting) the excitement has less of a blood-and-thunder quality than is customary. On the other hand, pointed dialogue, all-around good characterizations and a battle of wits indulged in by "Hopalong" and a girl ally of his nemesis give the story a refreshing tone.

A mysterious message takes "Hopalong," "Windy" and "Lucky" into old Mexico. When a Mexican friend is killed, "Hopalong" is hurled into a bizarre adventure. His pals wish to rush into avenging action immediately, but "Hopalong," realizing the danger of the situation, elects to play a waiting game. This involves him in an intriguing situation with "Janet Leeds" and brings about romance between him and "Anita," sister of the slain man. Preferring to be the spider-in-the-web rather than the quick striking cobra, "Hopalong" permits "Janet" to lead him into a trap. But as things happen which for the moment promise to result fatally for him and "Lucky" and "Anita," resourceful "Hopalong" contrives to come into control of events, and as the bandit gang is crushed, he personally accounts for the "Fox," who had killed "Colonel Gonzales" and had hoped to treat "Hopalong" likewise.

Well mounted, with sets and backgrounds reflecting a higher class production value, the show presents William Boyd, George Hayes, Russell Hayden and Paul Sutton in the usual convincing way. One of its highlights is Jane Clayton, a newcomer who seems to have the talents and personality presaging future screen importance.

Heroes of the Hills

(Republic)

Action in the West

Followers of the adventures of "The Three Mesquiteers" again will find in this film a trio of western cowboys that rides hard over the dusty plains and fights freely with gun and fist to right a wrong.

In this particular case, the wrong consists of the overcrowded condition of the state penitentiary and the activities of a building contractor who wants to net himself a fortune.

A slight romantic interest is added by "Madelyn," employed by the construction company, who manages to lure "Stony Brooke" away from the ranch while the gang stages the robberies.

The picture fits perfectly in the entertainment groove carved out by former westerns but it can stand on its own merits as an attraction.

In it, O'Brien as a rancher who turns to mining ends the first series of four which RKO produced.

March of Time, No. 13
(RKO Radio)
Excellent, as usual

Grouping two formidable factors that threaten the peaceful pursuit of life, liberty and happiness for the civilian population, the latest issue from the March of Time has in its two reels a distillation of sobering and informative data. The opening portion is devoted to an expertly written and sounded description of the valiant and successful effort expended by traffic authorities, safety committees and highway engineers to reduce automobile mortality by enforcement, education and engineering. One item is construction of a modern network of new ramps and viaducts to alleviate traffic congestion. A prominent highway engineer is quoted upon seeing this section called "Man at the Wheel." The second section, "The Threat to Gibraltar," presents a danger to democratic countries in the efforts of governmental agencies from Fascist powers to establish in the neutral zone of Tangier in Northern Africa, 40 miles distant, a military base to rival the British stronghold.—Running time, 20 minutes.

Dick Tracy Returns
Action Serial

Continuing the adventures of the character created in the newspaper cartoon strip, Dick Tracy, this serial, judging from the first chapter, contains as many thrills and narrow escapes as did its predecessor, "Dick Tracy."

In the first chapter "The Sky Wreckers," "Dick Tracy" is introduced teaching potential G-Men at the Federal Bureau of Investigation in Washington. Then, accompanied by one of the newly appointed G-Men, "Tracy" sets out to capture "Pa Stark" and his five sons. Included are such incidents as the holding up of an armored bank truck with the aid of gas; the wrecking of a taxicab, the shooting of "Ron Merton," the new G-Man, the destruction of a radio station and the attempt by the gang to wreck a plane. "Tracy" signals to the pilot from another plane but is forced to crash into a mountain himself. That is the concluding shot.

William Witney and John English directed and Robert Beche was associate producer. The running time of the first chapter is 30 minutes. The remaining 14 parts run 16 minutes each.

Brother Golfers
(RKO Radio)
A Family Golf Meet

A golfing short is generally agreeable screen fare for the sporting element, but here the presentation is made more outstanding by the introduction of a family sextet of professional golfers, the six Turnesa brothers. Playing on what would seem to be a golfer's idea of paradise in the Bermula Isles, the Turnesa clan demonstrate a variety of pill wizardy to unsettle any optimistic "dub." The wonderland of the insular background is made extremely appealing through some sharpeyed camera focusing.—Running time, 11 minutes.

Anaesthesia
(MGM)
Pete Smith Laughing Gas

Under the wise and witty commentation of that sure cure for midsummer doldrums, Doctor Pete Smith, this short cut subject into one of the brightest pages of materia medica, the discovery and development of anaesthetics for surgery, merits widespread approval. "Doc" has sagely seasoned his entertainment with "Smithian" stooge slapstick. Even if there has never been an operation in one's life to serve as conversational inspiration, the average theatre goer will find this one of the brightest of Mr. Smith's comic concoctions and a very pleasing dose to take.—Running time, 10 minutes.

The Fighting Judge
(Vitaphone)
Touching

Floyd Gibbons has turned sentimental in his newest installment from "Your True Adventure" lot. Instead of the usual thrill packed novelette there is substituted a lavender and old lace narrative. The change in style makes for slower pace but a more widespread audience appeal. The catch in the story revolves around the fact that the strange happenings portrayed concerned the New England literateur and author of "The Autocrat of the Breakfast Table" and his jurist son, the late Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Makassar
Dutch East Indies

This Andre de LaVarre travelogue is concerned with one of the four Great Sunda Islands of Dutch East India and capital of Celebes. It lies beyond the equator and is one of the chief ports in the archipelago south of China. The subject pictures the coolies loading and unloading vessels, the eating habits of the natives, the transportation vehicles, mostly tricycle taxis, and various landmarks of the town which was founded by the Dutch in 1607. Produced in association with P. P. Devlin. Running time, 10 minutes.

Strange Glory
(MGM)
Excellent History Lesson

School children have heard, perhaps more often than they would like, the names of Harriet Beecher Stowe and Barbara Freitchie associated with the annals of the Civil War. Now is added Anna Ella Carroll, able writer of Northern propaganda and descendant of John Carroll of Maryland, signer of the Declaration of Independence. According to this Historical Mystery it was due to Miss Carroll as a military strategist that the Tennessee Plan was formulated and the tide of battle swung in favor of the Northern troops. Although the lady's case was never conclusively proved, neither were her contentions fully denied. The subject is offered in the careful manner practiced in this series.—Running time, 11 minutes.

Hockshop Blues
(RKO Radio)
Weak

As may be surmised from the "three golden balls" title, the locale is a loan office. The reason for such a setting is that Brad Reynolds and his musical men are angling for a sponsor but their instruments are in the covetous care of "Uncle Ben." Transported there, the "angel" listens to samples of orchestration and inspects the work of a team of tap dancers named Wally and Ver'dyn Stapleton and the swing singing of Miss Carolyn Marsh. Whether this talent is part of the pawned music product is not explained, nor is the subject as a whole of much weight.—Running time, 10 minutes.

AMENDED PLAN FOR REORGANIZING RKO IS FINALLY FILED IN COURTS

September 8th Set to Begin Final Hearings; Special Master Says Plan Is Fair, Offers Five Minor Changes

Reorganization of Radio-Keith-Orpheum under Section 77-B of the Bankruptcy Act entered one of its final steps this week when George W. Alger, special master, filed a 25-page report in United States district court, New York, approving and recommending the amended plan as fair and equitable for all classes of creditors and stockholders, and as being feasible. Federal Judge Henry W. Goddard, receiving the report on Friday, set September 8th, at 10:30 a.m., for the beginning of final hearings before Federal Judge William Bondy.

The report held that the plan is constitutional and cited a federal court decision that a plan which "provides a fair equivalent for any rights the bondholders have lost" is constitutional. Mr. Alger recommended five minor changes in the plan.

The modifications suggested included:

An amendment to Article XI of the charter providing for cumulative voting by common stock;

A change in the plan which would make it mandatory on the part of Atlas Corporation, proponent of the plan, to underwrite the purchase of new shares to the extent of $1,500,000;

A provision giving debenture holders who do not wish common shares the right to receive $140 in preferred shares for each $100 of debentures;

A provision meeting objections of the United States National Bank of Denver and allowing it certain increases in amount of interest;

A change in the phraseology of subdivision "e" of Article XI of the charter to limit the funded debt to $3,000,000 so long as preferred stock remains outstanding.

As to feasibility, the report pointed out that the sole test was whether "the corporation as reorganized will have sufficiently sound capital structure and sufficient cash to conduct operations in such a manner that it will have a chance to succeed if average business conditions exist."

Parent Company Holdings

The parent company will have $600,000 at the end of the year in addition to $1,500,000 to be acquired from the sale of stock, Mr. Alger estimated. Against this, he pointed out, there was to be paid only $100,000 on secured notes and the expenses of reorganization.

Should "extraordinary circumstances" arise, Mr. Alger continued, the directors are authorized to create a funded debt up to $3,000,000. RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., now has available $1,500,000 in cash which may be supplemented by short term loans and the theatre companies have at present over $3,500,000, Mr. Alger said. The amended plan, he said, is better than the old because it eliminates fixed obligations and substitutes stock, thus meeting the danger of receivership from "occasional lapses in income."

Reporting on the question of fairness, Mr. Alger remarked that mathematical precision "is obviously impossible" but that the allocation under the plan must be "substantially fair." The fact that a majority of the stockholders had approved the plan was indicative of its fairness, Mr. Alger contended.

ATLAS PERMITS OPTION ON RKO STOCK TO LAPSE

A partially exercised option held by Atlas Corporation on the RKO securities held by Radio Corporation of America expired this week without any additional investment being made, but, at the same time, it was widely reported that the investment company might enter into negotiations for a new option.

The Atlas option was acquired in 1934 and covered, at the time, 1,211,464 shares of common stock, or about 47 per cent of the total outstanding, and $9,786,655 face amount of debentures, or 84 per cent of the total outstanding. The option price was $11,000,000. In October, 1935, Atlas acquired one-half of the holdings for $5,000,000 cash and also obtained an option on the remainder for $6,000,000. The latter option expired last December 31st, at which time Atlas acquired one-twelfth of the remaining holdings for $500,000 cash for a six month extension of the option on the balance, with the alternative of extending it for another six months from June 30th, by acquiring another one-twelfth for $500,000 during July.

Total assets were estimated at $72,297,075 and the net equity of all creditors and stockholders was $23,212,793, he said. The 2,365,518 shares of common stock had a book value of $9.81 a share. The objections of the Independent Stockholders' Committee that the debenture holders aggregating $12,718,500 in principal and $4,200,000 in interest who are to receive under the plan one share of preferred stock and five shares of common stock for each $100 of principal, were receiving more than their proportionate share, was overruled by the special master, who said he did not agree with the contention that the common stock should be valued at $12.66 a share. The report pointed out in reply that the debenture holders were surrendering a secured debt position for preferred and common stock.

Unsecured Creditors' Status

As to the $8,000,000 of unsecured creditors who are to receive 10 shares of common stock for every $100 of indebtedness, the special master observed that under the amended plan there were two favorable features for them. One was the acceptance of a stock basis by debenture holders and the other was the preferential right of unsecured creditors to purchase new stock at a price to be fixed by the court. In view of these features and in spite of the fact that unsecured creditors will receive no allotment for interest accruing after Jan. 27, 1933, the special master felt that the allotment was fair.

The report said it was recognized that present stockholders would be drastically scaled down, receiving one new share for every six of their present holdings. It stated, however, that creditors were entitled to a priority over stockholders and that in no event could stockholders receive any excess over the remainder after creditors had been provided for.

The claim of Rockefeller Center under the amended plan has been reduced from $9,150,628 to $5,000,000, for which the Center is to receive 460,000 shares of common stock, the report stated. This allotment was approved by the special master, subject, however, to the fulfilment of a proposed agreement between the Center and the new company providing for the surrender of claims previously recommended for allowance and the granting of a lease of office space for 12 years in the RKO Building at a rental of $2 per square foor per annum.

Committee Named For Silver Jubilee

Committees to handle the details for the 25th anniversary jubilee of the motion picture industry in Wisconsin were named this week in Milwaukee. The jubilee will be held August 30th and 31st at the Schroeder Hotel, Milwaukee.

Among the 25-year men to be honored at the reunion are Charles W. Trampe, head of the Monogram-Midwest Film Exchange; Tom Saxe, Otto Meister, H. J. Fitzgerald, F. J. McWilliams, E. J. Weisfeldt, E. F. Maertz, A. C. Berkholtz, Charles Koehler, John Adler, Frank Koppelberger, George Fischer, Neil Duffy, Bert Fischer, A. A. Robarge, James Kent, William Kent, Ray Smith and Elmer Klase, president of the Milwaukee projectionists' union.

The committee in charge of arrangements for the event consists of the following:

Major distributors: A. N. Schmitz, RKO, and Sam Shurman, M-G-M; independent distributors: Jack Frackman, Republic, and Charles Koehler, B. N. Judell; Variety Club: E. J. Weisfeldt and Mrs. Frank Fischer; Film Board of Trade: B. J. Miller; Warner-Saxe Theatres: A. D. Kvool and Jack Keegan; Fox-Wisconsin Theatres: H. J. Fitzgerald and L. Roy Pierce; unaffiliated: H. J. Mirisch, Harry Perelewitz and George Panka.

Associated exhibitors: George Langheinrich, George Fischer, William Copeland Jefferson; theatre employes: Elmer Klase and Oscar Olson, president and business manager of the local projectionists' union, and Steve Thomas, secretary, state association of projectionists' unions; exchange employes: William Griffith, Carl Clancy, president and business manager, respectively, of the film exchange employes' union.

Transportation: Al Sickels, Film Service, Inc.; accessories and supplies: Ray Smith and J. B. Schuyler; Independent Theatres Protective Association of Wisconsin: E. F. Maertz, president; A. C. Berkholtz, secretary; Max Krofta, treasurer; F. J. McWilliams, chairman of the board; secretaries: E. C. Krofta, Monogram and R. A. Tesch, business manager, I.T.P.A. of Wisconsin.

The jubilee will include a three-hour boat trip on Lake Michigan the opening evening. This will be followed by an industry meeting at the Schroeder the following afternoon and a banquet in the evening at which the presentations to the 25-year men will be made.

"ARMY GIRL" PUTS F

ARMY

Dedicated to the "men and mounts of the U. S. Cavalry," Republic offers a service melodrama which has a wealth of exploitation possibilities, backed by not only a sellable title, but also a story which should appeal to practically all groups. It should also garner plenty of word-of-mouth publicity ..."Army Girl" is indeed a credit to Republic, a boon for exhibitors.

ESTIMATE: Top notch service story, produced, acted with credit.

EPUBLIC IN 'A' CLASS

LOS ANGELES EXAMINER

REPUBLIC is getting in the "A" class when it can turn out pictures as deftly told, as well acted and as finely produced as "Army Girl," previewed last night at Warner's Beverley Theatre.

A dozen salvoes of applause for Republic's latest cinematic venture into the province of the army. "Army Girl" is big in every respect. Entertainment is packed in from the first moment to the last. There is nothing haphazard about the production.

ARMY GIRL" FOUND TO BE XCELLENT ENTERTAINMENT

Army Girl (Republic) Previewed at rner Beverly Hills Theatre Cast Madge ns, Preston Foster, Neil Hamilton, Ruth Donnelly, H B Warner Heather Angel James Gleason Ralph Morgan Barbara Pepper, Billy Gilbert, Ralph Byrd, Guinn Williams, Robert Warwick Allen Vincent Pepito, Paul Stanton, Dewey Robinson Director George Nicholls, Jr Writers Barry Trivers, Samuel Ornitz

Tip-top entertainment is "Army Girl," which reveals many high spots. One of these, in fact, turns out to be the climax of the picture, although probably not so intended when the film was made. This is the race between army horses and a motor tank, to determine whether the army post, which is the background of the story, should be mechanized. This race is tremendously exciting and is a novelty as well. The tank does everything the horses can do and more

ROMANTIC RIVALRY

There is a rivalry for the "army girl's" love between a cavalry officer and the tank officer The story has a delightfully real and human character

James Gleason comes near to being the star, playing a mechanic on the tank, wise-cracking and rough. The whole cast is a distinguished one. Madge Evans does probably the best characterization of her career H. B Warner brings his fine talents to bear on the role of the commander of the post, managing to win much sympathy when he is dispossessed Heather Angel does an outstanding bit and Ruth Donnelly is amusing as the match-making member of the post

OTHERS EXCELLENT

Guinn Williams plays excellently as the comedy heavy, Preston Foster is fascinating as always as the hard-bitten, lady-fussing hero Neil Hamilton etches a real character as the sober-minded young aspirant for the army girl's hand Ralph Morgan does much with a small part, and all the other players are acceptable G. K.

LOS ANGELES TIMES

One of the best, if not the finest picture Republic has turned out, 'Army Girl,' very considerably hoists the company's prestige, and will travel in fast company on its merits as entertainment and for production class.

SILVERSTONE COMPLETES ADDITIONAL UA PLANS

Says Chaplin Agrees to Profit Sharing Plan; $1,500,000 More Financing for Wanger

Murray Silverstone, the new managing director of United Artists, returned to his New York headquarters on Monday from Hollywood conferences with the company's producers and producer-owners, after apparently having determined remaining phases of the company's new policy, which was basically set several weeks ago, pointing toward expansion.

Charles Chaplin is now in agreement on the new plan by which producers will share to a greater extent in profits.

Walter Wanger has been given additional financing of more than $1,500,000.

However, the contractual status of David O. Selznick and his Selznick International Pictures at United Artists apparently was not settled.

England's Herbert Wilcox may join the company's growing roster of producer associates.

Mr. Silverstone, upon his arrival in New York, declared that "Mr. Chaplin is in full accordance with company policy."

The company plan, adopted by four United Artists owners at a meeting which Mr. Chaplin did not attend, calls for producers to share in profits and for according them reduced charges for world distribution.

Mr. Silverstone announced that additional financing of more than $1,500,000 has been given to Mr. Wanger "to enlarge his production activity and to carry out the most ambitious program in his independent production career." Mr. Wanger probably will enlarge his feature commitment from five to seven films.

Ericksen Is Wanger Business Manager

The announcement was followed almost immediately by the appointment of C. E. Ericksen to the newly created post of business manager and treasurer of Walter Wanger Productions, Inc. Mr. Ericksen has been Douglas Fairbanks' manager for several years and will continue.

Monte Proser, special publicity representative for Mr. Wanger, left New York for Hollywood last week after two months of work on the campaigns on "Blockade" and "Algiers" in New York.

Mr. Silverstone said he had carried on negotiations with Mr. Selznick during his visit to the Coast but added that matters were "unchanged." The Selznick International contract, he explained, does not expire until the end of the year.

He also pointed out that no releasing deal had been closed for "Gone with the Wind," and commented: "Whoever gets it will be lucky." He said there was a possibility that pictures produced by the newly formed Myron Selznick-Ernst Lubitsch company might be distributed by United Artists but added that no deal had been made.

Schaefer Contract Agreed Upon

George J. Schaefer's new contract with the company as head of distribution has been agreed upon, Mr. Silverstone said. He was non-commital on whether it would be signed this week.

Lynn Farnol, advertising and publicity director for United Artists, arrived in Hollywood last Thursday for conferences with Samuel Goldwyn, Mr. Selznick, Mr. Wanger, Hal Roach and Edward Small. Mr. Farnol is due back in New York in a few days.

The fact that Mr. Wilcox may become a United Artists producer was revealed by Dr. A. H. Giannini, former UA president, when he returned this week aboard the Normandie from a European vacation. Dr. Giannini said he had urged Mr. Wilcox to sign with United Artists for several years and on his recent trip to London he again had tried to convince the British producer that the arrangement would be advantageous, especially in view of the revamped distribution percentage and profit sharing plan offered to affiliated producers.

Dr. Giannini said he had no plans for the immediate future. He returns to the Coast in a week.

A board of directors meeting was called for Thursday in New York.

ASCAP to Seek No Changes in Exhibitor Pacts

The American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers will ask for no change in the prevailing music taxes paid by theatres when the society's five-year guarantee against a change in the theatre levy expires next year, E. C. Mills, chairman of the ASCAP administrative committee, said Wednesday.

Mr. Mills said the sentiment within ASCAP is that the existing theatre license fee scale is fair and that no increases in the present schedule should be sought. He also said, however, that ASCAP also felt that no decreases in the schedule were warranted either.

The society's five year guarantee against a license fee change was given in October, 1934, to the National Exhibitors' Emergency Committee of which Walter Vincent was chairman. Members of the committee included Sam Dembow, Jr., L. E. Thompson, Ed Kuykendall, Harry Pinstein, Milton C. Weisman, Leopold Friedman, Leon Netter, Sidney Justin and Edward G. Levy.

The guarantee by ASCAP followed the compromise in the 1934 music tax increase which established the present music fees.

As to whether exhibitor committees would be free to petition a decrease in the tax next year, Mr. Mills said that he would "listen carefully to whatever they might say" and if they could show him that they were "using less music than formerly or that it was of less importance to their programs," he would give "careful consideration" to their requests for a lower license fee.

The present rates are five cents per seat for houses under 800 seats, performing three days or less per week; 10 cents per seat for houses performing over three days weekly; 15 cents per seat for houses from 801 to 1,599 seats, and 20 cents per seat for houses over 1,600 seats.

Creditors of GN Approve Merging With Educational

Approval in principle to the proposed merger of Grand National and Educational was voted this week at a meeting in Hollywood of the creditors of Grand National Pictures, Inc., and Grand National Studios, Inc. The Educational board of directors in New York had already approved the deal in principle.

Immediately after the voting of approval by the creditors on Tuesday, Loyd Wright, co-trustee of Grand National, left Hollywood for New York to discuss further details of the tentative agreement with E. W. Hammons, Educational president, and other Educational officers and to draw up contracts for final consideration by creditors, GN stockholders and William James, Federal judge, under whom the Section 77-B reorganization of Grand National is taking place.

Mr. Wright assured the creditors that neither he nor Edward Alperson, co-trustee, had ever considered any deal whereby Grand National would be taken over completely by an outside group. Under the proposed deal, Mr. Wright told the creditors, Educational would put up $400,000 in cash and the total assets amounting to approximately $200,000 gross residuals from the Twentieth Century-Fox distribution of short subjects to form the new company.

Stock in the new corporation, he continued, would be issued in proportion to Educational and Grand National stockholders and the new organization would assume all obligations of Grand National except trustees' fees.

Creditors, under the plan, could either take preferred stock for liquidation of debts or write off the debts for approximately two-thirds of the figure for cash. The two-thirds estimate, Mr. Wright pointed out, was conservative.

A feature of the Educational reorganization would be the formation of another corporation with minimum capitalization of $1,000,000 to finance added pictures for Grand National distribution outside of the 26 from Fine Arts.

The value of the trustees' estate at present is declared by Mr. Alperson to be approximately $600,000 on residuals on old pictures in distribution. Mr. Wright also disclosed that a Philadelphia law firm had written him asking information on Grand National for possible investors whose identities were not made known.

Fine Arts Signs George Houston

George Houston has been signed by Fine Arts for a series of eight outdoor action pictures, the first of which will be "The Life of Wild Bill Hickock." Mr. Houston previously had been making the Wallaby Jim series for GN.

Charles Lamont, currently directing the first of the Fine Arts pictures for Grand National release, has been made producer-director.

Franklyn Warner, president of Fine Arts, has signed an agreement with Western Electric to use its sound for all of the company's pictures.

H. M. Warner to Visit England

Harry M. Warner, president of Warner Brothers, arrived in New York from the Coast Monday with Mrs. Warner. He plans to sail for England in the near future to attend the opening of the new Warner Theatre in London. Coincident with Mr. Warner's arrival, the company's home office announced that Warner managers and staffs in Australia, Finland and Greece have been awarded salary bonuses as winners of the company's 52-week foreign sales drive for 1937.

IN THE CUTTING ROOM

If I Were King

(Paramount)

Legendary Romance

The talk was about "Cavalcade," "Mutiny on the Bounty," "Wells Fargo," and Frank Lloyd said, "You forgot 'Maid of Salem.' So have I. I hope everyone else has. But 'If I Were King' will be a picture."

He talked about building this production about the legendary, dashing and fascinating figure of the French poet Francois Villon, said it was a "colorful romance and a vigorous melodrama." He said he picked Ronald Colman to be Villon because he knew Colman and knew what Colman could do with a role of that sort.

At the time of the conversation "If I Were King" had been in production for several weeks. The massive sets, street scenes, the more intimate interiors and exteriors constructed for backgrounds were authentic re-creations of Paris as it was in the time of King Louis XI, with the customery of royalty, peasantry and urban mobs.

Mr. Lloyd took up the script book, pointed to such names as Frances Dee, Basil Rathbone, Alma Lloyd, Colin Tapley, William Haade, May Beatty, Francis McDonald, Walter Kingsford, Henry Wilcoxon, Ralph Forbes and Sidney Toler. He said that Ellen Drew was Queen of the Pasadena Tournament of Roses; mentioned that C. V. France was one of Europe's greatest artists, that he would duplicate the success of Robert Morley in "Marie Antoinette."

He had chosen the Justin Huntley McCarthy stage play, which deals in the tumultuous French history that led up to the Revolution, because, he said, "it is doubtful if anyone has produced a more comprehensive, yet simple and easily followed text. Preston Sturges was chosen to prepare the screen play because Sturges "makes no claims to be a scholar of history but proved his ability to handle drama, romance and human interest appeal in 'Imitation of Life' and 'The Power and the Glory'."

"By the way," Mr. Lloyd said, "this is not going to be a prestige picture. My idea is that it shall be what exhibitors call 'a bread and butter' picture."

Release date: October 14, 1938 (tentative).

That Certain Age

(Universal)

Puppy Love Turmoil

"Three Smart Girls," "One Hundred Men and a Girl" and "Mad about Music" have established Deanna Durbin as one of the screen's most popular new stellar personalities. Selling her, it appears, in a majority of cases, is merely a matter of arranging her name properly in marquees and incidental publicity-exploitation media, broadcasting the assurance that it is the winsome singing Deanna in more of the same kind of intriguing screen entertainment through which she has risen to prominence and letting the self-explanatory title take dare of itself. There will be other interesting and worthy persons in "That Certain Age," all of whom have been prominent in recent important pictures. Present will be Melvyn Douglas, now in "Marie Antoinette" and recently in "There's Always a Woman" and "Fast Company;" Jackie Cooper, currently in "White Banners" and "Boy of the Streets," and Irene Rich, who was with Cooper in his first big picture, "The Champ." The small but capable cast also will have John Halliday, featured in "Blockade," seven-year-old Juanita Quigley, Jackie Searl, presently in "Little Tough Guy," and adolescent Peggy Stewart, seen in "White Banners" and "Little Tough Guy."

Concerned in the story which Joe Pasternak, Miss Durbin's discoverer and sponsor, will produce and Edward Ludwig will direct, are a group of interesting individuals doing every day things in interesting ways. There's a girl, at that certain age when she wants to lengthen her skirts, wear high heels, put up her hair and keep a diary whenever a prince charming comes along. The prince charming is a war-weary correspondent whom the girl looks upon as public hero number 1. The boy-friend threatens to go to the dogs when his puppy love gets kicked around.

The story being used is an original by F. Hugh Herbert, last associated with preparation of the comedy romance "Men are Such Fools." Sympathetic adaptation is assured by collaboration on the screen play by Bruce Manning, who helped on "One Hundred Men and a Girl" and "Mad About Music," Charles Hackett, who was associated in preparation of "Firefly," "Ah, Wilderness" and "Small Town Girl," and Billy Wilder.

Rich Man, Poor Girl

(MGM)

Romance and Comedy

The meaning that easily can be read into this terse but significant title, should convey the story idea. Romance involving a son of wealth and a daughter of middle class circumstances, often has brought representatives of the two social economic classes into conflict. It will, again, in "Rich Man, Poor Girl."

A multi-millionaire loves his secretary, who happens to be the serious-minded working girl member of an ordinary working family. She loves him, but fears that because of the wide difference in their economic scales her family will object. The young man solves the problem in an uncommon way.

Robert Young will play the part of the rich man. His recent pictures are "Toy Wife" and "Three Comrades." Ruth Hussey, who has been learning the rudiments of screen art in minor roles, gets her first featured opportunity as the heroine. Lew Ayres, last in "Holiday," will appear as the representative of the middle class given to railing and carping at wealth. Lana Turner, last in "Love Finds Andy Hardy," will be seen as a sister who pounds a typewriter all day and a dance floor all night and is eager that her sister grab off this scion of riches. Guy Gibbee and Sarah Paden are father and mother.

There Goes My Heart

(U. A.-Hal Roach)

Comedy Romance

"There Goes My Heart" is the first Hal Roach production for United Artists distribution. Such being the case, it is to be expected that Mr. Roach, the director, writers, actors and technical aides will have a more than ordinary interest in their work, that they will go to unusual lengths to be sure the film will be good entertainment and will have exploitation merit.

Essentially the theme is romantic comedy, the motivation of the behavior of true-to-life characters. It is said that it will bounce along at a rippling pace and promises to regale with moments of high comedy, tender romance and provocative light melodrama. Born of situations that can and do happen, the story background will move through the beauty of the Mediterranean countryside to the hurlyburlyism of New York department stores, newspaper offices and gay recreation spots. It recounts the experiences of a pampered, sheltered heiress, who looks at life through the eyes of a hustling newspaper man and a sharp-witted sales girl, and discovers adventure and love, and likes both.

The cast has been chosen with particular consideration of the talents. The picture will feature Fredric March, Virginia Bruce, Alan Mowbray, Nancy Carroll and Eugene Pallette. Important supporting roles have been assigned to Claude Gillingwater, Arthur Lake, Etienne Girardot, Irving Pichel, William B. Davidson, Joseph King, Adia Kusnetzoff and Robert Armstrong.

Norman McLeod, maker of two previous successful Roach attractions. "Merrily We Live" and "Topper," is the director.

Release date: August 26, 1938.

Campus Confessions

(Paramount)

College Life

Pictures of college life, co-ed romances and campus capers usually have some kind of sport background, football, crew or track. This one will have basket ball, and one of the best basketball players of all time, Stanford's "Hank" Lusetti, as one of its principal figures. Mr. Lusetti was very much in the public prints last winter when he culminated four years of playing for his university by setting up the high scoring record. He naturally is a source of topical interest and therefore an exploitation feature.

With Lusetti will be seen most of the champion Stanford team in a real basket ball game. For straight-away picture names, "Campus Confessions" will present Betty Grable, Eleanore Whitney, William Henry (the hero), John Arledge, Fritz Feld, Roy Gordon, Thurston Hall and Matty Kemp.

The picture is being produced by William Thomas, onetime theatrical press agent, a young fellow who has definite ideas of what young folk want in screen entertainment. It is being directed by George Archainbaud.

Release date: Sept. 30, 1938.

THREE COMPANIES TAKE TO AIR FOR NEW FILMS

Radio Used for "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "Men with Wings," "Marie Antoinette"

Twentieth Century-Fox, Paramount and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer are directing public attention to important new feature releases through radio—Fox staging an elaborate broadcast in honor of Irving Berlin for its "Alexander's Ragtime Band," MGM using a series for its "Marie Antoinette," and Paramount, to exploit "Men with Wings," sponsoring a series of transcriptions in one of the biggest radio campaigns ever undertaken by a film company. Also, Warners are sponsoring a series of transcriptions on a score or more of stations in key cities.

Exhibitors' protests of last year that radio presentations of films impaired their box office value were reputedly silenced by a better understanding how to treat film material on the air by both radio and film interests, and by such programs as the Lux "Radio Theatre," "Hollywood Hotel," the MGM "Good News" program, and others.

The broadcast of Twentieth Century-Fox's "Alexander's Ragtime Band" over CBS Wednesday night was one of the most elaborate film previews ever presented on the air.

Scarcely a major picture of the last season made its first night debut without an accompanying broadcast. Films thus treated include "Algiers," Hollywood opening was covered by NBC; "Cocoanut Grove," CBS; "The Adventures of Robin Hood," two broadcasts, one treating it dramatically and the other airing its music; "Blockade," broadcast over NBC; "Tropic Holiday," "In Old Chicago," "White Banners," "Men With Wings," "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm," "Josette," "Three Blind Mice," and others.

"Alexander's Ragtime Band"

Fox stars and executives traveled from Hollywood to New York to participate in the coast-to-coast broadcast Wednesday night honoring Irving Berlin, and to attend the Roxy debut Friday of the Fox-Berlin picture, "Alexander's Ragtime Band."

Included in the broadcast, which went on the air over the CBS network at 9:30 EDST, were scenes and songs from "Alexander's Ragtime Band." Tyrone Power, Ethel Merman and Jack Haley, who have key roles in the picture, were in New York to take part in the program. They, and Alice Faye, who went on the air from Hollywood, joined Darryl F. Zanuck, production chief, and virtually all home office officials, in paying tribute to Mr. Berlin.

Mr. Zanuck, who had been vacationing abroad, arrived Monday on the Normandie.

"Men with Wings"

The advance campaign for Paramount's aviation film, "Men with Wings," starring Fred MacMurray, Ray Milland and Louise Campbell, was inaugurated nationally over the weekend with the first of a 12-weeks series of half-hour radio programs which got underway over 53 stations of Mutual Broadcasting System.

This radio show presents highlights of historical events in aviation. During the series, which emanates from Station KHJ in Los Angeles, Fred MacMurray, Ray Milland, Louise Campbell as well as other members of the cast with Director William Wellman and important people in aviation, will appear.

Theatre operators scheduled to play the Paramount production, which will be released during October, are said to be negotiating with local MBS stations for announcements regarding the picture's playdate at their theatres.

"Marie Antoinette"

A series of broadcasts started Tuesday from the lobby of the Astor theatre, New York, where Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Marie Antoinette" museum is on view. The first of these went on the air over WHN at 11:30 A.M. and the second was scheduled for Thursday, at the same hour. Two more broadcasts will take place on the same days next week.

Sidney Kaufman, radio film commentator, describes the museum and the individual exhibits, consisting of period antiques and properties used in the filming of "Marie Antoinette." The program also includes impromptu interviews with visitors.

The picture, starring Norma Shearer and Tyrone Power, will have its Broadway premiere August 16th, at the Astor.

Bagnall Reelected Club President

George L. Bagnall, executive studio manager at Paramount, has been reelected president of the Paramount Studio Club for his third term. Eugene Zukor and H. E. McCroskey were elected vice-presidents; Ralph Green, treasurer, and Ruth Duignan, secretary.

Vincent Price, who appeared opposite Helen Hayes in "Victoria Regina," has been signed to a five year contract by Universal. The company is negotiating with Constance Bennett, Roland Young and W. C. Fields to star in 1938-39 pictures.

35 P.C. Increase Noted in French Film Production

Production in France is on the increase, primarily because of the success in the United States of a few French pictures during the last two or three years, Al Krellberg, attorney and foreign films distributor, declared this week after returning on the Ile de France from a seven weeks' European trip.

Although praising French pictures, Mr. Krellberg expressed doubt that the pictures will come up to the expectations of producers as to financial returns from the United States. He estimated that production in France has increased about 35 per cent.

Financial backing is coming from both French companies and English insurance companies, Mr. Krellberg said. He pointed out that the investment of money in French productions is considered a better investment than it would be in English productions because of the manner in which French pictures are sold.

When a picture is announced, Mr. Krellberg said, it is bought sight unseen, in several countries and the purchasers immediately advance 25 per cent of the purchase price. Another 25 per cent is advanced when the film is completed and the remainder is then paid when the film is delivered, according to Mr. Krellberg. This system, he continued, assures the producer of a market for his product and, in addition, gives the producer advance money with which to work. However, Mr. Krellberg pointed out, the system is applicable only to announcements of pictures that have well known stars in them.

Mr. Krellberg estimated that French producers will turn out a total of about 210 features during the year. He said, however, that he believes the American market will support substantially only about six French pictures a year. Others exhibited here, he said, will have limited showings but they will not be real successes.

During his stay in France, Mr. Krellberg obtained four pictures for distribution in the United States. He identified one as "Streets Without Joy," and said that in two of the others Henry Bauer is starred and Danielle Darrieux is starred in the fourth. "Streets Without Joy," Mr. Krellberg pointed out is a remake of Greta Garbo's first picture which was titled "Streets of Sorrow." Dita Parlo is starred in the new version.

The fact that French producers are looking to the American market for large financial returns on their productions was proven to Mr. Krellberg, he said, when he learned that one producer was asking $200,000 for the distribution rights to a picture.

"They've heard fantastic figures about the returns on French pictures in the United States," Mr. Krellberg explained, "and they believe that all French pictures can make big money. But $200,000, why that's more than the most successful French pictures have grossed in this country."

Mr. Krellberg also visited England and this week he praised the manner in which censorship is carried on in that country. He was particularly impressed, he said, with the courtesy and consideration which is shown owners of pictures. He illustrated the point by explaining that while in London he acted in behalf of a client in submitting a picture for approval of the censorship authorities. The film, he said, was rejected but when Mr. Krellberg appealed to J. Brook Wilkinson, secretary of the board, he found that Mr. Wilkinson was willing to listen to arguments and reasoning. The picture, Mr. Krellberg said, was seen by the board three times and finally was approved with a few changes.

Lion Signs Powell

Sandy Powell, one of the British industry's box-office comedians and star of radio and music-hall, has been signed on a long term contract by British Lion Film Corporation. The new contract will take Powell to the end of 1941 and calls for him to star in a minimum of two pictures a year at the British Lion Studios at Beaconsfield.

The decision to place Powell under contract followed the conclusion of the screening of his British Lion film "I've Got a Horse," and puts him among the most highly paid British screen stars.

Aino Bergo Returns

Aino Bergo, Swedish actress whom the more discerning critics consider destined for screen fame, has come back under the Teddington wing to appear in a Warner-First National Comedy, "Many Tanks, Mr. Atkins."

The story, an original by Reginald Purdell, has been written by him as a vehicle for himself and Claude Hulbert, in which both comedians play the parts of "Tommies," members of a crack cavalry regiment, destined to manipulate the terrors of a modern tank.

Seeks Radio Story

Negotiations are afoot for the purchase by Twentieth Century Production, Ltd., of the film rights of one of the most popular dramatic subjects to be radioed in serial form by British Broadcasting Corporation. The story, which is the subject of an impending deal, has as its central character a noted detective, for which role George Sanders, recently reimported for work at Pinewood, has been selected.

It is Robert Kane's plan to make a series of pictures on a scale more expensive than is normal for quota productions, though less lavish that the Gracie Fields film. He will develop these in rather the same way as Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer developed the "Thin Man" series.

It is hoped that it will be possible to obtain a labour permit for director Eugene Ford.

Shooting in Palaces

With the shooting of sequences in three royal palaces, Balmoral, Braemar and Buckingham Palace, and the tying up of various loose ends of production, Herbert Wilcox will have completed work on the Anna Neagle production "Sixty Glorious Years," successor to the record-breaking "Victoria the Great." Made throughout in color, the film presents an intimate story of Queen Victoria through the later stages of her reign, with Anna Neagle playing the part of Queen Victoria and Anton Walbrook that of Prince Consort. A huge cast of well-known players appears in support.

Mr. Wilcox some time ago announced his intention of giving the film its premier at the Empire Exhibition now open in Glasgow.

Bessie, "the Beauty of Bucks," is gentled by Sylvia Coleridge and James Mason for the camera's benefit during the shooting of a farm sequence in the cooperative film "Deadwater" under the direction of Roy Kellino. Pamela Kellino and Mr. Mason are co-starred with Miss Coleridge.

Filming Commons

Motion picture cameras for the first time in history penetrated the hallowed precincts of the House of Commons, the home of Britain's legislative authority, when first shots were taken by Gaumont-British Instructional in a new series designed to popularize and propagate the principles of democracy.

Special permission was granted by the Speaker, the Rt. Hon. Captain Edward Fitzroy, and three cameras turned upon the historic ceremony of the Speaker's procession and entry into the House of Commons.

The new series officially is approved by the Board of Education and is being produced in the closest cooperation with Government authorities. It will be released for display in schools and cultural centres throughout the United Kingdom, and it is hoped in the United States.

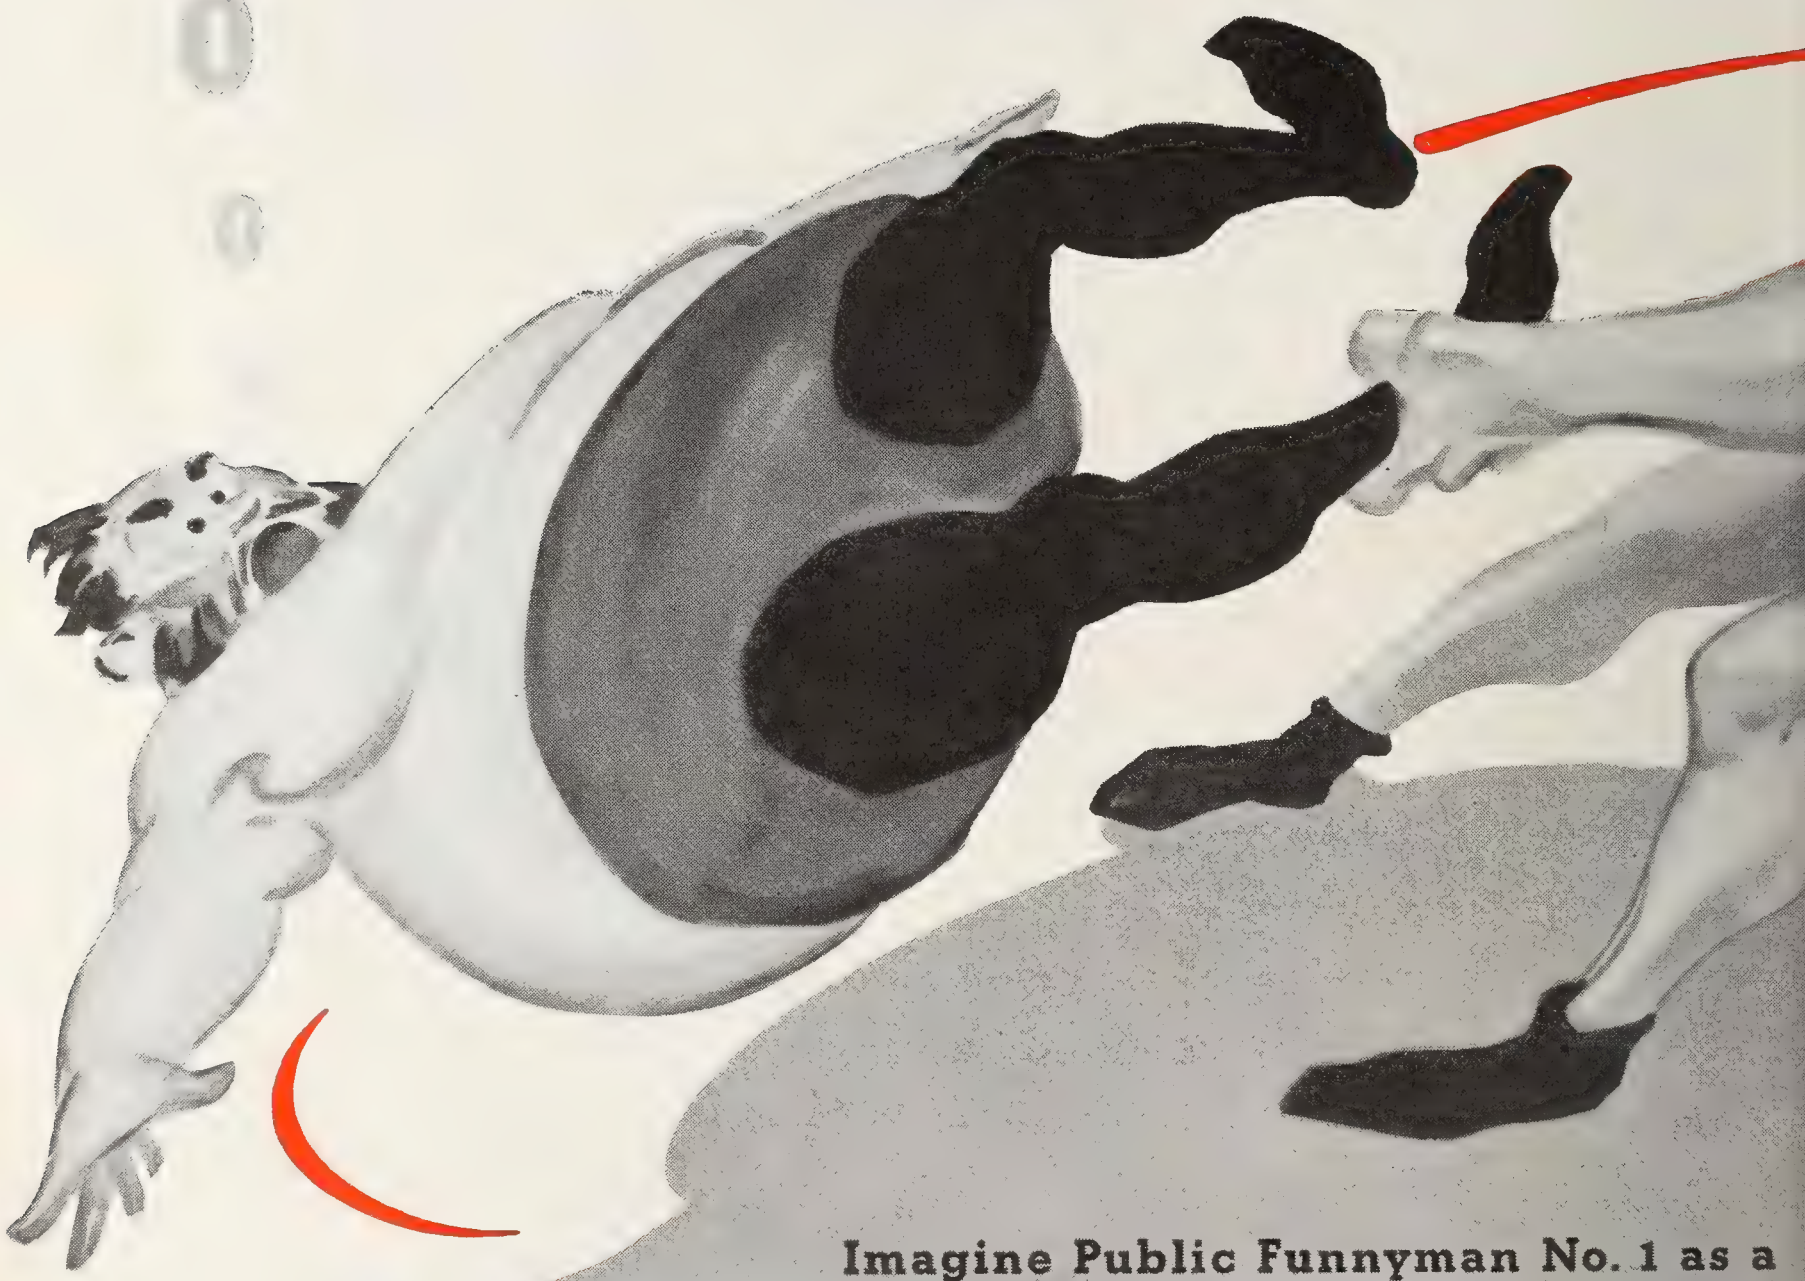
British Films in Venice

Under the auspices of the Federation of British Industries, numerous British films have been entered for competition at the Venice Film Exhibition to be held this month in the Italian city. Among the feature films are London Film Production's "The Drum" and the recent Pascal production "Pygmalion."

First GB for MGM

Jessie Matthews, one of Britain's few leading international stars, is gong to work almost immediately at the Pinewood Studios on a new Gaumont British production "Climbing High." This film will be the first to be released by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer under the new contract of the two companies.

Selected for leading man for Miss Matthews is Michael Redgrave, recent romantic discovery of Gainsborough-GB.



Itemized

Elizabeth Bergner and her husband, Dr. Paul Czinner, have been naturalized as British subjects. This presumably makes Miss Bergner a British film star.

UNSOLVED PROBLEMS DISTURB DREAMS OF BRITISH EXHIBITORS ON VACATION

Reticence of CEA Reports Conceals Importance of Issues Facing Trade; Redundancy Debate Once Again to Fore

by AUBREY FLANAGAN
in London

Lazing peacefully on the sunlit, wave-lapped shores of the Lido, Venice, or strolling nonchalantly past the frenzied song-plugging kiosks of Blackpool, Lancashire, England—according to whether he be well endowed circuit chief or struggling independent—the British exhibitor will, in the next few weeks, have more than one perplexing problem to turn over in his mind as he takes his annual summer vacation. Whether the process will disturb the peace of his soul by the complexity of the problems, or whether the new mood of self imposed optimism—accompanied by an unduly nervous state of 'hush-hush'— will render him for the time being indifferent to the advancing shadows, depends greatly upon his position and material state.

The detached student of trade politics and industrial mechanics, however, can scarcely blind himself to the fact that the autumn is inevitably bound to bring the CEA face to face with realities, and despite the optimism already referred to—despite if not indeed because of the present mood of diplomatic darkness—more than one holidaymaking English exhibitor will find himself thinking not always of the sunlit scene, but quite frequently of his position as a small trader, of the confronting challenge of the circuits and of the baffling tangles of redundancy.

The vacation has come with these three vital problems unsolved, held over, so to speak, for consideration and settlement when the sun basking and Continental touring is over. It will, however, need a more definite spirit of unity and a more confident state of mind if permanent, and what is no less imperative, corporative peace is to be achieved.

Recent developments in CEA circles, though a gloss has been carefully placed over them, have made it abundantly clear that there are more points of view than one on more subjects than one, and that scepticism not unmingled with inertia, found in depressing proportions among the rank and file, are at direct variance with the more rosily tinted pronunciamentoes and reports which emanate from Panton Street.

Secrecy Preferred

Straw in the wind of contemporary trade politics is headquarters' present preference for secrecy. Already referred to in these columns has been the nervous arrest of a significantly forceful discussion on the KRS negotiations and its diversion to more cloistered precincts. The subsequent discussion at the following month's General Council, a lively and hard hitting debate, was not recorded in the official report.

Silence over the discussions with the KRS on the matter of redundancy was of course at the direct request of the latter body, and took such a definite form that even the General Council members themselves, hearing the report in their negotiating Committee, had to be content with a verbal statement given in lieu of the usual cyclostyled variety. Once again, however, it served merely to stir in the minds of the rank and file the wonder what was going on, to suggest, quite unjustifiably of course, that if somebody's game was being played, then somebody else's was not.

Will Pepper, for the last eight years manager of the Regal Marble Arch theatre, London, who will take over the managership of the new Warner house in Leicester Square, London, when it opens in September.

At the London and Home Counties Branch bi-Annual meeting some speculation, speculation of an unpleasant and unwelcome type, was provoked by the significant fact that though President Kenneth Nyman, well known as a pugnacious and consistently anti-circuit fighter with a record of individual battling against redundancy, was present, the privilege of reporting on the work of the CEA-KRS Committee was handed to Theo Fligelstone, whose subsequent statement was not only highly optimistic in generality and in detail, but contained the heartening news that they and the KRS were at one mind on redundancy, that they had the full support of the circuits and that there was no split in the ranks.

Next day Mr. Nyman resigned from the London and Home Counties Branch.

Statistics Withheld

Indication, too, that all the expostulations, pleas and pronunciamentoes of Panton Street are useless in the face of hard, material facts, is contained in the admitted failure of the CEA headquarters to stir the rank and file into action in providing statistical ammunition for the fight on behalf of the small man. Some weeks back, as already recorded in these columns, the CEA failed to get the KRS to agree on a scheme of special terms for the small exhibitor. The KRS turned it down on the grounds that they could not impose as a corporate policy on its members a scheme dealing with individual trading. Individual renters, however, agreed to special terms for appropriate clients. The CEA thereupon circularized their members with a like flourish of trumpets, and even directly similar battle array to that used successfully on grading, and asked them to provide in confidence details of their business, their film hire, prices, and takings. It was to be used in the strictest secrecy to aid a new crusade on behalf of the small man. There was about it a startling similarity to the grading war. There was, too, paradoxical as it might seem, all the difference in the world.

Now, weeks after, it transpires that exhibitors are not collaborating. Figures are not coming in. The appeal for statistics and trade figures has fallen for the most part on deliberately deaf ears. All over the country in every local branch, General Council members are appealing vehemently and with impassioned eloquence for their rank and file members to play the game and to send in these essential figures, emphasizing that they will be treated in strictest confidence and emphasizing with even more force, that no member of the negotiating committee will have access to them.

The figures, none the less, are not coming in, and in many cases are not likely to. In some instances it may be inertia and indifference. In many instances it is deliberate unwillingness to do so. In even more instances it is nothing less than fear, fear that vital trade information may leak out to their competitors, more especially to the circuits. There is, of course, no question of lack of trust in the integrity of those directing the campaign.

In the branches one consistently hears the allegation that though the circuits were given the complete backing of the independents over the matter of grading, the former have not yet showed any other than verbal willingness to reciprocate by toeing the line over long programmes, over bars and over redundancy. It has even been suggested in some areas that the matter should be raised in the General Council. (As if it had not been raised already.)

There is, it happens, something nearer to unanimity over redundancy than on most problems before the CEA in its present discursive and analytic stage at least, and in spite of the discordant voice of at least one high officer of the Association.

Joint Council Proposed

The scheme submitted to the KRS and which the latter have agreed to consider and comment upon is briefly as follows: A joint council of eight renters and eight exhibitors should be appointed to which all applications for building for opening new cinemas should be submitted, and on the strength of which a booking certificate would be issued—or refused. New ventures already under way would automatically be approved. The Council would have the powers to demand either additions to, or cuts in existing seating figures. The penalty to be imposed would be the withholding of film supplies, the imposition, as it were, of economic sanctions. There should be an independent chairman.

On the presentation of this scheme, one of the American distributors gave voice to the fear that there were dangers in that foreign traders might be open to criticism if not prosecution for restraint of trade. On the other hand criticism came from the CEA camp itself that not only did such a scheme take no consideration of the producers' point of view, but that it placed all power ultimately in the hands of the renter, that whatever might be the exhibitors' plight, the renter did not suffer at all.

Until the post holiday period we are not likely to hear more of the scheme. When the relaxations are over and the vacation but a veneer of tan on the exhibitor's neck, and the General Council meets again in Glasgow in September, the battles will begin anew. There may not be much heavy artillery, but there will be plenty of sniping.

TEXT OF DIRECTORS' GUILD ATTACK ON "INEPT" ASSOCIATE PRODUCERS

Herewith is the complete statement of the analysis of motion picture production adopted by the Screen Directors Guild in Hollywood last week, in which the Guild members demanded elimination of those associate producers and supervisors who are "unqualified, inexperienced and utterly lacking in creative policy."

This is not a series of demands. It is an analysis of the motion picture industry, offered constructively to the men in charge of the industry.

The cry is ringing out of every studio today: "What can we do to rehabilitate the motion picture industry?" The directors, and their associates, feel they must assist in answering this grave question. They feel that they must raise an answer out of their long experience in the service of this industry. They also feel that the answer is so important that they must give it directly without blurring politeness.

Studio heads have not come to directors for this opinion, but the directors cannot watch a decline of the industry which threatens serious consequences to all those who work in it without offering their diagnosis.

It is the firm conviction of the Directors Guild that rehabilitation lies, first, in changing the present "system of production" which pervades the industry, namely, eliminating the involved, complicated and expensive system of supervision which separates the director and writer from the responsible executive producers, which practice has steadily lowered the quality of motion pictures through a number of years.

No director questions the need of executive supervision, nor are the directors endeavoring to tell the producing companies how to run their businesses, and in referring here to executive personnel who are engaged in supervision of creative work in both "A" and "B" pictures no director questions the contribution of many individual producers who have given prodigiously to the industry. These men need no identification. Their contributions speak for themselves, and of them we have no words but praise and recognition for their accomplishments.

We speak here of the army of the inept, who have been promoted to positions of authority for which they are unqualified, inexperienced and utterly lacking in creative ability. A survey of the major studios has revealed that 40 per cent of the cost of production is represented by overhead and miscellaneous. Never in the history of the industry has this cost been so high. We believe that it is to be explained by the "system of production" described above.

Even within the other 60 per cent is to be found a record of uncertainty, duplication and waste that characterizes the present "system of production." There is no desire on our part to absolve the director of some of the responsibility, and one of the intentions of the Screen Directors Guild is to undertake self-discipline, which the overwhelming part of the membership is eager to undertake for the good of the industry. But we must emphasize that the larger responsibility rests with those in executive positions of power. The director finds himself very often actually carrying on wasteful and costly practices because of the present system.

Problem of Sufficient Product

In recent years most studios have faced an ever-increasing difficulty in meeting their release dates, and have fallen short of making the number of pictures yearly contracted for. This in spite of the increasing number of producers and associate producers. In large measure this can be attributed directly to the growing estrangement between the producer and the director on the one hand, and the director and the writer on the other.

Let us be factual for a moment! Following is a brief summary of findings covering the position of the director today—in comparison to ten years ago! The most alarming and significant fact uncovered was the amazing increase in the producer class during the decade.

	1926-1927	1936-1937
DIRECTORS with Feature Credits	246	234
PRODUCERS, including Supervisors and Associates.	34	220
	1927	1937
Feature American-made Releases	743	484

800 per cent more producers to produce 40 per cent less pictures.

There are 60 directors with 1936-1937 credits who were directing pictures in 1921 and earlier.

It would seem but natural that the director whose greater knowledge of the mechanics of the picture and the actual working conditions on the back lot can ease and hasten stories and scenarios through many difficult situations, and whose trained and experienced mind can foresee many of their "retakes" and obviate them.

Times without number when the producer has prepared a story without assistance or advice of the director, situations, stunts, and scenes are incorporated into the script which are either impossible of satisfactory achievement, or involve an expense out of all proportion to their importance to the picture.

In many of these instances, had the director been present, he could have brought this to immediate attention and suggested mechanical alternatives that would have expedited the writing and facilitated the shooting.

Stories in Vaults

Let us analyze this present "system of production" even further. Millions of dollars worth of story properties are in the vaults of studios. Much of this material never was of any value, much of it never will be of any value, and most of it was the ill conceived product of the unqualified.

A great portion of this money is tied up in tully completed screen plays which will never be made. On many of these dozens of people have worked to no avail. In the great majority of cases no director has ever scanned a single line. This is a waste of money.

Of these properties enough has been said—but one last statement must be put down, namely: that of all the people in the studios the directors have not been asked to go over this material for salvage and reconstruction.

Weekly conferences on production take place in every studio. Here production questions relating to scripts to be bought, scripts on hand, scripts in work and general policy are discussed. In a large majority of instances the directors are not invited. The directors would be happy to give of their experience to such meetings.

Millions of dollars worth of fresh material is now, at this writing, being readied for the cameras. It is being cut into many parts, in accordance with the practice of subdivisions of labor. The one man who, in the great majority of cases, has nothing to do with the preparation of the material is the man who will finally have to direct its exposure on film. Because of the separation of the director and the writer, when a script is finally handed to a director, he often finds in it an accumulation of writing done to order with little clarity or entertainment value which he must attempt to infuse with life without changing a line, a scene, or coming in behind schedule.

In the making of "B" pictures these conditions are even more prevalent and are aggravated by the fact that the economy of production is paramount. In the majority of cases the men in charge of these pictures are utterly unqualified. They have little respect for the medium, less respect for their audiences and excuse their lack of imagination by ridiculing it in others. The result is an inferior product.

The Directors Guild feels that "B" pictures are an important part of this industry and, because of their importance, must maintain, within their limited budgets, a high standard of entertainment which can be attained only by the best use of the creative talent of the director and writer.

Color Cost a Factor

With the advent of color, the cost of production increases to an appreciable extent. Exhibitors can pay no more for color pictures because they can ask no more from the box-office. It is the industry that must suffer. Because of this it is more clear than ever that the dependence of the industry on men of knowledge and experience with the mechanics and actual work in production, increases in direct proportion to the cost of production.

Who are these men upon whom this dependence increases? Who else than the director is at one and the same time familiar with the intricate and many sided problems of the comera, of the microphone, of the lighting, of the sets, of the props, of the mobs, of the stunts, of the cutting and, most important of all, economically of the footage? Who else has had the experience to justify such knowledge?

The significant fact remains that even today the best pictures made in the industry are largely those in which the director has had real participation in their dramatic and mechanical structure from inception in direct association with the executive producers without the interference of intermediaries. The success of this practice has had no weight in the industry—on the contrary, the practice of developing this approach to pictures is on the wane—and many directors who, until recently, were offered creative opportunities are finding the doors progressively closed to them. This costs the industry quality and time which are money.

What built the motion picture was "individuality"—freshness of approach, the unique touch which gave vivid experience. These were the creative elements which raised the nickelodeon to the motion picture industry. This individuality was largely the contribution of directors and writers. This may be disputed ad infinitum, but it remains a fact that it is not material alone which is important to motion pictures but also the manner in which that material is registered on film in this infinitely

IATSE HEADQUARTERS TO MOVE TO NEW YORK

Transfer from Washington Seen as Preliminary Step in Centralizing Union's Activities

IATSE's first formal move pointing toward complete unionization of motion pictres, in all three branches, will be made late this month when the American Federation of Labor affiliate transfers its national headquarters from Washington to New York City in order to better conduct its national organizing campaign from the base of the motion picture's corporate and executive activities.

Announcement that the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees and Moving Picture Machine Operators intends to organize all motion picture labor, from the highest skilled workers in production to theatre ushers and ticket takers in exhibition, was made June 6th by George E. Browne, president, at the 34th convention of the IATSE, in Cleveland.

With that end in view, the organization has been quietly arranging to transfer its organizing and operating base from the Earle Theatre Building in the Capitol to the International Building on Fifth Avenue, at Rockefeller Center, New York.

Back in 1934, when the Administration was at the height of its first-term activity for bettering the position of labor, through the Blue Eagle of the NRA, and otherwise, Mr. Browne and his fellow officers in the IATSE found it advisable to transfer the organization's quarters from New York to Washington to further IATSE interests in the government-labor movement. This is no longer necessary, and now with the organization preparing to really "step out" in motion picture unionization, having ambitions to enlarge its membership from its present 60,000 to an eventual 150,000, or more, it is felt within IATSE inner councils that New York is the logical location for national headquarters.

See Delay on Extra Ruling

A decision as to whether Hollywood extras come under the Wages and Hours Act which goes into effect October 24 will not be forthcoming before next year, Labor Department officials said in Washington this week. The case is only one of hundreds which will come before Elmer F. Andrews, recently appointed administrator of the act, it was pointed out. Preliminary surveys have indicated that practically every industry coming under the law includes classes of workers whose status is not defined clearly in the law. It is believed several months will be required for the issuance of decisions covering all of these border line cases.

Managers' Drive Postponed

The long planned move to obtain recognition from New York motion picture theatres has been postponed until the fall by the Theatrical Managers, Agents and Treasurers Union. Hal Olver, a spokesman for the union, said numerous officials of New York theatres have joined the organization but that the emphasis had been placed on the legitimate theatre field.

DIRECTORS' UNIT FILES BARGAINING CHARGES

Moving unexpectedly, the Screen Directors Guild on Tuesday filed before Dr. Towne Nylander, regional director of the National Labor Relations Board in Hollywood, charges of failure to bargain collectively against 10 studios. Dr. Nylander immediately cited the producers to appear Friday to answer the charges, this action taking precedence over the original NLRB action of the guild asking for certification as collective bargaining agency for directors, assistants and unit managers, hearing on which had been set for August 22.

The studios cited are Loew's, Inc.; Selznick International, Warners, Paramount, Samuel Goldwyn, Universal, Wanger, Columbia, RKO and 20th Century-Fox.

It is understood that Dr. Nylander will sound out the producers on their stand concerning the directors' petition in view of the recent NLRB decision under which the industry is declared to be in interstate commerce and therefore under the jurisdiction of the Wagner Act.

Frank Capra, president of the guild, signed Tuesday's complaint. Twentieth Century-Fox is the only studio thus far to file an answer to the original petition of the guild. In its answer the studio declared the NLRB has no jurisdiction over the industry.

Catholic Daughters Protest Vulgarity

The national board of directors of the Catholic Daughters of America, at the semi-annual meeting at Atlantic City, reiterated their opposition to "licentious and indecent" motion pictures, to block booking and to pictures considered propagandist for the Spanish Loyalist cause. The board also announced it would make "every effort" to drive off the newsstands publications in which "publicized and popularized vulgarity and obscenity is dressed up into literary vileness and displayed pictorially."

RKO Exercises Options

Options have been exercised by RKO Radio on the continued services of two youthful stars, Anne Shirley and Lucille Ball. Miss Shirley recently completed "Mother Carey's Chickens," and Miss Ball is co-starring with Jack Oakie in "The Affairs of Annabel," to be released in September. She is also the feminine lead in the Marx Brothers' new picture, "Room Service."

Guild's Attack On Producers

imaginative and limitless medium. Today the system offers a virtual proscription against originality and freshness in pictures. This costs the industry millions of dollars.

To meet this dangerous state in our industry, the Directors Guild earnestly recommends that closer unity be established and maintained between the real producer on the one hand and the director and writer on the other, and that the directors bend every effort toward the re-establishment of the collaborative system which was, and still is, the money making and good picture making fact of the past.

Which brings us to this very important point. The Guild, formed by the motion picture directors, is in existence to do the industry a service, not to do it in. It is in existence to do service to this industry in the only way possible by directors, namely, to guarantee that every effort will be made to give the industry the imagination and individuality of the director.

The director has, for 10 years, been steadily pushed out of his initiating role and has thereby been less able to offer the industry his technique, inspiration and mechanical skill. These have been taken over by minor executives unfamiliar with the physical problems and possibilities of actual production and divorced from the spontaneous life of story, actors and director, together on the live set for the first time.

The directors believe in the medium, the audiences and themselves. They are ready to serve the industry as they always have and they protest that they will be able to serve it in direct relation to the opportunity given them to do so. They are convinced that they can move in this direction only as a guild, because the individual is no longer sufficient in an industry which needs not just a suggestion but a house cleaning.

Large Circuits Sign With Warner Abroad

Deals for Warner product have been signed by large circuits in several countries, J. H. Mason, managing director of the J. C. Williamson and Fuller-Hayward circuits in New Zealand, has contracted for all Warner pictures for one year. A ten-year deal with Hoyts' 110-theatre circuit, recently was completed.

The 27 features for distribution in Italy have been taken by the Leoni and Enic key city groups. They are to be dubbed in Italian with a new process.

Other transactions include a two-year contract with the Tuschinski circuit of Amsterdam and Rotterdam and contracts with the Forum and Corso first-runs in Budapest.

Sportscope Series Completed

The current season's program of sport short subjects produced by RKO Pathe Sportscope for RKO Radio release has been completed with "Fisherman's Paradise," according to Frank R. Donovan, production manager.

Philip on Foreign Tour

Van Ness Philip, in charge of RCA Photophone's export activities, is on an extended tour of the company's licensees and distributors in Europe and South Africa. He will return in September.

"I don't mind telling you I have a confession to make. About two months ago my old subscription to the HERALD expired. At that time I planned not to renew it, as I was practically swamped with trade papers and magazines. I didn't think I would miss just one, but now how well I realize that being without the HERALD is a big loss. So, send me a copy pronto, and I hope I'll never be without one again."

WHAT THE PICTURE DID FOR ME

Columbia

CALL OF THE ROCKIES: Charles Starrett, Iris Meredith—Had enough action to satisfy a Friday-Saturday group and that's all we can expect, I guess. Running time, 54 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

LOST HORIZON: Ronald Colman, Jane Wyatt—A wonderful picture. Stars all great.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala. General patronage.

TWO FISTED SHERIFF: Charles Starrett, Barbara Weeks—This man Starrett does all right by us here. Always leaves us a few pennies for our creditors, which we can't say of some. Business fine.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

WIDE OPEN FACES: Joe E. Brown—Passed OK on a Bank Night. Not as good as past Brown pictures, but his name will draw them in here. Running time, 67 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

First National

ADVENTURES OF ROBIN HOOD, THE: Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland—A picture with plenty of action. Played to the best business this year. Played July 9.—B. Hollenbeck, Rose Theatre, Sumas, Wash. Small town patronage.

ADVENTURES OF ROBIN HOOD, THE: Errol Flynn, Olivia de Havilland, Basil Rathbone, Claude Rains, Ian Hunter—An excellent picture for small towns, full of action and color. It will do business for anyone and send the audience away with a satisfied smile. Excellent entertainment. Running time, 102 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

BELOVED BRAT: Bonita Granville, Dolores Costello—Believe all who saw it got a little something more than entertainment from this, or I hope they did. Went over OK on a double feature. Running time, 62 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

CRIME SCHOOL: "Dead End" Kids, Humphrey Bogart, Gale Page—An excellent drama that is tops in anybody's program. Too much cannot be said about this wonderful story and the acting of the Kids. We used an extra trailer for two weeks showing this picture and it brought in good returns. Running time, 70 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

CRIME SCHOOL: Gale Page, Humphrey Bogart, "Dead End" Kids—Excellent. Liked by all. Strong enough for extended playing time. Good action, good story. Step on it. It will take it.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

FOOLS FOR SCANDAL: Carole Lombard, Fernand Gravet, Ralph Bellamy—To us it was another of the inane cycle, no story at the start, none at the end, and with a director or production manager making the accomplished Lombard and Bellamy mug like kids giving a freshman class play in high school. Add an overdose of English and French accents here and there. And what have you?—P. G. Estee, Estee Theatre, Parker, S. D. Small town patronage.

GOLD IS WHERE YOU FIND IT: George Brent, Olivia de Havilland—Good picture. Business not bad but was not as good as expected. Nothing wrong with the picture; much better than most of Warners this year. We like Tim Holt in this. Hope to see more of him.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala.

HOLLYWOOD HOTEL: Dick Powell, Lane Sisters—Not as good as expected. Still not a bad picture. Would have been great a few years back when musicals were really popular, but now it seems that people are tiring of this type show.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala. General patronage.

MY BILL: Kay Francis, John Litel, Anita Louise, Bonita Granville, Dickie Moore—Excellent for the family trade. Dickie Moore is at his best in this one and it does prove that Kay Francis can do something better than her previous eternal triangle roles. Running time, 64 minutes. Played July 17-18.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

SHE LOVED A FIREMAN: Dick Foran, Robert Armstrong—Our favorite cowboy in a very nice little program picture. Am glad to see Robert Armstrong. He is one of my favorites and I see very little of him these days. Let's have more with the two above stars. Both good.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala.

SH! THE OCTOPUS: Hugh Herbert, Allen Jenkins—Doubled this with a western and it gave plenty of laughs and thrills. This is Hugh Herbert at his funniest. Played July 15.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D.

WOMEN ARE LIKE THAT: Kay Francis, Pat O'Brien—Some people said they like this, but I most emphatically did not. Quarreling and drinking is not funny to me, and I would think Pat O'Brien would have been ashamed to have been seen in such a ridiculous picture. Kay Francis tried to be funny with cold, sarcastic digs, but the whole thing gave the impression of cheapness. Played July 7.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D.

Gaumont British

KING SOLOMON'S MINES: Cedric Hardwicke, Roland Young, Paul Robeson—This equals any major output of Hollywood for those who enjoy red blooded, thrilling adventure pictures. This was doubled with "A Yank at Oxford," which drew a little above average.—J. E. Stocker, Myrtle Theatre, Detroit, Mich. Neighborhood patronage.

Grand National

ROLLIN' PLAINS: Tex Ritter—Usual routine western. Tex seems to lack that certain something that registers with western fans, and I find that he is not popular with the kiddies. Running time, 54 minutes. Played July 8-9.—Bob Elliano, Palace Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

EVERYBODY SING: Judy Garland, Allan Jones, Fanny Brice, Billie Burke—This has many of the things to entertain movie patrons, but after seeing the samples shown in the trailer a good many of our regular patrons decided to stay away, so business on this was very low.—J. E. Stocker, Myrtle Theatre, Detroit, Mich. Neighborhood patronage.

GIRL OF THE GOLDEN WEST: Jeannette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy—Well, we thought this combination was slipping. Have heard many patrons say they were getting tired of them. But after seeing this picture, we are pleased to say that we enjoyed a very nice business on it, and we believe they have reinstated themselves in the hearts of our fans. This was swell entertainment. Played July 3-4-5.—Horn & Morgan, Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

JUDGE HARDY'S CHILDREN: Lewis Stone, Mickey Rooney, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden, Jacqueline Laurent—Another fine picture from this popular "small town" family. Lewis Stone gives his usual outstandingly good performance. Fay Holden and Cecilia Parker are excellent while Mickey Rooney as Andy is as popular with the audience as he thinks he is with women. To use his own words, "he beats them to the punch." I am looking forward to booking the next picture from this fine series. Oh, yes, an orchid to little French Suzanne. Running time, 77 minutes. Played July 22-24.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

LAST GANGSTER, THE: Edward G. Robinson, James Stewart, Rose Stradner, Lionel Stander—One of the best gangster pictures I ever played. Get behind this one and you will sure pull them in. Edward Robinson very well liked. Running time, 81 minutes. Played July 8-10.—O. W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Small town patronage.

LIVE, LOVE AND LEARN: Robert Montgomery, Rosalind Russell, Robert Benchley, Mickey Rooney—Very fine little picture which failed to click. Title failed to pull them in. A picture that will fill any spot. They have been running free shows in the street one night a week, which has hurt the show business in a big way. It is impossible to run against that kind of competition and make any money. Running time, 78 minutes. Played July 1-3.—O. W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Small town patronage.

LORD JEFF: Freddie Bartholomew, Mickey Rooney, Gale Sondergaard, Charles Coburn—Mickey Rooney steals the show. This lad is coming up fast. I played him in "Love Finds Andy Hardy" tonight (July 24th) and he was positively a sensation. He is great in "Lord Jeff" also and the picture is real good. English accent throughout the picture. Different and it should be one of the real big pictures of the year. Book it early. Running time, 85 minutes. Played July 19-20.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer vacation.

OF HUMAN HEARTS: Walter Huston, James Stewart, Beulah Bondi, John Carradine—This should be listed among the ten best of the year. This picture holds your interest from the start and works up to one of the finest climaxes that is possible to picture. It was rather pleasing to see John Carradine in a pleasing role instead of a black hearted villain. His bit as Abraham Lincoln in this is outstanding. The trailer on this and our own praises gave us a good first night's business and word of mouth praise aided by cool weather gave us that rare thing as a better second night than the first.—J. E. Stocker, Myrtle Theatre, Detroit, Mich. Neighborhood patronage.

PARADISE FOR THREE: Frank Morgan, Robert Young, Florence Rice, Mary Astor—This easily rates as an above average program picture. An original story, many laughs, a good romance, but a warm Sunday gave the lowest Sunday business of the year. —J. E. Stocker, Myrtle Theatre, Detroit, Mich. Neighborhood patronage.

SHOPWORN ANGEL: Margaret Sullavan, James Stewart, Walter Pidgeon, Alan Curtis—Swell. A corker. Metro sure is giving us the real pictures and we should thank them for it. More power to you, Metro. Give us a few more like this and we will have nothing to worry about. Business wonderful; everybody pleased. Plot centers around the small town Texas lad full of innocence who goes to war, meets a showgirl before leaving and . . . Running time, 85 minutes. Played July 21-22.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

SWISS MISS: Laurel and Hardy—They seemed to like it, and business was good. Running time, 73 minutes. Played July 6-7.—K. A. Spears, Roxy Theatre, Winlock, Wash. General patronage.

TEST PILOT: Clark Gable, Myrna Loy, Spencer Tracy—"Test Pilot" is big in star value, production value and box office value. Did the biggest business in three years despite the depression, which has lowered general business to the 1934 level. Running time, 120 minutes. Played July 10-11-12.—K. A. Spears, Roxy Theatre, Winlock, Wash. General patronage.

THOROUGHBREDS DON'T CRY: Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, Ronald Sinclair, Sophie Tucker—Very fine picture that was liked by both young and old. It is these kind of pictures that revive interest in the show business. Running time, 80 minutes. Played July 22-24.—O. W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Small town patronage.

THREE COMRADES: Robert Taylor, Robert Young, Franchot Tone, Margaret Sullavan—Played this two days in lumber town and three days in this farmer town. It took a terrible nosedive in the lumber town and did average in the farmer town. Comments mixed. Personally, thought it only fair. Running time, 98 minutes. Played July 15-16-17-18-19.—K. A. Spears, Roxy Theatre, Winlock, Wash. General patronage.

THREE COMRADES: Robert Taylor, Margaret Sullavan, Robert Young, Franchot Tone—Dry picture. Nothing but conversation and posing. No story, no sense. Will do business on account of the stars, but won't please anyone. Running time, 98 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

TOY WIFE, THE: Luise Rainer, Melvyn Douglas, Robert Young, Barbara O'Neil, H. B. Warner, Alma Kruger—Excellent but not from the box office standpoint. Luise Rainer is a wonderful artist but she is not popular here. Think because she is hard to understand. The New Orleans locale is very interesting with its old houses, duels, oaks, courtyards and slaves. The costumes are beautiful. The real star is Alma Kruger, who, as Madame Vallaire, gives a wonderful performance. Good but did not click. Running time, 98 minutes. Played July 8-10.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

YANK AT OXFORD, A: Robert Taylor, Maureen O'Sullivan—A fine picture from every standpoint, and it drew as one of the best we have shown. This picture has everything anyone could ask for, comedy that is not over-done, action in races, fun, all kinds of it, romance with the lovely Maureen, and educational background, to say nothing of plenty of star value. Played June 26.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D.

YANK AT OXFORD, A: Robert Taylor, Lionel Barrymore, Maureen O'Sullivan, Vivien Leigh—Played this with "King Solomon's Mines" and drew a little above average.—J. E. Stocker, Myrtle Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Neighborhood patronage.

YELLOW JACK: Robert Montgomery—A nice show but too much of something or other that keeps them away. Had very poor second day. We enjoyed it, though. Running time, 80 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

Monogram

PARADISE ISLE: Movita, Warren Hull—A nice little picture with soft Hawaiian music that appealed to all.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D.

Paramount

BLUEBEARD'S EIGHTH WIFE: Claudette Colbert, Gary Cooper—Played to slightly better than average weekend take. An excellent comedy that received generally favorable comment. Played July 15.—B. Hollenbeck, Rose Theatre, Sumas, Wash. Small town patronage.

BOOLOO: Colin Tapley, Jayne Regan, Suratna Asmaka, Native Cast—Very good. The better class of animal picture. Has a plot to it and is very well acted. This should be an animal picture hit all over the country. Give it a try, boys, and you won't be disappointed. Running time, 60 minutes. Played July 23.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

BUCCANEER, THE: Fredric March, Franciska Gaal—Advertised this more than any picture this year, but business was not up to average. This I cannot explain as the picture is as big as any picture of its type could possibly be. Akim Tamiroff very, very good, as were the others.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala.

COCOANUT GROVE: Fred MacMurray, Harriet Hilliard, Ben Blue, Rufe Davis, Billy Lee, Yacht Club Boys, Eve Arden—Finally, Paramount has given us a musical to be proud of. The new dancer with Ben Blue is very good and Blue steals the show as usual. You send the Yacht Club Boys back to Chicago where they belong and leave the screen to actors. An excellent picture with catchy music. Running time, 88 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

HEART OF ARIZONA: William Boyd, Natalie Moorhead—So far my western fans have always been pleased with the Hopalong series, including this one. Theatres using westerns will make no mistake in playing this series. Running time, 68 minutes. Played July 15-16.—Bob Elliano, Palace Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

HUNTED MEN: Lloyd Nolan, Mary Carlisle—Certainly made for the duals. Not a bad picture, but, like so many nowadays, no drawing power. Attendance was 'way down. Running time, 65 minutes. Played July 15-16.—Horn & Morgan, Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

Manuel Greenwald of the Barry Theatre, 637 Penn Avenue, Pittsburgh, advises "What the Picture Did for Me" that he did not write the report on "Held for Ransom" which appeared in the issue of July 16th.

HILLS OF OLD WYOMING: William Boyd, George Hayes—Very good western. We haven't played a bad Cassidy yet.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala. General patronage.

PARTNERS OF THE PLAINS: Bill Boyd, Harvey Clark—Not as good as previous Cassidy pictures. The people asked why "Windy" was not in it. Running time, 60 minutes. Played July 1-2.—K. A. Spears, Roxy Theatre, Winlock, Wash. General patronage.

PARTNERS OF THE PLAINS: William Boyd, Harvey Clark—Another very good western with the old reliable. Cassidy has not failed us yet.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala.

PRISON FARM: Lloyd Nolan, Shirley Ross—Good picture, good action, good story. Everyone liked it. Running time, 68 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

STOLEN HEAVEN: Olympe Bradna, Gene Raymond—Everybody said it seemed as though it would never end. Had too much piano, dancing, whispering and whatnot. Not enough action. Overdrawn. In all it didn't please but a very few. Running time, 88 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

TEXAS TRAIL: William Boyd, George Hayes—A very weak western, one of the poorest that I ever ran. If I hadn't had some good shorts, it would have been a complete flop. Running time, 63 minutes. Played July 15-17.—O. W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Small town patronage.

THRILL OF A LIFETIME: Eleanore Whitney, Johnny Downs—In the past two weeks, two of Paramount's programmers have failed to go over for us. Both on Friday and Saturday dates, but no draw. This was not a bad picture, had a lively young group of players, but didn't get them in. Running time, 72 minutes. Played July 1-2.—Horn & Morgan, Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

YOU AND ME: George Raft, Sylvia Sidney—No draw. And from reports no pleased. Sylvia Sidney rather hard to understand at times. Comments were that they couldn't place Raft as a lover. Running time, 90 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

RKO Radio

BORDER G-MAN: George O'Brien—Passed but not the type of action picture that will draw here. Had poorest Friday-Saturday business in 18 months with this and "Beloved Brat." Running time, 60 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

DOUBLE DANGER: Preston Foster, Whitney Bourne—Just a picture thrown together. No one cared for it. Skip it.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

DOUBLE DANGER: Preston Foster, Whitney Bourne—Fair program, but better as one of a double header. Folks won't come in these hot nights for pictures of this class.—P. G. Estee, Estee Theatre, Parker, S. D. Small town patronage.

JOY OF LIVING: Irene Dunne, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.—Not one O.K. on this and personally we considered it a picture with a trite, silly plot and with part of the action not only silly but vulgar. Why use stars of this class in such stuff? Played July 17-18.—P. G. Estee, Estee Theatre, Parker, S. D. Small town patronage.

SNOW WHITE AND THE SEVEN DWARFS: Walt Disney—All records broken! People saw and agreed with everything that had been said for Walt Disney's "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," that it's the finest thing any man has given the industry. Thanks, Mr. Disney.—S. B. Kennedy, Central Theatre, Selkirk, Manitoba, Canada. General patronage.

SNOW WHITE AND THE SEVEN DWARFS: Walt Disney—A picture you cannot afford to pass up and can hardly afford to run. It has all the press sheets claim for it, color, music, charm. The children today must be braver than they used to be, for it would frighten me to death when I was a kid and I still prefer a good old "meller-dramer," but it is a wonderful production. I followed two adjoining towns and a good many had seen it, but it brought out some who never come. The price is as amazing as the picture, but guess it is worth it. Running time, 86 minutes. Played July 13-17.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

WISE GIRL: Miriam Hopkins, Ray Milland—No one liked it and no one was to blame. You won't like it. Has no entertaining value.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

Republic

BOOTS AND SADDLES: Gene Autry, Judith Allen—These pictures get better all the time, variety enough to lure those who say they never could stand westerns. Played July 1.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D.

WILD HORSE RODEO: Three Mesquiteers—We find this type of western becoming more and more popular. The dummy adds to the fun and the picture has the added appeal of some popular music. Played July 15.—Erma L. Roeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D.

Twentieth Century-Fox

ALWAYS GOODBYE: Barbara Stanwyck, Herbert Marshall—Patrons spoke highly of this drama which had the two leads at their best, with flashes of comedy interspersing the drama and romance. The lad, "Roddy," was clever also.—P. G. Estee, Estee Theatre, Parker, S. D. Small town patronage.

BARONESS AND THE BUTLER: Annabella, William Powell—Had heard and read so many unsatisfactory comments on this that we were agreeably surprised. It is true, Annabella was a little hard to understand, but what a personality! And Powell was good as he always it. Our people liked it very much. Running time, 80 minutes. Played June 29-30.—Horn & Morgan, Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

BORROWING TROUBLE: Jed Prouty, Spring Byington—My idea of a swell show, funny, clean, good cast, everyone from Roger to Grandma giving an excellent performance, but for some reason this series does not make film rental. Those who come like it, but you just can't get them in. Running time, 60 minutes. Played July 6-7.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

CHANGE OF HEART: Gloria Stuart, Michael Whalen—There is a small boy and his dog that help this picture out some, otherwise I was not particularly impressed with either our attendance or the picture itself. Played June 29.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D.

CHANGE OF HEART: Gloria Stuart, Michael Whalen—It's too bad they had to waste the celluloid on this one. There's absolutely no sense to it. Give your patrons a treat and junk it. Running time, 66 minutes. Played July 15-16.—Bob Elliano, Palace Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

CITY GIRL: Ricardo Cortez, Phyllis Brooks—This is a fine little picture that points out a good lesson for girls who scorn their mother's advice and set out to get luxuries the easy way. Played June 22.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D.

COUNTY CHAIRMAN, THE (REISSUE): Will Rogers—We had a large cash gift offered, so many came who had already seen the picture, and said it still continued to please. Played July 14.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D.

HAWAIIAN BUCKAROO: Smith Ballew, Evalyn Knapp—Smith Ballew is one of the best singing western stars on the screen in my opinion. Not bad looking, and with the soft mellow voice that is rare and soothing, I am surprised he is not more popular. Played June 25.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D.

IN OLD CHICAGO: Tyrone Power, Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Alice Brady—There is not much that I can add that has not already been said in praise of this. The fire scenes are, of course, a masterpiece of engineering. One wonders how they could get all those scenes before a camera but I have a criticism to make. There was no need to kill Don Ameche in this. It did not help the story. There was no need of him dying to remove a third party from a love affair. There was no need for a self sacrifice on his part. The picture was a success in spite of it, but most patrons would have liked it better if he had been permitted to live. Makers of pictures should not kill off a beloved character unless the death is absolutely necessary to properly tell the story. This picture drew well in spite of warm weather.—J. E. Stocker, Myrtle Theatre, Detroit, Mich. Neighborhood patronage.

JOSETTE: Don Ameche, Robert Young, Simone Simon—Comedy drama that pleased our patrons. Simone's talking and singing not so plain, but the charm of the male stars offset this little defect, and her acting was very good.—P. G. Estee, Estee Theatre, Parker, S. D. Small town patronage.

JUDGE PRIEST (REISSUE): Will Rogers, Anita Louise—The big trouble with reissues is that it was not so long ago that most of our people saw this picture, and, their money being very scarce, they save it for one they haven't seen. Played June 30.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D.

JUDGE PRIEST (REISSUE): Will Rogers, Anita Louise—And still he draws. Rogers is our greatest screen immortal and probably will continue to entertain movie fans for years to come. This is one of the best he ever made. Running time, 80 minutes. Played July 7-8.—Horn & Morgan, Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

LOVE ON A BUDGET: Jed Prouty, Spring Byington—This is one of the best of the Jones family. But the trailer did not sell it very well. I thought from the trailer it would be a family wrangle, but it turned out to be lots of fun for everyone. Played July 8.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D.

LOVE ON A BUDGET: Jones Family—These Jones Family pictures are still holding their own and drawing very good. People in towns like ours surely like them very much. Running time, 64 minutes. Played July 13-14.—Horn & Morgan, Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

MR. MOTO'S GAMBLE: Peter Lorre, Keye Luke—Peter Lorre has a certain following here, and we are building it up by double-featuring with the popular Gene Autry. Played June 25.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D.

PASSPORT HUSBAND: Stuart Erwin, Pauline Moore, Joan Woodbury—This is a very poor picture. I wouldn't recommend it to any exhibitor. Running time, 67 minutes. Played July 23.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

REBECCA OF SUNNYBROOK FARM: Shirley Temple, Gloria Stuart—The Shirley Temple pictures get better every time. In this, Shirley sings more charmingly than ever, Randolph Scott makes a romantic lead for Gloria Stuart, and there is plenty of fun and dancing included. Played July 17.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D.

REBECCA OF SUNNYBROOK FARM: Shirley Temple, Gloria Stuart—She's still the grand little trouper, the best drawing card, and we hope she never grows up. Along with her great ability, personality and charm, Fox gives her swell pictures and fine supporting casts. Played July 17-18.—Horn & Morgan, Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

SALLY, IRENE AND MARY: Alice Faye, Tony Martin, Marjorie Weaver—Nice picture but the drawing power not so hot. However it has plenty of comedy, swell music, and a very well rounded-out production. Played July 10.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D.

THANK YOU, MR. MOTO: Peter Lorre, Jane Regan—These pictures get better every time, for all who like a good mystery, and the class is increasing. Played July 13.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D.

THREE BLIND MICE: Loretta Young, Joel McCrea, David Niven, Stuart Erwin, Marjorie Weaver—A good picture. Should mean extra business. A bit different. It's out of the ordinary class so it should mean box office for you. Running time, 75 minutes. Played July 17-18.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

WALKING DOWN BROADWAY: Claire Trevor, Michael Whalen—I thought this a very fine picture. Six girls have different aims and guide their lives accordingly, some to bad ends and some to success; points out a very good moral to our young people. Nevertheless it is entertainment all the way through. Played July 6.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D.

WALKING DOWN BROADWAY: Claire Trevor, Michael Whalen—Light drama that had no particular draw, but satisfied those who did come in. The fate, tragic and otherwise, that overtook six young showgirls between two New Year celebrations. Miss Trevor's work especially clever.—P. G. Estee, Estee Theatre, Parker, S. D. Small town patronage.

WE'RE GOING TO BE RICH: Gracie Fields, Victor McLaglen, Brian Donlevy—For a "B" picture I find this one to be better than some of the "A's" I have played. Don't be afraid to play this picture anywhere. It's entertaining and many favorable comments were received on the opening day. Business above averge. Running time, 78 minutes. Played July 22-23.—Bob Elliano, Palace Theatre, Torrington, Conn. General patronage.

United Artists

ADVENTURES OF MARCO POLO, THE: Gary Cooper, Sigrid Gurie—Personally I enjoyed this quite a bit, but from the remarks I heard I only had a few here who thought as I did. No business and really expected a lot. Running time, 104 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

ADVENTURES OF TOM SAWYER: Tommy Kelly, May Robson—We used this picture for a celebration in Lemmon. It was all the town had, for as usual many people went to the Hills and others took in the small town celebrations in nearby towns. Nevertheless those who came to the show were well satisfied for the picture is one of the best of the season. It has everything you could ask for with beautiful color thrown in. Played July 3.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D.

DIVORCE OF LADY X, THE: Merle Oberon, Laurence Olivier—Went over much better than expected. Played on Cash Night when money was high. Don't believe it would have drawn a thing by itself.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala.

KNIGHT WITHOUT ARMOUR: Marlene Dietrich, Robert Donat—Here is without a doubt one of the hardest stories to follow you could ever hope to have. Sound was poor. Dietrich is certainly no boxoffice with us. We didn't make express, let along film rental. Don't say we didn't tell you. Shelve it, it's a heart breaker.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

MEN ARE NOT GODS: Miriam Hopkins, Gertrude Lawrence—The only one you could understand was Miriam Hopkins, the rest may as well have talked a foreign language. To think we have to play this when the poorest of American produced pictures would equal this. People won't go for these. Didn't make film rental. Another block closer to the bailiff after this picture. Pay for it and forget it, which you won't do if you play it.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

STAND-IN: Leslie Howard, Joan Blondell—Just a fair to middlin' program offering to average business. Played July 12.—B. Hollenbeck, Rose Theatre, Sumas, Wash. Small town patronage.

Universal

BLACK DOLL, THE: Nan Grey, Donald Woods, Edgar Kennedy—Played this with "Sudden Bill Dorn." A cool, rainy Sunday gave us a satisfying business with these two Universal pictures. This program satisfied the cash customers.—J. E. Stocker, Myrtle Theatre, Detroit, Mich. Neighborhood patronage.

DRACULA: Bela Lugosi—LADY TUBBS: Alice Brady—These two reissues were a complete flop here. Didn't make running expenses. Played July 7.—B. Hollenbeck, Rose Theatre, Sumas, Wash. Small town patronage.

LADY TUBBS: (Alice Brady)—See report by B. Hollenbeck on "Dracula."

SUDDEN BILL DORN: Buck Jones, Evelyn Brent—See report by J. E. Stocker on "The Black Doll."

Warner Brothers

COWBOY FROM BROOKLYN: Dick Powell, Pat O'Brien, Priscilla Lane, Dick Foran—Topnotch entertainment. Was afraid to give this one three days but it carried a good work-of-mouth advertising value with the result that my third day topped the previous two days. Exhibitors playing this one should give away those small cowboys hats to the kiddies attending matinees. Kids and grownups will like this one. Running time, 74 minutes. Played July 21-23.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

GOLD DIGGERS IN PARIS: Rudy Vallee, Rosemary Lane, Hugh Herbert, Allen Jenkins—Would have been terrible without the Schnickelfritz Band. They drew what came, and without a doubt were the only thing worthwhile in the whole 97 minutes of it.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

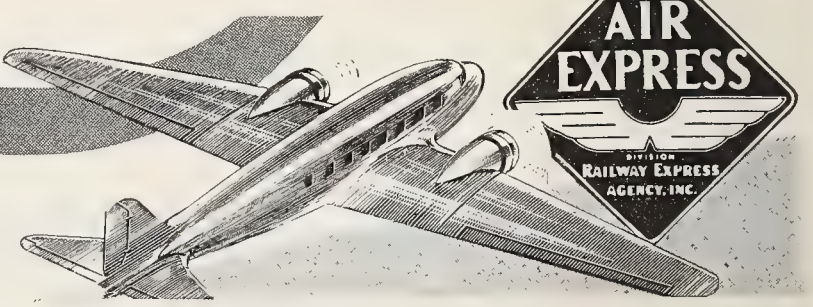
LIFE OF EMILE ZOLA, THE: Paul Muni, Gale Sondergaard, Joseph Schildgraut, Erin O'Brien-Moore—Played this one at the request of several Montrealers. Did very good and it was gratifying to note that this one was strong enough to draw many Montreal residents in which city the picture was banned. Handkerchiefs were used plentiful by the men as well as the women. This picture deserves a repeat date in any theatre. Running time, 116 minutes. Played July 24-25.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

LOVE HONOR AND BEHAVE: Wayne Morris, Priscilla Lane—Last few minutes of this were OK, but to watch a 70 minute feature for 30 minutes before the principals came on was a trifle too much for all of us. Running time, 71 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

OVER THE WALL: Dick Foran, June Travis—Here is a really good prison picture, and Dick Foran was well cast. He found himself in prison as a result of his overdose of superiority complex and pal-ing with crooks, and finally won his way out through his gift of beautiful singing. Played July 8.—Erma L. Raeburn. Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D.

WHITE BANNERS: Claude Rains, Fay Bainter, Jackie Cooper—A fair enough picture that did as expected at box office. My patrons must have comedy or no come. I believe they all have enough problems of their own without spending a quarter to see other peoples'. Running time, 88 minutes.—A. E. Eliasen, Rialto Theatre, Paynesville, Minn. Rural and small town patronage.

Short Features



Columbia

CADET CHAMPIONS: Special Sport Thrills—Nothing extra, but will pass. The younger people, especially the men, will go for this West Point short.—Pearce

Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

COMMUNITY SING: A dandy Irish sing that brought the house down. Everybody sang.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

Educational

CACTUS CABALLEROS: Pretty poor! It makes a terrible effort to be funny, but much as I would have liked to, I could not crack a smile.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D.

CALLING ALL CROONERS: Song and Comedy Hits—Clever. Several good songs. Running time, one reel.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

CHEMIST, THE: Two-Reel Comedies—Fine two-reeler. Pleased my Saturday crowd very, very much. —Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala.

CRYSTAL BALLET: Treasure Chest—Fair short. Have seen better from this company.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala.

DATES AND NUTS: Two-Reel Comedies—So few of these Two-Reel Comedies are worth the film they require that it is a pleasure to recommend this as "not so bad".—Horn and Morgan, Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

DEVIL OF THE DEEP: Terry-Toons—Fairly good. Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

HOW TO DANCE THE SHAG: Song and Comedy Hits—Very good on dancing the "Shag". Think I could have learned in one or two more showings. Pleased the young folks. Running time, eight minutes.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

LOVE GOES WEST: Louise Massey and Westerners —Very good short on the romance of dude ranching. Several excellent song hits. Running time, 10 minutes. —Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

MISS LONELY HEARTS: Song and Comedy Hits—Did not like this short so much. See too many that's better than this.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala.

SONGBIRDS OF THE NORTH WOODS: Treasure Chest—Very interesting short featuring birds of the north woods. Running time, 10 minutes.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

VILLAIN STILL PURSUED HER, THE: Terry-Toons—This should have been released five years ago. Cartoons have progressed and left Terry-Toons behind. —Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

FITZPATRICK TRAVEL TALKS: Very good shorts that seem to please all. Running time, one reel each.—O. W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Small town patronage.

JIMMY FIDLER'S PERSONALITY PARADE: Special—A short that brought back many memories to the old timers. Very well liked, but there were a few personalities that were missing. Running time, 20 minutes.—O. W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Small town patronage.

LA SAVATE: Pete Smith Specialties—Fair. Try it out if you wish.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

NEWS OF THE DAY: O.K. This is one of the best newsreels on the market.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

PIPE DREAM: Harman-Ising—If this company had continued these cartoons, we would all be happy. Very good. Running time, seven minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

SERVANT OF THE PEOPLE: Special—We played this on the Fourth of July, and did it go over? The first handclapping ever to follow a short in our house that we can remember, and we've been in the business 18 years.—Horn and Morgan, Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

Paramount

ACCENT ON BEAUTY: Paragraphics—Good for the ladies. No good for men at all.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala.

EASY ON THE ICE: Headliners—It's a fairly good short. Interesting in parts.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

HEADLINER SERIES: Very good single reelers. Have never had a poor one. They please young and old alike. Paramount's features should be as good as their shorts.—O. W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Small town patronage.

HOUSE BUILDER-UPPER, THE: Popeye the Sailor—Very good. Book this series for real satisfying short subjects for your patrons.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

PARAMOUNT NEWS: Very good.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

RIDING THE RAILS: Betty Boop—Another good Boop cartoon.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala. General patronage.

WIN, PLACE OR SHOW: Grantland Rice Sportlights—A very good short, but very poor for small town audiences wherein horse racing is only read of in the papers. Poor material for diversified audiences the country over. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

RKO Radio

MARCH OF TIME, NO. 10: Not so good as some we have run, as our people are not particularly interested in foreign subjects. We, however, look forward to "Men of Medicine". Running time, 20 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

WINDWARD WAY: RKO Pathe Sportscope—A beautiful short on sailboat racing that, while not overly interesting to our small town audience, was very good to look at due to the water scenes. Running time, seven minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

LAUGHING AT FATE: Adventures of the Newsreel Cameraman—Daredevil stunts, packed with thrills, spills and chills. Very good. Running time, nine minutes.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

MOVIETONE NEWS: O.K. Lew Lehr makes this news very interesting.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

TRAILING ANIMAL STORIES: Adventures of the Newsreel Cameraman—One of the best animal shorts I ever ran, as interesting to grownups as to the kiddies. The shorts of elephants plowing brought a lot of laughs. Animals are well trained. Do not be afraid to advertise this one. It cannot fail to please. Running time, one reel.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

Vitaphone

AT THE RACES: Charlie McCarthy—Not the draw they were at first. Novelty is wearing off. I believe they do better on the radio.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

CLYDE LUCAS AND HIS ORCHESTRA: Melody Masters—Again Vitaphone scores with this Melody Band Master. The last two we have played, Carl "Deacon" Moore and this one, have been excellent. The first two in two years. Running time, nine minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

DEAR OLD DAD: Floyd Gibbons—This is good, but not as good as most of the others.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala. General patronage.

LITTLE ME: Broadway Brevities—So poor we did not run it after the first showing. Just bad, is all we can say. Shelve it. Running time, 20 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

LITTLEST DIPLOMAT, THE: Broadway Brevities —Sybil Jason very good in this nice little short. It will help any program.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala.

MAL HALLETT AND ORCHESTRA: Melody Masters—Good band reel.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala. General patronage.

NECKIN' PARTY, A: Charlie McCarthy—Have played all the McCarthy shorts and believe this one to be the best. It's good.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala. General patronage.

PLAYING WITH DANGER: Floyd Gibbons' "Your True Adventure" series—Very good, Gibbons. Think this the best since "Attics of Terror". Believe "Attics of Terror" the best they've made to date.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala.

PORKY AT THE CROCADERO: Looney Tunes—Good cartoon. Porky pleases every time.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala. General patronage.

PORKY'S PARTY: Looney Tunes—Not so hot. Perhaps these cartoonists are running out of material. Running time, seven minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

PORKY'S POPPA: Looney Tunes—Very good.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala. General patronage.

PURE FEUD: "Charlie McCarthy", Edgar Bergen—Am playing up the entire series. Sorry we can't get any more of them. Running time, nine minutes.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

WAITING AROUND: Frank Libuse—This short is really the true essence of comedy. Am hopefully looking forward to more like this one. Running time, 18 minutes.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

Miscellaneous

LOUIS-SCHMELING PUNCH: A very fine picture. more action than you would think. Didn't do much extra business.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

Serial

Universal

FLASH GORDON'S TRIP TO MARS: Larry Crabbe, Jean Rogers—Am on chapter six and it's still going strong. So far, is a very fine serial.—Sammie Jackson, Jackson Theatre, Flomaton, Ala. General patronage.

Heads Advertising Office

Everett Callow has been appointed advertising and publicity Manager of Warner Philadelphia Theatres. He has been promoted from district manager in charge of theatres in south Jersey, Wilmington and Chester, Pa.

Mr. Callow's theatre experience was preceded by a term in the advertising and editorial departments of the old New York World. He worked in the service department of Paramount, New York, and later with Keith-Albee; then became assistant manager of Warner's Mastbaum in Philadelphia in 1929.

Promoted to manager of the Stanley theatre, he was advanced to district manager handling the theatres around Reading, and then was transferred to Jersey.

To Produce Trailers

John Myers, formerly studio publicity head at Alexander Korda's Denham studios, has become a producer of special London Film trailers and will also act as chief of the exploitation staff. His publicity post will be filled by John Ware Well.

Composer Signs with MGM

Ralph Benatzky, continental composer who has a total of 80 operas, operettas and other theatrical ventures to his credit, left New York last week for California to begin work under a contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer. Mr. Benatzky recently arrived in the United States aboard the Ile de France.

Dickinson Plans New House

Another new Dickinson theatre, the fourth announced by Glen W. Dickinson Theatres, Inc., in the last two months, is being planned for the suburban area between Kansas City, Mo., and Overland Park, Kan. The theatre will be built this summer for opening in the fall.

King Signs New Contract

Henry King has signed a new long term contract with Twentieth Century-Fox. The company tore up the former agreement which had until November to run and offered the new terms in recognition of Mr. King's direction of "In Old Chicago" and "Alexander's Ragtime Band." He will start "Jesse James" on August 15th.

OBITUARIES

H. M. Wilcox Dies of Heart Attack

Private funeral services were held in New Haven, July 30th, for Herbert M. Wilcox, executive of the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, who died unexpectedly from a heart attack, July 28th. Interment was at Springfield, Mass. Mr. Wilcox was 56 years old.,

A graduate of Princeton and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, Mr. Wilcox was prominently connected with the early development of talking motion pictures. In 1926 he joined Electrical Research Products, Inc., and ten years later he left that company to become associated with John E. Otterson, who at that time resigned from Erpi to become president of Paramount. Mr. Wilcox's last position with Westinghouse was as executive of the new products division. Although he had been in ill health for some time he recently returned from a trip to England.

Rollo Lloyd

Rollo Lloyd, film and stage actor, died in Hollywood July 26th, of pneumonia. Mr. Lloyd was 55 years old and went to Hollywood from the New York stage nine years ago as a writer but appeared in several films, among which were "Private Scandal," "Today We Live," "Whom the Gods Destroy," "Lives of a Bengal Lancer" and "Magnificent Obsession."

George Appleby

George Appleby, theatre executive for many years and for the last few years in charge of the Mayfair, Blue Mouse and Playhouse at Portland, Ore., died in Portland.

James Thornton

James Thurston, 76, music hall entertainer and composer who wrote "When You Were Sweet Sixteen" and "My Sweetheart's the Man in the Moon," died July 28th at his home in Astoria.

Alexander Dunsmuir

Funeral services for Alexander Dunsmuir, 61, an actor, were held in Hollywood August 1. Mr. Dunsmuir was fatally injured in an automobile accident.

RKO to Release "Brinker"

"Hans Brinker, or The Silver Skates," which Sol Lesser's Principal Productions is to make from Mary Mates Boge's novel, will be released by RKO Radio. The article on story purchases in the June 25th issue said release would be through Twentieth Century-Fox.

Goldwyn Signs Jane Murfin

Jane Murfin, scenarist, has been signed by Samuel Goldwyn to collaborate with I. A. R. Wylie on the screenplay of Miss Wylie's original story, "The Daring Age," which will provide the film debut of Jascha Heifetz, violinist.

FROM READERS

DENIES "FREEZE-OUT" ATTEMPT IN BRITAIN

To the Editor of the Herald:

In the issue of your Motion Picture Herald dated July 9, I notice on page 17 an article by your Rome correspondent describing an alleged movement in Italy to "freeze out" American films. Towards the bottom of the first column the article refers to a statement in the Motion Picture Herald of February 26, emanating from the same source, that "negotiations were under way between four countries, Italy, France, Germany and England for a pact to 'freeze out' Hollywood."

Whatever may be the case as regards Italy, France and Germany—and as to that I have no information—the statement is certainly inaccurate as regards this country, for I know of no discussions or attempt whatever on the part of this country or the British industry to "freeze out" Hollywood anywhere.

On the contrary, the relations between the American and British film industries remain as cordial as they have ever been if not even more so, and it may be interesting to record that Mr. Kennedy, the United States Ambassador here, in a recent public speech, just prior to the departure of Mr. Murray Silverstone to take up his new position in the United States, emphasized the good relations existing between the American and British industries and the interest of all parties in maintaining them.—M. Neville Kearney, Federation of British Industries, 21, Tothill Street, London, S. W. I., England.

RKO Opens Remodeled Grand Opera House

The old Grand Opera House, at 23rd Street and Eighth Avenue, New York City, rebuilt at a cost of $250,000, was opened Thursday by RKO as the New 23rd Street Theatre. The opening bill was "Having Wonderful Hime," and "Sky Giant" and the house will continue to operate on a double feature policy without any box office stimulants, at least for the present.

In preparation for the opening, RKO held a "preview" of the house for the press last Thursday.

The new theatre is under the division management of H. R. Emde and Jerome Baker, formerly manager of the 125th Street Theatre, is house manager. The new theatre seats approximately 2,000 and is classified as a neighborhood first run.

The Grand Opera House, opened in 1869 as Pike's Opera House, was later taken over by Jim Fiske and Jay Gould. It survived seven changes of management until it was taken over by RKO for the present theatre.

The old 23rd Street Theatre, which RKO operated until it took over the Grand Opera House, is closed and will be reopened after Labor Day by Consolidated Amusements.

Tax Deficiencies Affirmed

The Board of Tax Appeals in Washington last week affirmed deficiencies of $11,531 and $3,864 determined by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue against the 1932 and 1933 income taxes of Zazu Pitts Woodall.

IN COURTS

Plea to Intervene in Loew Suit Is Denied

Permission was refused Edward M. Grossman, Friday to intervene as a plaintiff in the eight consolidated stockholders' suits against Loew's, Inc., and the Bank of America National Trust and Savings Association to cancel certain personal service contracts between Loew's and several of its officials.

Peter Schmuck, New York supreme court justice, in making the ruling said that Mr. Grossman's individual stockholders' suit previously stayed, was "patently unnecessary."

Emil K. Ellis, named by the court to take testimony, will arrive in New York Monday from Hollywood to give Loew executives, among them Nicholas M. Schenck, J. Robert Rubin and David Burnstein, corrected depositions to sign.

Suit Appeal Dismissed

At the request of attorneys representing Casino Productions, Inc., and Yermie Stern, plaintiffs in a $500,000 libel suit against Warner Bros., federal judge Henry W. Goddard in New York last Thursday dismissed the appeal by plaintiffs from a jury verdict awarding them six cents damages.

Durante Loses Request

Jimmy Durante's request for dismissal of $4,800 damage suit by Morton A. Milman for commission on a radio booking was denied Monday by Peter Schmuck, New York supreme court justice, on condition that Mr. Milman place the action on the trial calendar for October.

Sue Over Shelby Theatre

Seeking to regain possession of the property, H. B. and D. W. Brickley, owners of the Opera House at Shelby, Ohio, have opened suit in common pleas court there against Lion Theatre Corporation. The plaintiffs say the defendant company leased it for six years from Jan. 1, 1935, and are three months in arrears in rent.

12 New Films Approved By Legion of Decency

The National Legion of Decency approved 12 new feature releases last week. None was condemned or found partly objectionable.

Class A, Section I, approved for general patronage: "Affairs of Annabel," RKO; "Give Me a Sailor," Paramount; "I'm From the City," RKO; "Pioneer Trail," Columbia; "Prison Break," Universal, and "Sing, You Sinners," Paramount.

Class A, Section 2, unobjectionable for adults: "Boy Meets Girl," Warners; "The Chaser," M-G-M; "Dreiklang," UFA; "Marie Antoinette," M-G-M; "Los Muertos Hablan," Louis Bueno, and "Strange Boarders," Gaumont British.

Detroit Leads Monogram Exchanges

Monogram's Detroit exchange was in first place in the standing of branches for the week ending July 16th, in the 16 week collection drive scheduled to end October 29th. New Orleans, Dallas, Seattle and Memphis were next in line.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE

An international association of showmen meeting weekly in MOTION PICTURE HERALD for mutual aid and progress

A-MIKE VOGEL, Chairman and Editor GERTRUDE MERRIAM, Associate Editor

A FINE CREED

"This is the greatest force in the world for the entertainment and education of the greatest number of people, at a minimum of cost per person. We are proud to be a part of this business. . . . We shall do everything in our power to maintain it, with service to all, and to cooperate with all other branches for the betterment of it."

The above is Charley Schlaifer's creed for showbusiness, offered by the San Francisco Round Tabler for adoption by the membership, in defending the industry from unwarranted attacks, especially from those who live off it. "As a member of the exhibition end of this business, and one who has made it his profession," writes Charley, "I decry the lack of loyalty to it and the panning by people who contribute nothing to it and yet expect that same industry to provide support for them."

It is to the eternal credit of our industry that so many men in it are ready to fight for it at the drop of a hat, or sooner. Their fierce loyalty presents a mighty defense against those with nothing to say yet insist on saying it to the detriment of the business.

IT'S BEING DONE

The theatre with the best picture usually will outdraw the opposition. But when the entertainment offered by two competing houses is of equal calibre, the theatre that consistently sells itself institutionally and backs up what it sells, in the long run will outgross the other. That's not new nor is it unproven.

Bill Johnson is another member who bears us out in describing a series of intelligently-edited institutional-copy flyers in mimeograph, which stress features of the Opera House, Millinocket, Maine, other than the screen entertainment. Writes Johnson:

"Needless to say, the 'strong points' of our theatre which I emphasize most strongly are those in which the opposition is weakest. The whole idea is mainly an attempt to impress on people what they really are getting for their money when they come to the Opera House and what the Opera House offers that other theatres do not."

TO "BEAT THE HEAT"

This department chooses to do its part in the Round Table's "Beat the Heat" drive by penciling in either of the last two weeks in September for the reception in New York of the winners in the July Contest, rapidly drawing to its close. Much entertainment is planned and it is felt that the more temperate days of late September will allow the boys to get around more and more enjoyably.

For the information again of those who might like a free trip to New York when the humidity has packed up for the Summer: Let them be advised that the time is near to get in campaigns on July-August playdates on the pictures listed on a following page with which we hope they have "beat the heat" so they can join us in "beating the heat" when New York is at its best.

A MATTER OF GOODWILL

Though promotion from the ranks is the accepted order in theatre business today, it is unusual to find the procedure praised editorially by a leading newspaper. In a recent issue of the Davenport, Iowa, Democrat and Leader, an emphatic pat-on-the-back is accorded to Joe Kinsky, Tri-States district chief, on the occasion of a promotion from chief of staff to assistant manager.

Reading between the lines, one notes something more than just a bow to the Round Tabler. That the paper went to town so importantly on what other dailies might consider a minor matter bespeaks a goodwill between theatre and press that redounds to the credit of both.

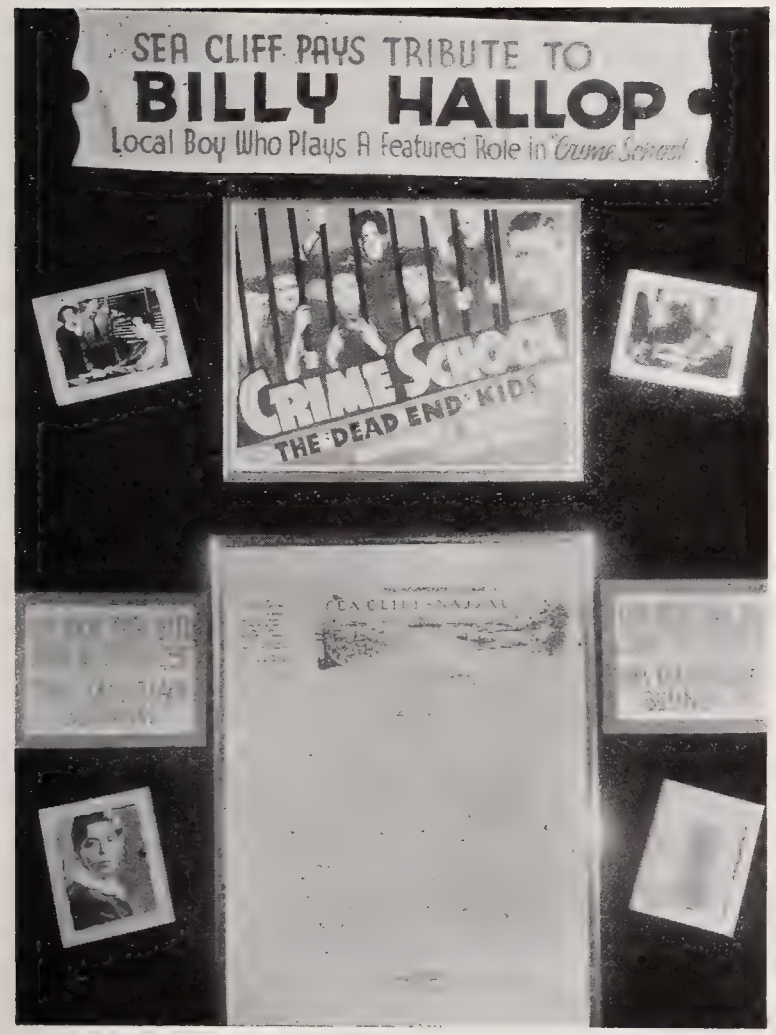
A-Mike Vogel

No, folks, this is not a photo of Tommy Kelly, but rather the winner of John Thompson's Tom Sawyer impersonation contest put over for that picture at the De Kalb Theatre, Decatur, Ga. So striking was the resemblance borne by local lad to the star that papers played up the story big with art work and human interest yarns. Prizes were contributed by merchants who presented them on stage opening night.

Round Table in Pictures

Tropical heat wave struck the front of the Princess Theatre, Montreal, Canada, when Tom Cleary went to work and dressed it up for "Cocoanut Grove." Cutout palm trees waved in the Canadian breezes on either side of boxoffice topped by heads of the various stars.

Following the recent article by Oscar A. Doob in these pages on developing summer business, above is reproduced sample of poster being used by Loew's Theatres to advise patrons of definite dates lined up for July and August showings. In addition to the picture-listing, their summer exhibition dates are stressed via the calendar idea as also the fact that the circuit has the big stars and hits the year round as further indicated in copy.



Itinerant prospector proved a crowd-stopper for Ted DeGrazia, who used the man to publicise his "Gold Is Where You Find It" date at the Lyric, Bisbee, Ariz. Chap set up his paraphernalia on busy street corners and proceeded to "pan" for gold, much to the amazement of onlookers.

At right may be seen special 24 sheet designed by Monroe Greenthal, United Artists, for the engagement of "Algiers" at the Radio City Music Hall, calling attention of motorists driving into city to the film and theatre. Sheets were posted at every road leading into the city preceding and during the run of the picture.

Photo at left shows lobby advertising and the pirate girls in costume in behalf of the Treasure Hunt staged by the Fabian Theatres, Schenectady, N. Y., and which is fully described elsewhere in this section. Girls were employed to distribute keys that would open the treasure chest containing $75,000 in merchandise prizes promoted from the 19 cooperating merchants who tied in with the theatres for the hunt.

These three tough looking gentlemen with the hirsute adornment are no ad for a barber shop, but rather J. B. Clements' "Kentucky Moonshine" street ballyhoo for the opening of that date at the Egyptian Theatre, Sioux Falls, S. D. Lads roved streets in leisurely fashion, stopping at busy street corners to lie down to rest.

At left is shown lobby setpiece arranged by Max Cooper, Skouras Cove Theatre, Glen Cove, L. I., for his "Crime School" engagement. Mayor George Myles issued a proclamation declaring opening day as "Billy Hallop Day," paying homage to the local lad who played a feature role in the picture. Stories were also run in local dailies.

TWO WEEKS MORE

Since the final deadline for the July Contest has been pushed ahead to midnight of August 27th, theatremen previously not eligible to compete now have an opportunity to take a crack at those six one-week all-expense trips to New York. The additional two weeks means that managers playing any of the eight pictures in the Contest during that time may also enter campaigns.

Thus, the Contest rulings are now amended to read:

Theatremen playing any of the pictures here listed between July 1st and August 15th may try for the trips. Campaigns may be entered on one or more of the pictures concerned, and will be considered for the prizes providing they are received no later than the new deadline date. Six companies are participating, each offering one trip for the best campaign or campaigns on that company's pictures. Here they are:

Paramount: "Tropic Holiday" and "Professor Beware".

Twentieth Century-Fox: "I'd Give a Million" and "Always Goodbye".

Warner Brothers: "Cowboy from Brooklyn".

United Artists: "Algiers".

RKO Radio: "Having Wonderful Time".

Monogram: "Romance of the Limberlost".

It is planned to have the six winners in New York at one time and the date penciled in is the last week in September. Though no definite program of entertainment is set at this writing, there will be enough arranged to keep everybody happy.

See you in New York. —A-MIKE

Sprowl Creates Unique "Crime School" Lobby

Norman Sprowl, Utah Theatre, Salt Lake City, for "Crime School" used a lobby set-piece built like the entrance to Crime Schoolmaster's office, covered with pictures of the "Dead End" kids. With this a transcription was made from the dialogue in the picture giving the effect of the kids being in the office and getting lecture from school head.

A "scrambled face" contest, featuring the thumbnail heads of the kids, was arranged with the Deseret News classified department, readers assembling the scrambled faces found among the want ads. News kids, dressed as "Dead Enders" carried imprinted tiein copy on placards, Judge Bosoni sentenced each child coming before him to see the picture and heralds were distributed abundantly.

"BEAT THE HEAT"

Stages Hobo Show On "Merrily We Live"

For "Merrily We Live" at the Egyptian Theatre, Sioux Falls, S. D., J. B. Clements started his street bally day before midnight show, consisting of two men dressed in hobo clothes, patched trousers, ragged hat and several days' growth of beard, carrying sticks over their shoulders with bundle of clothes on end. Copy on sign read "Attend the merry hobo midnight show of," etc., etc. Two young ladies dressed in long evening gowns and wraps walked arm in arm with the hoboes. Girls distributed heralds to people inquiring about the special show, which was also plugged at the theatre.

Chinese Girl Helps Schlaifer Sell "Polo"

To herald the opening of "Marco Polo" at the United Artists Theatre, San Francisco, Charlie Schlaifer obtained the services of a beautiful Chinese girl and dressed her in a Mandarin outfit. Girl called upon all those invited and read their invitation from a Chinese scroll which she unfurled in each office.

Radio campaign followed out the above thoughts, but Schlaifer went a step further and actually had a broadcast in Chinese and one in Italian. Transcriptions were used on four radio stations and announcements read five times daily on each station.

Theatreman obtained from the Studio the Chinese costumes worn in the picture and had an elaborate window display at leading department store and in window of dealer in Chinese treasures. Various other window displays were obtained.

"BEAT THE HEAT"

"Tom Sawyer" Parade

Manager Simon of Loew's Alpine, Bay Ridge, N. Y., together with district publicity man Herb Brown, staged a "Tom Sawyer" club parade sponsored by local merchants for 1,500 kiddies in costume. The occasion was "Girl of the Golden West" and promoted prizes were awarded to those wearing best costumes.

Bands, sound trucks and police protection were secured gratis. Newspapers ran stories and co-op ad publicity for one week ahead and during run. Following week photo of costume winners was run.

Fabian Theatres Tie 19 Merchants to Treasure Hunt

To stimulate business in Schenectady, New York, during the month of July, a treasure hunt sponsored by the local Fabian Theatres and local merchants was staged by Manager Charles H. Parker of the Proctor Theatre and is reported to have been so successful that the theatres continued the "hunt" five days longer than originally announced.

The hunt was put on as follows: 19 merchants tied up for prizes including refrigerators, gasoline, furniture, radios, auto tires, diamonds, watches, clothing and other articles totaling approximately $7,500.

To win these prizes patrons at all the Fabian Theatres during the period of the hunt were given keys to which were attached cards bearing name of one of the cooperating merchants. Patrons were requested to take the key to that store and try to open treasure chest on display there, those who were successful received one of the prizes. Keys were given with every admission.

Abundant Publicity Garnered

Over 25,000 lines of newspaper publicity were received in all of which the theatres concerned were prominently mentioned. Straight advertising, all gratis included two four-page sections carrying paid advertising of cooperating merchants in addition to individual merchant ads as well as store-wide two weeks sales event put on at leading department store under the name of "Treasure Hunt Sale."

All theatres carried elaborate lobby displays including special displays of major prizes, stores also featuring attractive windows of merchandise prizes. Girls dressed in pirate costumes were employed to give out keys and cards at theatres. Keys, cards, chests and special art pieces were provided for theatres and merchants. 100,000 keys and cards are reported to have been distributed.

Parker says that in spite of reduced operations of the town's two large industries, General Electric and American Locomotive, business has improved over last year when general conditions were booming.

Complete cooperation in the entire promotion was given Parker by all managers of the Fabian Schenectady Theatres, including Mr. Shure, State; Mr. Graves, Plaza; Mr. Murphy, Proctor's; Mr. Rapp, Strand and Mr. L. R. Golding, the General Manager.

"BEAT THE HEAT"

Loew's Under Many Flags!

When "Yellow Jack" played Houston, Texas, Francis Deering, Loew manager, pulled a showmanship stunt by dropping an American flag, spotlighted, just as the picture ended on a high note of patriotism. Stanley Gosnell, Loew manager in Toronto, liked the idea but couldn't use the American flag in Canada. So he waited for "Lord Jeff" and brought his audiences up cheering as the Union Jack fluttered across the finale of that highly British picture!

HIGHLIGHTS OF ENTRIES REPORTED BY CITATION OF MERIT WINNERS

Ace Quality of Week-to-Week Consistency Displayed by Runners-Up in Second Quarter of the 1938 Quigley Awards

The world premiere showing of "Little Miss Thoroughbred" was held at the RKO Lyric, Cincinnati, and so E. V. "Dinny" Dinerman, ad head and winner of Quigley Citation of Merit in the "A" Class, held a special screening for the relatives of six-year-old Janet Chapman, local Cincinnatian appearing in the picture. A daily double handicap was held at local track, first race dubbed "Little Miss Thoroughbred Handicap." Local residing relatives of the starlet and the theatre management were guests of honor for the day, occupying special box. Miss Chapman's great-grandmother presented floral wreath to winner and youngster cousin of Janet presented winning jockey of second race with bouquet. In addition to the usual sports pages publicity, announcements were made over loudspeaker to assembled crowd.

Unique stunt which netted Dinerman plenty of publicity for "Having Wonderful Time" was conducted with cooperation of the dramatic staff of the Cincinnati Enquirer by locating the grandmother of Lee Bowman (Cincinnatian) and one of the featured players in the picture. Newspapermen recorded her reactions, at a private screening, to seeing her favorite grandson get socked by Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.

Newspapers Cooperate

On "Old Chicago" a 40-day serialization was planted in the Cincinnati Post, which included banners on all tracks for a period of 10 days and printing of 20,000 tabloid heralds which were imprinted by the Post and distributed through the theatre. Local man was discovered who had a Cincinnati paper dated day after the fire, describing the holocaust and the part that the Cincinnati fire department played in helping. This was made the subject of a newspaper article and also blown up to a 40 by 60 easel display and placed alongside box-office. Also located was another aged resident who was an actual eye-witness to the fire, and this, too, was good for an interview.

Pre-eminent among Dinerman's activities was the Glamour Girl contest, previously described in these pages, which ran for over eight weeks and included a prize of $200 for the winner and a two-week all-expense tour of Hollywood. In addition, all expenses for a chaperone during the entire trip were paid for by the RKO Theatres. Voting was done by placing ballots in specially provided boxes in the lobbies of the theatre. Winning candidate polled a reported total of over 460,000 votes, each theatre ticket being worth approximately 25 points. Included in the publicity were screen trailers, daily spreads in the Cincinnati Post and a daily half-hour radio program over Station WCPO devoted solely to the contest and current theatre attractions. Movie transcriptions and the theatres' stage stars were used on the radio program.

PINCUS "TEXAN" FLOAT VIEWED BY 100,000

The recent Salt Lake Covered Wagon Days parade, an annual event that attracts statewide attention, was the source of some excellent publicity for the date on "The Texan" at the Centre Theatre, in the Utah metropolis. Charley Pincus promoted an authentic old - time prairie - wagon drawn by ox-team, had it bannered, and planted the bally right in the center of the parade where it was viewed by over 100,000 along the line of march.

Contests and Tieins Top Sparrow Entry

Leading Richmond daily cooperated with Allan Sparrow, Loew's, Richmond, and winner of Citation of Merit in the "B" classification by sending out three candid cameramen to take shots of passersby. Four of these pictures were published daily and passes awarded to "Blockade" to those identifying themselves at the boxoffice. Classified contest was also planted in the same newspaper, which netted theatre 2,226 lines of free space. Large ad was run daily and 20 names scattered through the classified section, each box with the winner's name carried the name of the theatre and picture title.

Ahead of opening day, Sparrow held a sidewalk broadcast, during which folks were questioned on the picture. Broadcast was also held atop marquee thrice daily. Parade of newsboys properly bannered was held opening day, a lost and found contest was put on in the Times-Dispatch and another in the Labor Herald.

Special heralds were distributed house-to-house, imprinted napkins used by chain druggists and leading hotel fountain. Through tieup effected with Postal Telegraph, 2,000 heralds were inserted in all telegrams prior to opening of picture. Also cooperating was Wonder Bread agent, who bannered 28 trucks with playdate copy and placed special labels around all loaves of bread sold ahead and during engagement.

Parking Lots Tied In

Sheet music salesmen on the main street were supplied with song hits from the picture and in doors of six downtown garages and on downtown parking lots the following was used: "Don't blockade this entrance, see," etc., etc. Numerous window displays were secured in addition to streamers on soda fountain mirrors.

On "Marco Polo," Sparrow tied up leading department store, which featured a dress sale of special prints, dubbed "Marco Polo," for the engagement. Store took three-column ad in paper plugging the sale, playdates, etc., in addition to counter displays in store. Also featured by local hairdresser was a Sigrid Gurie coiffure, ad running in paper including cut of the star and picture plug.

Holland Promotes Trips to Chicago

Sid Holland's "In Old Chicago" campaign at the Elco, Elkhart, Ind., which among others submitted landed him a Citation of Merit in the "C" class, revolved around a trip to Chicago for the city's most popular student and the companion with whom he or she would want to share the trip. Trip was promoted through local jeweler, and accommodations in Chicago promoted from one of the leading hotels.

Winner was determined by largest number of votes received through deposits in ballot boxes in jewelry store and theatre lobby. Five different color voting tickets were distributed, each respectively worth one, two, 10 and 25 votes, depending on amount of purchase made at the cooperating jeweler's. Merchant's ads and window were devoted to the contest in addition to lobby display, program and newspaper ads. Further publicity was accorded the stunt when picture of Holland, the winner and his friend, together with stories were run in local and Chicago papers.

Elderly woman who had witnessed the original conflagration was located and brought to the theatre in a bannered taxi opening night to witness the film. Local paper ran her photo together with human interest story on the second day.

Celebrates "Quints" Birthday

Reported as highly successful was stunt arranged by Sid in connection with the showing of "Quintupland," short featuring the Quints' fourth birthday party. Through newspapers, programs, heralds, etc., Holland invited all four-year-old girls to a birthday party held in his lobby. Local merchant was promoted for ice cream, milk and cookies as well as an ad announcing the party at the Elco.

On "Test Pilot" a model airplane contest was put on with the cooperation of local paper, Y. M. C. A. and five sporting goods stores, which furnished the prizes presented on stage opening night. Five thousand merchant heralds were distributed, entire cost of which was covered. Giant eye-catching front was erected three days ahead of opening consisting of cutout figures standing on marquee holding parachutes suspended from roof, as though they had just descended. Three-foot block letters carried credits.

To announce the world premiere of "Blockade" at the Elco, Holland used a "man on the street" program daily, week ahead of opening. Special parade was held opening night, flares were dropped from plane overhead, front of theatre was lighted for gala opening. High spot of the evening was arrival of the various Hollywood stars, including Madeleine Carroll, Henry Fonda, Walter Wanger and others, impersonated by members of the Little Theatre group, who are welcomed by M. C.

MORE ON CITATIONS

Tucker Attracts Attention With Smart Street Stunts

Street ballyhoos were the order of the day so far as John Tucker's "Penitentiary" campaign at the Grand, Moundsville, West Va. was concerned. The Citation of Merit winner in the "D" classification, dressed three boys in convicts uniform, parading streets with back banners carrying playdates and title copy. Other lads walked around reading open copies of the press book across top of which was large snipe with theatre name. Another stunt which attracted the anticipated attention was boy carrying a moveable compo board cell on which were lettered title, playdates, etc. Boy inside the cell would stop at busy street corners, peer through the cell window and give spiel.

On "I'll Take Romance," lad carrying guitar paraded town playing and singing hit tunes from the picture, tiein card hung from the instrument. In his lobby, John placed a giant heart, darts were available for customers and to those making bullseye, guest tickets were awarded. Amateur contest was held on stage, contestants plugging top songs.

Impersonation Contest

"Tom Sawyer" brought doubles contest, in which local lads were invited to come to the theatre dressed as the star, audience applause decided the winner who received promoted prize. Second contest brought the marble champs out, prizes also going to these winners. To publicize the date ahead of opening Tucker dressed a chap as Indian Joe, wrapped in blanket on which was tiein copy. Another bally consisted of small fence imprinted with picture plug which was carried around town by lad who would stop at busy intersections and set the fence down for all to read. Treasure hunt was arranged in local lot, boys and girls invited to hunt for hidden passes. Still another stunt was an invitation to all kids to bring their frogs to theatre where they were lined up in front of boxoffice, pass went to owner of frog who jumped the farthest. And a gag that also stopped 'em was a fence walking contest with boys that walked the fence the longest receiving ducats to the show.

Sandwich man carrying immense cardboard alarm clock paraded streets for "Marco Polo," face of clock carrying copy to the effect that it was time to see "etc., etc." Lobby display consisted of castle replica, six sheet of Gary Copper was mounted atop marquee ahead and during run and boy dressed in costume with imprinted shield and sword rode horse through streets.

"BEAT THE HEAT"

Burhorn Effects Community Tieins

Reported as a crowd stopper was John Burhorn's stunt for "Hurricane" at the Gayety Theatre, Chicago, Ill., included among the campaigns which landed him in the winning columns for the subsequent run entries. Ushers were planted atop marquee, where each playing a different instrument plugged hit tune from the picture. Five thousand colored heralds carrying merchant's ad on reverse side were distributed, readers and ads plugged away at the reading public three days ahead of opening and stories and art work were planted in Polish papers.

Private screening of "Boy of the Streets" was held, letters of invitations being mailed to civic and business leaders stressing the juvenile delinquency problem. Letters of endorsement received were used for publication, displayed on lobby easel and later in front of theatre. The Daily Calumet devoted an entire editorial plugging the picture, running stories and art work on entertainment page, numerous window displays were secured and highlight of Burhorn's campaign was parade of 500 Patrol boys each carrying banner as they marched to theatre to witness the film.

Another civic scoop was tieup with Y.M.C.A. whereby theatreman awarded a "Gayety Cup" to the best boys' team. Announcements on the picture were tacked on all bulletin boards and prominent mention given in "Y" paper. Alderman Rowan presented the trophy before a packed house to the captain of the winning team.

For his Mother's Day celebration, group of mothers all over 70 were Burhorn's guests for the day. Free transportation to the theatre, candy, flowers, etc., were promoted by John, stories and art being carried in local papers. Additional publicity on the stunt was garnered when the mothers wrote unsolicited notes of appreciation to the management, these being published in the "Letters to the Editor" column of the Daily Calumet.

Window Artist Paints

Talented doorman was planted in store window adjoining theatre, painting pictures of The Lone Ranger to publicise that date. In exchange for tickets to the serial, small boys dressed as cowboys were enlisted to distribute heralds on the street. Boys masked and in costumes also stood on guard at various stores, standing beside cutout compo board figure of the Lone Ranger mounted on his horse, Silver. Autographed photos of the Ranger were given to first 1,000 kids attending opening matinee. Another street stunt, old but reliable, says Burhorn, was lad stationed in front of theatre reading a book, card alongside stating that he was waiting for the picture to open.

"BEAT THE HEAT"

Various Slants Sell "Snow White" for Hal

The exploitation on "Snow White" was started month ahead of opening at the Paramount, Helena, Ark. by Hal Howard. Entire staff wore badges announcing the coming playdates and a 30 foot banner lettered in bright contrasting colors with the dwarf figures was placed across front of theatre.

Week ahead local newspaper conducted a "Snow White" coloring contest, prizes offered for the best entries. Front page publicity was given the contest for several days. And highlight of campaign was street parade with the dwarfs participating, cards bannered with title and playdates.

Members Report More on "Circus"

The following were further contributions from Round Tablers having to do with representative circus-like exploitation ideas found effective. Other campaigns along the same lines were detailed in the issues of July 16 and 23.

Street stunts are given full attention in the campaigns created by Sam Gilman, Loew's, Harrisburg, Pa., and among the most effective, according to Sam, are bicycle ideas such as used on "Yank at Oxford," a photo of which was published in a recent Round Table photo page. Twelve riders, in cap and gown costume, and each having one of the title letters pinned to his back, rode in and out of formation about the main streets.

Similar stunt for a Marx Bros. picture had to do with a three-seat bicycle ridden by three boys dressed to represent the stars. Much attention was garnered through the use of the three-wheeler, an unusual sight in these modern days. Still another bike stunt was Gilman's promotion of all the Postal Telegraph messengers to banner their bikes and parade for an Arliss picture.

Egan Goes Back 20 Years

Even in the days when he ran the Strand, in Calgary, Alberta, Pete Egan was exploitation-minded and recalls on an engagement for "Sally" how he induced a circus friend of his to bring on a trained pig and work with the porker on a street stunt. The pig was belled and bannered, the friend dressed as a woman with a theatre sign on his back and the strange duo paraded the streets much to the astonishment of the locals to whom this form of advertising was something new and novel.

Weiss Teaches "Bazooka"

For "Big Broadcast of 1937" at the Olympia, Miami, Al Weiss worked up the bazooka angle by giving the house staff music lessons in the lobby. So well did it go over that Weiss promoted the local high school all-girl bazooka band to play on the local court house steps, then parade to the theatre with a police escort, where another concert was given. Papers ran shots of both stunts. Weiss also sends along a shot of his front on "Jungle Love" colorfully decorated with grass, palm trees, caged parrots, tropical birds, monkeys, etc.

"BEAT THE HEAT"

Town of Algiers Exploits Pictures

Directly across the river from New Orleans there is a suburb named Algiers, which was seized upon immediately by Manager Rodney Toups of Loew's State, who with Bob Wood, United Artists exploiter, worked out a comprehnsive promotion that brought to the attention of the district's 10,000 families the opening of "Algiers" at that theatre.

Ferries shuttling across the Mississippi River at five-minute intervals to serve the district's commuters to the city proper were emblazoned with boat-length banners announcing the picture's opening. Two men were posted at the landings on the Algiers side of the river to distribute cards reading "Welcome to Algiers."

(2) Standing out immediately was the hand-lettered line of sock-copy atop this three col. on 140 lines for "Jezebel," created by Doug George, of "Skip" Weshner's department for the Warner houses in A. J. Vanni's zone. Against the benday background, character study of star balanced the action shots from the picture and captions. Cut of New York review overlaid reverse panel with picture copy.

(3) It was Jerry Zigmond's idea that a message from the Governor of Texas would be a bit of unusual advertising for the date on "Texans" at the Newman, Kansas City. With this in mind, Zigmond promoted a wire from the state head, ran it in two cols. on 65 lines to impress upon readers that K. C. was the first city to see the picture after the world premiere.

THE RELEASE CHART

Productions are listed according to the names of distributors in order that the exhibitor may have a short-cut towards such information as he may need, as well as information on pictures that are coming. Features now in work or completed for release later than the date of this issue are listed under "Coming Attractions." Letter in parentheses after title denotes audience classification of production: (A) Adult, (G) General. Numerals following audience classification are production numbers. Dagger symbol indicates picture is of the 1937-38 season.

NOTE: The totals for running time are the official figures announced by the home offices of the distributing companies.

When a production is reviewed in Hollywood, the running time is as officially given by the West Coast studio of the company at the time of the review, and this fact is denoted by an asterisk (*) immediately preceding the number. As soon as the home office has established the running time for national release, any change from the studio figure is made and the asterisk is removed.

Running times are subject to change according to local conditions. State or city censorship deletions may cause variations from the announced and published figures; repairs to the film may be another reason.

The Bluebook School

ANSWER TO QUESTION NO. 121

Conducted by
F. H. RICHARDSON

Bluebook School Question No. 121 was: (A) If vibration is felt in excess of a faint tremble when the hand is laid upon a newly installed motor or generator, should the machine be accepted? (B) Suppose a ring of fire extending clear around the commutator is discerned, what would be your diagnosis and what would you do? (C) Name possible causes of an armature overheating. What may happen if operation is continued with the fault not removed?

The following made satisfactory reply: S. Evans and C. Rau; G. E. Doe; J. R. Prater; H. Edwards; L. Cimikoski; C. Champney; R. and K. Wells; W. E. Limmroth; T. W. Redhouse; E. H. Toedte; B. and M. (Note: A projectionist, M. B. Stout, Petersburg, Alaska, has joined the Bluebook School, his first answer being to question No. 122. Thought this worthy of note. Have had inquiries relative to active membership from European countries, but the distance (time element) is too great. You are welcome, Alaska. We trust you will remain with us a long while.)

I have selected the answer of G. E. Doe to section A as best suited for publication. He says: "The evils of mechanical vibration in such a machine are many, their benefits exactly nothing. Both motors and generators are accessible, the rotating parts of which are so perfectly balanced that no vibration may be detected by the hand, save as "Dad" says, a faint, almost imperceptible tremble, which, it is reasonable to presume, will never be wholly eliminated.

"This being the case, purchasers should refuse to accept either a motor or generator, or a combination of the two, in which vibration in excess of that indicated by the question we are considering is present. However, before rejection of a combination machine in which the shafts of motor and generator are coupled, or of a motor driving a mechanism, make sure the vibration is not due to faulty alignment of shafts or to other causes."

Note: John Hertner, President of Hertner Electric Company, to whom all this week's answers were sbmitted for checking, made the following comment for Bluebook:

"Before rejecting a machine because of vibration, be certain the fault does not lie in its supporting foundation. Sometimes due to foundation conditions a slight vibration in the machine is magnified many times. Not infrequently, if the machine is set on another foundation, or even slightly moved, the objectionable vibration will wholly disappear. In such a case it obviously is the duty of the owner to change the foundation."

(B) J. R. Prater answers thus: "In such case my diagnosis would be either an open circuit in the armature or a current-carrying connection between two or more commutator bars. Probably it will prove to be the latter, in which case the ring of fire usually is a thin, rather bright line. Correct procedure would be to immediately stop the machine and carefully inspect the slots between commutator bars to locate the seat of trouble. It probably will be found due to lodging of a current-carrying particle between two of the bars, which causes a spark to appear at each revolution of the commutator, persistence of vision causing the intermittent spark to appear as a continuous line of light around the commutator.

"An open circuit in an armature coil will cause the mica to be eaten away around the bars connecting with the defective coil. Chances are there will be a bad turn on the commutator surface. There is small chance of this condition being mistaken. The trouble may be due to defective soldering of the coil to the commutator bars, or to an actual break in the coil itself at some point in its length. Temporary repair may be made by soldering the two bars together, thus bridging the break.

"If no open, or partial open, exists, the turn will probably be much less severe and will be found due to a short between the two bars. Years ago this trouble was relatively frequent because of the binder then employed in plate mica tending to become carbonized, sometimes assisted by oil thrown out of a bearing.

"If it be impractical to stop the machine immediately the trouble develops, try holding a piece of 00 sandpaper lightly against the commutator where the ring of fire shows. If the fault be due to a bit of current-carrying material lodged between two bars, a remedy may be thus effected. If remedy cannot be accomplished with the machine in operation, and there is no stand-by equipment available, notify the management to secure substitute d. c. power supply quickly, or continue operation on a. c. while a repair is effected. Every minute of continued operation under either afore-described condition adds very materially to the damage, and prolonged operation may compel sending the entire armature to the manufacturer for extensive, expensive repairs."

BLUEBOOK SCHOOL QUESTION NO. 127

(A) Why does motion in a magnetic field generate flow of current in a closed-circuit conductor laying within that field?

(B) Why is it impossible to generate direct current in a closed-circuit conductor lying within a magnetic field by motion of said field?

(C) If d.c. cannot be generated magnetically, how is it obtained from the brushes of a d.c. dynamo?

(Note: Remember, this is a Bluebook school and the answer to all save possibly some special questions can be found in that book.)

The LION'S ROAR

They had to spray Leo's tonsils this week.

So much good news to ROAR about, he strained his sound track.

For instance:

Continued amazing box-office performance of "Love Finds Andy Hardy" with 2nd week hold-overs mounting.

Followed by sock-o-penings of Bob Taylor in "The Crowd Roars."

And the announcement of "Marie Antoinette" at popular prices!

TRADE-SHOWS!

Ask your M-G-M Branch where the nearest Trade Show of "Marie Antoinette" will be held. Call your wife and enjoy it with her. Until you sit before this enthralling picture you cannot fully realize what's in store for you and your patrons. An eyeful, a heart-full, a theatre-full!

"BARNUM GIVES UP!"

M-G-M showmanship. More than 200,000 persons have already visited the Marie Antoinette Museum in the Astor Theatre. Summer visitors to Broadway send postcards back home. Feature stories in newspapers and magazines everywhere. Broadcasts from the lobby with visitors interviewed. Entire theatre converted into a museum, seats covered with terraced platforms covered with royal purple plush to display exciting properties from the picture. Real antiques, historical items from the dramatic period. The Premiere of the picture is Tuesday, August 16. New York, Los Angeles and San Francisco are the only advanced price, twice-daily engagements.

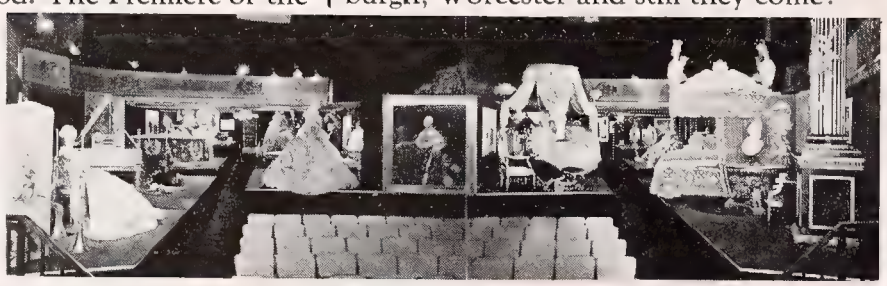
Speaking of M-G-M showmanship: thanks for your vote of confidence which gave M-G-M four out of five awards in the A. M. P. A. exhibitor survey on promotion determined by leading showmen throughout America.

"MARIE ANTOINETTE" AT POPULAR PRICES!

As its sincere contribution and gesture of enthusiastic cooperation with the united industry drive ("Motion Pictures Are Your Best Entertainment") M-G-M has cancelled elaborate road-show plans for this glorious and truly road-show picture in order to bring it directly to the public at popular prices as the first of the great entertainments of the new season.

Preceded by the longest advance publicity campaign any picture ever received, plus a nationwide billboard campaign with thousands of boards in 1200 cities, plus color-ads in all fan magazines, plus the fame of three advanced price engagements in Los Angeles, New York and San Francisco, plus large-scale newspaper advertising . . ."Marie Antoinette" is on the way to fame and (your) fortune!

"Sweetheart of the Day"



NORMA DEAR YOUR FANS ARE WAITING!

The most beloved, the most admired personality on the screen comes to her millions of loyal followers in a role so thrilling, so touching, so beautiful that it must truly remain first and forever in their memories as the greatest they have ever witnessed. Many lines will be written in praise of her, but the greatest line will be at your box-office.

WATCH M-G-M!

Leo's list of releases for August, September and October made public last week brought roars of approval from showmen.

"Love Finds Andy Hardy" followed by "Crowd Roars" started the ball rolling.

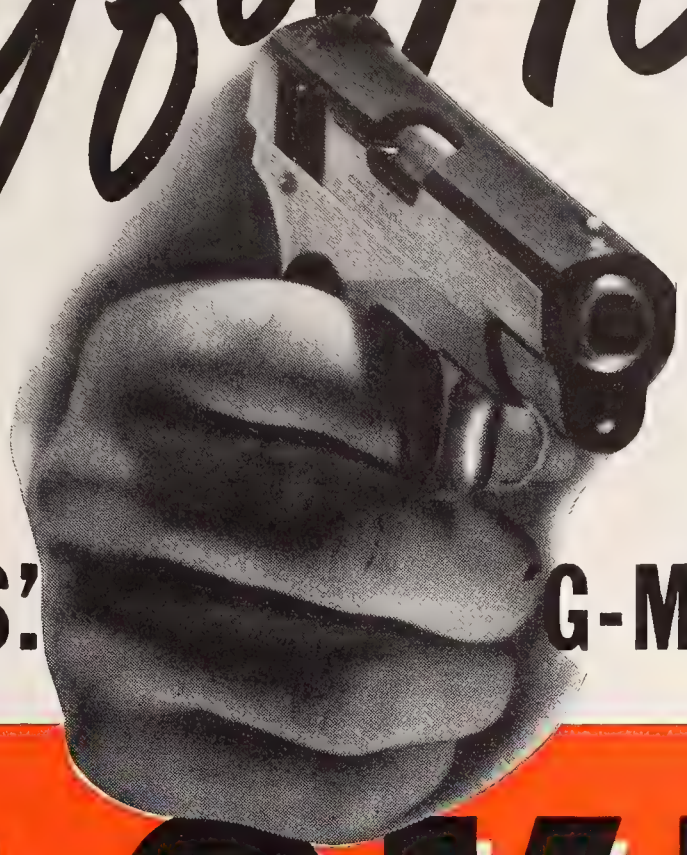
"Rich Man, Poor Girl" with Bob Young, Lew Ayres, Ruth Hussey and a cast of new faces is an August bright spot together with Laurel-Hardy's funny feature "Block-Heads."

August 26th ushers in "Marie Antoinette" as first of the impressive Fall Season Big Ones.

Closely followed by Clark Gable-Myrna Loy in "Too Hot To Handle" (still in production, it's terrific!) Next comes the great heart drama, Spencer Tracy-Mickey Rooney in "Boys Town."

"The Great Waltz" with Luise Rainer, Fernand Gravet and Miliza Korjus is something to look forward to. "Stablemates" gives you Wally Beery and Mickey Rooney. "Listen Darling" brings Freddie Bartholomew, Judy Garland, Mary Astor, Walter Pidgeon. "Three Loves Has Nancy" delights with Janet Gaynor, Robert Montgomery, Franchot Tone.

Lots of other M-G-M money-makers in between and then the October-topper: Jeanette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy in the Technicolor triumph "Sweethearts."



That's what you'll call each and every one of those August, September, October releases.

MARTIN QUIGLEY, Editor-in-Chief and Publisher

Vol. 132, No. 7 August 13, 1938

UNITED IN DRIVE

AN especially heartening quality pervades the daily tidings of the "Motion Pictures' Greatest Year" campaign. One can recall no prior occasion or cause which has found the many and often sharply diverse factors and factions of the industry so united.

This is the more warmingly impressive in view of the various acrimonies of recent months, with the tossing of internal charges of embitterment in all branches of the business.

The duresses which have brought about this realization of a genuine community of interest for all concerned with motion pictures may well prove of a continuing service considerably beyond the meeting of the problems of the immediate Now.

Even this early, with the drive still on the planning table, it is to be considered an assured success. There is that feel of it in the air, something like the indefinable wave which emanates from Hollywood when a hit picture is about to emerge. The question is not that something may be achieved for the screen, but rather how much.

From about this point on, the measure of success will be the total of the constructive efforts of the several thousand working showmen operating each in his individual location and niche. Inevitably results will be variable, not to say spotty. The job in any given region will be about as good as the men who do it. Many will discover in this unusual opportunity to make individual demonstrations of skill and diligence. It is the sort of campaign from which promotions emerge. This observation is made in cognizance of the interesting array of promotions to be found on the rolls of Quigley award winners in the Managers' Round Table competitions conducted in Motion Picture Herald for both the service of and recognition of the showman in the field. Merit and performance tend to prevail, in the measure that they are made really evident. The "Greatest Year" drive is a spotlighted opportunity.

IT is to be taken as neither surprising nor deeply disturbing that the application of the promotional plan is meeting some questionings, some difficulties and some criticisms, most especially with respect to some subsequent runs and situations importantly affected by zoning. Considering the complexity of the distribution map it is hardly to be expected that complete perfection of operation can be achieved.

There is meanwhile the constructive possibility that the arising of these problems, at this time when the methods and trade practices of the industry are under such heavy scrutiny, both external and internal, may serve larger purposes in broader moves of readjustment. This particular campaign addressed at the well being of the whole industy may perchance make plain to all and sundry that the maintenance of the commonweal has parallel requirements in many another category of inter-industry relations. Recognition of the mutuality of interests is not, in a sensible industry, to be reserved only for times of box office stress. The industry has something to share between its branches and factors, from major production to independent exhibition, in times of abundance as well as in days of stringency.

It is a certainty, however, that the conductors of the campaign are compelled by every element of interest, general or special, to attain as complete a coverage of the screen audience as is possible.

It may be further observed that such lasting benefits as this special movement for the box office may confer are inevitably to be conferred upon every theatre in the land in the broad final result.

CONSIDERATION of the activities of the day inevitably reminds one of certain expressions of considerable relevancy from N. L. Nathanson of Canadian fame in the course of a conversation in Miami set down in the pages of The Herald of February 5th last.

"We need," said Mr. Nathanson, back in February, "a consistent telling and selling of the fact that the motion picture is a great value to the box office customer, an entertainment for the whole family, the most entertainment and the best that can be had."

"The motion picture should be able," he insisted, "to do for itself something like the great job that has been done for insurance—or, to take an older example, the great fruit growing industry of California."

A certain quality of prophetic demand appears in those words these six months later.

CONSERVATIONIST

LAST week Mr. Frank S. Nugent, motion picture editor of the New York Times, almost decided to do a piece for his space about a battle between his Airedale and a Connecticut skunk. Instead he took off on a job of telling the motion picture business that it was wasting tremendous box office values in devotion to youthful stars and forgetting them quite as they emerged into middle age.

Says Mr. Nugent, this is "stupid because it so clearly dooms Hollywood to economic loss. Every actor is an investment. . . . Under the present system, he is, relatively, a short term investment, valuable only until his glamour fades. . . . "

Now, just supposing that the producer is working in a glamour market. Mr. Nugent, so expertingly advising in a great newspaper, is unaware of the automatic, inevitable processes of selection, and the perennially renewed youth of the audience.

The service of the masses demands a spendthrift art in which money, skill, beauty, glamour are consumed like hot dogs at Coney Island, exactly.

There are plenty of actors, there always will be. A semblance of paucity is created entirely by the mad competition of talent buyers for possession of the top success of the moment.

This Week

Study and Delay

Distribution executives who have been working on a program for self-regulation of trade practices decided to suspend activities until after Labor Day to permit attorneys to study the program in relation to the Government's anti-trust suit. The possibility existed that it might not be considered feasible to proceed with the program while the suit is in progress. While service of subpoenas on the defendants in the suit proceeded rapidly they were granted an extension of 60 days for the filing of answers.

See page 12.

Theatre Divorcement

Candidates opposing or non-committal on the question of whether they will support a state theatre divorcement bill to be introduced at the next session of the Minnesota legislature will feel the full weight of Allied States against them at the fall election, W. A. Steffes, president of Allied of the Northwest, announced Wednesday following his return to Minneapolis from his summer estate near Aitkin, Minn. Every candidate for the senate and house, regardless of party affiliation, has been mailed a questionnaire by Mr. Steffes and Allied, asking each to state how he will vote on theatre divorcement.

"Proven Pictures"

F. E. Lieberman, Boston exhibitor who has attracted attention in his territory by his operation of theatres showing only reissues and revivals, is extending his activity to include the opening of a three-in-one theatre venture. The project will take form in the old B. F. Keith property in Boston which houses at present the abandoned Bijou theatre on the second floor which will become a "Proven Pictures" house, a store on the ground floor which will become a newsreel theatre, and a "beano" parlor which will be transformed into a first class vaudeville house.

Mr. Lieberman's plans and his previous successes are featured on page 70.

Television Move

Paramount took its first step toward entering the field of television this week when Barney Balaban, president, arranged for the purchase of an interest in the Allen B. DuMont Laboratories of Passaic, N. J., which manufactures cathode ray tubes. Paramount engineers are cooperating in the setting up of an experimental transmitting station for which the DuMont organization has filed an application with the Federal Communications Commission.

This and several other developments in the television field are discussed on page 17.

Guild Dispute

With the producers standing firmly on their contention that writers and directors are not employees under the meaning of the Wagner Labor Act and that in any case the Act does not apply to motion picture production because it is not in interstate commerce, the dispute with the Writers and Directors Guilds reached a new impasse. In Washington the National Labor Relations Board certified the Screen Writers' Guild as the collective bargaining agency for writers in 13 Hollywood studios, a certification expected as a result of the election held June 28th. Climaxing a long dispute with the Directors' Guild, charges of violation of the Wagner Act were filed against the studios by the Los Angeles regional Labor Board director, following the flat denial by producers that the Board had any jurisdiction over production.

Developments are on page 16.

Radio Competition

Theatre owners who complain about radio competition will have even heavier competition this fall. Bookings already made both by Columbia Broadcasting and National Broadcasting to start off the new show season, in September, total 51. With virtually all of the bigger programs due to return, NBC reports 27 new and returning national programs for the fall, and Columbia has 24.

The new bookings are described on page 58.

Maxwell Optimism

At the annual meeting of directors of Associated British Pictures in London Tuesday, John Maxwell, chairman of the board, declared that the objectives of the directorate had been achieved and that future policies would be directed toward consolidation of the present position of the company. He claimed that expansion and progress of the company during the year was due to the board's policy of conservative financial profits and forecast a good year on the basis of improvement of the present figures which represent profits totalling £302,000, an increase over the previous year of £37,000. The general reserve is now £2,425,000 plus £200,000 set aside for addition. The liquidation of subsidiaries progressed considerably. Total assets of the corporation are now nearly £17,000,000.

Low Budget Exploitation

A unique group of radio programs, designed to exploit a group of four low budget "series" pictures is planned by Warner Brothers for this year. Three programs patterned after the characters in three of the four series of pictures comtemplated are being offered by Transamerican to prospective air sponsors and the fourth series already has a companion program on the air. Those now being prepared parallel the "Torchy Blane," "Secret Service" and "Nancy Drew" pictures and the one already on the air is "Jane Arden," broadcast by CBS for the Ward Baking Company. The Warner actors of the cinema roles will repeat their parts on the air programs.

Facts and Figures

Facts to ease the path of the busy executive, studious research worker or casual reader and figures to delight the statistician and bring finger-top control to those seeking the vital statistics of the motion picture industry are contained in the 1938-39 edition of the INTERNATIONAL MOTION PICTURE ALMANAC, published this week.

A survey of the book's contents is on page 54.

Closing the 1937-38 season with the release of the Ginger Rogers-Irving Berlin musical, "Carefree," RKO Radio this week announced 54 feature pictures and 199 short subjects for the 1938-39 season. The announcement included the statement that Pandro S. Berman, vice-president in charge of production, has more pictures either in production or ready for release in the autumn than at any time in the history of the company.

Details of the program are on page 66.

Ad Campaign

Production expenditures will set an all-time high during the period of the "Motion Pictures' Greatest Year" campaign, Darryl F. Zanuck, head of production for Twentieth Century-Fox, predicted this week when he returned to Hollywood after a European vacation. "American producing companies will have the best pictures in their history this year," Mr. Zanuck said. "They will provide a broad and firm foundation for the cooperative campaign being undertaken by the industry—a drive involving one of the greatest joint budgets ever undertaken. Hollywood payrolls undoubtedly will reach new peaks, adding thousands of unemployed to working payrolls."

To stimulate the efforts of the "man on the firing line," the industry-wide campaign committee will conduct a prize contest for theatremen, the details of which are explained on page 86.

Exhibitors in several territories, including Chicago, Detroit, Cleveland and Virginia, have pledged support to the industry-wide advertising and exploitation campaign to increase attendance at motion picture theatres. The campaign is titled "Motion Pictures' Greatest Year" and the slogan for the drive is "Motion Pictures Are Your Best Entertainment." The support of unaffiliated theatres and circuits is being obtained in a series of regional meetings. Activities this week by the committees in charge of the drive included the appointment of H. B. Franklin, former RKO Theatres president, as business manager for the drive.

Other plans are on page 72.

Bingo Ruled Lottery

The Post Office Department has issued an interpretation of Section 213 of the United States Penal Code, calling attention to the fact that Bingo games are lotteries and that all printed matter relating to the game is unmailable. Previously, the department ruled that Bank Night was a lottery and that newspapers carrying theatre advertisements containing any mention of the game could not be mailed.

Republic Realignment

Moe J. Siegel, president of Republic Productions, Inc., is the only executive producer on the Republic lot under a realignment of the production setup by Herbert J. Yates. Charles E. Ford, who had the title of executive producer in charge of westerns and serials, and Sol Siegel, who had the title of executive producer in charge of features, have become associate producers handling their own series of pictures. Mr. Ford and Mr. Siegel, the studio announced, asked for the present status.

Film for Fair

"These United States" is to be the title of the feature length motion picture to be made in Hollywood for exhibition at the New York World's Fair of 1939, it was announced this week by Theodore T. Hayes, United States trade commissioner, on his return to New York from the coast, where he completed arrangements for the production. The name of the film was changed from "Cavalcade of America" because it was thought the subject matter was better suited to the new title which will carry the sub-title "Highlights of United States History."

Nuisance Taxes

Reduction next year of the admission tax exemption was seen as a possibility in Washington this week when Treasury officials revealed that they would seek extension of all existing nuisance taxes, which expire June 30, 1939, unless extended by act of Congress. Roswell Magill, acting secretary of the treasury, indicated that some of the levies are being studied with a view to increases in rates, pointing out that the anticipated $4,000,000,000 deficit made it necessary to collect all the taxes possible. While Treasury officials refused to discuss the tax situation in detail, it is known that suggestions have been made that a reduction in the admissions tax exemption might bring a considerable revenue.

Corrigan Presents Award

Guest of the nation's capital, where a one-day program of 20 stops was arranged in his honor, Douglas Corrigan, the "wrong direction" trans-Atlantic flier, took time out Wednesday to present to Ray Bell the Silver Plaque which was voted the Loew Washington theatre press director for the second quarter of the Quigley awards. The presentation was made in the office of the District of Columbia commissioners in the presence of important figures in Government circles.

Universal and Paramount newsreels scored last week when their cameramen, together with radio technicians, boarded the Manhattan off Nantucket lightship to film the flier before he landed in New York.

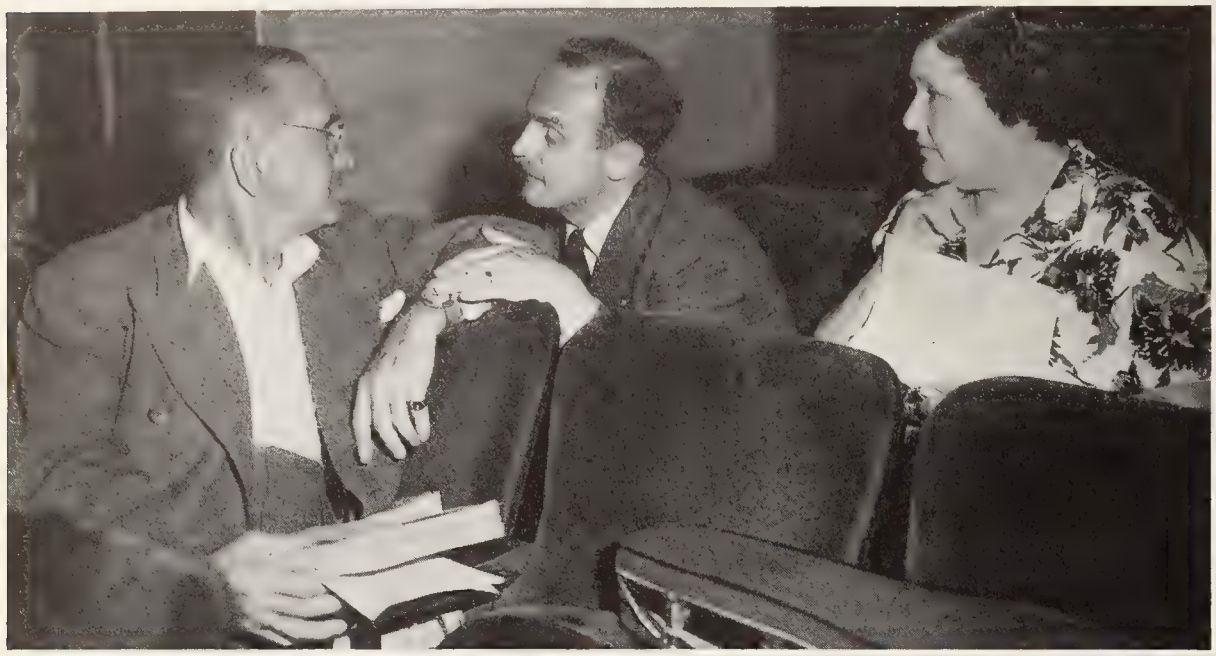
1938-39 Sales

William F. Rodgers, sales manager for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, while visiting in Chicago Wednesday, reported MGM's 1938-39 product sales were 50 per cent ahead of sales for the same period last year, adding that never in MGM's history had deals been consummated so rapidly as this year.

RKO, Twentieth Century-Fox and Monogram also reported heavy new product sales.

Bargain Counter Sound

Electrical Research Products evidently is destined for a resumption of activity in the selling and merchandising of sound equipment, for its Western Electric (Telephone Company) parent is announcing a new 16mm film recorder, to be handled by Erpi, to bring talking pictures within reach of the "bargain counter."



The development is explained on page 18.

Net Profit

Consolidated Film Industries, Inc., and subsidiaries this week reported a net profit of $317,442, equal to 79 cents on 400,000 shares of no par $2 stock, for the six months ended June 30th. This compared with $378,417 for the same period last year. For the quarter ended in June the net was $159,761, equaling 40 cents a share, against $157,681, or 39 cents a share, in the preceding quarter, and $148,713, or 37 cents a preferred share, in the second quarter last year.

American Seating Company, which makes seats for theatres, auditoriums and other structures, reported a net loss of $60,645 for the six months ended June 30th, compared with a loss of $201,886 the same period in 1937. The company reported current assets at $4,031,148 and liabilities $295,151. Inventories were $1,929,195 against $2,044,106.

Quiet burial in a rustic cemetery at Rambouillet near Paris ended the final reel for Pearl White, star of the early silent pictures whose exploits in the then popular serials were followed with gasping interest and are remembered with sentimental nostalgia. Miss White died, aged 49, in the American Hospital in Paris after a short illness. From vaudeville and the circus she entered motion pictures in 1913 and in 1914 rose to the sensational stardom of those days as the heroine of "The Perils of Pauline," produced by Pathe. She retired in 1921. Co-starred as the villain in many of her pictures was Warner Oland who succumbed this week to pneumonia in a hospital in Stockholm, (right).

Harold B. Franklin, above, former president of RKO theatres, who has been named business manager of the industry's institutional advertising campaign, officially named the Motion Pictures' Greatest Year drive. Mr. Franklin, in previous associations with Paramount, RKO and Fox West Coast has directed a number of campaigns similar in purpose but not so wide in scope as the present one.

Al Jolson, Darryl Zanuck and Louella Parsons, Hearst Hollywood columnist, above, in a hectic moment before their appearance in the CBS exploitation broadcast for "Alexander's Ragtime Band."

Emilio Lopez Perez, right, general manager of Columbia Pictures in Chile, whose branch won the annual billing and collections contest held by the 15 Columbia offices in Latin America.

Warner Oland, left, died this week in his native Sweden of pneumonia. Mr. Oland's first screen engagement was with Theda Bara in "Jewels of the Madonna" and following that he entered on a long series of roles in which he was cast as an Oriental villain. In 1931 his screen character was metamorphosed to that of the lovable, though improbable detective, "Charlie Chan."

Earle W. Hammons, above, president of Educational Pictures, whose proposal to merge his company with Grand National is being cast in final agreement form by Edward Alperson, below, and Loyd Wright, co-trustees for Grand National. The plan has been approved tentatively by creditors of the company in reorganization and after they have given it their expected final approval it will be submitted to the court.

Hollywood's Cake Epidemic

ENDEMIC in Hollywood is the publicity picture but epidemic at the moment seems to be a craze for birthday cake of which the publicity photographers take the fullest advantage. In the center column, reading down: George Cukor receives congratulations, and a cake, from William LeBaron, Janet Waldo and Albert Lewin looking on; Fred Fleck, production assistant to Pandro Berman gets cake and presents from Ginger Rogers, Fred Astaire and Mark Sandrich; Fred Astaire receives the same honors, and Virginia Clark of the radio networks rehearses for a film career. In the outside column: a Laurel and Hardy party; Ginger Rogers again, this time with Edith Clark, wardrobe mistress; Ralph Bellamy also participating in the Rogers hospitality, and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., watching Cary Grant, Joan Fontaine and Victor McLaglen sample his cake.

U. S. ANTI-TRUST SUIT ENDANGERS PROGRAM FOR SELF-REGULATION

Kent Says Counsel's Opinion Will Help Decide Whether Any Meeting with Exhibitors Will Be Possible

Effecting a complete about-face, the large distributors who have been working on a "program of fair trade practices" for the industry as a whole, decided abruptly last Thursday, to suspend these activities until after Labor Day, in order to permit their attorneys to study the position of the program in relation to the Government's anti-trust suit, and from the conclusions to determine whether conditions make it possible to proceed with a program at all.

Meanwhile the major and subsidiary companies named as defendants, and 133 of their officers who also are defendants, had been granted an extension of 60 days for the filing of answers to the trust suit, which was instituted by the Department of Justice in federal court, New York, on July 20th. The Government, in its sweeping, 23,000-word petition, asks for divorcement of production from exhibition, elimination of block booking, abolishment of Hollywood's "talent pool", and most of the present trade practices in distribution-exhibition.

While the corporate home offices in New York this week were concerning themselves with their answers to the government's suit, and studying the relation of the suit to the proposed system of self-regulation, fresh difficulties over trade practices were cropping out in the field.

Chicago Independents To Sue

Independents in Chicago now appear determined to sue the large companies over the "unfair" clearance which they complain is afforded Balaban & Katz, a Paramount circuit affiliate.

Major distributors, Balaban & Katz and Warner Brothers Circuit, defendants in the trust suit of Gary Theatre Company, were given until September 10th to file answers.

Lucas & Jenkins Theatres, in Georgia, are the latest to become involved in a trust complaint by independents. The circuit was sued this week by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wise, operating Savannah Theatre Company.

Independents in Iowa and Nebraska, headed by Ralph Goldberg, were called to Omaha to discuss "what rights, if any, the independent exhibitor has!"

Kent Finds Delay Necessary

Announcement that the industry may be forced to abandon its efforts toward development of a plan of self regulation of distributor-exhibitor practices, as a result of the Government's anti-trust suit, was made by S. R. Kent, chairman of the distributors' trade practice committee, from his office at Twentieth Century-Fox Film. Mr. Kent had been vacationing in Maine and returned to New York to determine the position of the program in its relation to the Federal suit. His statement follows:

"I have been in the city (New York) for the past few days meeting members of the committee appointed to develop a program for a solution of trade problems within the industry.

"I am informed substantial progress has been made, but it now seems definite that meetings with exhibitors cannot be held until after Labor Day. The problems facing the various companies, which now can only be met after consultation with their counsel because of the Government suit, are so important that they must be studied carefully before anything is done.

"Right after Labor Day, and after counsel have given their opinion, it can be said definitely what the position in regard to meetings with exhibitors will be, or it can be said whether conditions because of the pendency of the government suit make it impossible to meet the exhibitors at all."

Immediately after Mr. Kent announced the delay in the distributors' program, David Palfreyman, who up to that time had been cooperating with the distributors' committee as executive in charge of exhibitor relations of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, departed for a vacation of several weeks in Maine.

The distributors' decision making the adoption of self-regulation questionable came as a surprise. Previously, on the filing of the Governments' suit, Mr. Kent as the distributor spokesman had said, "We share the general industry belief that the most intelligent and satisfactory solution of our problems eventually will be reached through self-regulation, rather than through litigation." Mr. Kent, however, did explain at the time that "the trade practice questions now raised in the Government's petition demand a most careful reexamination of all the questions involved. This will require further discussion not only by members of the committee, but consideration by the respective counsel of all affected. To that extent, some delay may be inevitable in bringing the deliberations to the point of conference with exhibitor representatives."

Attorneys See Position Jeopardized

Legal apprehension over the possibility that major distributors may jeopardize their position in the Government's trust suit by entering into concerted agreements for the self-regulation of trade practices is understood to be one of several factors involved in the decision of the majors to postpone self regulation while their lawyers study the plan.

Several company attorneys, it is said, expressed the belief that the granting of trade practice concessions to exhibitors at this time might create a situation which would complicate the defense of many of those named in the Government's complaint. It was pointed out that the granting of concessions relating to any of the trade practices complained of in the Government proceeding could be construed and advanced by the Department of Justice as an admission of guilt, similar in flavor to the implications of a consent decree. The prosecution, some distributors feel, could not be relied upon to accept the promulgation of a trade practice program at this time solely as a voluntary effort to adjust internal industry grievances and complaints.

The legal study of the situation now in progress and referred to in the statement issued by Mr. Kent, will weigh the merit of views such as these, and, in the event they are substantiated, may explore means of effecting self-regulation of trade practices other than that of a procedure by joint action such as is now being attempted.

Favor Local Boards

Further evidence that exhibitors in the field are strongly in favor of self-regulation, including local conciliation boards, which are understood to be part of the distributors' program, came this week from San Francisco and Kansas City.

Conciliation boards or similar tribunals for the airing of exhibitor grievances are a vital necessity and if established and operated efficiently would prevent much of the agitation for Federal supervision of the industry, in the opinion of R. A. McNeil, general manager of the Golden State Theatre Circuit of San Francisco.

"The Government's suit against the major companies should not prevent the industry from establishing conciliation boards, or delay the move," declared E. E. Webber, Jr., president of the Independent Theatre Owners of Kansas City.

"Conciliation boards will be a good thing for the industry generally," he added. "They won't solve all the problems, but they will go a long way toward it by establishing friendly relations between the exhibition and distribution branches. The industry should be able to take care of at least part of its own troubles."

Majors Obtain Delay

Major defendants in the Federal trust suit have requested and received an extension of 60 days for filing answers to the Government's bill of complaint.

The request was made to the United

U. S. IS STUDYING PATENT MONOPOLIES

The United States Patent Office at Washington has started a study of the thousands of patents held by large companies in various industries to determine the extent to which monopoly has been furthered by patent concentration.

In order that there may be no delay in compiling the information, which is to be turned over to the Administration's monopoly investigating committee, some of the high officials of the office have been asked to forego their vacations.

The report which is to be prepared is expected to show the number of patents which have been acquired by various large concerns in certain industries and may also disclose the methods adopted to keep research scientists from taking out patents in their own names and other monopolistic devices.

It is understood that a large number of film patents may come under scrutiny.

On the basis of the Patent Office findings, it is expected that it will be possible for the monopoly committee to make an investigation to determine the extent to which patents have been acquired and suppressed by big corporations. The alleged shelving of inventions was one of the bases for legislation sought at the last session of Congress for mandatory licensing of patents.

CHICAGO INDEPENDENTS PLAN SUIT

States Attorney General's office and a reply is expected this week.

Attorneys for defendants explained that the request had been made because of the sweeping allegations contained in the bill of complaint and the scope of the relief sought. They pointed out that it would be next to impossible to complete answers to so voluminous a complaint even though the usual additional 20 days for filing answers was granted by the court, and that an agreement on a reasonable period of time would save considerable trouble for the Federal court here and for the Government and defendants by eliminating the necessity for repeated appearances of attorneys for the 167 defendants to petition additional time for filing answers.

First Defendants Served

The first defendants were served with subpoenas by the United States Marshal's office in New York 15 days ago and their answers will be due August 15, 20 days after service.

Meanwhile, the Government completed service on virtually all New York corporate and individual defendants during the past few days. Of the 167 defendants named in the anti-trust suit, fewer than 30 remain to be served. These are either California residents or persons who are out of New York on vacations or business. A few of those named as defendants are no longer identified with the companies named in the complaint and will contest their service, it was said.

Federal Judge John W. Clancy last week signed an order authorizing the Government to join RKO and Irving Trust Company as trustee of RKO, as defendants in the anti-trust suit. The approval of the Federal court was necessary inasmuch as RKO and Irving Trust are under the jurisdiction of the court in reorganization proceedings. The Government's petition was pleaded by Lamar Hardy, United States attorney, who stated that the alleged violations of the anti-trust laws were committed by RKO both before and after September 7, 1934, the beginning of the company's reorganization proceedings.

Irving Trust To Accept Service

Irving Trust and RKO as a corporate defendant will accept service in the proceeding as a result of the signing of the court order. Individual defendants in RKO were served earlier.

As the legal machinery in the proceeding begins to function it is apparent that the industry's largest array of legal talent brought together in a single proceeding to date will engage in the cumbersome court battle. The house counsel of all major company defendants, personal attorneys for individual defendants and special outside counsel for corporate defendants will be enlisted. In addition, an outstanding law firm may be retained to co-ordinate and direct the defense.

Paramount will be represented by its special counsel, Simpson, Thatcher & Bartlett, in addition to the company legal staff headed by Austin Keough and Louis Phillips. United Artists will be represented by O'Brien, Driscoll & Raftery; Columbia by Schwartz & Frohlich; Twentieth Century-Fox by Dwight, Harris, Koegel & Caskey, in addition to the company legal staff headed by Felix Jenkins; Loew's, probably by John W. Davis in addition to the legal staff headed by J. Robert Rubin, Leopold Friedman and Isidor Frey; RKO by Donovan, Leisure, Newton & Lumbard, counsel for Irving Trust Company and the company staff headed by William Mallard, Gordon Youngman and William Whitman, with, perhaps, Cravath, de Gersdorff, Swaine & Wood as special counsel; Universal by Charles D. Prutzman and the office staff headed by Adolph Schimel; Warners by special counsel to be designated and the home office legal staff headed by Robert Perkins.

From Washington came denials by Department of Justice officials that current anti-trust cases, including the film suit, are "trial balloons." However, they readily admitted that they will show definitely whether the present monopoly laws are adequate.

Reports that the cases were designed to provide a demonstration for the Administration monopoly committee of just what is needed in the way of anti-trust law reform were refuted at the Department, where it was pointed out that the investigations leading to the suits were initiated long before Administration's monopoly investigation was proposed.

There was no hesitancy in saying that if the cases fail the matter will be taken to Congres with an appeal for changes in the monopoly laws, and, in fact, that intention was voiced last month in the formal statement announcing initiation of the motion picture suit. However, it was pointed out, it is quite probable that the film case will not be finally decided until after the monopoly committee has completed its work, so that the case could not well be used as a guide to the present Congressional-Executive group.

Gary Suit Defendants Get Date for Filing

The defendants in the trust suit of the Gary Theatre Company, Gary, Ind., against the major film companies, Balaban & Katz theatres and Warner Brothers Theatres, have been granted until September 10th to file an answer to the complaint. The case is due to come up then in the Federal court of Judge William Holly, in Chicago.

The Gary independent filed a complaint to obtain an injunction against an alleged motion picture monopoly. The Gary group charges that it is bound by contract to observe release dates that delay its receipt of films for ten weeks after they are released nationally and four weeks after Chicago "Loop" theatres have shown them. The complaint asks that the defendants be enjoined from enforcing this clause of the contract and from retaliating against the Palace theatre in Gary by refusing to issue it films.

Attorneys for the Gary Theatre company are Albert Gavit of Gary and David & Fainman of Chicago. Representing the major companies are Mayer, Meyer, Austrian and Platt. Counsel for Warner Brothers Theatres will be Defree, Buckingham, Jones and Hoffman. For Balaban & Katz the legal firm of Sonnenschein, Berkson, Lautman, Levinson & Morse, has been secured as counsel.

File Anti-Trust Suit Against L. & J. Circuit

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wise, owners of the Savannah Theatre, Atlanta, Ga., have filed suit for $654,000 against Lucas & Jenkins, Inc., operators of 50 theatres in Georgia, charging the defendants violated anti-trust laws and ruined their theatre business. Arthur Lucas and W. K. Jenkins, operators of the circuit, and nine major producing companies were named individually as defendants.

It is charged that Lucas & Jenkins joined with distributors in attempting to monopolize the theatre business in Savannah, Macon, Augusta, Gainesville, Athens, Barnesville and other towns.

The plaintiff figured actual damage at $218,000, claiming a $40,000 yearly gross loss in

Public Relations Radio Program Planned For Industry by Reorganized Academy

Leaders of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences and representatives of talent groups meeting in Hollywood this week discussed the possibility of launching a public relations program on the air this fall to answer the criticism and counteract misinformation. The proposed program, "Cavalcade of Hollywood," would not have a commercial sponsor.

Meeting at the home of W. S. Van Dyke, chairman of the reorganization committee, 55 leaders representing various industry branches unanimously approved the work of the Van Dyke group and adopted a policy of refusing for the time being commercial sponsorship of the contemplated broadcast series, which, it was announced, both CBS and NBC are willing to take on a sustaining basis. The possibility that a sponsor might dictate the policy of the program led the group to shift plans which originally called for sponsorship. On a sustaining basis it is believed the entire industry would be offered in the best light and the program would be available for defense of the business and general collective institutional promotion.

Attending were John Arnold, Lionel Atwill, Joan Bennett, Constance Bennett, Herbert Biberman, Charles Brackett, Houston Branch, Frank Capra, Jack Chertok, Walter Connelly, Donald Crisp, Melvyn Douglas. Howard Estabrook, Frederick Gibbons, William Goetz, Edmund Goulding, Sid Grauman, Raymond Hatton, George Irving, James Rian, Grover Jones, Edwin Knopf, Mervin Leroy, Sol Lesser, Anatole Litvak, Frank Lloyd, Harold Lloyd, Gene Lockhart, Ernst Lubitsch, John Lee Mahin, J. Farrell MacDonald, Rouben Mamoulian, E. J. Mannix, Lewis Milestone, Jane Murfin, Ned Marin, Fred Niblo, Jr., Reginald Owen, Ernest Pascal, Mary Pickford, Harry Rapf, Phil Rosen, Hal Rosson, David O. Selznick, Norma Shearer, Joseph Sistrom, Allen Scott, Jo Swerling, Ernest Vadja, Josef Von Sternberg, Walter Wanger, William Wellman, Sol Wurtzel and Darryl F. Zanuck.

MIDWEST INDEPENDENTS CALLED

business, plus a $40,000 loss through depreciation in the value of the property and a $13,500 shrinkage in the value of equipment, and asks, under the terms of the anti-trust laws, for three times this figure, plus costs. The petition was filed by John I. Kelley, attorney in Atlanta.

Iowa, Nebraska Owners Called to Omaha Meeting

Ralph D. Goldberg, pioneer Omaha exhibitor and independent circuit owner, has contacted various exhibitors in Nebraska and Iowa, asking them to attend a meeting September 1st in Omaha to see "what rights, if any, the independent exhibitor has!"

Mr. Goldberg said his business is being "threatened" by pressure from other groups. If he gets no support from other independents, he expects to "go ahead alone."

Chicago Independents Say They Are Ready to Sue

Failing in an attempt to secure desired concessions from Balaban & Katz and the major film companies, independent theatre owners of Chicago, representing 120 local theatres, have decided to file suits in Federal Court within the next few days in an effort to get relief from what they feel is an unfair situation.

Last week the B. & K. theatre executives and Austin Keough, Paramount legal counsel, conferred for three days in Chicago with independents' leaders and their attorney, Joseph Rosenberg, of Rosenberg, Stein & Rosenberg. These conferences, which started, according to Mr. Rosenberg, with B. & K. and Mr. Keough offering to make concessions to the independents, ended without any concessions being granted. The independents were seeking the abolishment of double features. They also sought a new five weeks' clearance plan between the Loop openings and the first-week-of-release which is called general release. The present time between the Loop opening and general release is ten weeks. The plan is perhaps suitable for single feature policies, the independents claim, but for duals it is unfair, they maintain, as the major circuit, through a system of bookings now used, is able to "milk" the big pictures before the independent can get them. At least that is the contention of the independents.

During the conferences B. & K. offered one concession it is reported. This was to drop duals in all their theatres except the "A" houses, providing the independents dropped duals in all of their houses. The independents did not accept this offer as they felt it would not help conditions in any way as B. & K. have enough big "A" theatres such as the Marbro, Tivoli and Uptown, to thoroughly "milk" all the product played in these theatres before they are released to the independents. The possible playing time in the "A" theatres would be about five weeks if every day was utilized.

Auto Consent Decree Interests Film Industry

Leaders of the film industry have shown considerable interest in the Department of Justice agreement to a consent decree settling the anti-trust action against the Ford Motor Company and Chrysler Corporation because of their control of financing of retail sales, according to Washington reports.

The decree will establish a code of business ethics for manufacturer-affiliated automobile finance companies and will be subject to approval by the United States district court at South Bend.

Nazis Complete Incorporation of Austrian Film Market with Germany

The motion picture industry of Austria no longer exists as such, Adolph Hitler's Nazis Germany having officially abolished the Austrian film business through absorption by the German industry, a state controlled and operated project which admittedly aims to further Nazi "culture"—propaganda.

According to an announcement made in the official German gazette (Reichsgesetzblatt), as reported to the U. S. Department of Commerce, Motion Picture Section, at the Capital, both the Nazi film laws of February 16, 1934, and the contingent law of July 12, 1936, have been extended to Austria. The German Minister of Propaganda, Joseph Goebbels, has been authorized temporarily to exempt films censored in Austria since January 30, 1933, from the German censorship regulations.

By a new Nazi executive decree, the Propaganda Ministry has cancelled the admission permits of films censored by the Austrian Board of Censors, as follows:

1. Permits for silent films expire Dec. 31, 1938.
2. Permits for sound films censored prior to July 1, 1935, expire July 31, 1938.
3. Permits for sound films censored after July 1, 1935, expire August 31, 1938
4. Permits for all other films (cultural, educational, propaganda, narrow gauge films) expire December 31, 1938.

In case a new permit for any of the above-mentioned films is desired, application must be made to the Nazi Board of Censors in Berlin prior to the date of expiration.

These decrees complete the incorporation of the Austrian film market with Germany.

For the distribution of films in Austria, a new distribution center, with headquarters in Vienna, is to be created.

By another decree, also published in the official gazette (Reichsgesetzblatt) German law regarding the handling of music copyrights dated July 4, 1933 as well as the executory decree dated February 15, 1934 have also been extended to Austria.

The German Copyright Association (Stagma) has been authorized to collect claims due in Austria since January 1, 1938, especially those accruing from contracts made by former Austrian copyright association.

According to an exchange of memoranda between the German and French Governments, the existing German-French film agreement has been prolonged. As may be recalled, the German-French film agreement does not restrict the number of films which may be imported from either contract country and the German Government agrees to pay in foreign exchange for the French films imported into Germany. Each country undertakes to notify the other of the reasons for the prohibition of any film.

Last year, Germany exported to France five films in the French language, 15 films with French dubbing and 20 feature films in the German language, as compared with 13 feature films in French, 16 with French dubbing and 25 in German in 1936.

August Drives Planned In Oklahoma City, Des Moines

Standard Theatres in Oklahoma City will stage an "August Jubilee of Movie Hits" in an attempt to overcome the August seasonal decline in attendance. Frank Martin, mayor, has issued a proclamation congratulating W. B. Shuttee, general manager, on the promotion.

Tri States Theatres in Des Moines, Cedar Rapids, Waterloo, Sioux City, the Tri-Cities and in Nebraska are inaugurating their new season attraction with "New Year's Eve" premieres.

Arthur Jarratt, head of Gaumont British theatre chain in England, arrives aboard the Empress of Britain on Saturday. He will be met at Montreal by Arthur A. Lee, vice-president and general manager of Gaumont's American Enterprises.

Disney Signs New 5-Year Contract with Kay Kamen

A five year renewal of Walt Disney's contract with Kay Kamen naming him sole representative for Walt Disney Enterprises was signed in Hollywood this week. The new pact is retroactive to January 1, 1938.

For the last six years Mr. Kamen has had exclusive representation for all commercial and licensing activities in connection with the Disney name and characters. More than 150 manufacturers are licensed to use Disney characters on more than 2,000 different articles.

Small Increases Budget

Committed to the making of five pictures for United Artists during the 1938-'39 season, Edward Small may produce an additional one due to a $250,000 increase in his budget for the season.

A

"Greatest Year" edition to be devoted to the all-industry campaign for the stimulation of the theatre box office is announced for publication about the tenth of September The issue will also give attention to the new product for 1938-39.

STUDIOS CARRY WAR TO GUILDS WITH LABOR BOARD AS REFEREE

Open Denial of NLRB Jurisdiction Brings Charges of Violations Against Producers; Writers' Guild Gets Certification

Producers this week found themselves waging war on two fronts simultaneously with the National Labor Relations Board as referee. Both disputes were the result of the producing companies' stand that production is not in interstate commerce and hence is not subject to the provisions of the Wagner Labor Act.

In Hollywood Dr. Towne Nylander, regional NLRB director, filed complaints charging the producers with violation of the act and claiming that they had refused to bargain with the Screen Directors' Guild.

Official certification came from Washington of the Screen Writers' Guild as the collective bargaining agency for writers in the face of the producers' stand that the election order itself was not justified by the terms of the act and that the voting was not properly conducted.

Dr. Nylander's charges were filed with the National Board after representatives of ten major studios flatly denied that the Board had any jurisdiction over the industry. Hearing on the complaint will be consolidated with the Directors' Guild petition for certification as the collective bargaining agency for directors, assistant directors and unit managers before a special trial examiner in Hollywood August 22nd.

At a meeting last weekend attorneys for the studios declared that the board had no jurisdiction, that the Guild as constituted is not the proper bargaining agency for assistant directors and unit managers, and that directors were independent contractors, not employees within the meaning of the Wagner Act.

The studios' stand made it obvious that the Screen Writers' Guild case in which the NLRB ruled the industry was in interstate commerce and that writers were employees would be carried to the supreme court.

The Directors' Guild case is the first instance of the filing of complaint against Hollywood film studios for violation of the Wagner Act. Companies named in the complaint are Warner Brothers, Loew's, Samuel Goldwyn, Walter Wanger, Paramount, Columbia, RKO, David Selznick, Universal and Twentieth Century-Fox.

Writers' Guild Certified

Certification of the Screen Writers' Guild as the exclusive collective bargaining agency for the writers of 13 Hollywood studios foreshadowed the probability that the producers' protest against the screen writers' elections of June 28th would be dismissed, according to observers in Washington.

Attesting the fact that the Guild had obtained a majority vote, the board announced that it would be recognized as the collective bargaining agency for the writers employed by Loew's, Selznick International, Samuel Goldwyn, Inc., Columbia Pictures, Republic Productions, Paramount, RKO Radio Pictures, Universal Pictures, Twentieth Century-Fox, Warner Brothers, Hal Roach Studios, Monogram Productions and Darmour, Inc.

While issuance of the certification was taken as indicating the probability that the board would reject the complaint of the producers that they had been given no opportunity to verify the employment of the writers who voted, the board also rejected a petition filed by the Guild for recognition as the representative of the writers in five additional studios, which were included in the election because of the unknown number of eligible voters at each.

At four of the studios, Grand National Films, Trem Carr Pictures, Major Pictures and B. P. Schulberg, Inc., no votes were cast, and at the fifth, Walter Wanger Productions, but one vote, which went to the Guild.

In refusing to recognize the Guild as the representative of writers in those companies, the board pointed out that "the principle of collective bargaining presupposes that there is more than one eligible person who desired to bargain" and ruled that the National Labor Relations Act does not empower it to act where only one employee is involved.

However, the board added, the law does not deprive a single employee of the right to designate a representative to act for him.

Radio Hearing Begun

A hearing which began in St. Louis this week in connection with the petition of the American Federation of Radio Artists for certification as the collective bargaining agency for announcers, singers and actors employed by the radio broadcasting stations in that city, was announced as a "representation hearing." This in the past has meant a hearing to determine whether the petitioning labor organization actually represented a majority of the workers involved in the dispute but the issue involved in the current proceeding is whether announcers should be included for collective bargaining purposes in a single group with actors and singers, a question of jurisdiction.

J. J. Fitzpatrick of Washington, trial examiner for the NLRB gave both sides wide latitude as the hearing opened. The Federation was represented by Henry Jaffe of New York, assistant general counsel for the national organization, and Jack Pearl, St. Louis labor board attorney. The radio stations, KSD, KMOX, KWK and WEW were represented by nine lawyers with M. F. Runyon, executive vice-president of the Columbia Broadcasting System sitting by as an observer.

Don Phillips, president of the Federation local and an announcer for KMOX, testified that many of the announcers on St. Louis stations often doubled as actors or singers and contended, with Mr. Jaffe, that all persons appearing before the microphone, except musicians, should be Federation members.

It was brought at the hearing that most of the 350 artists employed on St. Louis stations are free lance or part time workers, paid day wages, while nearly all the announcers are regular employees.

Loew Disregards TMAT Picketing

Executives of Loew's refused to pay any attention this week to pickets in front of the Astor and Loew's State Theatres, New York City. The pickets carried signs demanding that members of the Theatrical Managers Agents and Treasurers Union be employed for the Astor roadshow of "Marie Antoinette" which will open at the Astor next Tuesday.

Lodewick Vroom, president of the union, said the picket lines were posted because Loew's and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer officials failed to answer the TMAT's demands for recognition and employment.

Wright, Alperson To Confer in East On Plans for GN

Although the proposed merger of Educational and Grand National was the subject of five days' conferences in New York, no predictions as to whether and when the deal might be consummated were made pending conferences next week between Loyd Wright and Edward A. Alperson, Grand National co-trustees, in New York.

While his conferences with Earle Hammons, president of Educational, were in progress, Mr. Wright predicted completion of the final work on Educational's proposal by Tuesday night or early Wednesday but when queried on the progress made on Tuesday, Mr. Wright declared:

"I will have no comment to make until after I have conferred with Mr. Alperson."

Mr. Hammons said no unforeseen obstacles had been encountered.

Should the deal finally be agreed upon by the principals, it will have to be placed before the Grand National creditors for approval. Last week they voted tentative approval to the plan as outlined informally to them in Los Angeles. If approved by the creditors, the proposal would then have to be submitted to the Federal court for final approval.

Barring unforeseen complications, a principal in the negotiations said last week, the deal could be placed in effect before the end of September.

Herman B. Freedman, who recently said that eastern financial interests with whom he is affiliated, have a plan to reorganize GN, returned to New York from coast conferences but has not commented on what effect creditors' approval in principle of a Grand National-Educational merger will have on his own plan.

When in New York recently Mr. Freedman said that his group was ready to make $600,000 in cash available to Grand National in event it was given control.

Court Test Due on "Birth of a Baby"

Acting upon a recently revised statute, the American Society for Maternal Welfare, stopped up until now in its efforts to secure a censorship license for exhibition in New York of the clinical film "The Birth of a Baby," served a writ of certiorari in Albany on the State Department of Education, through its counsel, Dr. Ernest E. Cole, early this week.

The fight over the picture, highlighted last winter by much publicity and pressure of groups on the Board of Regents, now moves to a special term of Supreme Court in Albany County.

PARAMOUNT ENTERS TELEVISION; WOULD UTILIZE MOTION PICTURES

Balaban Cites Arrangement Made to Buy Interest in DuMont Laboratories Making Cathode Ray Tubes

Paramount this week became the first non-radio affiliate to enter the field of television. The move was disclosed when Barney Balaban, president, announced that an arrangement has been made under which Paramount will purchase an interest in and make advances of funds to the Allen B. DuMont Laboratories of Passaic, N. J., which manufactures cathode ray tubes. RKO is the only other film company with immediate television connections, through its relationship with RCA, which owns half of RKO.

Paramount's entrance into the television field is being made with a view to the use of motion picture film in television broadcasts, it was generally understood.

The DuMont organization, Mr. Balaban pointed out, has been engaged in and has been financially successful in the manufacture of scientific instruments and cathode ray tubes.

"These tubes," Mr. Balaban said, "are the most essential and unusual part of television transmitting and receiving, as the art is now developed in England, on the Continent, and in this country."

License Application Pending

The DuMont company now has an application pending before the Federal Communications Commission for an experimental license and Paramount engineers are cooperating in the setting up of the experimental transmitting station at Passaic.

Allen B. DuMont, president of the DuMont organization, said he believed the present arrangement with Paramount would make possible complete realization of the possibilities inherent in the patents and apparatus which his organization has developed.

The DuMont company has marketed television apparatus for general and experimental use. It has given several demonstrations of its receiving apparatus, the most recent of which was staged in Davega stores in New York last spring when American Television Corporation first placed its sets on the market.

American Television Corporation this week announced that its public demonstrations of television receiving sets proved that "the advent of nationwide television will provide a tremendous boon to radio dealers, department stores, and retail outlets for furniture, household accessories and electrical wares."

Despite the fact that there has been no television broadcasting in the New York metropolitan area since last spring, American Television officials said there had been no abatement of interest in their sets.

Sees Tripled Audience

S. M. Saltzman, president of the corporation, predicted that within a year the Greater New York television audience will be three times that of London where 9,000 video sets have been sold since 1936. His estimates, he added, does not include a large number of licensed amateur radio operators who probably will be the nucleus of America's television audience.

Mr. Saltzman also announced that Louis W. Parker, chief engineer for American Television Corporation, had developed a "kinet," a portable extension from the video console which shows the televised pictures at any distance, in the home, away from the set itself. He likened the "kinet" to the telephone extension and to the remote loud speaker of a radio.

The "kinet," Mr. Saltzman declared, is further evidence of the readiness of television "to meet the requirements of home audiences in the United States who are accustomed to scientific miracles and demand practicality."

In London, Robert Finnigan, president of the National Association of Theatrical and Kine Employees, predicted at the annual conference of the organization that hundreds of British film houses soon will be equipped with television apparatus.

Mr. Finnigan appealed to projectionists to be farsighted. Ultimately, he said, they will be the key men.

Opposing Viewpoints

In connection with the development of television in England, Americans returning from London voiced varying opinions as to the status of the new form of communication. Walter Reade, head of the Walter Reade circuit in New York and New Jersey, and R. A. McNeil, general manager of the Golden State circuit in Northern California, expressed opposite viewpoints when they arrived on the Conte di Savoia, after investigating the audio vision medium in London.

Mr. Reade reported:

"Joseph M. Schenck, with whom I went across, Mr. and Mrs. Darryl F. Zanuck and I attended a demonstration of television reception put on by Sir Albert Sterling, head of General Music Industries, which is marketing receiving sets.

"The reception was on a screen 24 by 24—inches not feet—and it was lousy. It was so bad Mrs. Zanuck wanted to throw a brick at it. I wouldn't give a nickel for television."

Mr. McNeil said:

"Television is everywhere around London and is an accepted development, although still in quite an experimental stage. They have television reception in the cafes and department stores and the Londoners seem to like it. The pictures are good.

"The telecasting range, however, is limited. As long as television remains confined to a limited area, it will not hurt the theatres much. But if they develop it to a point where television will become available everywhere, I am fearful of what will happen to the exhibitors' business."

Eddie Cantor, actor, after a recent visit to England, declared in Chicago that he plans to raise $10,000,000 to finance a national television network in the United States. What he saw in England, Mr. Cantor said, proved to him that television would be the newest entertainment industry. England, he said, is five years ahead of this country in the development of the medium.

Mr. Cantor said he would bring Marcel Hellman, British television expert, to the United States this fall to work out plans for the proposed network.

Sheila Barrett, actress, also recently returned from England where she was featured in British Broadcasting Company's television programs.

"Acting before the television camera is so vastly different from emoting before the film camera and microphone that it is simply frightening to think what will happen to some of the big stars when television really arrives," Miss Barrett said.

"Television is, of course, the ultimate thing in entertainment. Acting talent in England is beginning to realize the transformation it will cause, and it is positively frightening to think what changes it will bring about here among people now in radio, on the stage or in films."

J. M. Brown and D. C. Dobie, sales managers in the United Kingdom for Warner Brothers and First National, respectively, arrived in New York on the Queen Mary this week and both expressed the opinion that interest in television was waning in England. They also said that they believed there was little likelihood within the next few years of television being developed to the extent that it would be practical enough to enter the entertainment field.

PROFESSOR FORECASTS X-RAY TELEVISION

X-ray motion pictures transmitted by wire for quick consultation by distant diagnosticians were forecast by Dr. Leo G. Rigler, professor of radiology at the University of Minnesota, when he spoke recently in Seattle.

Dr. Rigler said that when X-ray motion pictures become a reality a specialist a thousand miles away could sit in his office and watch a patient's heart beat.

RMA Television Unit Confers on Standards

The television committee of the Radio Manufacturers' Association met at the Hotel New Yorker, New York City, recently to revise transmission standards for eventual submission to the Federal Communications Commission.

FCC Grants Zenith Application to Build

The Federal Communications Commission has granted the application of Zenith Radio Corporation, Chicago, for authority to construct a television broadcast station to operate in the 42,000-56,000 and 60,000-80,000 kilocycle channels with 1,000 watts.

In its opinion, the commission held that the company had shown that it had a definite program of research and experimentation from which substantial contribution may be made to the development of television, which involves studies of television transmitters and antennas, the frequencies assigned to television and television receivers and antennas.

Lee Marcus Signs New RKO Contract

Ending weeks of negotiations, RKO this week announced the signing of Lee Marcus, head of low budget pictures production for the last year and a half, to a new contract calling for three straight years in his present position. Previous to his appointment to guide the production of a large share of the RKO product, Mr. Marcus was short subject producer on the RKO lot.

RKO also renewed the contract held by Robert Sisk, producer.

J. J. Milstein, formerly Republic vice-president in charge of sales, is negotiating a deal to take over a small circuit in Los Angeles. After leaving Republic he organized Warwick Pictures, which produced "The Fight for Peace."

TELEPHONE COMPANY TO PUT SOUND PICTURES ON "BARGAIN COUNTER"

ERPI Returning to Motion Picture Equipment Selling, with New 16 mm. Recorder to Be Made by Western Electric

The American Telephone and Telegraph Company announced this week that it will place talking motion pictures in 16 millimeter width, within reach of the "bargain counter."

A professional 16mm sound film recorder has been developed to bring that "dream close to practical realization," the Telephone system says. The new device will be manufactured by Western Electric Company and merchandised by Western's wholly-owned subsidiary, Electrical Research Products, Inc.

Thus ERPI apparently is headed for a resumption of active motion picture machine selling, a field from which it bowed out a few months ago when it sold licenses to International (Simplex) Projector Corporation and Motiograph, permitting both to manufacture ERPI sound heads in conjunction with and incorporated in the 35mm. projectors of each. Since then ERPI has confined itself virtually to the recording field and as a licensor in reproducing.

The Telephone System for years has believed that in the 16mm field lies an important part of the future of the motion picture, referring principally to the school films field, for which it once spent some $2,000,000 in making educational films, a project lost somewhere in the depression of the early 1930.'s.

A New Recorder

"Thousands of subjects produced expressly for non-theatrical distribution, or product easily modified for such use, have been available on 35mm. film for a number of years but high costs of 35mm. projection have seriously limited their exploitation," Western Electric explained, adding: "Inexpensive and practical 16mm. sound projectors, also, have been on the market for some time but no completely satisfactory method of reducing 35mm. sound tracks to the smaller size has been available. Sporadic attempts to produce 16mm. sound tracks have been made by various methods, including optical reduction printing, but unfortunately, when these prints were played the upper and lower registers, in a large majority of cases, appeared to be seriously unbalanced and the results left much to be desired.

"ERPI'S new recorder was designed to meet the demand for a machine that would enable sound technicians to record 16mm. negatives with the same facility and quality as though they were working with 35mm. stock. It has two immediate applications. Direct recordings may be made independently, and by electrically interlocking the machine with a 35mm. recorder both sizes of negative may be made simultaneously," according to Western.

"It can also be used to re-record from existing 35mm. product, thus permitting the introduction of such changes in frequency characteristics as experience has shown to be desirable for reproduction on current 16mm. projector mechanisms. The re-recording can be made directly from a positive print or from a negative by use of the recently developed negative playback. This latter apparatus permits the immediate reproduction of negative variable density sound tracks and offers all of the oral advantages that would be given by a device capable of permitting one to view a photographic negative as a finished positive print if such a device were available.

Says Flutter Is Negligible

"Flutter, the variation in recorded sound quality resulting from irregular film velocity, is reduced to a negligible value in product made on the new machine. Mechanical stabilization is accomplished by locking the film-driven scanning drum to a special oil-damped flywheel through one common shaft. The flywheel assembly, which operates on the Rowland principle, consists of a light, oil filled, driven cylinder enclosing a heavy, free floating, inner wheel. Acceleration between these two close-fitting members is suppressed by the viscous action of the oil.

"The motor, which may be of either the interlock type for simultaneous use with a camera or re-recorder—or of the synchronous type for independent drive—operates at a tail shaft speed of 1,200 rpm. Special rubber mountings minimize the transmission of motor vibration and permit the motor to be flexibly coupled with the main worm shaft without tortional play. Both the sound and the holdback sprockets are driven from this latter shaft through worm gears. Positive take-up magazine action is assured by a silent chain drive."

"As viewed in front the film compartment is situated on the left side of the machine," says the company. "It contains the drive and holdback sprockets which are hardened and ground to close mechanical limits, the film scanning drug described above, and the necessary pressure and guide rollers.

Modulator Unit

"A 'variable intensity, variable density' modulator unit, which functions to transform the fluctuating sound currents into proportional variations of light properly focused to expose the moving film, occupies a compartment immediately to the right of the film propulsion mechanism. This new development eliminates a form of sound distortion known as the film velocity or 'walking' effect which is inherent in ordinary modulators," the statement continues.

"Because 16mm. film travels at approximately one-third the speed of professional film, the new recorder utilizes an image height of only .0004 inches, hence the modulator is capable of recording sound frequencies of 7,000 cycles per second. Equal performance in 35mm. machines would necessitate extending their present upper range to 17,500 cycles.

"Direct headset or loudspeaker monitoring is accomplished by means of a photocell monitoring amplifier contained in a compartment directly back of the modulator. This amplifier is ingeniously mounted so it may be easily removed from the machine without disturbing any wiring, by simply removing the rear cover plate and unfastening two thumb screws.

"Numerous original sound films and recordings recently produced on the new recorder show that 16mm. is now an entirely practical medium not only for non-theatrical subjects but for entertainment pictures as well. The recorded quality approaches that of commercial 35mm. film so closely that only a trained listener can differentiate between them," concluded Western Electric.

AUTO THEATRE OPENS ON L. I. HIGHWAY

The Sunrise Drive-In Theatre, on Long Island's Sunrise Highway, 200 yards east of the Rosedale station, opened Wednesday night. The screen, according to the theatre organization, is 48 feet high and 65 feet wide, with the bottom line 30 feet above ground level. For the upward angle of projection 700 pound pedestals were used. The "throw" is about 250 feet, with images twice the size of those on indoor screens.

Max Rothstein, sponsoring the theatre, said a large number of the "auto theatre" patronage consists of cripples and aged folk.

The theatre was designed by Irwin S. Chanin.

Two Outings Held, Four Others Planned

Two summer outings of motion picture groups were held this week while plans were being drafted for four other outings.

More than 200 employes of International Projector Corporation attended the company's annual outing at the Narragansett Inn, Lindenhurst, L. I. Several officers of the corporation, including Earle G. Hines, president, spoke. F. H. Richardson of Motion Picture Herald also was a speaker.

A picnic and outing sponsored by the Salt Lake Film exchanges was held at the Lagoon resort August 10th.

The fourth annual golf tournament of the Cincinnati Variety Club will be held August 28th at Summit Hill Country Club with swimming, softball, baseball, horse shoe pitching, ping-pong and cards as added attractions.

The Rocky Mountain Screen Club of Denver will hold its annual "motion picture industry round-up" at Eddie Ott's Club House, Evergreen Lake, 30 miles out of Denver, next Thursday.

The annual film district outing of New Haven will be held August 25th, at Ye Castle Inn, Saybrook, with a full program of activities from noon until early morning.

An exchange and theatre field day will be held by Greater Boston film men at Fieldson Park, Marshfield, next Tuesday.

John Peere Miles Heads Goldwyn Publicity

John Peere Miles has been named publicity director of Samuel Goldwyn, succeeding Al Vaughan, who had held the post since elevation of Jock Lawrence to production assistant. Gregg Toland, cameraman, also has been given a new contract.

Mr. Goldwyn over the weekend introduced a system of contacting department executives by having them as his guests at dinner and the Rosenbloom-Pastor prizefight.

THE HOLLYWOOD SCENE

Melodrama Leads

Production machinery hummed merrily during the first week of August. Fourteen pictures were started. Eleven were completed. A glance at the new titles indicates the general trend is towards melodrama. Outdoor adventure films were well represented. There are one musical and one straight romance. Comedies, as such, alone are not represented in the new work. The melodramatic swing continues in the list of completed pictures, which also includes a spectacular musical biography, a musical comedy romance, a comedy, a comedy romance and a pair of romantic melodramas. Production moved so speedily that in two instances pictures went into work without even working titles.

Paramount has three of the new pictures, and a third is set to start, "St. Louis Blues," was postponed due to Dorothy Lamour's illness and operation. However, work began on "Thanks for the Memory," which will star Bob Hope and Shirley Ross, feature Charles Butterworth, Otto Kruger and Hedda Hopper, and include Roscoe Karns, Elizabeth Patterson, Laura Hope Crews and Patricia Wilder in the supporting cast. The second film, "Illegal Traffic," will present J. Carrol Naish, Mary Carlisle, Robert Preston, Judith Barrett and Joseph Crehan in the leading roles. Lloyd Nolan, Robert Cummings, Philip Ahn and Anthony Quinn will be seen in "King of Chinatown."

Several Start Two Films

Monogram busied itself with two new productions. Jack Randall, Eleanor Stewart and Wesley Barry are the principals in "Mexicali Kid." "Wanted by the Police" will feature Frankie Darro and Matty Fain.

Two films went before the cameras at Columbia. Charles Starrett, Iris Meredith, Bob Nolan, Hank Bell, Hal Taliaferro and Eddie Cobb are the principals in "West of Sante Fe." "Homicide Bureau" will have Bruce Cabot, Jacqueline Wells, Robert Paige, Marc Lawrence and Richard Fiske.

Both Republic starters are outdoor adventure stories. Roy Rogers, Smiley Burnette, Lynn Roberts, Morgan Wallace, Fred Kohler, Sr. and Betty Rodman will be seen in "Billy the Kid Returns." "The Overland Stage Express," a "Three Mesquiteer" number, will feature John Wayne, Ray Corrigan, Max Terhune and Louise Brooks.

George Houston, Beth Marion, Al St. John, Alden Chase, Walter Byron, Kit Guard, Jack Ingram and Frank LaRue began work in an untitled Fine Arts feature. Universal started an untitled production which will offer Bob Baker, Marjorie Reynolds, Forest Taylor, Glenn Strange and Jack Rockwell in outdoor action romance.

The newly organized Road Show Productions began work on a musical western, "Songs and Saddles." Gene Austin, Lynn Berkeley, Joan Brooks, Walter Wells and Henry Rocquemore are the name players.

MGM started its newly acquired story property, "Vacation from Love," with Dennis O'Keefe and Florence Rice as the leads.

With George Hirliman, Sam Coslow, Arthur Sheekman and Eugen Frenke backing the production financially, Sally Rand began work in "Murder on Sunset Boulevard," which will present Dennie Moore, Reed Hadley, Vince Barnett, Jean Carmen, Esther Muir and Katherine Kane.

Warners Complete Three

Warner Bros. accounted for three of the eleven completed production. Two of the three are important pictures and the third is practically so. "Angels with Dirty Faces" will feature James Cagney and Pat O'Brien for the second time since Cagney's return to the studio, in company with the "Dead End" and "Crime School" juveniles (Huntz Hall, Gabriel Dell, Bernard Punsley, Billy Halop, Bobby Jordan, Leo Gorcey), Ann Sheridan, George Bancroft, Vera Lewis and Eddie Syracuse. Bette Davis, Erroll Flynn, Anita Louise, Beulah Bondi, Henry Travers, Alan Hale, Dick Foran, Ian Hunter, Harry Davenport, Donald Crisp, Janet Shaw, Lee Patrick and Ruth Garland comprise the cast of "The Sisters." In "Devil's Island" will be seen Boris Karloff, Nedda Harrigan, Leonard Mudie, Pedro de Cordoba, James Stevenson, Frank Reicher, Stuart Holmes and Gino Corado.

Two of the completed pictures belong to Paramount. "Sons of the Legion" will feature Donald O'Connor, Billy Lee, Billy Cook, Evelyn Keyes, Elizabeth Patterson, Tim Holt, Lynne Overman, William Frawley and Richard Tucker. Bing Crosby, Franciska Gaal, Akim Tamiroff, Ben Blue, Edward E. Horton, Shirley Ross, Georges Rigaud, Rafaela Ottiano and Keith Kenneth are the principals in "Paris Honeymoon."

Hal Roach finished his first picture for United Artists distribution, "There Goes My Heart." The cast includes Fredric March, Virginia Bruce, Patsy Kelly, Alan Mowbray, Nancy Carroll, Eugene Pallette.

Monogram finished "Starlight over Texas." It will feature Tex Ritter, Carmen LaRoux, Salvatore Damino, Rosa Turich, Kark Hackett and Charles King.

"Shadows over Chinatown" wound up at Grand National. James Dunn, Linda Gray, Ralph Morgan, Robert Barrat and Paul Sutton are the principals.

"The Great Waltz" Completed

MGM finished the elaborately staged and expensively produced "The Great Waltz." Name values are Fernand Gravet, Louise Rainer, Miliza Korjus, Bert Roach, Greta Meyer, Henry Hull, Sig Rumann, Hugh Herbert, Minna Gombell, George Houston.

At 20th Century-Fox "While New York Sleeps" departed from the stages to cutting room. It will present Michael Whelan, Chick Chandler, Jean Rogers, Joan Woodbury, June Gale, Marc Lawrence, William Demarest, Edward Gargan, Minor Watson.

RKO-Radio's "Mr. Doodle Kicks Off" stars Joe Penner, with June Travis, Richard Lane, Billy Gilbert, Ben Alexander.

ASKS STAMP ISSUE OF FILM STARS

If a suggestion made last week by Director John M. Stahl to postmaster-general James A. Farley is adopted, we may expect to hear something like this in every home:

"Johnnie, run down to the post office and get half a dozen Charlie McCarthys, six Shirley Temples, five Deanna Durbins, a few Gary Coopers, Sonja Henies, Robert Taylors and a couple of Mae Wests."

For in a letter written August 2, and which went forth bearing the postage of the moment, Mr. Stahl suggested to the postmaster-general the issuance of a stamp series bearing the likenesses of Hollywood personalities. Mr. Stahl believes not only that such a series would honor the film industry, but would greatly increase postal revenues.

Pointing out that, in a sense, motion pictures and their personages are ambassadors of good-will to all the world, the business possibilities of the plan would be rivaled only by the artistic, the director said. Mr. Farley's diligent search for new issues would be facilitated were stamps to appear bearing the miniatures of such notables as those mentioned, and, say, Norman Shearer, Irene Dunne, Charlie Chaplin and even Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs.

Rand and Hovick

Sally Rand, whose fan or balloon screened oscillations have been witnessed by countless millions of eyes, will follow the book written by Louise Hovick (onetime strip teaser as Gypsy Rose Lee) when she embarks upon her reentry into affairs of the screen via "Murder on Sunset Boulevard."

She will play a straight role in the romantic melodrama, "Murder on Sunset Boulevard," from a Liberty Magazine story. She will appear as the daughter of a murdered policeman.

Sally's glamour will not be completely denied the film. She will have one dance, a "Peacock" number in which she will gyrate to the rhythms of Henry King's orchestra. But she will be fully, if exotically, clothed.

9,367,500 HOURS TO SEE CURRENT FILMS, SAYS ALMANAC, JUST OUT

Dollar Volume of the Advertising Picture Medium Nine to Ten Millions, Statistical and Biographical Annual Shows

Were the motion picture theatre managers of America required to preview all currently available product it would take them, collectively, 1,069 years, 4 months, 7 days and 12 hours, without stopping for coffee or sleep. Personally viewing all the 509 features, exclusive of revivals, which were available at mid-summer, would consume 9,367,500 man hours, or 1,170,737 eight-hour days, for the 15,000 theatres showing motion pictures regularly.

Terry Ramsaye, writing "Of Time and the Picture," in the 1938-39 INTERNATIONAL MOTION PICTURE ALMANAC, out this week, says that these figures "make obvious why reviews and reports to showmen supplied by QUIGLEY PUBLICATIONS are of vital importance." Approximately one thousand persons in the United States, including the reviewers of the public press, "make their living looking," and "all of the thirteen thousand exhibitors and their eighty-odd million customers have to take some part of the word of that thousand when they buy."

$23,200 a Minute

The most expensive motion picture of the 1937-38 season cost $23,200, per minute of screen time, whereas in radio entertainment, "flung to the winds like rain," at the top of the list was "Good News of 1938" of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, advertising General Foods and "costing F. O. B. the microphone in Hollywood," each minute of listeners' time, $416 (production only, not including time or wire cost).

A factor in the marked contrast between motion picture and radio time is the participation of many unpaid performers in broadcasts. But that a large part is played by motion picture players and other personalities in the entertainment offerings of the radio is shown in the ALMANAC in a listing of film individuals and their air programs.

New Players

In a year in which the international scene has been changing with bewildering rapidity, the motion picture business has experienced its concomitant shiftings. The biographical section of the ALMANAC, with its recordings of personal data concerning more than twelve thousand individuals active in the industry, evinces the change in the large number of recruits, particularly in the field of player talent.

On the wider horizon of statistics, incidentally—taxes paid the Federal government were estimated at one hundred million dollars—the year brought a reiteration of the axiom that in a period of general business recession the motion picture industry is one of the last to show a descending line on the chart. The ALMANAC estimate of weekly attendance for the motion picture year remained within the range of 83 to 88 millions of the previous year with a gross paralleling that of 1937-38, in line with scattered indications of improvement until the end of the year. In this connection, George J. Schaefer, distribution executive of United Artists and chairman of the committee of the industrywide campaign now in preparation with the slogan "Movies Are Your Best Entertainment," last week quoted an estimate of $800,000,000 as the total box office receipts of the past year.

A detailed study of the field of the socalled advertising picture is a feature of the new ALMANAC. While the advertising film is as old as the hand-lettered slides of the nickelodeon days—the first actually was made in 1896—the medium has come into real prominence in only the last few years. The dollar volume of the medium in the calendar year 1937 reached a peak of between nine and ten millions. The volume covers the total spent on production and distribution to theatres of "minute movies," usually 60 to 90 feet long, the production and distribution both theatrically and non-theatrically of single reel or longer films which in their most

Time and Motion Pictures In Minute and Dollar Costs

What is the average running time of motion pictures? What were the ten longest pictures of all American features available at mid-July, 1938? How do the costs of screen and radio time compare? These and many kindred questions are answered in the article, "Of Time and The Picture", in the 1938-39 International Motion Picture Almanac. Excerpts follow:

The average time per picture in minutes	73.62
The 448 American pictures average	71.90
The 61 foreign productions	85.82

Averages in minutes of productions by companies:

Columbia	66.25	Paramount	76.42
First National-Warner Brothers	75.00	Republic	63.10
Gaumont British	79.42	RKO Radio	74.10
Grand National	63.55	Twentieth Century-Fox	75.28
Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer	87.87	United Artists	87.58
Monogram	59.96	Universal	66.46
	Miscellaneous 60.00

The ten longest pictures in the market of the period under discussion:

Lost Horizon	118	Rosalie	122
The Life of Emile Zola	116	Test Pilot	119
The Firefly	131	The Buccaneer	126
Conquest	112	Dance Program (foreign)	120
Girl of the Golden West	121	The Dybbuk (foreign)	120

The most expensive picture of the '37-'38 season cost, per minute of screen time $23,200

It is estimated, on current returns, that this production will take in slightly less in its world gross than its negative cost; so the loss, after distribution costs are added, will be in terms of minutes of negative time, about $3,400

At the top of the radio list is "Good News of 1938", the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer show, advertising General Foods and costing F.O.B. the microphone in Hollywood, each minute of listeners' time (for production only, not including time or wire cost) $416 expensive development could be classed as documentary or educational pictures, and the production and private exhibition of pictures intended primarily for inter-organizational use, such as sales training and dealer films.

Approximately 7,500 theatres regularly show "minute movies" and another thousand show them intermittently or only on certain days of the week. An additional group, in some cases including the more important first-run theatres, on occasion add sponsored films to their programs.

Theatres showing the "minute movies" received approximately $1,500,000 as their share of the distribution charges in 1937. The sponsored films usually are shown without payment to the theatre and are distributed free of cost, the producer and distributor relying upon their amusement content to attract exhibitors.

Production Costs

At a production cost of $135,000,000 for the 1937-38 season, companies in the United States made 40 per cent of the world's product in volume, but in value the American output was three-fourths of the world total, says the ALMANAC. Hollywood's own payroll was $86,000,000 for the year. While 15,936 individuals were employed by the Central Casting Corporation in Hollywood and their earnings totaled $2,986,372.89, the average number of days of work for each individual was only a bit more than two weeks (18.4 days) and the average annual earnings per individual were $187.

The Production Code Administration approved 663 features, 55 of them reissues. Domestic studios accounted for 567 of the new features given the Code Administration's seal, foreign subjects totaled 41. In addition, 791 short subjects were given approval.

Besides listing of personnel of companies in the distribution as well as production fields, the exchanges, managers and bookers, the ALMANAC records changes in the statistical picture of selling the picture in the past year. With an average weekly field distribution payroll of $530,000 and 12,500 persons employed in the 431 exchanges, average individual weekly salaries in exchanges were $42.50.

The number of advertisements placed daily averages 15,000, the world advertising expenditure approximately $100,000,000, that in the United States $70,000,000, with $58,000,000 of the total going into newspapers and magazines, $7,000,000 to billboards and $5,000,000 to accessories.

There was a decline of foreign features imported into the United States, in part a reflection of American public reaction to political developments overseas. There were 216 features imported in 1937 (of the 1,809 produced abroad), contrasted with 235 the preceding year.

At the same time, American product experienced an increasingly stormy passage overseas because of quota and contingent laws, and measures restricting money shipments. The following motion picture markets had quota regulations:

Australia, Austria, Barbados, Brazil, Czechoslovakia, England (United Kingdom), Estonia, France, Germany, Greece, Hungary, Italy, Japan, Korea, Lithuania, New Zealand, Poland, Portugal, Russia, Spain (Franco territory), Trinidad, Union of South Africa (Southern Rhodesia) and Yugoslavia.

A complete picture of the foreign market is presented in the ALMANAC, from special correspondents of Quigley Publications and from reports of attaches of the Department of Foreign and Domestic Commerce to the Motion Picture Division at Washington.

In the British section of the ALMANAC is published the complete text of the new Films Act with its quota regulations.

Theatres and Towns

The number of towns in the United States having motion picture theatres equipped for operation is 9,187, says the ALMANAC. The number of theatres showing first-run product in 95 cities of more than 100,000 population is 450.

The average theatre retains 65 per cent of the gross box office dollar for local expenses, one-fourth of that going to payroll, staff and management. Of the average 35 per cent paid out for film rental by the theatre, 25% goes to the studios and production, 10% to the distributor for prints, advertising, sales and service costs, and so on.

Of the 282,000 employed in the industry the far largest number were in theatre service, 241,000. In production were 28,500, in distribution 12,500.

There were 16,251 theatres of all classifications operating, and in the year ended in June 440 new theatres were constructed, says the ALMANAC.

POLISH PRESS DENIES NAZIS' HAND ON FILMS

Quotes Government Organization as Refuting Report, Then Ask If 'Herald' Article Is True

A writer in a current issue of Nowa Rzeczpospolita, "opposition" publication in Warsaw, Poland, takes exception to the article by a special correspondent which appeared in MOTION PICTURE HERALD July 2nd.

That article said:

"Poland is the latest of the central European countries within Nazi influence to feel the hand of Hitlerism on its motion pictures. After Germany and Austria comes Poland, each to have its screen turned into a machine for purveying the political propaganda demanded by the Nazis.

"Already the Government organization in Poland, 'OZN,' (Oboz Zjebnocvenia Naradodeweja—'Camp of National Unity') has formed a special society for development of the 'Polish Film,' headed by Colonel Koc, the well-known politician. The results are seen as valueless vehicles of German propaganda.

"The state film bureaucracy is not working efficiently. Yet, the Polish film 'Duce,' Director Gantkowski, wishes further to introduce the Aryan paragraph into the Polish film business. Gantkowski seeks financial support of his film propaganda producing activities from monies to be obtained through the socalled 'Film-Fund,' original source of which would be additional taxes on all foreign films, especially American."

Calls Article "Insult"

On this the writer in Nowa Rzeczpospolita, in reprinting the HERALD article, comments:

"The foreign motion picture press writes very rarely of the Polish film industry. The Polish film is 'tabu' for the foreign journalist who is not interested in our problems. Therefore we have read with wonder and even alarm in the MOTION PICTURE HERALD of July 2nd a little article from the 'special correspondent' of this paper from Warsaw.

"We must call this article an invasion of our production and an insult to the good fame of the Polish industry.

"Before reproducing the exact text of this dispatch we must say some words regarding the HERALD. MOTION PICTURE HERALD is a weekly paper serving the interests of American producers and defending their business. It is edited in a very attractive manner and, thanks to the beautiful pictures and accurate technical data, the HERALD is the only paper (besides 'Variety') read by the Polish film world.

"Lastly, the HERALD is prohibited in Germany because of its inimical attitude toward the German industry."

"Questions Met by Silence"

Follows a translation of the HERALD article and then this:

"We open wide our eyes. We feel insulted and angry. What says the Government? What echo is heard from the Polish film concerns? None at all.

"It is possible to understand this article in two ways. It is either a device to ascertain the reaction of American importers or a clever trap to provoke a Polish official.

"We asked O.Z.N. about this. But O.Z.N. answered that all these plans will not be realized in the near future. No changes are foreseen, and, what is most serious, the Section of Press and Propaganda does not know of it.

"We must categorically blame the false informer of the HERALD, and this unheard, in the film press, attack upon the Polish industry.

"We conclude. The Polish Government must contend with publication in the international press of rumors discrediting Poland.

"We are alarmed at the silence that met our questions. We open wide our eyes. Are the revelations of the HERALD true?"

Giegerich Heads Publicity Department for Otterson

Carroll S. Trowbridge, in charge of distribution for Inter-Allied Films, on Wednesday announced the appointment of Charles J. Giegerich, formerly director of advertising and publicity for Pathe, to serve as publicity director for Inter-Allied at its headquarters in the Fisk Building in New York City.

Inter-Allied, recently organized by John E. Otterson, is now arranging its initial program of foreign pictures.

Inter-Allied also announced that Harry Lachman, director, who arrived this week from Europe, had been appointed to produce and direct the first all-color French feature, to start in France in November. Mr. Lachman will direct two other French features, in association with Andre Davan, French producer. Charles Boyer, Jean Gaban and M. Raimu will be starred.

"Gone with Wind" Will Not Be Sold, Says Selznick

When "Gone with the Wind" starts production, David O. Selznick alone will personally make the picture in his own studio, says Selznick International, and his only arrangement with any other company will be for release. The studio said $1,000,000 for the rights had been turned down. The statement followed reports in Hollywood that Warner Bros. had made overtures for the story for Errol Flynn and Bette Davis.

A deal for distribution by MGM was reported to be under discussion in New York concurrently with the company's negotiations for a renewal of the Selznick International distribution contract.

Roach Suspends Laurel

The first Laurel and Hardy picture for United Artists release, scheduled to start last week, has been postponed due to Hal Roach suspending Stan Laurel without salary for four weeks. The reason given for the move was Mr. Laurel's refusal to return to the studio for retakes on "Blockheads," the last feature length Laurel and Hardy for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer release.

FOREIGN COMPANIES IN CHINA GAIN WHILE NATIVE EXHIBITORS SUFFER

But Different Story Is Expected When Japanese Complete Confiscation of Theatres and Then Apply Rigid Controls

by SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT in Shanghai

That Japanese interests are bent on taking over motion picture exhibition in all occupied territory in China is indicated by developments in Tientsin and Peiping in assuming control of several former Chinese owned cinemas in those cities. As far as can be learned, all existing film supply contracts with foreign distributors are being carried out, but no one is willing to say what will be the next move of the Japanese owners of these transferred theatres when the contracts expire. From previous experience in Manchukuo, it is presumed that film supply will come from Japan or through the Manchukuo Government Monopoly of film distribution. American distributors have withdrawn from Manchukuo in protest against the action of the Japanese-controlled Manchukuo Government.

In Nanking, it is learned certain cinemas have been "taken over" by Japanese. It is asserted that in the case of cinemas privately owned by Chinese not connected with the Chinese Government in Nanking (now Hankow), compensation was offered for the seizure. However, it is also reported that cinemas owned in part by Chinese Government officials were confiscated without compensation as spoils of war. Certain it is that equipment taken from inland cinemas, including modern sound equipment and projectors, has been removed to Shanghai and elsewhere under Japanese control and is or has been placed in Japanese cinemas.

Under such conditions the Chinese exhibitor is the loser no matter how it goes. In fact, so far as the film business goes in China today, it is the Chinese exhibitor who is doing all the suffering and carrying the losses. The American and other foreign distributors are enjoying a period of prosperity all out of proportion with the state of affairs generally met with in China.

Studios Out of Market

For instance, the comparatively new State theatre in Nanking, considered China's finest example of modern cinema construction, has been so damaged by fire and bombing that repair will be a costly business if at all advisable, even under Japanese control. Other theatre properties elsewhere have suffered accordingly. Chinese producing studios and the great Central Government Studio in Nanking (now a thing of the past) are practically out of the market here in the Shanghai and North China areas. One Chinese producer, Sin Hwa Motion Picture Company, has started a heavy publicity campaign for a new film, the first Chinese production to have English subtitles.

As for foreign distributors, while receipts in some cases are below last year for the same period—January-March—others are having a very profitable season. Taking the three cities of Hongkong, Shanghai and Tientsin, the two foreign concessions only in Tientsin, receipts for these three cities are about normal when taken together.

Shanghai Receipts

Shanghai first-run exhibitors claim that receipts at the box office are about 75 per cent of normal for outstanding films and about 40 per cent for average films, and some of the subsequent-run houses are doing well in the southern section of the International Settlement and the French Concession. Over in the Hongkew and northern and eastern districts of Shanghai, several cinemas, all subsequent-runs, have reopened. One Chinese house has been taken over by Japanese, and two foreign owned cinemas are now open, with a third well along in rebuilding.

However, with the exception of the Japanese cinemas over on that side, receipts have fallen off enormously in the past months due to the removal of large numbers of Japanese troops formerly stationed in that area, and it is believed that not one of the foreign-owned theatres is now even approaching in receipts its outlay for expenses. Practically all subsequent-run cinemas have made drastic cuts in the already low admission prices. Ten cents Chinese (about 3 cents U. S. A.) is now common in Shanghai lower class cinemas.

Censor Fees Reduced

Distributors have profited by the great cut in Chinese Government censor fees, which now are set at C$5.00 per 500 meters instead of the C$20.00 per unit of 500 meters. Though distribution in Chinese-controlled areas is now practically confined to Hankow, Changsha, Chungking Chengtu and Yunnan, and a small effort in Canton despite frequent bombings, this distribution, together with that in Shanghai, Hongkong and Tientsin, has brought in comparatively handsome returns. Films are sent by plane from Hongkong to the Hankow and Upper Yangste River cities at a cost of C$60.00 a program, and the exhibitors up there have found it profitable to pay this charge and keep a constant supply coming.

There is a possibility of a reduction of customs duties in the areas now under Japanese control, but this is subject to much discussion among the foreign powers interested in the Chinese Maritime Customs and its relation to foreign loans.

That American distributors either have little faith in the return to power of the Chinese Government now installed in Hankow, which when in Nanking had banned several films and exacted penalties for their exhibition even in the foreign concessions, or else have arranged with the Chinese Government censors in Shanghai to allow the exhibition of these films, is seen in the recent release in Shanghai of "Green Pastures," "Topper," 'She" and "Dracula," all of which had been banned by Nanking. So far, Japanese censors in Shanghai have taken no action to disturb the usual Shanghai Municipal Police censorship, though the Japanese have set up an office for censorship purposes in the International Settlement. In the French Concession of Shanghai, the French Government consistently has refused to allow the Japanese to interfere with local cinema interests located therein, maintaining the same stand that the Concession had held towards the Chinese Government censors.

"One-Way Exit"

The other side of the story is the specter of complete control of distribution and a rigid supervision if not absolute control of exhibition and producton in occupied areas by the Japanese or such government of Chinese as set up and supervised by Japanese monitors. It has an excellent precedent in the Manchukuo edicts of control.

Many business men here now feel that the "open door" policy is now merely a "one-way exit" and that exit only large enough to permit the individual to remove himself and leave his properties behind. Shanghai, with its great port facilities, and its enormous hinterland for production and consumption, never can pass out of the picture as a great port city. But with the advent of certain military victories, with the constant pressure being brought to bear on non-Japanese interests, it is merely a question of time until such business as Shanghai has been accustomed to doing will fall into Japanese hands or Chinese hands under Japanese advisors, unless the war should result eventually in a substantial victory for the Central Chinese Government.

Certain it is also that even if the Japanese do obtain control of the cinemas in occupied areas, it will be difficult to cram Japanese cultural films down the throats—or rather the eyes—of Chinese people who so far, even in days of peace, have refused to attend a cinema showing Japanese films of any kind. Japanese population in China has not yet reached the proportions of support of much cinema business, and if a distribution monopoly is established it will have but one result, withdrawal of all American films from monopolized distribution areas.

Since there is little likelihood that the foreign settlements or Hongkong will fall into Japanese control, film business will continue in such districts regardless of what action is taken elsewhere, while Chinese exhibitors may continue to view their cinema falling to ruins or being run under alien hands without compensation or profit to the Chinese investors who in so many cases put their all into cinema construction.

LOHR DEFENDS RADIO SYSTEM

Declaring that American broadcasters have been "conscious for many years of their obligations for public service," Lenox R. Lohr, president of the National Broadcasting Company, defended the present system of broadcasting Tuesday night when he spoke over the NBC network in connection with the inauguration of KVOO, Tulsa, Okla., as a full-time NBC station.

The address caused surprise in radio circles because speeches of welcome to radio stations are usually confined to salutations.

Mr. Lohr said that any infringement upon the air would be as serious as an infringement of speech and press to the political philosophy upon which this country was founded.

"Our form of government demands freedom of expression for survival," Mr. Lohr said.

HEAVIER COMPETITION FOR EXHIBITOR FROM RADIO SHOWS IN THE FALL

NBC Has 27 Commercial Programs Signed, CBS 24, with Many Film Names Announced for Air Appearances

Fifty-one new national commercial radio programs—a subject of interest to motion picture theatre owners in their competitive operations—have already been lined up by the two national networks for the show season which starts early in the fall.

National Broadcasting Company has 27 commercial shows signed for fall commencement, and Columbia Broadcasting System has 24, indicating that both systems are headed for an unusually heavy season.

Many of the well known national programs are due to return, after summer recess, among them the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer-Maxwell House Coffee "Good News of 1938"; the Tom Mix program, with Mix due to return to films this year, after a five years' absence; Jack Benny, again sponsored by Jello; Fred Allen; the Lucky Strike "Hit Parade"; "Hollywood Hotel"; Lux "Radio Theatre"; Al Jolson and Martha Raye; Edward G. Robinson's "Big Town"; "Camel Caravan"; Joe Penner; Burns and Allen; Kate Smith and Eddie Cantor, to mention but a few which highlight visiting film star "guest" appearances, and against which practice exhibitors have complained.

Following is a list of new and returning programs and their sponsors already signed for the NBC networks:

Aug. 22—Those Happy Gilmans. Red Network. Mondays through Fridays, 1:45 to 2:00 P.M., E.D.S.T. Sponsored by General Mills.

Four Daughters

(Warner Bros.)

Love Story

Basically, "Four Daughters" is a family story pointed to appeal to all over the teen age. Actually it is a homey, human story of happy, humdrum lives, temporarily upset. Based on Fannie Hurst's Cosmopolitan magazine story, "Sister Act," with screenplay by Julius J. Epstein and Lenore Coffee and directed by Michael Curtiz, it simply, yet powerfully, brings into intimate focus a panorama of natural but startling events—experiences that probably might be the lot of the average family.

Although, on occasions, the theme development strikes a note of pathetic tragedy, the complete purpose of the film is to lift up rather than depress. As a whimsical keynote is sounded, "Four Daughters" is made easy to look at, as good dialogue is combined with attention arresting incidents. Romance, melodrama. humor, pathos and tragedy, the sublime and ridiculous, all are expertly blended. It is made an unusual picture, exceptionally worthwhile entertainment for any kind of audience, sophisticates or just plain folk, by the quality of the acting. The Lane sisters, Claude Rains, May Robson, Frank McHugh, Dick Foran are all favorably known and they contribute performances equalling or topping previous appearances. The presence in the cast of John Garfield, who is sensational, Jeffrey Lynn and Gale Page gives the picture extraordinary commercial exploitation value.

In the small-town Lemp household, two sisters, "Ann" and "Emma," have shaped their future toward spinsterhood, "Kay" has visioned an artistic career, and "Thea," socially ambitious has accepted the proposal of "Ben Crowley." All is serene until jaunty, go-getting "Felix" appears. The hearts of the four maids go fluttering, and events beyond the imagination of "Father Adam" and "Aunt Etta" turn the household into turmoil. A note foreboding tragedy is sounded when cynical, ironic "Mickey Borden" enters to sweep "Ann" off her feet and elope with her while the minister is waiting to marry her to "Felix." Disrupting the family happiness, the situation entangles many. Enduring bravely a pathetic existence, "Ann" and "Mickey" return home for a Christmas party to discover "Emma" happy in a newly realized affection for bucolic but dependable "Ernest." "Mickey," appreciating his unfitness in the scheme of things, chooses sacrificial self-elimination as the only way to right the wrong to "Ann" and "Felix" for which he was responsible.

Time erasing-the bitter memories, the threads of romance knit together again for "Felix," "Ann" and her three sisters, and "Adam" and "Aunt Etta" vision a happier future.

For all its theme of seriousness, "Four Daughters" is not without laughter and many moments of exciting gayety. These qualities, together with the quaint character sketches and the appealing beauty of life in the country where all that happens is always good and nothing is bad, are integrally a part of the compelling plot of frustrated sweethearts wandering in search of peace and happiness.

Previewed at the Warner Theatre in Hollywood. The audience actually seemed to have come under the illusion it was participating in the events which befell the shadows on the screen. Enthusiastic for the whole show, the crowd reserved its special applause for Garfield. Reaction inside theatre and the sidewalk comment indicated "Four Daughters" should be a crowd pleaser any place and consequent good box office item.—Gus McCarthy.

Sing You Sinners

(Paramount)

Comedy-Melodrama

There have been lots of "families" on the screen. Presently there are the "Jones Family," and the "Judge Hardy" family. A while back there was that bizarre "family" in "Three Cornered Moon," before that the one in "The Royal Family of Broadway." "Sing You Sinners," that's the name the mother had for her brood, introduces the "Beebes," and they are a family which serves up entertainment that should delight any family as well as that vast family of exhibitors.

In this picture audiences will meet one of the strangest families one ever saw. They'll meet "Joe" (Bing Crosby, who sings, of course, but also gives a surprising demonstration as a dramatic actor), who'll swap anything he has for anything anyone else has, except a job. They'll meet brother "David" (Fred MacMurray), who concerns himself with how he can support two families as cheaply as one so he can get married. They'll come to know little brother "Mike" (Donald O'Connor), only a kid but what a kid, and a valuable new screen personality. And they'll meet "Mother Beebe" Elizabeth Patterson), who has no worries at all, except as to where the next meal is coming from. Along the line the folk will meet "David's" girl, Ellen Drew; John Gallaudet, William Haade, Paul White, Irving Bacon, Tom Dugan and Herbert Corthell, a supporting coterie which does much to give life and spirit to Claude Binyon's comedy melodrama. Wesley Ruggles, producer director, handled the work with skill and finish. The musical numbers, composed by Hoagy Carmichael and Frank Loesser and James V. Monaco and John Burke, add to production and entertainment values.

"Joe" after swapping himself out of a job and swapping himself into a good punch in the nose when he tries to swap "David" out of his girl friend "Martha," swaps himself out of a place at the family dinner table when he comes to realize what a false alarm he is. At a race track near Los Angeles he swaps a race track fan out of a sheaf of winning tickets, buys a swap shop which he swaps for a race horse ("Uncle Gus"), after he has wired "David" to get married and "Mother Beebe" and "Mike" to join him. They are not surprised when they discover that "Joe" has been up to his old tricks and the wolf is with them again, but "David" and "Martha" are when they arrive to get married.

"Mother Beebe," forcing the trio to resume their careers as entertainers, puts her foot down on "Joe's" swapping mania. Now the picture becomes a crackerjack race track melodrama, retaining its domestic comedy characteristics. There's a lot of music whereby the "Beebes" garner the wherewithal to enter "Uncle Gus" in a race, and a suggestion of melodrama when a couple of sharpers try to get little "Mike," now a jockey, to throw the race. But "Mike" and "Uncle Gus" win a hair-raising race, and in one of the wildest fistic melees the screen has ever seen, "Joe" and "David" wallop the daylights out of the pair who had beaten up "Mike."

With the money in the bank, "Mother Beebe" takes command, "David" and "Martha" can marry, and the trio go on to fame and fortune as entertainers.

Previewed under the stars at Del Mar Race Track before a trainload of Hollywood celebrities and correspondents. In the afternoon Bing Crosby's own horse, established as a favorite, came in last. The tragedy of this debacle did not, however, detract from the subsequent enjoyment of the film. In fact, opinion was that "Sing You Sinners" should prove a front runner in any competitive derby.—G. The Gladiator

(Columbia-
David L. Loew Production)

Comedy

The preview audience was in general agreement that "The Gladiator" is one of Joe E. Brown's most amusing pictures. It is scarcely necessary to say that he is the whole show, although Man Mountain Dean, Lucien Littlefield, June Travis, Dickie Moore, Robert Kent, Ethel Wales, Donald Douglas and Eddie Kane contribute much to the hilarity. Brown has his own way of putting over comedy, and while his box office value may have declined in some quarters in the last year or so, it seems that this film should go a long way in restoring his popularity.

Comedy, most of which is of the hokum variety, is the central ingredient. Additionally the story includes a little meaningful love interest as well as a vein of sympathy-stirring human interest. Brown is the principal figure in building up and welding all the elements, and he is the master of all situations at all times.

Winning a bank night prize, accidentally, "Hugo Kipp" returns to college and finds favor immediately with "Iris Bennett," coed. Hazed in football practice by coach "Robbins," and the star player, "Dixon," good-natured "Hugo" is a battered object when he returns to "Prof. Danner's" boarding house. The erratic "Professor" gives him a dose of serum that makes him a Samson of strength, whereafter he makes a shambles of the football gridiron. Desiring money to adopt orphan "Bobby" and possibly marry "Iris," "Hugo" turns wrestler and is matched with Man Mountain Dean. The scuffle they stage is hokum-laden ferociousness as "Hugo" gives the bearded giant a thorough going over. But when the effect of the serum is dissipated, "Hugo" himself is almost torn limb from limb. However, by a ruse, he wins the match, the girl and money enough to adopt "Bobby."

An amusing attraction for the family that likes to laugh no matter what the provocation, "The Gladiator" also is filled with those qualities which made Brown a prime favorite with the youngsters. For exploitation there is, besides the star's name, the topical interest in football and wrestling.

Previewed in the Alexander theatre, Glendale, Cal. Despite the uncomfortably hot weather, the audience bestirred itself to applause several times, and topped off the evident enjoyment with an enthusiastic ovation for the star at the finish. —GUS MCCARTHY.

Rich Man, Poor Girl

(Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer)

Comedy

When a picture stirs up a voluntary word-of-mouth campaign, there is a valuable asset. Such a picture is MGM's "Rich Man, Poor Girl," a story of the familiar wealthy man wanting to marry his poor secretary, but with new twists to the situations. The word-of-mouth advertising the picture will get is due not only to a plausible story of family life, not only to competent performances by wellknown screen figures, not only to a crisply directed piece of cinema entertainment, but also to the characterizations by screen newcomers Ruth Hussey and Lana Turner.

Miss Hussey, who as the secretary plays her first feature lead, and Miss Turner, as Miss Hussey's sister who desires to be "society" and escape tenement life, received the major share of applause, all of it genuine, at the preview at the Fox Uptown theatre, Los Angeles. She emotional outburst of Miss Turner upon finding that her hopes of leaving the slum life have been blasted will be compared with that of Andread Leeds in "Stage Door."

Other players are the dependable Robert Young, Lew Ayres, who finds himself in cinema favor again after Columbia's "Holiday," Rita Johnson, Don Castle, Guy Kibbee, Sarah Padden, Gordon Jones, Virginia Grey and Marie Blake. This marks the first American film assignment of Reinhold Schunzel, who directed. The screenplay is by Joseph A. Fields and Jerome Chodorov, based on the play "White Collars" by Edith Ellis and the story by Edgar Franklin.

"Bill Harrison," wealthy young man, goes to live with the family of "Joan Thayer," when she refuses to marry him because of his wealth. "Henry," a cousin of "Joan," talks "Bill" into helping "the great middle class' with his wealth, and when the "Thayer" family discover that "Bill" apparently is giving all of his money away, they are aghast. However, "Bill" manages to uproot their antagonistic ideas toward wealth, and marries "Joan."

Safety in Numbers

(20th Century-Fox)

Domestic Comedy

Good fun for the whole family is, perhaps, a terse yet most complete way of describing the latest addition to the "Jones Family" series. An amusing picture full of homey incidents in dialogue, action, situations, and their consequent romance, comedy and exciting melodrama, "Safety in Numbers" is also an exploitation feature affording exhibitors numerous means of stirring patron interest. The members of the family are as they have always been, natural folk, who contrive to get mixed up in the hokus pokus that threatens to result disastrously. But they are resourceful, and in the original story by Dorothy Manney and Zena George and the screen play by Joseph Hoffman, Karen De Wolf and Robert Chapin they are given ample opportunity to demonstrate how honesty may triumph over skullduggery. Malcolm St. Clair direction makes it all real.

Though "Lucy" wins a radio contest it is "Mrs. Jones" who is chosen to exploit a mineral water via a program of "advice to worried people." "Dr. Edmonds" and his slick confidence men plot to fleece "Mayor Jones" and his fellow citizens eager to invest in a proposition that promises to pay millions. "Jack" tosses the family into turmoil by eloping with "Toni." Meanwhile "Roger" and "Tommy McGuire" have discovered that the mineral water is worthless swamp water, but the revelation is not made until the citizens have given $100,000 to the swindlers. With disaster threatening the whole menage, "Mrs. Jones" goes on the air with a message which not only brings back "Jack" but "Dr. Edmonds" and the money as well. Ensues a breakneck exciting comedy chase before the crooks are caught, the money returned to the visionary investors and peace once again restored to the "Jones Family."

Short in running time but long in amusement, the film should appeal not only to the followers of the series, but to those who find enjoyment in wholesome and natural fun.

Previewed in the Uptown Theatre, Los Angeles. This audience, which has been given the opportunity to inspect all previous numbers in the series, appeared to be of the opinion that "Safety in Numbers" is the best yet.—G. M.

Man from Music Mountain

Musical Western

Gene Autry, No. 1 boxoffice cowboy, rides, shoots and fights again in "Man from Music Mountain," a story more modern than most western pictures and lending itself to exploitation campaigns in situations other than those normally played by outdoor action films. The Boulder dam water and power lines to surrounding communities form the background of the picture, and the plotting of swindlers to revive a ghost town and sell lots to modern pioneers is the motivation.

Autry, helped by Smiley Burnette, prevents the milching of the investors after going through the prescribed motions of defeat. Others in the cast are Carol Hughes, Sally Payne, Ivan Miller, Edward Cassidy, Lew Kelly, Howard Chase, Albert Terry, Frankie Marvin, Earl Dwire, Lloyd Ingraham, Lillian Drew, Al Taylor, Joe Yrigoyen, and Polly Jenkins and her Plowboys. Joe Kane directed from the script of Betty Burbridge and Luci Ward, based on an original story by Bernard McConville. Charles E. Ford was associate producer.

glowing tribute to William S. Hart as the greatest of the "trigger lads" and to the comic trouping of Mable Normand and "Fatty" Arbuckle. Shots of the Armistice celebration and the return of the American "doughboys" become pointed in the light of present day war scares. For the fight fans there are glimpses of the Dempsey-Willard fight. Douglas Corrigan's jubilant reception on his recent arrival in New York can be compared in retrospect with the equally tumultous welcome given Charles A. Lindbergh in '27. Scenes depict the late Will Rogers voicing his approval of President Roosevelt's candidacy. Although the complete enjoyment of the memory lane treading will be had by those whose steps go back far enough, there should be a widespread appeal for any audience of any age and acuteness of remembering. The audience seeing the miniature at New York City's Music Hall was demonstrative.—Running time, nine minutes.

A Sporting Test
(Paramount)
Sportlight Quiz

Using a method found popular with radio programs and audiences, this newest Grantland Rice Sportlight number follows the question and answer technique. Ted Husing asks the audience by way of a printed query sign to identify certain odd sounding terms with sports. As an example, the spectator is challenged to tell in what sporting game the "cesta" is used. Following an appropriate time interval for audience brain racking, the proper explanation is given through pictorial illustration. The remainder of the questionnaire is equally tricky and bound to entice audience interest, particularly from the masculine element.—Running time, 10 minutes.

Ancient Cities of Southern France
(de LaVarre-Devlin)
Travelogue

Andre de LaVarre in this travelogue subject, deviates from his usual custom of presenting but one city in a reel. He toured the southern French Provinces in a motor car filming whatever he found of interest. The results are shots of structures dating back centuries, some to the 12th and 13th centuries, fortresses, coliseums, walls and bridges in various stages of decay. The subject is interesting and instructive. Produced by Mr. de LaVarre in association with P. P. Devlin. Running time, 10 minutes.

Fool Coverage
(RKO Radio)
Kennedy Temperament

It seems that Edgar has a spouse who on her part is a heavy taxation on his temper, but in addition she has her daddy living with them and the old gent is a straw that would break a stronger back than any camel or Edgar could possess. This cantankerous individual comes into Edgar's office to take a test for a driver's license. Edgar knows the candidate is as blind as the proverbial bat and that the car to be used in the experiment is the family chariot. Added woes are a wild car chase, a motor cycle cop and a lapsed insurance policy.—Running time, 16 minutes.

Venice
(de LaVarre-Devlin)
Travelogue

The romantic city of Venice with its waterways, gondolas and marble architecture is shown to especial advantage by the camera of Andre de LaVarre, The Screen Traveler. Mr. de LaVarre also wrote and delivers the narration. Points of interest are covered including the Campanile, "The Bridge of Sighs," palace of the Doges, the shopping district in Merceria, Lido Beach, Church of San Giorgio and many others. The subject was produced by Mr. de LaVarre in association with P. P. Devlin. Running time, 10 minutes.

Hunting Trouble
(RKO Radio)
Fair

The old gag about daddy going hunting but not for wild game is used as a springboard for some quite familiar comedy business. The middle aged "gay bird" (Jed Prouty), accompanied by a friend with equal inclination for deceiving the little woman, is returning from attending a gay convention of the Sons of Hiawatha while the wife is under the impression he has been hunting big game. With the hazy impression that he is being pursued by an anxious female, Prouty mistakes her for his new daughter-in-law whom he never has seen.—Running time, 16 minutes.

Moments of Charm
(Paramount)
Excellent

Phil Spitalny and His All Girl Orchestra, distinctive feature on the airways and seen previously in short subject material, are in this instance presented in their best manner by artistic coloring and effective camera and lighting angles. The musical portion of the program is equally good. Ranging from such diverse orchestrations as "Bugle Call Rag" and Carrie Jacobs Bond's "I Love You Truly," the choral and instrumental arrangements are delivered in original style. Reported to be the first of Headliner series to receive tinted treatment, the subject easily becomes the best number from this group.—Running time, 10 minutes.

A Day at the Beach
(MGM)
Summer Doldrums

In this latest installment of the family adventures of the Captain and his clan, the group journey to the beach in search of diversion. The usual carbon copy misadventures of seaside sadness beset the group. Nor is the audience expected to have such a wonderful time, either. —Running time, 10 minutes.

BERGEN AND McCARTHY IN "GOLDWYN FOLLIES"

To the Editor of the Herald:

Your friend Bill Weaver, in the review of "A Letter of Introduction" (Motion Picture Herald, August 6) has included some facts which I think are a definite understatement.

He says that you get more of Bergen in "A Letter of Introduction" than you got of him in Walter Wanger's "Vogues of 1938"; in fact, he says about ten times more. That's where the understatement comes in, since Bergen and McCarthy were not in "Vogues" at all.

I should say you get 100 times more of McCarthy in this picture—1,000 times more —or whatever figure you want to make it.

Kindest regards.

MONROE GREENTHAL, director of United Artists exploitation.

P. S.—Bergen and McCarthy were in "Goldwyn Follies."

Rio de Janeiro
(de LaVarre-Devlin)
Excellent

Brazil's capital city, Rio de Janeiro, amid towering mountain peaks and bordering on the Atlantic Ocean, is admirably suited for pictorial treatment. In this subject the city's beauty has been captured in the panoramic shots of the city, with its beautiful parks, streets lined with stately trees and sidewalks of black and white mosaic design. Produced and narrated by Andre de La Varre in association with P. P. Devlin. Running time, 10 minutes.

The date for the re-issue of the GB picture "The 39 Steps," starring Robert Donat and Madeleine Carroll, has been advanced to September 15th. It was originally set for December 15th.

IN THE CUTTING ROOM

Straight, Place and Show

(20th Century-Fox)

Action Comedy

The title establishes the thematic content as well as the major locales. The three words pertain to only one place—the race track, horse race track, of course.

Listing the three Ritz Brothers as the leading players definitely establishes the trend it will take, comedy which commonly is described as hilarious. Three other names appear in capital letter type. Phyllis Brooks, Richard Arlen and Ethel Merman, and that means romance, two girls in love with one man. One knows Miss Merman has gained a measure of fame as a singer, and several songs have been prepared for her by Lew Brown and Lew Pollack. The credits say there will be dances which Nick Castle and Geneva Butler staged. Therefore the film will have other action other than galloping horses.

Further name value is represented by George Barbier, Willie Best, Paul Hurst, Sidney Blackmer, William Stanton, Ivan Lebedeff, Gregory Gaye, Rafael Storm, Stanley Fields, Ben Weldon, Ed Gargan, and there are three ponies and one horse, who most of the time is just a horse but when the occasion demands, is a combination Seabiscuit and War Admiral.

Damon Runyon and Irving Caesar had a hand in preparing the basic story; Lew Brown contributed added dialogue, and additional material is credited to a trio of writers. David Butler is the director.

Release date: Oct. 14, 1938.

Mr. Doodle Kicks Off

(RKO Radio)

Comedy

In Joe E. Penner's last picture, "I'm From the City," he was an oaf who could do wonderfully amusing things astride a horse—when he was hypnotized. In this one he will appear as a daffy collegian whose only ambition is to lead a swing band, his only sport playing checkers. But his rich father wants him to be an athlete, particularly a star football player. Joe's college wants the endowment that his father has promised. But where slave-driving football coaches fall down, a woman's wiles prevail, and the comic becomes a sensational quarterback.

The story is an original by Mark Kelly, Los Angeles sports writer who had a hand in preparation of the successful 20th Century-Fox football picture "Pigskin Parade," and the screen play is by Bert Granet, whose credits include the comedies "Go Chase Yourself" and "Affairs of Annabel." The director, Leslie Goodwins, during his association with RKO-Radio, has concerned himself with more melodramatically premised material, but is not without experience in handling comedy.

The supporting cast includes June Travis, who was with Penner in "Go Chase Yourself" and was seen in an earlier football feature, "Over the Goal"; Richard Lane, Billy Gilbert, Alance Bruce, Ben Alexander, George Irving, Pierre Watkin, Wesley Barry, who was a juvenile prodigy at the same time Alexander was, William Davidson and Frank M. Thomas.

Release date: Sept. 8, 1938 (tentative).

Blackwell's Island

(Warner)

Melodrama

From sensational newspaper headlines Warner Brothers often has plucked screen stories of exciting entertainment. "I'm a Fugitive from a Chain Gang," 'Black Fury," "They Won't Forget" and "Alcatraz Island" are examples. Now the studio is engaging itself with production of another expose of crime conditions which comes directly, though a little delayed, from headlines.

A few years ago New York City was shocked when scandalous conditions prevailing at the municipal prison on Blackwell's Island were bared. This picture will dramatize that scandal.

The original story is by Crane Wilbur and Dave Marcus. Wilbur's most recent writings are "Girls on Probation" and "Crime School," and he did the original "Alcatraz Island" story. It will be directed by William McGann, who made "Alcatraz Island," "When Were You Born" and "Girls on Probation."

"Blackwell's Island" will star John Garfield, whom studio executives consider one of the most promising young actors on the contract list, and Rosemary Lane. Featured players are Morgan Conway, Stanley Fields, currently in "Algiers"; Dick Purcell and Peggy Shannon, who has been absent from the screen for some time. Others who have important parts are Lottie Williams, Charley Foy, Norman Willis, Granville Bates, Raymond Barley, Jimmy O'Gatty, Wade Boteler and William Davidson.

Brother Rat

(Warner)

Comedy-Romance

Despite the meaning that might easily be read into the title, "Brother Rat" is not a gangster story, nor does it have any melodramatic content. It is a rollicking romantic comedy of life at Virginia Military Institute, which rollicks through riotous complications as hilarious as they are unique. The title is derived from the term with which upper classmen at the Institute identify the fourth classmen—"Rats."

As a stage play the John Monks, Jr.-Fred Finklehoff vehicle broke records on New York's Broadway and in roadshows. The screen version was written by Jerry Wald and Richard Macaulay, collaborators on preparation of "Golddiggers in Paris," "Hollywood Hotel" and 'Varsity Show." The picture is being directed by William Keighley, who did "Varsity Show" and cooperated on "The Adventures of Robin Hood."

The principal players are Wayne Morris, popular for many pictures and soon to be seen in "Valley of the Giants"; Priscilla Lane, Jane Wyman, Jane Bryan, Eddie Albert, Ronald Regan, Johnnie Davis, Hendy O'Neill and Gordon Oliver. Other roles are filled by William Tracy, Olin Howland, Jessie Busley, Louise Beavers, Robert Scott, Fred Hamilton and Jack Mower.

The production is aimed at young folk and those who like to remember when they were young.

Release date: In October.

Room Service

(RKO Radio)

Comedy

This picture will be an adaptation of a successful stage play, which opened in New York in May, 1937. It will feature the three Marx Brothers and they will break a tradition. In their previous eight productions they indulged in farce which included much personal interpolation. This time, while it is inevitable that there will be departures from the script, they will play straight, an innovation that should have considerable exploitation value.

Four members of the original stage company have been brought from New York for the screen version of John Murray-Allen Boretz comedy hit, for which Morrie Ryskind wrote the screenplay. Clifford Dunstand will reenact the role of the harrassed hotel manager; Donald McBride, the interfering supervisor; Philip Wood, the financier who comes to back a show, and Philip Loeb, who portrayed the role now occupied by Chico, will be seen as an installment collector. Hollywood personnel in the cast are Ann Miller, featured in "Stage Door" and to be seen in Columbia's "You Can't Take It with You"; Lucille Ball, last in "The Affairs of Annabel"; Frank Albertson and Frank Halton.

The plot concerns the nonsensical antics of a fly-by-night theatrical producer and his assistants. The maneuvers to stay in a Broadway hotel "on the cuff" are the major basis of the comedy.

A Pandro S. Berman production, "Room Service" is being directed by William A. Seiter, who made "Life of the Party" and "Three Blind Mice." Besides several Marx Bros. scripts to his credit, Ryskind's other adaptations include "Stage Door" and "My Man Godfrey."

Release date: To be determined.

Angels with Dirty Faces

(Warner)

Melodrama

It is seldom that name, story and production values have been as effectively welded as they will be in "Angels with Dirty Faces." It will star James Cagney and Pat O'Brien, recently reunited in the comedy hit, "Boy Meets Girl." It will feature Humphrey Bogart, George Bancroft and the rapidly rising young star, Ann Sheridan. Important in the story's delineation are the "Dead End" and "Crime School" boys, Huntz Hall, Gabriel Dell, Bernard Punsley, Billy Halop, Bobby Jordan and Leo Gorcey. Important roles have been assigned Vera Lewis and Eddie Syracuse, newcomer.

The story is an action melodrama, human nevertheless as it details the effect of environment on the lives of slum dwellers. Basically it traces the careers of two boys. Both started out to be potential criminals. One, caught and sent to jail, emerged from the penitentiary to become a big shot gangster and is idolized by young hoodlums of another generation. The other becomes a priest, fighting to make good citizens out of slum boys.

Roland Brown wrote the original story which Warren Duff and John Wexley adapted and which Michael Curtiz is directing.

RKO ANNOUNCES 54 FEATURES AND 199 SHORT SUBJECTS FOR '38-'39

Berman Will Produce Group, Including Astaire-Rogers Musical; 18 Disney Pictures, Dionne Two-Reel Subject

In line with its determination to have its program "on celluloid and not on paper," RKO Radio Pictures only this week made known the full contents of its 1938-39 program, weeks after the other companies had made their announcements.

Bringing to a close its 1937-38 season with the release of the Fred Astaire-Ginger Rogers-Irving Berlin musical "Carefree", Ned E. Depinet, vice-president in charge of RKO distribution, announced on Wednesday that RKO Radio will release 54 feature pictures and 199 short subjects in 1938-39. With the announcement came the disclosure that Pandro S. Berman, vice-president in charge of production, has more features either in production or actually on film for early Fall release than at any time in the company's history.

Ready soon for theatres is "Room Service," bought as a starring property for the Marx Brothers for the announced all-time high sum of $255,000, and scheduled for September release. Completed as well is "The Mad Miss Manton," a comedy co-starring Barbara Stanwyck and Henry Fonda. The "Gunga Din" picturization of the Kipling ballad will finish shooting in September.

Berman To Produce Group

As in the past, Mr. Berman personally will produce a group of RKO films. Among these will be the filmusicals of the Astaire-Rogers combination, now entering the sixth year at RKO.

Deals negotiated during 1938 have brought to RKO studios Leo McCarey, whose first picture under the company's banner will be "Love Match," scheduled for the cameras in mid-September; and Gregory LaCava, now preparing his first picture for 1938-39. With George Stevens, now producing and directing "Gunga Din" with Berman in charge of production, these will constitute a brand new triumvirate of producer-directors.

The RKO star aggregation, headed by Astaire and Rogers, includes Claudette Colbert, Irene Dunne, Charles Boyer, Victor McLaglen, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Cary Grant, Joan Fontaine, Barbara Stanwyck, Henry Fonda, Tommy Kelly (of "Tom Sawyer"), George O'Brien, Bobby Breen, Anna Neagle, Anton Walbrook, Peter Holden, seven-year-older of the Broadway stage, Anne Shirley, Jack Oakie, Lucille Ball, Joe Penner, Harry Carey and Bob Burns.

Astaire-Rogers Musical

Another Astaire-Rogers musical is set for 1938-39, to follow "Carefree." In addition, Miss Rogers, who has appeared for RKO in "Stage Door," "Vivacious Lady" and "Having Wonderful Time," will be starred alone in two productions.

Victor McLaglen will be seen in two pictures, co-starred with Cary Grant and Douglas Fairbanks, Jr. in "Gunga Din," and heading the cast of "Pacific Liner."

Claudette Colbert is to be starred in "Memory of Love," the Bessie Breuer novel. Irene Dunne and Charles Boyer will co-star in "Love Match," first of the two Leo McCarey productions.

Young Peter Holden will appear in a picture with Bob Burns. Tommy Kelly, by arrangement with Selznick-International, will have the title role in Sol Lesser's production of "Peck's Bad Boy with the Circus." Bobby Breen is to star in two Lesser productions.

RKO Radio also will have two feature series. Jack Oakie and Lucille Ball are co-starred in the first two of a series of four "Annabel" films, "The Affairs of Annabel" and "Annabel Takes a Tour."

"The Saint" series, which started with "The Saint in New York," will continue with "The Saint Strikes Back" and "The Saint in London," also based on Leslie Charteris' character "The Saint" detective mystery stories.

Penner Given Stardom

Joe Penner, elevated to stardom this year, has the title role of "Mr. Doodle Kicks Off," to be released during the football season. George O'Brien, four of whose Westerns were released this season, is to star in six more. Harry Carey will appear in a Western called "Law West of Tombstone."

Anne Shirley and a cast now forming are to appear in "Sorority House."

"Virginia City—on the Silver Trail of Nevada" will bring in the tale of the Nevada silver rush. "The Night of January 16" will be produced from the A. H. Woods stage production.

Other Titles Listed

Other features are:

"Washington Agent," a story of G-Men and spies; "What's Your Number," on the policy racket; "A Man to Remember," a vehicle for Anne Shirley, Edward Ellis and Lee Bowman; "Beauty for the Asking," presenting the story of women in quest of beauty.

Also, "The Inside Room," from the Woman's Home Companion story "On the Spot"; "Fugitives for a Night," a Hollywood story; "The Miracle Racket," in which Sally Eilers has the lead; "Five Came Back," story of a clipper plane crashing in the jungle; "Air Pirate," a story of an outlaw of the clouds; and "Wildcat Bus," a new against-the-law racket story.

From England will come "Sixty Glorious Years," a Herbert Wilcox production in color, said by RKO to be successor to "Victoria the Great." The cast will be headed by Anna Neagle, Anton Walbrook and C. Aubrey Smith. Production is already under way.

Eighteen Disney Pictures

For the 1938-39 season, RKO Radio will release 18 Walt Disney short features in color. Six will be "specials." First, "The Brave Little Tailor," to be released in September, will be a "special" based on the fairy tale by the Grimm Brothers. The others are "Farmyard Symphony," "Donald's Golf Game," "Ferdinand the Bull," "Merbabies," "Mother Goose Goes Hollywood," "Donald's Lucky Day," "Society Dog Show," "The Practical Pig," "The Hockey Champ," "The Ugly Duckling," "Goofy and Wilbur," "Donald's Cousin Gun," "The Beach Picnic," "Sea Scouts," "The Autograph Hound," "Donald's Penguin" and "The Pointer."

Thirteen March of Time magazine reels will again be released by RKO Radio. Produced by the publishers of Life, Time and Fortune, it is now being shown in 11,072 theatres and released in English, French and Spanish.

Dionne Two-Reeler

The Dionne quintuplets will make an RKO Pathe two-reel featurette.

One hundred four RKO Pathe News, issued twice weekly, again will be offered.

Among the 24 two-reel comedies will be Edgar Kennedy comedies, Leon Errol comedies, Ray Whitley and His Singing Playing Cowboys; Ted Fio Rito, Phil Harris, Charles (Buddy) Rogers and their bands, and other names.

Covering sports, the 13 RKO Pathe Sportscopes will be continued.

Sheila Barrett will headline four "Specialties."

"Flash acts," specialties, headliners in song and dance, swingsters and "killer-dillers" will be offered in the 13 Nu-Atlas Musicals. The schedule of shorts also includes nine RKO Pathe single-reel subjects, to be titled "Reelisms."

RKO Circuit Deals for New Product Already 300 Over Last Season

RKO Radio's selling season is well advanced over last year, according to General Sales Manager Jules Levy. The volume of deals already closed for 1938-39 has exceeded by over 300 those for the corresponding date last year, a previous high in new season selling, he added. Several deals are now in negotiation and only await signatures.

Among the major circuits already closed, Mr. Levy said, were Skouras National circuit of over 350 houses; Warner circuit of approximately 325; Interstate and Texas Consolidated, 90; M. A. Lightman, 50; Sparks, 70; Chatkin, 5; Butterfield of Michigan, 90; Durkee, 18; Publix Minnesota, 40; United Circuit of California, 60; Canadian Famous Players, 100 and many others, both independent and circuit.

"In view of the general tendency of exhibitors this year to postpone buying and in view of the fact that only this week is RKO Radio making its annual announcement of product I think this new sales record is a remarkable tribute to RKO," said Mr. Levy.

ASIDES and INTERLUDES

By JAMES P. CUNNINGHAM

Col. Tim McCoy probably will continue in and around motion pictures now for awhile. With some 40 western features to his credit in six years, for Columbia, Puritan Pictures and Monogram, Col. Timothy John Fitzgerald McCoy left Hollywood for the sawdust trail of the "wild west" show. But now an auctioneer's hammer has sent his paraphernalia over the block, in Washington, liquidating the Col. Tim McCoy Circus, which was thrown into bankruptcy last May 31st.

If the same had happened last year, it would have been a business of selling off a lot of tawdry and worn cowboy gear, but in the winter Col. Tim had found backing to outfit his show with finery of the road, that included shining new Pullman cars and 40 brightly painted wagons. He even had an elaborate traveling business office, a wagon fitted with a cashier's cage. He's going back to Hollywood to ride the film plains again.

Recommended for Diversion Seekers

THE members of the Projection Practice Committee of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers at their meetings in New York frequently go to profound depths in their cinematographic brain waves. They feel, however, they are occasionally entitled to a little emotional relief by asking such questions as how large a screen would be required if all the picture images on a feature film were cut out and glued in rows upon the screen surface. Guesses as to the answer varied from square-feet to square-miles.

Dr. Alfred Goldsmith, the Committee's official encyclopedia, however, proceeded to supply the answer without the aid of calculating machines and, by a weird process of "free-hand" thinking, solved the problem almost without aid of pencil and paper; namely, that for the average feature-length picture, the area of all the picture images on a feature film is about equal to the superficial area of the screen.

The arithmetic is very simple—says "Doc" Goldsmith. Merely multiply the width and height of the film image (namely, 0.600 by 0.825 inch) by the number of frames per foot (16) by the number of feet in the average feature film (6,600 feet). The result will show that there are 363 square-feet of image on the feature film.

Now the average theatre screen has dimensions of 22 by 16.5 feet, the area of which is 363 square-feet. This is the same as the total area of the picture images on the 6,600-foot film.

Of course, one has to recognize that this proposition holds exactly only when the correct combination of length of film and size of screen is chosen. For example, if the screen were 15 by 20, the area of the screen would equal the total area of the picture images on a film 5,450 feet long.

At this point of the discussion, enthusiasm for further emotional relief became almost rampant. Someone wanted to know if it would not be possible to enlarge the picture images on the film to screen size, somewhat as we do nowadays for mural decorations. The premise was that the countryside is badly disfigured by all sorts of billboards and other advertising display, and it might be a relief if all the picture images on a feature film were set up in series in large size along the highways of the nation, so that motorists could really enjoy movies during their cross-country trips and not be bored by the "natural beauties" a la billboard along the way. Of course, it would probably be necessary to affix to the motorist's eyes a pair of horse-blinkers, and these blinkers would probably have to flap up and down at the rate of 24 times a second.

Anyway, reproduced at screen-size, the pictures would be 22 feet long, as the SMPE engineers assumed throughout this erudite discussion. Twenty-four such pictures would have to be passed during each second. Analyzing this further by Fourier's series and Bessel's functions, and taking into consideration all the intricacies of the Brownian movement, it speedily follows that the motorist would have to travel upon a super-de-luxe six-lane highway at a speed of 450 miles an hour, to see a good full-size movie without flicker—which is not very unreasonable in these days of super-streamline travel.

In closing, the Committee feels that it has made, in this discussion, a major contribution to the progress of the cinematographic art, but they hope that the reader, having thoroughly digested this involved analysis, will not suddenly find that his cinematographic mental processes have induced a cerebral hemorrage.

Irving Berlin stands today, young at fifty, at the height of his career, filmwise and otherwise, with his Twentieth Century-Fox Film presentation of "Alexander's Ragtime Band," called by Fox "the greatest box office success ever produced."

The foundation for Berlin's continued successful career as a writer of songs for motion pictures was built, of course, long before he ever saw Hollywood. It goes back, as almost everyone knows, to song writing for Ziegfeld and other shows, and before that, to just plain song writing.

His compositions for the screen supposedly started with "Puttin' on the Ritz," for Harry Richman and United Artists, eight years ago. But Berlin was in the picture business 20 years before that, when he wrote "Stop, Stop, Stop!" a song hit which went out in 1910 to the nickel shows with Norma Talmadge on the slide pictures—Berlin's first song for and Norma's first appearance on the screen. That was in Berlin's piano thumping days on New York's old Bowery, at Nigger Mike's in Chinatown, and at Jimmy Kelly's. The next year the dapper little chap with delicate features and "patent-leather" sheen to his black hair, wrote "Alexander's Ragtime Band. It's been 27 years on its way to Hollywood.

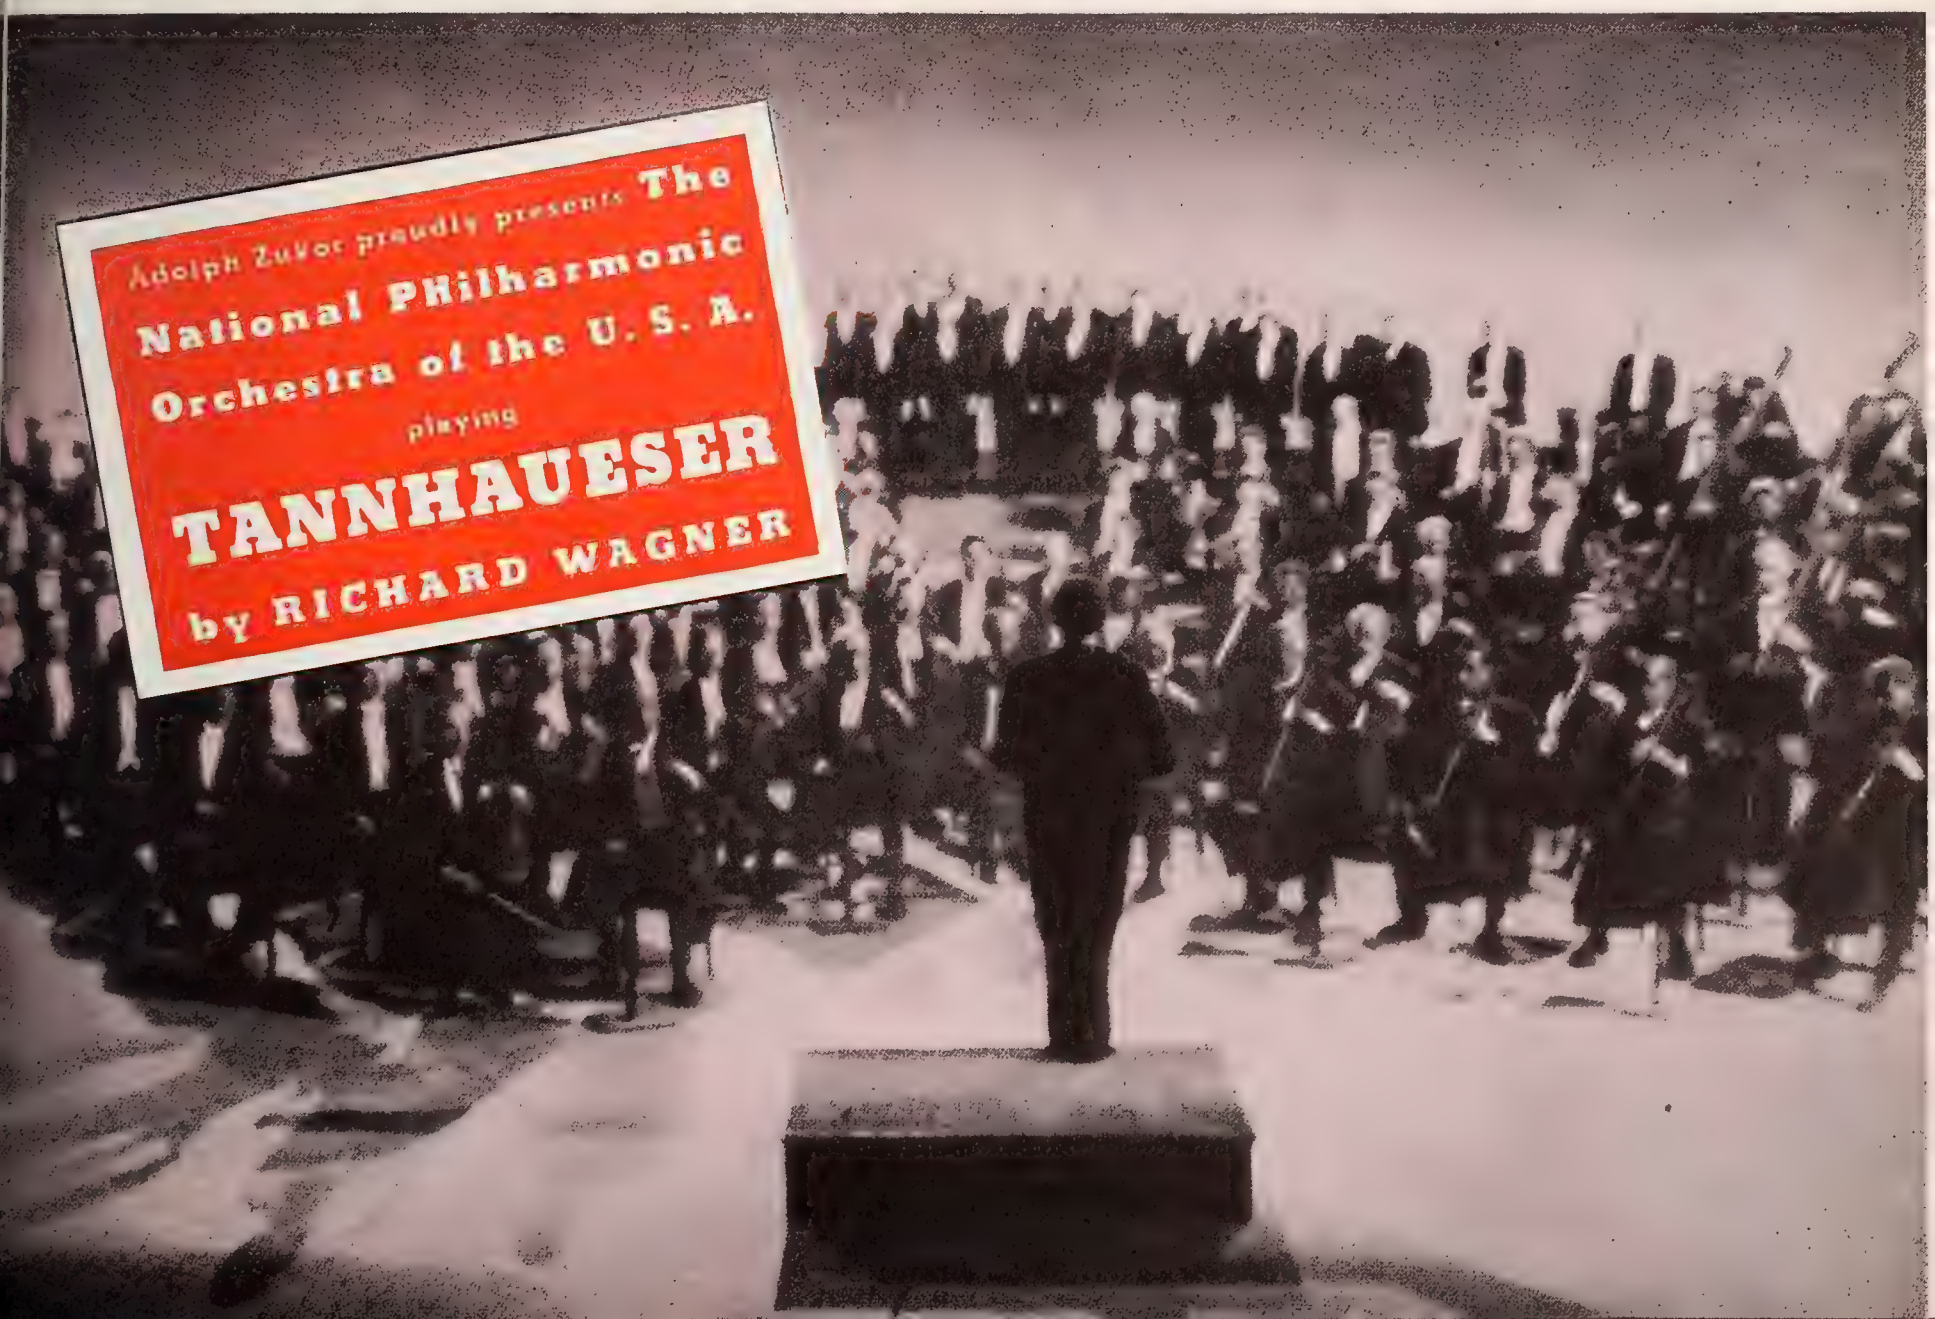
FIRST ALL COLOR BIG TIME BAND SHORT . . .

Ever out to improve the box office value of Paramount's 100 percent box office tested shorts, Paramount comes through with the ace popular music short of the year Starring Phil Spitalny and his all-girl orchestra, featuring such radio favorites as Maxine and the Three Little Words, the combine which took the No. 1 prize for the best short subject of the season just passed, this one-reeler adds the audience appeal of full color to make this a sure-fire winner. "Moments of Charm" will be included as part of your Headliners without extra charge.



FIRST BIG TIME SYMPHONIC ORCHESTRA SHORT

Symphony orchestras have been cheered when appearing on the screen as parts of feature pictures. Here is Paramount bringing you a complete symphonic rendition of a popular favorite, the "Tannhaueser" overture, played by the largest symphony orchestra ever assembled for a picture, in a short which has been proved guaranteed box office. Below you see a typical reaction of critics and public alike. Preview audiences, at the New York Paramount, home of the swing music fans, and Grauman's Chinese, in Los Angeles, not only liked this short, they raved about it, cheered it, wanted more...It's another prize winner for Paramount, another proof you can't beat box office tested shorts.

Another evidence of Paramount's interest in music was unveiled on Wednesday evening with an unscheduled showing of a "Symphonic Presentation" of Wagner's "Tannhaeuser" overture. The film follows the score faithfully, offering a capable performance of the work under the direction of Frederick Feher. An organization described as "The National Symphony Orchestra" does the playing, and splendid playing it is. New England's First Circuit for Reissues

F. E. Lieberman Observes Fourth Anniversary of "Proven Pictures" Policy

by ROBERT ST. CLAIR in Boston

New England, home of the double bill, has a new champion, this time for reissues and revivals, in the person of F. E. Lieberman, who started four years ago with so-called "Proven Pictures," and now, on this fourth anniversary of his Tremont theatre in Boston, where his policy had its innovation, the plan has been extended to some dozen other houses in the territory. It is by far the biggest revival-and-reissue project under single management in the country.

To his unique operation Mr. Lieberman is now about to add another—three theatres in one. In addition, he operates New England newsreel theatres. The three-in-one venture will embrace vaudeville, a newsreel house and another "Proven Pictures" project, all located in the old B. F. Keith property in Boston.

The basis of his progress, he claims, in furthering business for "Proven Pictures," is the return-post card method, issuing cards regularly each week with lists printed thereon of from 15 to 20 past feature hits, and urging patrons to mark off those favored by them for return playing. Of course he plays only what he can get from exchanges, but the public reaction of being given an opportunity to select their filmfare has its psychological effects at every theatre Lieberman operates. Most of his properties have been remodeled to provide modern comforts.

The origination of Mr. Lieberman's "Proven Pictures" idea found its way into the old Tremont in Boston after various large circuits, some of them distributor-affiliated, were unsuccessful with regular screen policies. The Tremont had done well for years as a legitimate theatre, but when the stage began to wane, and films were taken on, closings followed in increasingly long periods until, four years ago, Mr. Lieberman took over the downtown citadel. He first got the crowds coming by handing out passes on the wholesale.

The top picture prices at the Tremont were always 15 cents in the afternoon and 25 cents at night. The Lieberman passes had no time limits and a service charge of ten cents. The film's NRA Code Authority interfered at one time, but the idea succeeded regardless. It got people going to the Tremont, and they have been packing it ever since.

Expands Policies

Mr. Lieberman jumped into the newsreel theatre field with both feet last year and expanded his "Proven Pictures" circuit at the same time. He took over the Repertory on Huntington Avenue, Boston, as a "Proven Pictures" house and at the same time opened an adjoining property for newsreels and short subjects. This was the second newsreel house in the territory, a similar operation in the Hub having been at the New York-Boston railroad terminal.

Now Lieberman has gone ahead with the expansion of both policies, announcing this week the culmination of a deal for a 99-year lease on the old B. F. Keith property on Washington Street, Boston. Mr. Lieberman says he will put a "Proven Pictures" policy into the former RKO Bijou theatre which is on the second floor. A downstairs store will be turned into a newsreel house, and the main auditorium of the old Keith property, which has descended to a "beano parlor" and dance hall, is to become a first-rate vaudeville showhouse.

There are those in and around Boston who say that a group of three theatres in one building will never go, particularly since the building in question is within a stone's throw of such houses as the RKO Boston, the Trans Lux Hub, Gayety, Modern, Globe, Stuart, Washington Street Olympia, Loew's Orpheum, Paramount and RKO Memorial. But Mr. Lieberman has his ideas. The walls of the two last-named, incidentally, are built against those of the B. F. Keith Building.

Chicago Bookers Elect

The Theatre Bookers Club of Chicago, new organization, has elected as president Max Factor of Great States Theatre Circuit; vice-president, Stanley Butte of Schoenstadt theatres; corresponding secretary, Charles Davidson of Balaban and Katz; treasurer, Harry D. James, United Artists; sergeant-at-arms, Jack Eckhardt, Twentieth Century-Fox; executive secretary, Joe Abramson, Monogram.

Tax Credit to Twentieth-Fox

An over-assessment of income tax of $140,000 this week was credited by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue to Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation. The over-assessment represents the excess of a tax assessed against the company on the basis of a tentative return for 1930 filed by the company, over the actual tax liability as determined after investigation.

Levine Picture Deal

Nat Levine is negotiating with a large company for two or three pictures which he plans to make in the next year, his attorney, William B. Jaffe, said on his return to New York. Mr. Jaffe settled Gloria Swanson's contract with Republic while he was in Hollywood, and conferred with Scott W. Dunlap, Monogram's story executive.

"Ragtime" Sets Records at Roxy

Statisticians at the Roxy Theatre, New York City, and at the Twentieth Century-Fox home office announced an assortment of records have been established by the Darryl F. Zanuck production of Irving Berlin's "Alexander's Ragtime Band," at the Roxy.

Fox estimated the week's attendance at 200,000, breaking all records of the theatre's 11½ years.

The previous opening day attendance record, held by "Cock Eyed World" which opened on a Saturday in 1929 with an attendance of 27,299, was beaten when the current attraction brought 29,614 paid admissions.

A new all-time attendance for any day, including holidays, was established Saturday when 34,149 persons paid admission to the theatre. The previous record was 33,146 for the Saturday, April 23, 1937, showing of "Wake Up and Live." On the following day 26,630 paid admissions to see "Alexander's Ragtime Band" and thus set a new Sunday attendance record.

The combined attendance on Friday, Saturday and Sunday of 90,393 persons was hailed by the theatre as the "biggest opening weekend since the house was built."

On Monday, 25,970 persons attended the theatre and this figure, it was pointed out, is almost 8,000 greater than for the opening day, a Friday, of "In Old Chicago." Tuesday it was 26,134, and on Wednesday up to 4 p. m., 13,000.

In releasing the attendance figures, the theatre officials pointed out that the records were established despite the fact that Friday was the hottest day of the year up to then and that there was a rainstorm Saturday.

The picture was to be held for a second week and it was predicted that the run would be for four or five weeks.

As a means of further extending the nationwide buildup for the picture, Twentieth Century-Fox has scheduled a number of pre-release engagements in key cities. Prior to general release, August 19th, opening dates were set as follows: August 11th, Metropolitan, Boston, and Alvin, Pittsburgh; August 12th, Stanley, Philadelphia, and Apollo, Atlantic City; August 13th, Pitt, Cleveland; August 17th, Olympic, Utica, and State, New Bedford; August 18th, Poli, Springfield, Mass., and State, Byrd and Capitol, Richmond.

New Records Claimed

In its first five openings, "Letter of Introduction," has established new records, according to Universal Pictures. The gross at the Keith Theatre, Washington, was second only to that obtained with "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," the company said. Other records were claimed in Boston, Dennis, Mass., Philadelphia and Albany.

Two Exhibitor Units Elect

The Associated Theatre Owners of Indiana this week named Don Rossiter, of the Swartz Amusement Company of New Albany, as secretary, and the Theatre Owners Association of Kansas City, Kan., has elected Charles Vaughan of the Art as president to succeed George Baker. Mr. Baker is secretary, Jack Truitt vice-president.

REGIONAL MEETINGS MASS SUPPORT OF INDUSTRY'S BUSINESS DRIVE

First 41 Exchanges in U. S. and Canada Are Named for Distribution of September-December Campaign

With regional meetings bringing pledges of support from exhibitors throughout the United States and Canada, committees working in New York and Hollywood on the million dollar campaign for "Motion Pictures' Greatest Year" this week began to put the finishing touches on their preparations for launching the advertising and exploitation drive, September 1st to December 31st, designed to buoy attendance at all theatres.

The first 41 exchanges in the United States and Canada which will be the shipping points and depots of supplies for virtually all the accessories and advertising materials were designated this week. The exchanges were chosen by James Clark, chairman of the physical distribution committee.

Heading the list of items to be shipped to all theatres taking part will be the "movie quiz booklet" containing the essential factors of the $250,000 "movie quiz" contest, main feature of the drive. Second, according to Paul Gulick, coordinator for the drive, probably will be the pressbook which will contain full details of the campaign together with the prices for all accessories.

Exploitation, advertising and publicity personnel of all companies is striving to complete the work on the press book this week.

Trailers Through Exchanges

Trailers also will be handled through the 41 exchanges as well as all accessories mentioned in the press book. The allocation of material to company exchanges will utilize Paramount branches in 13 cities; RKO, five; Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, five; Twentieth Century-Fox, six; Warner Brothers, five; United Artists, three; Columbia, two, and Universal, two.

George Schaefer, executive chairman, on Tuesday appointed Harold B. Franklin, former president of RKO Theatres, as business manager of the drive. Mr. Franklin arrived in New York from the coast and immediately took up his new duties at the campaign headquarters, 1540 Broadway.

Louis Berg, formerly with GB, also was added to the headquarters staff, to handle trade paper contacts.

Clearing Bureau in Hollywood

On the coast, Gabe Yorke, chairman of the Hollywood committee, announced the appointment of George Thomas, George Shea and Bob Burkhardt to head a clearing bureau for Hollywood's participation in the drive. Offices have been set up at 6331 Hollywood Boulevard.

Plans for production of a campaign short subject also began to crystalize on the coast with the naming of Herman Hoffman of the MGM advertising department, and Lou Harris of the Paramount advertising department, to write and produce the picture. Frank Whitback, MGM writer, will supervise.

The subject tentatively has been titled "Five Hundred Million People Can't Be Wrong." It will convey a comparison of the value an average man and his family derive from their expenditure at the motion picture box office with that derived from an equal sum spent on other forms of diversion.

Cliff Lewis, chairman of the exploitation subcommittee in Hollywood, named as assistants Tom Alfred, Twentieth Century-Fox; Irving Rubine, Warner Brothers; Frank McFadden, Universal; Russ Phelps, Walter Wanger Productions; Harry Loud, MGM; Cy Allen, RKO; Jack Sherman, Orpheum Theatres; Willis Kinnear, Paramount Theatre; Bob Kesner, RKO Hillstreet Theatre, and Dean Hyskell, Fox West Coast Theatres.

The drive, which will cost $1,000,000, is expected to bring a $20,000,000 to $40,000,000 increase at the box offices of theatres in the United States and Canada. The cost of the drive will be divided among the three branches of the industry. Producing and distributing companies have pledged $500,000 and affiliated circuits have pledged $250,000, the remaining $250,000 to be borne by independent circuits and theatres.

Regional Meetings

It is primarily to gain the financial support of the independent exhibitors that the regional meetings are being held.

It was estimated at the campaign headquarters in New York that during the past week approximately $25,000 was pledged by independent exhibitors, raising the total pledged from this source to more than $100,000. Less than half of the regional meetings planned have been held and it was because of this that campaign directors expressed confidence that the independent exhibitor quota of $250,000 will be fully subscribed before the start of the campaign.

At a Chicago meeting exhibitors from that city and down-state Illinois, as well as from Indiana, Michigan and Wisconsin expressed their willingness to join in the industry-wide drive, thus practically assuring the raising of the $25,000 quota set for the Chicago territory.

Gradwell Sears represented the national committee at the meeting, attended by more than 100 exhibitors. The initial call resulted in $10,000 in pledges.

An outstanding feature of the meeting in Chicago was the support given by independent exhibitors who, the day before, had announced through their attorneys that they were planning to file suit against the large companies and Balaban & Katz regarding clearance problems. Committee leaders who will carry on the drive in Chicago are Eddie Silverman, Clyde Eckhardt, Jack Silliman, Charles Trampe, Martin Thomas, Mort Goldberg, Jules Rubens, Jack Kirsch and A. B. McCullom.

Other Meetings

Exhibitors in the New York-New Jersey area will hold their regional meeting on participation in the drive on August 16th, according to Joseph M. Seider, head of Prudential Playhouses, chairman of the metropolitan area committee.

Eighty circuit and independent theatre officials and distribution executives attended a meeting in Toronto at which cooperation was pledged.

After hearing details from J. J. Fitzgibbons, managing director of Famous Players Canadian Corporation, and H. A. Masters, Canadian general manager of United Artists, the meeting voted to adopt in toto the plan originated by the campaign committee in the United States. H. Freeman, president of the Independent Theatre Owners of Ontario, endorsed the campaign on behalf of members of his organization.

Following the session, Mr. Fitzgibbons wired Mr. Schaefer in New York: "Without question most enthusiastic meeting ever held in Toronto greeted the announcement of the 'movies' greatest year campaign." Mr. Fitzgibbon said he and members of his committee were leaving on a tour of the Dominion to hold regional meetings.

Detroit's Start

Detroit exhibitors, at a meeting last week, tentatively pledged $10,000 for the drive. The 200 theatres represented are expected to give final approval following a meeting of the cooperating booking agency in Detroit this week. After this session, a statewide campaign will be organized by H. M. Richey, regional chairman.

A. W. Smith, Jr., United Artists sales manager, left New York Monday for Minneapolis, to assist W. A. Steffes at a meeting at the Nicollet Hotel Wednesday.

Allied Theatres of Connecticut and the Connecticut Motion Picture Theatre Owners held a joint meeting Wednesday. Maurice Shulman, president of Allied, and Irving C. Jacocks, Jr., of MPTO, presided. Jacob B. Fishman, of Fishman Theatres, submitted a report on the recent meeting in the Hotel Astor, New York.

Oklahoma Pledges

More than $2,000 was subscribed by theatre owners in Oklahoma City last week. On the state committee are Morris Loewenstein, Oklahoma City; L. C. Griffith, president of Griffith Amusement Company, and Ralph Talbot of Ralph Talbot Theatres, Tulsa. Mr. Griffith said he would give $200 to be divided among the three salesmen turning in the largest number of subscriptions. All Oklahoma circuits are participating.

Approximately 125 independent and affiliated exhibitors met with Mr. Sears and M. B. Horowitz in Cleveland and pledged their support.

In Philadelphia a meeting was held in the assembly room of the Philadelphia Saving Fund Building on Wednesday. Lewen Pizor, president of United Motion Picture Theatre Owners; Ted Schlanger, Warner Brothers zone manager, and Ben Amsterdam, are members of the Philadelphia campaign committee.

Virginia exhibitors are supporting the drive,

BUFFALO BRANCH WINS RKO DEPINET DRIVE

The RKO Buffalo exchange, of which Charles Boasberg is manager, this week was awarded first prize in the company's Ned E. Depinet sales drive which extended for 15 weeks through the winter and spring. Four weeks' salary to every member of the exchange staff will be paid with the award.

The Toronto office tied with the Vancouver branch for second place. Other winning branches were Pittsburgh, Portland, Cleveland, Memphis, Seattle, and Denver.

Winners in the foreign division were Egypt, G. E. Georgeoussy, manager, and China, Leon Britton, manager, tied for first; Panama, Fred S. Gulbransen, manager, second, and Dutch East Indies, Louis S. Lioni, manager, third.

THE MAN WHO PLAYS THE PICTURE Says...

"Any theatre that passes it up is making a mistake. Gordon Elliott is match for Bill Hart."

D. B. English, English Theatre, Tahoka, Texas

"Best serial we have ever shown . . . fine photography . . . more modern direction and production."

Floyd E. Droz, Anthony Theatre, Anthony, Kansas

"Just the sort adults as well as youngsters can appreciate. Gordon Elliott perfect in title role."

Nate Rosenthal, Iowa Theatre, Waterloo, Iowa

MONOGRAM PLEDGES SUPPORT TO DRIVE

Monogram officially joined the "Motion Pictures' Greatest Year" campaign this week following the declaration by W. Ray Johnston, president, on Monday that he subscribes "wholeheartedly" to the industry's plan for increasing business.

Monogram is the first of the independent producing and distributing companies officially to enter the drive, but Republic and several others have tentatively approved it.

Edward A. Golden, sales manager, will represent Monogram.

All campaign material will be sold on a cash-with-order basis, to facilitate handling, Mr. Schaefer said:

The Screen Actors' Guild on Wednesday voted unanimous endorsement of the drive.

At an organization meeting of Pittsburgh exchange managers and officers of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners, Ira H. Cohn, branch manager for Twentieth Century-Fox, was appointed chairman for the Pittsburgh committee. A meeting of exhibitors will be held Tuesday.

One of the latest plans evolved by the Hollywood committee is the lining up of well-known screen writers to write a series of articles. Among the writers are Laurence Stallings, Sam Hellman, Stephen Morehouse Avery, Anita Loos, Gene Markey, Niven Busch, Miles Connolly, Grover Jones, Nunnally Johnson, Seton I. Miller, John Meehan, Earl Baldwin, Jeannie MacPherson, Crane Wilbur and Sig Herzig.

Troy Orr, chairman of the newsreel committee, named as members: Joseph Hubbell, News of the Day; Jack Darrock, Fox Movietone News; Norman Alley, Universal Newsreel; Marshall McCarroll, Paramount News; Mervin Freeman, RKO Pathe News; Jean Bosquet, Paramount; Ed Olmstead, Universal; James Pollack, RKO; Otto Winkler, MGM, and Tom Alfred, Twentieth Century-Fox.

Mort Blumenstock, Warner, is eastern chairman in charge of radio.

Schine Circuit Managers Endorse Ad Campaign

The annual convention of managers and executives of Schine Enterprises, Inc., held at Gloversville, N. Y., concluded last weekend with a banquet at the home of L. W. Schine, executive director of the circuit, at Caroga Lake. The final action of the convention body was the endorsement of the industry's plan to spend $1,000,000 in institutional advertising. J. Meyer Schine, president, and L. W. Schine praised the plan.

A silver golf trophy was awarded Norman Ayres for low net score in the golf tournament which was one of the convention program features. Charles Casanave was second and Jerry Leary third. Guests at the meeting included Ned E. Depinet, J. R. Grainger, A. W. Smith, Jr., William Sussman, Carl Leserman, Edward Golden, A. Montague and William Scully.

Attendance Grows At WPA Projects

WPA recreation and cultural programs, considered by some exhibitors to be a form of competition to theatres, had a total of 12,319,869 participants in New York during the six-month period ended June 30th, according to Colonel Brehon B. Somervell, WPA administrator.

Commenting on the growth of the projects, Colonel Somervell said: "This steady drift toward a finer ideal of living through cultural leisure time activity will grow and bring community satisfaction during the next six months."

Of the total, 9,460,498 contacts were with children and 2,869,390 were with adults. Cultural activities, including arts, crafts, music, dancing, fencing, puppetry and dramatics, group discussions and forms had a total participation of 2,993,284, of which 2,242,894 were contacts with children and 750,390 with adults.

The report showed a cumulative attendance in arts and crafts of 901,709; in recreational dancing, 503,413; in recreational dramatics, 195,504; in recreational music, 620,313; in puppetry, 106,608; in fencing, 13,443; in group discussions, 70,663; and in miscellaneous cultural activities and special events, 181,639.

National Theatres Regional Meeting at Kansas City

Executives and theatre staffs of National Theatres met this week in Kansas City for a three-day regional gathering that adjourned on Thursday.

H. A. McClure, district manager, and Frank Ritter, manager of the Isis, had charge of the golf tournament Wednesday afternoon. Edd Haas, district manager, and Stanley Chambers, director of the Uptown and Tower here, took care of the banquet. Jim Long of the Plaza, Sam Naster of the Lincoln and Charles Barnes of the Uptown handled decorations.

National Theatres' negotiations for United Artists, Universal and Paramount product for 1938-'39 will be resumed following the circuit's regional meetings, which will be concluded in Los Angeles Aug. 17.

The two product deals closed by the circuit to date have been for two years. These are with Twentieth Century-Fox and RKO. Two-year contracts were negotiated with MGM, Columbia and Warners last year and are in effect for the coming season. Whether the deals with the remaining three companies will be for one or two years is uncertain.

Twentieth Century-Fox is not making any deals for more than one year, it is said, and the National Theatres two-year contract appears to be an exception.

New York's constitutional convention Wednesday rejected a proposal to abolish the state board of motion picture censorship.

ITALIANS MUST NOT WALK OUT ON OWN FILMS: VITTORIO MUSSOLINI

Duce's Son Issues Revised "Ten Commandments" of Cinema; Says Duty Is to "Love Our Films" When They Displease

by JOSEPH D. RAVOTTO in Rome

Italians have been ordered to love their own films and never leave a motion picture theatre while Italian films are being projected—be they good, bad or indifferent.

Taking a leaf from his father's book, Vittorio Mussolini, who aspired to the post of dictator of the Italian film industry presently held by Luigi Freddi, has issued this edict and he expects patriotic Italians to abide by it.

It is rule No. 3 in a list of "Ten Commandments" of the Italian cinema which the Duce's son recently published in the motion picture weekly Schermi del Mondo. Vittorio also deplores films with "a double meaning of the French type, full of suggestiveness, of badly concealed novelties and sterile cerebralisms."

His "Aphorisms," as he calls them, follow:

1. If you have a subject, you may find a patron when you least expect it. Above all, remember that your scripts go in everyone's hands.

2. Cinema is a modern work and must be considered as a true industry, in the same way that automobiles and silk are.

3. Too many people abandon cinema houses when Italian films are projected. On the contrary, it is the duty to love our films still more, even if they cause us much displeasure.

4. Much tact and intelligent intuition is required to create a strong cinematographic industry.

5. I judge a film according to the interest it stirs in me and according to the sense of pleasure which the swiftness of action, without artifice and without muddling, from the screen to my eyes, gives me.

6. Watchful attention: the filing past of 100 attractive girls is less vulgar and sensual than the trite farce with a double meaning of the French type, full of suggestiveness, of badly concealed novelties and sterile cerebralisms.

7. The most amusing critic is he who is caught between a conscience and the desire to do harm to no one. He speaks well of a film in the opening lines of his criticisms, tears it to pieces somewhere in the middle, and praises it towards the end.

8. All those who truly understand films ought to have the privilege of being nearer the industry instead of being obliged to waylay the films upon their appearance in order to execute them in the newspaper and magazine columns.

9. The historical film rests on such foundations that success can hardly ever be missed. When it is produced according to all the rules of art and interpreted exceedingly well, it assumes a special form of cinema art which is truly effective upon the public.

10. The public now knows the art of filth, even when ardent attempts are made to create it. The Italian public is a judge of quality and is becoming increasingly refined.

These "aphorisms" are of the same tone as an article which the Duce's son wrote for the magazine Film soon after his unhappy jaunt to Hollywood.

GARBO'S SILENCE PIQUES ITALIANS

Italian motion picture writers and others in film circles are outspoken in criticism of the silence of Greta Garbo following the star's silent treatment of an offer of 5,000,000 lire ($250,000) from Scalera Brothers, new production and distribution company, to make a picture in Italy. Scalera asked Frank Capra to direct the film. The company also offered to employ Isa Miranda.

While Film supposes that the cautious Scandinavian actress never even opened the telegram, the Giornale d'Italia accuses her of bad manners, of lacking even the courtesy of wiring a negative answer. It says that a film with Garbo and Capra would cost about 12,000,000 lire to make. It adds that Italian producers could produce half a dozen films for the same money.

Florida Court Postpones Ban on Chance Games

Florida's Supreme Court has issued a writ to Gulf Theatres, Inc., prohibiting county officials from interfering with "Bank Night" until the court shall have passed on the legality of the game in Florida, and that will probably not be before October.

Circuit Court Judge Parks had issued an injunction against Gulf Theatres prohibiting further drawings on the grounds that it was a violation of the state lottery laws. The circuit appealed to the Supreme Court and was going ahead with the drawings until the case was heard, but county Solicitor Williams warned he would bring criminal action. The theatres discontinued the drawings until able to secure the writ from the court.

Kendor Takes Carmel Theatre

Kendor Productions, Inc., producer of a series of "New Talent" musical short subjects, has acquired the Rockridge Theatre and the Rockridge School of Theatre and Screen in Carmel, N. Y. W. Ray Cozine will be manager and will be assisted by Robert Kendall Goodhue of the William Morris Agency. The first two productions of the season, "Away From It All" and "Old Autumn," will star Aline McMahon and Marie Kenney, respectively.

Roach Switches Films

Hal Roach announced this week that "Captain Midnight" will supplant "Robbery Under Arms" on his film program for the current season. Margaret Sullavan and Brian Aherne will play the leads and John G. Blystone will direct.

New Finance Plan For Mexican Films

by JAMES LOCKHART
in Mexico City

Adequate financing for the Mexican industry seems assured with the completion of plans for establishing a government supervised bank in Mexico City by the senatorial committee that was assigned the proposition last winter. The bank is to have a capital of 100,000,000 pesos (about $22,000,000) to be underwritten equally by the industry and the government. President Lazaro Cardenas has given his moral support to the proposition and Congress is expected to approve the measure soon.

In announcing that it had completed plans for the bank, the senatorial committee which comprises Senators Ernesto Soto Reyes, Jose Maria Davila and David Ayala issued a statement which throws some interesting light upon present financing of the domestic industry.

The committee avers that not a few backers of made in Mexico pictures claim, and get, from 20 to 50 per cent of the picture's gross exhibition receipts. As it now costs from 50,000 to 100,000 pesos (about $11,000 to $22,000) to produce a film in this country, the producer, under present circumstances, has to borrow not only from his backer but from supply houses and distributors, so much so that even when a picture has had a good run at home and abroad the maker finds himself with hardly a centavo for his work and worry, the committee concludes.

The new bank is to insure not only the producers but all in the industry more money, it is promised. The bank is also to act as a distributor which will exercise more direct control over production and the industry in general, so that money that is now consumed by many middle men will go to the producers and the workers.

The plan calls for a tax of from five to ten per cent on gross cinema receipts to help along the bank's capital fund.

Mexican movie labor is becoming more united with a move toward one big national union, or at least a very few strong organizations. Several small unions have been absorbed by larger ones. The move has spread from Mexico City to the provinces.

News reels have become so popular in Mexico City that the Cine Olimpia, a first run house and the only cinema in the Mexican capital that is owned and operated directly by Americans (Edmond Noonan, brother of Sally O'Neil, is the manager) is showing these shorts twice and frequently thrice a week. This is a departure. The general practice is to run one newsreel a week. The Olimpia is using Fox-Movietone.

Rejection of all applications for permits to convert Mexico City theatres into cinemas has been asked of the Municipal government by the national actors and allied unions on the ground that increasing conversion of theatres is throwing actors out of work.

IN THE BRITISH STUDIOS

by AUBREY FLANAGAN
in London

First from MGM

The first Gaumont-British-Gainsborough production being made under the new agreement with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, for release by MGM as quota product, is "Old Bones of the River," in which Will Hay has the starring role.

The launching of work at Sound City, Sapperton, has no other significance than the fact that the grounds of the studio through which runs a creek, are ideal for the shooting of African exteriors.

Directing the comedy is Marcel Varnel. The script, adapted from an Edgar Wallace novel, is handled by Val Guest and Marriott Edgar. Graham Moffatt and Moore Marriott, members of the Will Hay comedy team, are in the cast.

The story concerns the activities of Professor Tibbetts, who, in his effort to educate the natives of West Africa, becomes involved in the biggest upheaval since the Zulu War.

For Scotland

Just as "Yellow Sands" translated into screen terms the scenery and atmosphere of Devon, so is it intended that "Marigold," the Associated British production now in full swing, will recreate the spirit and scenic grandeur of Scotland. Location work has been proceeding against a magnificent Scottish background, and in the shadows of Edinburgh's noble castle a page of history has been lived again, with spectacular scenes of the visit to the city of Queen Victoria. Nearly two hundred men of the Royal Scots Fusiliers garbed in their picturesque kilted uniform of 1842, formed a guard of honor, while Pamela Stanley, as Her Majesty, was piped into the castle by the regiment's band.

Already twelve pictures on the Associated British schedule for the current production year have been concluded. "Marigold" is the thirteenth. Twelve more will follow.

Though a slow-down will be necessary at Elstree in order to permit holidays for the staff, two films, "Luck of the Navy" and "The Outsider," will be on the floor this month.

New Company

George Smith, who is making quota pictures for release by RKO Radio, has formed New Georgian Productions, and the first effort under this banner will be "Happy Fugitive," for release by British Independent Exhibitors (Distribution) Co., Ltd., now in full swing at the Worton Hall studios, Isleworth.

Adapted from a story by Guy Beauchamp, this romantic comedy has as its leading players Barry K. Barnes and Googie Withers.

Appliquéd White Kid

Though music is the first essential of the Gilbert and Sullivan production of "The Mikado," producer Geoffrey Toye also has concentrated upon color values. Exteriors and sets have been designed by Marcel Vertes and made under the guidance of Mrs. Natalie Kalmus.

A flash of the colors which will be seen in the film is contained in the news that Nanki-Poo, in the person of the American radio songster Kenny Baker and as one of the more severely dressed characters in the film, wears in one scene a steel grey silk uniform with Japanese characters appliquéd in white kid, carries a sword in a purple scabbard and wears a gold head-dress.

It is claimed by the producer that there is no word sung in his scenario that Gilbert did not write, and no music played that Sullivan did not compose.

Since the British Home Office granted permission last year for the portrayal of the person of Queen Victoria on the screen the nineteenth century queen and empress has been a favorite British screen character. She is played above by Pamela Stanley in "Marigold," an Associated British screen version of the Scottish period play of the same name.

Opening

Date for the opening of Warners' new theatre in London, now being erected on the site of old Daly's Theatre in Leicester Square, has been definitely set for October 11th. Sam E. Morris, vice-president in charge of Warner foreign activities, and Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Warner will cross for the opening of the company's first theatre in a foreign country.

Mr. Morris has appointed Will Pepper as manager of the new house in the British capital.

Work has just been concluded at the Nettlefold Studios, Walton on Thames, on the George Smith production, "Weddings are Wonderful," direction by Maclean Rogers for release by RKO Radio.

Completed is the London Film production "Prison Without Bars," based upon the successful French picture of similar title. The film was finished by director Brian Desmond Hurst, who succeeded the original director, Maxwell Wray.

Britain's weekend football pool gamble is to form the subject matter of a new British picture. Reginald Fogwell, having acquired the rights of a story entitled "If I Won a Pool," has scheduled this as his next production at the recently constructed studios at Southall.

Joan Marion has been placed under a long term contract by Associated British following her work on "Black Limelight."

* * *

"The Return of the Frog," an Edgar Wallace thriller, has gone into production under the Imperator mark at Beaconsfield, with Maurice Elvey directing.

London gangsters of 1700, with Jonathan Wild as the Al Capone of the period, will be characters in a costume piece set for production at the Warner-First National Studios, Teddington, and titled "The First Gangster."

Sonnie Hale, husband of Jessie Matthews, returns to the screen in the new Michael Balcon production, "The Gaunt Stranger," which Balcon is making from the Edgar Wallace thriller of the same name.

Precisely the same production unit, from cameraman to clapperboy, that worked on "The Private Life of Henry the Eighth," has been reassembled for work on the London Film production.

* * *

Three short subjects, made by Greatrix-Pearson Productions for release by British Independent Exhibitors (Distribution) Co., Ltd., and entitled "Old Soldiers," "Mother of Men" and "Souvenir," have been made by the Dufaycolor process under the aegis of producer Philip Geatrix and director George Pearson.

"Bloody Well OK"

The British film censor has turned a deaf ear for once and has raised no objections to the inclusion in Pascal's version of "Pygmalion" of the classic line "Not bloody likely."

To negotiate the situation in case the Censor objected to the adjective, the producer took the precaution of filming two versions of the scene in which the line is spoken by Eliza, the cockney flower girl, played by Wendy Hiller; in one scene the line was played, in the other it was omitted.

The crucial "bloody" is included in the American version of the picture, on the thesis that though Americans do not give it the same significance, it is supposedly to them quaint and amusing English!

BRITISH TRADE AWAITING CHANGES IN CENSORSHIP, LICENSE CONTROL

Revision of 1909 Act Forecast in County Council Attitude; Exhibitors Demand Curb on Free Show Competition

by AUBREY FLANAGAN
in London

Several disconnected but significant straws seen during the last few weeks floating in the eddying winds of British politics, more especially that section specifically concerned with the motion picture industry, indicate that changes in the fundamental Cinematograph Act of 1909, the constitutional foster parent of British film legislation, are not beyond the grounds of practical politics. There is little doubt that changes are not only highly desirable, but that they would be welcomed inside the trade and outside, more especially in regard to censorship and the control of film shows, on unlicensed premises.

The appointment by the Home Secretary of Lord Stonehaven as chairman of the new Advisory Council, which is to assist the Home Office in administering the 1909 Act—which is not to be confused in any way with that passed this year—indicates that the process of examination and analysis, potential prelude to amendment, is now to be launched.

This Advisory Council has long been threatened. It now becomes a reality. Formed as a result of pressure on the part of British, and that includes Scottish, licensing bodies, and attendant busybodies, it will advise the Home Office on the administration of the Act, make recommendation in regard to such matters as censorship, non-inflammable film, unlicensed shows and so forth. It will not lack suggestion or advices.

An examination of its personnel will probably convince the student of trade politics that it is not likely to be swayed by a trade bias. It will include representatives of County Councils, Corporations, and Justices from whom picture theatre owners receive their licenses, of Local Government Associations, of Scots bodies and three members of the general public. If, thanks either to a divine afflatus or pressure from the Church of England or the film trade, it suggests changes in the administration of the Act, or minor amendments, these are likely to go through. That it will not suggest a new Act, or even drastic alteration of the present Act, is fairly clear for reasons which will ultimately be examined. To it the CEA will bring representations for more stringent control of film shows given on unlicensed premises, both on "non-flam" film, which is technically outside the scope of the Act, and on ordinary film stock, on premises not licensed in the ordinary way, or subject to the same exacting and drastic control and supervision which are levied on motion picture exhibitors.

Indication that local Councils and licensing bodies would welcome either a change, or alternatively a sharper definition of their powers, is contained in a recent decision at the London County Council, largest and most important of British licensing authorities, to apply for sharper powers in regard to the control of "non-flam" film shows, i. e. film shows technically outside the scope of the Act.

The National Association of Theatrical and Kine Employees, labour union embracing cinema studio workers, also favours action and has called, in fact, for an amendment of the 1909 Act.

Various local bodies of municipal and civic character, uplift organizations and would-be censors of the public morals, are likewise consistently urging drastic amendments to existing legislation, usually in the direction of tighter municipal control of censorship.

Toy Projectors Attacked

Recently the Home Office committee on the use of celluloid recommended the complete prohibition of the sale and hire of toy projectors capable of using ordinary cinema film, and likewise of the unrestricted sale to the general public of inflammable film—particularly that in the junk category.

American readers of MOTION PICTURE HERALD should remember that the Cinematograph Act of 1909 was formed primarily "for making better provision for securing safety at kinematograph and other exhibitions." It applies only to shows holding a license where inflammable films are used, but contains no definition of the word inflammable. It defines the status and powers of licensing authorities—in most cases County or Borough Councils or local Justices. Under its provisions, picture house proprietors are compelled to observe stipulations regarding lighting, electric power, seating, and the attendance of young children, and though it is not actually stipulated in the Act, indirectly, the submission of films to the trade controlled British Board of Film Censors.

Most of these present discontents are focussed upon the operations of the Act in regard to "non-flam" film. The trade in particular which has suffered, more in the provinces than in the London area, from competition from film shows given by advertising organizations, manufacturers, saloon store keepers, and most competitively of all by churches, is determined that time is a little more than ripe for a change, or at least a development of existing legislation. The competition is considerable. Literally hundreds of churches give film shows in church halls and churches themselves, often of pictures recently or currently in general release; for these shows very nominal prices of admission are charged. Saloons in central and northern England stage film shows free of charge for the customers. Advertising agencies of commodities increasingly road show pictures, boosting their wares together with topicals, sport subjects and cartoons. Some of these shows are given on "non-flam," and are thus outside the scope of the Act. Others are given on inflammable stock but in premises which do not comply with, and are not asked to comply with, the stringent safety regulations upon which licensing bodies insist from exhibitors.

How confusing the whole situation is can be seen from a recent incident in which the London County Council was involved. Asked by a London exhibitor who contemplated showing a picture which had been turned down by the Council and rejected by the Censor, what would be the Council's attitude if they showed it on "non-flam," they intimated they would view it with the utmost disfavour. The exhibitor and the distributors of the film were set for a test case, a test case which might have been of paramount national importance. But judicious intervention by a public figure behind the theatre concerned, resulted in the film show being abandoned. The theatre was the Polytechnic Theatre, Oxford Street, the film "Golgotha" and the man whose action prevented a cause celebre was Sir Kynaston Studd.

The intervention has placated exhibitors to some extent, inasmuch as it has put a bar up against the competition of extra trade, subjects and organizations, but it has left completely unsolved the real problem, the problem of the control of "non-flam" film shows in unlicensed halls. Whether the Socialist County Council of London will take action in favour of legislation which would greatly narrow the field of film propaganda, sponsored by radical and left-wing organizations up and down the country, remains yet to be seen. But that much pressure will be exerted upon them and their fellow Councillors in other parts of the country, by the trade, and that this will be brought ultimately before the Home Office Advisory Council, is inevitable.

New Act Not Likely

A new Act is not likely, nor for that matter is any drastic amendment in legislation likely, which would interfere with the existing powers of local authorities and licensing bodies. It is true that the 1909 Act was designed for public safeguard when the industry was in an embryo stage and not in its present mature adult condition. But changes in the Act, to be fundamentally effective, would deprive local authorities of their wide present day powers.

A further snag is clearly seen in the operation of any new legislation against "non-flam" upon the rapidly increasing use of films in the educational field. Anything which tended to limit or restrict the use of the cinema in schools, educational and academic bodies would be frowned upon by Government, educationists and small but enlightened sections of the public and the trade.

Any new Act likewise by the very changes and conditions would have to be much more stringent, and would appreciate considerably building and equipment costs. Experience shows that the one thing that the British Government would avoid at all costs is an upheaval. But some amendment is overdue—and ultimately inevitable.

NEWSREELS GO TO SEA TO FILM CORRIGAN

Emerge from Reek of Fish on Schooner to Board the SS Manhattan in Heavy Fog

While New York's many and varied reception committees wrangled in the heat of last week over who was to extend the first "welcome home" to Douglas (I-flew-the-wrong-way) Corrigan, a group of 20 men, five of them representing Paramount and Universal newsreels, stole a march on the country and were the first to shake hands with the pilot who headed for California in a $900 plane and landed in Ireland. They also got the first arrival pictures.

The unofficial welcoming delegates, sopping wet and with a strong aroma of fish, extended their greetings to the aviator as the SS Manhattan plowed through a blanket of fog, 50 miles off Nantucket Lightship and more than 12 hours away from New York. It was the first time in years the newsreels had gone out to sea from these shores for a story.

It was also the first time in the memory of Paramount and Universal newsreel officials that cameramen had succeeded in boarding a ship so far out at sea. Previous attempts, they said, had ended in failure due to miscalculations, heavy seas, fog and other adverse conditions.

The plans for boarding the Manhattan, it seemed for a time, also were destined to go awry. It was only after 18 hours aboard a 65-foot fishing schooner that the photographers, radio announcers and technicians, and newspapermen sighted the slow-moving black hulk that turned out to be the Manhattan.

With the five newsreel men were 11 from National Broadcasting Company and Columbia Broadcasting System, two from the Associated Press, a New York Daily News photographer and an agent from the Department of Internal Revenue.

4,000 Feet of Film

As a result of their adventurous trip, the newsreel men were able to spend an entire day on board the Manhattan, shooting a total of almost 4,000 feet of pictures of Corrigan. Also, they were perched in choice spots when the Manhattan steamed into quarantine and the mad scramble of photographers, newsmen and well-wishers began.

Credit for the idea went to NBC. When the news "leaked" out both Paramount and Universal officials went to work and obtained permission to join the NBC crew of six men.

Universal assigned Roy Edwards, cameraman, and George Graham, sound man, and Paramount sent Henry DiSiena, cameraman; Louis Cass, sound man, and Alfred DeBenedetto, electrician, who carried with him a complete set of lights for taking night shots.

The group of 19 men left New York at 1:45 a. m. Wednesday and arrived by train in Providence, R. I., at 5 o'clock. After a two and a half hour automobile ride they arrived in New Bedford, Mass., all set to leave on the schooner Martha Murley.

The first hitch in the plans came even before they got under way. W. J. Fitzgerald, a customs house man from New Bedford, was to accompany them on the Martha Murley and was to clear their two tons of equipment through the customs in New York. Mr. Fitzgerald, however, received a letter from the Treasury Department in Washington informing him that the radio men had obtained permission to stop the Manhattan and board it.

Mr. Fitzgerald was adamant. "Orders are orders," he insisted. "The letters say the radio men are to go and they're the only ones that are going."

There was a scramble for telephones. Calls were put through to New York offices. Calls were put through to Washington, and finally, at 12:30 p. m., everything was straightened out and the Martha Murley pulled up anchor with all on board.

Of the two tons of equipment, more than half consisted of huge storage batteries for use in broadcasting.

Comes the Fog

The sea was calm and the ocean breeze was a welcome relief to the city men. The ship, registered in the name of Carl Dakin, who was the cook, headed for Nantucket Lightship, 80 miles out from New Bedford. Long before it reached Nantucket Lightship a heavy fog enveloped it, so thick, said Mr. Graham, that "you could reach out and grab yourself a handful."

There were only six bunks on the Martha Murley, which carried a crew of seven men. Of the photographers, newspapermen and radio men who sought in vain for comfortable resting places, some huddled in the tiny cabin, others chose to stretch out on the deck, covering themselves with tarpaulins that reeked of fish.

"The tarpaulins," said Mr. Edwards, "were of little good. They smelled so of fish that you couldn't pull them over your head and when you left your head out, the water just ran off the tarpaulin onto you."

Cargo Baskets Lift Equipment

There was a flurry of excitement a few hours before daybreak when a member of the crew sighted lights off to one side. Everyone thought it was the Manhattan, but it was the Coast Guard Cutter Thetus. What with the Martha Murley crew having celebrated freely, the cutter was a welcome sight to the passengers.

With the cutter leading the way, the Martha Murley finally was led gingerly, in the fog, to the incoming Manhattan, at 6:30 a. m. Thursday.

After a series of megaphoned shouts, Captain Edward A. Richman brought the Manhattan to a halt.

Wicker cargo baskets five feet square, were lowered and the men piled the equipment into them. Once the "cargo had been transferred the 20 men climbed up a jacob's ladder and 25 minutes after they had sighted the Manhattan they were headed for New York.

Corrigan, despite the early hour, was up and about. He watched the transfer of the equipment from a port hole and when the "welcoming committee" went aboard he was right on hand to welcome them.

The welcome in quarantine, at the 59th Street pier and along Broadway the next day was all that the newsreels expected; there was plenty of material for all cameramen.

Movietone News, with 15 men, had the largest number on the assignment. The others had nine to twelve men each.

Myron Selznick will form a production unit on a profit sharing basis with Carole Lombard. Gregory La Cava will be director and, at the request of Miss Lombard, the unit will bear his name.

20th-Fox Closes 5,500 Deals for 1938-'39 Product

Twentieth Century-Fox has obtained a total of 5,500 product contracts for 1938-'39, an increase of 10 to 12 per cent over the number of deals closed by the company at this time last year.

With selling having started last February, the contracts already signed represent about 50 per cent of the sales possibilities of the company. It is expected that the release this month of "Alexander's Ragtime Band" and the sixth annual S. R. Kent Drive, which will start next week, will give added impetus to the sales efforts.

The closing of product deals last week with B&K and Great States Theatres in Chicago is understood to give Twentieth Century-Fox its best representation in the two circuits' theatres in the history of the company. More Loop engagements than ever before are scheduled.

The company has discarded roadshows for its big pictures in favor of pre-release and regular runs backed by heavy exploitation campaigns. Herman Wobber, head of distribution, believes that roadshows are unfair to subsequent runs and make them wait too long for the film after the initial advertising momentum.

James P. O'Loghlin, Kent Drive leader, is confident that this year's drive will exceed last year's record breaking results because of improved economic and industrial conditions expected in the fall and because of the pictures the company has scheduled for release during the new season.

Mr. O'Loghlin just completed visits to all exchanges in the United States and Canada in preparation for the drive. On September 1st he will meet Mr. Wobber on the coast for another visit to the branches, returning to New York about October 1st. He will cover the field for a third time with division managers, starting October 15th.

Resigns After 20 Years

Walter S. Quade, for 20 years with the Universal exchange in Oklahoma City, has resigned as salesman for western Oklahoma and has been succeeded by W. G. Ray, formerly with Paramount in Memphis.

Schreiber Regains Circuit

Jacob Schreiber, who sold out his five theatre circuit last November to Advance Theatrical Operation Corporation, has regained possession. Jack Broder, who with Howard Harris, headed the former Advance organization, will continue to operate the candy concession in the theatres.

William Randolph Hearst, publisher and producer of the News of the Day, was overassessed $242,759 in capital gains taxes for 1930 and the amount credited against taxes for another year, the Internal Revenue Bureau in Washington decided last weekend.

W. A. Finney, Loew's district manager, has been transferred from Columbus to Atlanta, succeeding Lionel Keene, resigned. Mike Cullen of Pittsburgh goes to the Columbus post.

WHAT THE PICTURE DID FOR ME

Columbia

AWFUL TRUTH, THE: Irene Dunne, Cary Grant, Ralph Bellamy—This is one of the comedy pictures of the year. Enough said. Business good. Running time, 92 minutes. Played June 18-19.—Fischer and Bichler, Mattray Theatre, Strasburg, N. D. Small town patronage.

CITY STREETS: Edith Fellows, Leo Carrillo—I wouldn't give my opinion on this picture. My people went out of the theatre more or less disgusted. Some said it was fair, trying to be courteous to me, I imagine. Others came right out and said it was terrible. A word to the wise is sufficient. Running time, 63 minutes. Played July 30, 1938.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

HOLIDAY: Katharine Hepburn, Cary Grant, Doris Nolan, Lew Ayres, Edward Everett Horton, Binnie Barnes, Jean Dixon—Dear ole Katie Hepburn, the boys down here in the Ozarks just will not come to see you and I guess I have gone hillbilly because I won't even look at your pictures myself and for lack of business and good comments, I guess it was not so hot. One thing about specials: They're like life, damned uncertain and you never know what you're going to get from either. Running time, 92 minutes. Played July 10-11.—A. J. Simmons, Plaza Theatre, Lamar, Mo. Rural patronage.

OUTLAWS OF THE PRAIRIE: Charles Starrett, Donald Grayson—These Starrett and Grayson westerns are getting better right along and will soon be up there with the best of them. Only kick we have is they make them a little too short for us. Running time, 56 minutes. Played July 30.—A. J. Simmons, Plaza Theatre, Lamar, Mo. General patronage.

OVERLAND EXPRESS, THE: Buck Jones, Marjorie Reynolds—This is one of the best Buck Jones we have had. A story of the Pony Express and such stories always go over for us. It's full of action but none of those foolish and nearly impossible scenes. Played July 22-23.—Bill Simon, Rialto Theatre, Saguache, Col. Small town and rural patronage.

PENITENTIARY: Walter Connolly, Jean Parker, John Howard—If your customers like prison stories, you can build this to the sky and they will like it. It's a good picture. Don't be afraid to step on it. We gave it a little extra advertising and did the best Friday and Saturday business in ten weeks. Played July 22-23.—Ben Simon, Rialto Theatre, Saguache, Col. Small town and rural patronage.

START CHEERING: Jimmy Durante, Joan Perry—Another good picture from Columbia. Good for any theatre. Business good. Played July 16-17.—Fischer and Bichler, Mattray Theatre, Strasburg, N. D. Small town patronage.

WIDE OPEN FACES: Joe E. Brown, Jane Wyman—Gave satisfaction to the Joe E. Brown fans, although our business was below normal. Played July 16.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

First National

BELOVED BRAT: Bonita Granville, Dolores Costello, Donald Crisp, Natalie Moorhead—A swell picture. Wish we had more of this kind. Just what our people like. Played July 20.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D. Small town patronage.

PENROD'S DOUBLE TROUBLE: Billy and Bobby Mauch—This Penrod picture was tops to our audience. Best of the Penrod series. We could have made some money on this picture but it is so short that it has to be double billed and the second feature takes the profit. Played July 28-30.—Alvin C. Myrick, State Theatre, Lake Park, Iowa. Small town and rural patronage.

Grand National

SIX SHOOTIN' SHERIFF: Ken Maynard, Marjorie Reynolds—The picture is very good material if they had a lead that could draw them in. Running time, 55 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

ARSENE LUPIN RETURNS: Virginia Bruce, Melvyn Douglas, Warren William—A nice picture; everyone liked this one. Running time, 80 minutes. Played July 29.—Oaty H. Elmore, Best Theatre, Charleston, W. Va. General patronage.

In this, the exhibitors' own department, the theatremen of the nation serve one another with information on the box-office performance of product for their mutual benefit. It is a service of the exhibitor for the exhibitor. Address all communications to—

What the Picture Did for Me
MOTION PICTURE HERALD
Rockefeller Center, New York

EVERYBODY SING: Allan Jones, Judy Garland, Fanny Brice, Billie Burke—Brice another star of the legit that's out in pictures. A. Jones don't mean a thing. Garland good, pleasing star. Fair reports.—Charles L. Fisk, Fisk Theatre, Butler, Mo. General patronage.

GIRL OF THE GOLDEN WEST, THE: Jeannette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy, Walter Pidgeon—Eddy and MacDonald had about as much excuse for being in this picture as a bull in a china store. Too much singing that did not fit horse opery. Plenty walkouts. Running time, 110 minutes.—Charles L. Fisk, Fisk Theatre, Butler, Mo. General patronage.

HOLD THAT KISS: Mickey Rooney, Dennis O'Keefe, Maureen O'Sullivan—What a peach of a picture for small town trade. Here is one picture that Rooney did not steal from the balance of the cast. The other two Irish held their own and how! A swell show that everyone likes. Running time, 74 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

LOVE FINDS ANDY HARDY: Judy Garland, Lewis Stone, Mickey Rooney, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden, Ann Rutherford, Lana Turner—Tops. Surpasses all of the Judge Hardy series. This is doing big business all over the country. Beats all of the real big pictures that Metro has put out. Mickey Rooney brings down the house every other scene in this picture. Mark my words, Mickey, you are headed for real big things. Rooney is real box office at any theatreman's box office now, and now is the time to cash in on his name. The picture is one laugh from start to finish and I, personally, endorse this as one of the best all around pictures that I have seen, not just this year but any year since the start of the moving picture industry. This is a family picture. We packed them in for two days in a row. You can do the same. Give the picture plenty of publicity and it will do wonders, yes, miracles for you. The rest is up to you. Every patron in the theatre will come out after seeing the picture with a smile on their face and ask you for more like it. Don't miss this one under any circumstances. Congratulations are in store for every actor and actress in the picture besides the producer and director. Orchids to you, one and all, and may you produce more to compare with this masterpiece. Running time, 91 minutes. Played July 24-25.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

MERRILY WE LIVE: Patsy Kelly, Constance Bennett, Brian Aherne, Billie Burke—Kelly the only star to draw. Was hogtied. Never had a chance. Burke and Bennett passed on with Ziegfeld. No business.—Charles L. Fisk, Fisk Theatre, Butler, Mo. General patronage.

OF HUMAN HEARTS: Walter Huston, James Stewart, Beulah Bondi—The only regret that I have is not being able to play this one week instead of one day. It will do anyone lots of good to see it and play it. If it makes money here, it should anywhere. Running time, 105 minutes. Played June 10.—Dozier Roberts, Peoples Theatres, Inc., of Alabama, Elba Theatre, Elba, Ala. Small town patronage.

TEST PILOT: See report on United Artists' "The Adventures of Tom Sawyer."

TOY WIFE, THE: Luise Rainer, Melvyn Douglas, Robert Young, Barbara O'Neil, H. B. Warner—This is a class picture and as such I think that it will fail in the smaller situations. As with most of Metro's pictures, it has skillful direction; care shows in depicting the story on the screen. But, in the last analysis, it has just a little too much class for popular appeal, which, to say the least, is regrettable. Call it a prestige picture and you have it. But you can't eat prestige. I speak only from a small town viewpoint. The picture is worthy of support for those that like the better things but there are not enough of them here.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

YELLOW JACK: Robert Montgomery, Lewis Stone, Virginia Bruce, Henry Hull, Charles Coburn—It was not liked. Then, it moved too slow. There really was not enough to this episode of yellow fever to make a picture and that is just what happened. They did not make an audience picture of it. It lacked the tempo, so the audience reaction was unfavorable.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

YANK AT OXFORD, A: Robert Taylor, Maureen O'Sullivan, Lionel Barrymore, Vivien Leigh—Tried to make a he-man of Taylor all in one picture. Overdid it. Too long. Only fair business. And you makers of shorts, for the love of Mike, cut out some of the songs. You shipwreck a guy in the middle of the ocean and he comes up singing and always there is an orchestra on the spot to play for him.—Charles L. Fisk, Fisk Theatre, Butler, Mo. General patronage.

Monogram

MY OLD KENTUCKY HOME: Grant Richards, Evelyn Venable—This picture pleases 100 per cent and drew much better than "The Adventures of Marco Polo," "Four Men and a Prayer" and "Fools for Scandal," which we paid much more money for and played on same days of the week. What this country needs is more theatre owners with brains enough to play these independently produced pictures that get more money than socalled big pictures. Give us more like this, Mr. Dunlap and Mr. Derr. We will play them. Running time, 72 minutes. Played July 24-25.—A. J. Simmons, Plaza Theatre, Lamar, Mo. Rural patronage.

Paramount

COLLEGE SWING: Martha Raye, George Burns and Gracie Allen, Bob Hope, Edward Everett Horton, Betty Grable, Jackie Coogan—If this is funny, then I am a diamond cutter. To think a company capable of producing pictures like "Wells Fargo" and "The Texans" would make one like this. Raye has talents but Burns and Allen are dead and buried years ago. Running time, 87 minutes. Played July 17-18.—A. J. Simmons, Plaza Theatre, Lamar, Mo. Rural patronage.

DANGEROUS TO KNOW: Akim Tamiroff, Anna May Wong, Gail Patrick—Why take a good actor and ruin him in a picture that don't mean a thing, either to producer or theatre, is more than one of the customers can understand. Another actor that it will take two good pictures to put back in his rightful place. Surely had the production department asked any usher in any theatre about this type story, they would have tabooed the thing. Running time, 70 minutes. Played July 23.—A. J. Simmons, Plaza Theatre, Lamar, Mo. Rural patronage.

EVERY DAY'S A HOLIDAY: Mae West, Edmund Lowe, Charles Butterworth, Charles Winninger—Just a fair musical. Nothing to write home about. Mae West is dying out. Business poor. Running time, 78 minutes. Played July 2-3.—Fischer and Bichler, Mattray Theatre, Strasburg, N. D. Small town patronage.

NOW AND FOREVER: Shirley Temple, Gary Cooper, Carole Lombard—We picked this up instead of some of the new pictures and are glad we did. It went over good with the ladies and kids, but not so good with the men folk. Business good. Running time, 70 minutes. Played July 23-24.—Fischer and Bichler, Mattray Theatre, Strasburg, N. D. Small town patronage.

STOLEN HEAVEN: Olympe Bradna, Gene Raymond, Lewis Stone, Glenda Farrell—Not much of a picture for small town audiences. Slow, draggy and music too high brow. Just is not there. Could not follow the story very well and know the majority of the audience was of the same mind. Bradna is not built up enough to carry the lead and Raymond had better be MacDonald's husband and forget the screen. —A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

STOLEN HEAVEN: Gene Raymond, Olympe Bradna, Lewis Stone, Glenda Farrell—Unless you have just inherited a fortune, don't play this one for you cannot

TRUE STORIES FROM ALTEC FILES

TED NICHOLAS,
Manager of the Lyric Theatre, Indianapolis, Ind.

Quick Action by Engineer Saves Afternoon Show

INDIANAPOLIS, IND.—"Just a few minutes before our Saturday afternoon stage show, the sound suddenly stopped," declared Ted Nicholas, Manager of the Lyric Theatre here.

"We called our Altec Inspector, P. V. Woolley, at 1:30 P.M. He arrived at 1:45, and discovered a short circuit in the motor-generator armature. He immediately connected some storage batteries obtained locally to provide power in place of the defective motor-generator. Sound was ready right on schedule when the picture hit the sheet at the close of the stage show at 2:05.

"Woolley stayed with us the remainder of the day to be sure that the improvised power supply would hold up without interruption. He installed a new armature from Altec's warehouse the next morning and by opening time Sunday everything was normal."

"...THAT YOUR THEATRE MAY NEVER BE DARK."

expect it to make you a dime in a small town theatre. Running time, 85 minutes. Played June 15-16.—Dozier Roberts, Peoples Theatres, Inc., of Alabama, Elba Theatre, Elba, Ala.

THIS WAY, PLEASE: Charles (Buddy) Rogers, Betty Grable—A very nice little picture with plenty of comedy to make it worthwhile. Business fair. Running time, 73 minutes. Played May 28-29.—Fischer and Bichler, Mattray Theatre, Strasburg, N. D. Small town patronage.

WELLS FARGO: Joel McCrea, Bob Burns, Frances Dee—An exceptionally good picture but somehow didn't do the business it should have had. Business only fair. Running time, 115 minutes. Played June 11-12.—Fischer and Bichler, Mattray Theatre, Strasburg, N. D. Small town patronage.

Republic

CALL OF THE YUKON: Richard Arlen, Beverly Roberts, Lyle Talbot—This picture drew and pleased far above average business. Much better for small towns than some of the socalled major companies' A pictures. Comments good by the customers. Running time, 64 minutes.—A. J. Simmons, Plaza Theatre, Lamar, Mo. Rural patronage.

HOLLYWOOD STADIUM MYSTERY: Neil Hamilton, Evelyn Venable—This is a pretty good mystery picture but no draw. Just got by. Running time, 65 minutes. Played July 9-10.—Fischer and Bichler, Mattray Theatre, Strasburg, N. D. Small town patronage.

TRIGGER TRIO: Robert Livingston, Ray Corrigan, Max Terhune—Another good western. Business good. Running time, 56 minutes. Played June 4-5.—Fischer and Bichler, Mattray Theatre, Strasburg, N. D. Small town patronage.

WILD HORSE RODEO: Robert Livingston, Ray Corrigan, Max Terhune—Another good western by the Three Mesquiteers. Business fair. Running time, 58 minutes. Played July 4.—Fischer and Bichler, Mattray Theatre, Strasburg, N. D. Small town patronage.

RKO Radio

BORDER G-MAN: George O'Brien, Ray Whitley—Here's one with plenty of action and George O'Brien liked by all and didn't cost more than you took in. Running time, 60 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Me. General patronage.

HAVING WONDERFUL TIME: Ginger Rogers, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Peggy Conklin, Lucille Ball—Opinions were divided regarding this comedy but we considered it fairly satisfactory. Weather hot but business was fair. Played July 13-14.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

MAID'S NIGHT OUT: Joan Fontaine, Allan Lane—What a different Fontaine we now have compared to "A Damsel in Distress." I hope this company continues to use her in comedies. She may go over big if they give her a male to share the lead with. A clever little comedy that went over with a bang. Running time. 60 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

NIGHT SPOT: Allan Lane, Joan Woodbury—Just a picture for second half of double bill if you cannot find anything else.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

RADIO CITY REVELS: Bob Burns, Jack Oakie, Ann Miller, Kenny Baker, Milton Berle—This one was a little disappointing. Business was below average. Bob Burns fans said they were a little disappointed, too. Some nice comments on Ann Miller. In our estimation this is only a "C" picture. Played July 24-26.—Bill Simon, Rialto Theatre, Saguache, Col. Small town and rural patronage.

SHE'S GOT EVERYTHING: Gene Raymond, Ann Sothern—No good. Just a picture. Very little entertaining value. No one liked it.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

SKY GIANT: Richard Dix, Chester Morris, Joan Fontaine—It will take pictures like this to make the exhibitor forget the 50-50 deal that RKO put out on "Snow White." "Sky Giant" is a very good picture for this type of show and it was allocated so that I could make some money. Gave it Sunday date and did extra business. Played July 24-26.—Alvin C. Myrick, State Theatre, Lake Park, Iowa. Small town and rural patronage.

SNOW WHITE AND THE SEVEN DWARFS: Walt Disney—This picture is fine for kids and would be fine for exhibitors if we could have the money that is paid out for checkers and checkers' expenses. As it is we get our fun for nothing. We had to pay 50% for the film, buy shorts, pay express, pay out another 25% for rent and light, stand for labor and trips. We took the knock from the raise in prices. We took the loss for people who stayed away from pictures before and after "Snow White" in order to see this masterpiece, insults from checkers and distributors and salesmen, aspersions cast on our credit, the whole populace of our communities wondering why we didn't seem to own our theatre any more. "Snow White" has left a bitter taste in my memory that quite nullifies the happiness she brought to me as a child.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D. Small town patronage.

FIVE SHOWMEN JOIN REPORTERS

Five new contributors to "What the Picture Did for Me" this week include the following:

M. W. Bretzke, Lyric Theatre, Kenmare, North Dakota.

Oaty H. Elmore, Best Theatre, Charleston, West Virginia.

Dozier Roberts, Peoples Theatres, Inc., Elba Theatre, Elba, Alabama.

Alvin Myrick, State Theatre, Lake Park, Iowa.

A. J. Simmons, Plaza Theatre, Lamar, Missouri.

While exhibitors Myrick and Simmons are not strangers to readers of the column, Myrick's most recent report appeared a year ago, and Simmons last reported two years ago.

SNOW WHITE AND THE SEVEN DWARFS: Walt Disney—Having previously played in this vicinity, we were a little uncertain about its draw. But we needn't have been. Did a swell business all three days, drawing more people from out of town than we have had at all other shows in years. Running time, 86 minutes. Played July 9-10-11.—Horn & Morgan, Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

ALWAYS GOODBYE: Barbara Stanwyck, Herbert Marshall, Binnie Barnes, Ian Hunter—One of those conversation pictures with good stars posing and no action. Didn't do any business. Wasn't generally liked. No extended runs. Running time, 73 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

BARONESS AND THE BUTLER, THE: William Powell, Annabella, Helen Westley—This picture is terrible. I hope no one else will get fooled the way we were. I heard that Annabella couldn't be understood but didn't think she would try to dominate the picture with her broken English. The picture is talky, nothing but talk, and what is the use of so much talk when it cannot be understood. On the top of that it is all about a lot of things no one is interested in. We lost money and patronage, both a very serious matter to us.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Thaetre, Lemmon, S. D. Small town patronage.

BARONESS AND THE BUTLER, THE: Annabella, William Powell, Helen Westley, Henry Stephenson—This is Annabella's first picture in this country. No one liked it. Played on a double bill. Running time, 80 minutes. Played July 31.—Oaty H. Elmore, Best Theatre, Charleston, W. Va. General patronage.

BATTLE OF BROADWAY: Victor McLaglen, Brian Donlevy, Louise Hovick, Raymond Waldburn—Here is a fine picture that we lost plenty of money on. I thought the Legion would get out to it but interest was at low ebb and the picture and our money wasted. Played July 27.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D. Small town patronage.

JOSETTE: Simone Simon, Don Ameche, Robert Young, Bert Lahr, Joan Davis—This is the best picture to date from this star, and if they will keep her in this type picture she will build for the box office no matter how many gold keys she hands out. Why don't the film companies go on the air and broadcast their personalities and between acts tell the public not to wash their hair with whatever that stuff is Jimmy Fidler sells. Also the same for the cigaret snooper. Running time, 73 minutes. Played July 24-25.—A. J. Simmons, Plaza Theatre, Lamar, Mo. Rural patronage.

LITTLE MISS BROADWAY: Shirley Temple, George Murphy, Jimmy Durante, Edna Mae Oliver—A good picture, although not on a level with some of her best past pictures. Although nobody can question the fact that Shirley is real box office, she is commencing to grow up and people are noticing it. Many a time during the run of the picture I heard the remark, "She isn't as cute as she used to be." People not excited over this one, although we did capacity business. George Murphy is excellent. I don't know what is keeping him from stardom. With such a good supporting cast and the Temple name you can't miss on this one. Running time, 70 minutes. Played July 28-29.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

ONE WILD NIGHT: June Lang, Dick Baldwin, Lyle Talbot, J. Edward Bromberg—The only one that will be wild will be the customers and the exhibitor that plays this. All things being equal it should rank

SO HERE GOES!

The underlying philosophy that produced "What the Picture Did for Me" and brings constant additions to its reporting personnel week after week is contained in a note from G. W. Barber, Jr., of the McCrory Theatre, McCrory, Arkansas. Writes Mr. Barber, whose first reports will appear in next week's issue:

"I have been getting a lot of good dope out of this column, so guess I had better try to help others. So here goes."

"This is the first time anything has come from us," writes Oaty H. Elmore, of the Best Theatre at Charleston, West Virginia. Mr. Elmore's introductory report is in the columns this week.

with the season's worst, that and "Tarzan's Revenge." Crude acting, cruder direction, there was not a single shot that showed any thought as to what it takes to please the customers. And the walkouts—I hate to think how many.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

THREE BLIND MICE: Loretta Young, Joel McCrea, Marjorie Weaver, Binnie Barnes, David Niven, Stuart Erwin—This one shines. It's all dialogue, but the director, to use a popular word, kept it swinging. Clever dialogue, situations, and Binnie Barnes really went to town in her small bit. She has a flair for comedy and we have not seen her in as good a role as this for some time.—A. E. Hancock, Columbia Theatre, Columbia City, Ind. General patronage.

WILD AND WOOLLY: Jane Withers, Walter Brennan—This is the type picture that we small town exhibitors enjoy playing. Everyone who saw it really enjoyed it. It is hard to understand why some companies spend so much on some pictures after seeing this one. Running time, 64 minutes. Played July 17-18.—Dozier Roberts, Peoples Theatres, Inc., of Alabama, Elba Theatre, Elba, Ala. Small town patronage.

United Artists

ADVENTURES OF TOM SAWYER, THE: Tommy Kelly, May Robson, Walter Brennan, Jackie Moran, Ann Gillis—I have been reading in various trade papers about a recession in the motion picture business but I disagree. I think the recession is in the production. All the exhibitor needs is good pictures. June was one of the poorest months I have ever experienced in show business. However, "Tom Sawyer" played on a Thursday-Friday-Saturday and followed by "Test Pilot" Sunday-Monday-Tuesday gave me six of the best days' business that I have had in two years. "Tom Sawyer" surely did not cost any more to make than "The Adventures of Marco Polo," and compare "Test Pilot" with "Marie Antoinette" and other Metro costumes. What the exhibitor wants is box office and not prestige, which the producers use as defense for their big pictures which fail at the box office. Played June 23-25.—Alvin C. Myrick, State Theatre, Lake Park, Iowa. Small town and rural patronage.

CALL OF THE WILD: Clark Gable, Loretta Young, Jack Oakie—Many came who had seen this picture before and still enjoyed it. We need more pictures of the great out-of-doors with stars worth listening to.—Erma L. Raeburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D. Small town patronage.

DIVORCE OF LADY X, THE: Merle Oberon, Laurence Olivier, Binnie Barnes, Ralph Richardson—Here is one that was a flop. We lost money. The title is one which keeps them away from the box office. The story depends on clever situations and witty lines to put it over, but the clever situations are few and far between and the witty lines are not witty. Only a fair picture for our town. Laurence Olivier would get over better if he would speak slower.—Bill Simon, Rialto Theatre, Saguache, Col. Small town and rural patronage.

GOLDWYN FOLLIES, THE: "Charlie McCarthy," Edgar Bergen, Adolphe Menjou, Ritz Brothers, Phil Baker, Andrea Leeds, Zorina—A wonderful picture that everybody was enthused over. We were surely delighted with the beautiful color and the entertaining variety of everything.—Erma L. Raburn, Grand Theatre, Lemmon, S. D. Small town patronage.

PRISONER OF ZENDA, THE: Ronald Colman, Madeleine Carroll, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Mary Astor—A very fine picture with a good cast but somehow didn't go over. Our people just don't go for this kind of picture. Business poor. Running time, 100 minutes. Played June 25-26.—Fischer and Bichler, Mattray Theatre, Strasburg, N. D. Small town patronage.

Universal

AND SUDDEN BILL DORN: Buck Jones, Evelyn Brent—A change to cooler weather and a large payoff to cherry pickers gave us the best night's business in some time. Some of our patrons stated that they did not think this was up to the Jones standard. Played July 23.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

YOU'RE A SWEETHEART: Alice Faye, George Murphy, Charles Winninger, Ken Murray—This was one of the very best musicals of the year and gave splendid satisfaction. The title did not help but the show was ace high. Played July 20-21.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

Warner Brothers

PENROD AND HIS TWIN BROTHER: Billy and Bobby Mauch, Frank Craven, Spring Byington—This is a good little picture that pleased well and drew a little above average. These Penrod stories go over well both with the youngsters and grownups. Played July 20-21.—Bill Simon, Rialto Theatre, Saguache, Col. Small town and rural patronage.

SWING YOUR LADY: Humphrey Bogart, Frank McHugh, Louise Fazenda, Nat Pendleton, Penny Singleton, Allen Jenkins—Since the company featured hillbilly music, I thought it would be a natural but it proved no good like some of the rest. We lost on this but made it back on "Alcatraz Island," so I guess Warner is O. K. Running time, 79 minutes. Played July 20-21.—Dozier Roberts, Peoples Theatres, Inc., of Alabama, Elba Theatre, Elba, Ala. Small town patronage.

Short Features

Columbia

WINDOW SHOPPING: Color Rhapsodies—One of the best colored cartoons of the season. A story of white mice window shopping at night.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

Educational

RETURN OF THE BUFFALO: Treasure Chest—A very good nature reel. Pleased.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

SKY FISHING: Treasure Chest—An excellent fishing reel and travelogue.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

TIMID RABBIT, THE: Terry-Toons—A good cartoon. Book it for variety.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

AWFUL TOOTH, THE: Our Gang—A very clever Gang.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

LIFE IN SOME TOWN, U. S. A.: MGM Miniatures—It's O. K. but not anywhere near as good as I expected. Different and shows how ridiculous the old blue laws are. Vermont, take notice. You Vermont exhibitors should play this. What say, Carroll in Middlebury, and Freddie in Brandon? Running time, 10 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

RKO Radio

MOTH AND THE FLAME, THE: Walt Disney Cartoons—A beautiful cartoon well made and enjoyed by all. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

Paramount

PROTEX THE WEAKERIST: Popeye the Sailor—Very good. Popeye is a favorite here. Play up his shorts in all of your advertising and they should do some extra business for you. Running time, nine minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

RIVER, THE: Special Government Film—I thought the subject very interesting. My audience got very restless and they applauded when it finished. Don't misunderstand me. The applause was because it was over, not because they enjoyed it. 'Nuf said. Running time, 31 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

MOVIETONE NEWS: Good.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

Universal

BREATHLESS MOMENTS: Universal Special—A very good two reel thrill subject. They liked it.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

Vitaphone

ENRIC MADRIGUERA AND HIS ORCHESTRA: Melody Masters—An exceptionally fine band act.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

PRISONER OF SWING: Hal LeRoy—As poor as any they have made this season. This is about the bottom of Vitagraph revues. LeRoy cannot act, so why use him. His dancing is passe, so why not put him on the shelf. Running time, 20 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

Serials

Columbia

GREAT ADVENTURES OF WILD BILL HICKOK: Gordon Elliott, Kermit Maynard—I wish to report on Columbia's serial "The Great Adventures of Will Bill Hickok." In a period of six years I have looked at all serials and not until I played the above serial have I really thought serials meant anything, but "The Great Adventures of Wild Bill Hickok" is the greatest serial I ever had the pleasure to run. Boys, if Columbia salesmen want you to run it, grab it. I repeat, it is a knockout. Business excellent on same. It is one of those that people will look at and not ask you why you are running it. If Columbia continues to make them as good as this one, they will run the other serials out of business. On the fourth chapter and still a whiz.—M. W. Bretzke, Lyric Theatre, Kenmare, N. D. Small town patronage.

SECRET OF TREASURE ISLAND, THE: Don Terry, Gwen Gaze—Now on tenth episode and going over very well and pleasing. Looks like Columbia may have found out how to make serials. Cast excellent.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

OBITUARIES

John G. Blystone, Director, Dies of Heart Attack

John G. Blystone, who during a 31 year career in the motion picture industry directed some 60 productions, died in Hollywood August 7th, after suffering a heart attack. Funeral services were held at Valhalla Memorial Park, Burbank, August 9th.

Mr. Blystone, who was born December 2, 1892, at Rice Lake, Wis., entered the motion picture industry as a property man when he was 24 years old. He later became a director with Fox Films and was with that company when it became Twentieth Century-Fox. He resigned in 1936 and handled directorial assignments last year from Grand National and Universal. Among his most recent pictures were "23½ Hours Leave," "Great Guy," "The Magnificent Brute," "Bad Boy," and "Little Miss Nobody."

D. J. Selznick

David J. Selznick, head of Monogram's exchange in Pittsburgh, died August 9th, after a lingering illness. Mr. Selznick was an early exhibitor. His brother was the late Lewis J. Selznick. His nephews are Myron and David O. Selznick. He is survived by his widow and a daughter.

Sam Serwer

Sam Serwer, sales and advertising manager of Music Publishers Holding Company, a subsidiary of Warner Brothers, died suddenly of a heart attack in New York August 9th. Funeral services were held August 10th at the Riverside Memorial Chapel.

Charles Logue

Charles A. Logue, script writer and former newspaperman, died at his home in Hollywood August 3rd. He was 51. Mr. Logue entered films over 20 years ago and had worked for Universal and Columbia.

Robert Wiene

Robert Wiene, who produced "The Cabinet of Dr. Caligari," died in Paris following an operation.

H. Ellis Reed

H. Ellis Reed, former actor, who was one of the early backers of the Hollywood Bowl and was in charge of its construction, died August 4th, in Santa Monica Hospital. Mr. Reed was 46 years old and had been in ill health for six months.

Earl Schwartz

Earl Schwartz, 56, former film and stage musical director, died in an emergency hospital in San Francisco after collapsing on the street. Mr. Schwartz was credited with the original orchestrations for the Duncan Sisters' "Topsy and Eva," and he directed music for the "Four Horsemen of the Apocalypse," "The Covered Wagon" and others. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Katharine Schwartz, a San Francisco newspaperwoman.

Jane Withers will be starred in a one-reel short subject which Twentieth Century-Fox will make for the use of the National Mobilization for Human Needs.

Stanislavsky Dies In Moscow at 75

Constantin Sergeivitch Stanislavsky, recognized as one of the great masters of Russian drama and a founder of the Moscow Art Theatre, died in Moscow last Sunday of a heart ailment.

The 75-year-old dramatist had been ill since June 15 when he collapsed during preparations for staging "Cartouche," a work of the 17th century French playwright Molière. All Russia celebrated his birthday last January.

Stanislavsky began his stage career that made him internationally famous by directing performances of non-professional artists in Czarist Russia.

Stanislavsky was an actor, producer, teacher and philosopher of the theatre.

For 55 years he strove to create new forms of theatrical expression. In 40 of those years, during which he headed the Moscow Art Theatre, he staged 50 plays and enacted 27 characterizations.

In recognition of his work for the proletarian stage, the government conferred on him the Red Banner of Labor, the Order of Lenin and the title of People's Artist of the U. S. S. R.

The Moscow Art Theatre under Stanislavsky's direction performed in New York in 1923 and 1924. It presented plays by Tolstoy, Gorky, Tchekhoff and other Russian dramatists in their own language, and they appeared in a large group, more than 50 in all. They were then looking forward to their American appearance, because the Russian revolution and tours on the Continent had depleted the company's purse.

The American Defense Society protested against their entrance here on the theory that they were Communist propagandists, which charge Stanislavsky denied.

Stanislavsky, whose real name was Constantin Sergeevich Alexeev, was born at Moscow in 1863. His father was a rich mill owner and his grandmother a French actress. He studied at the Imperial School of Dramatic Art and in 1888 began work as an actor and producer in the Society of Art and Literature. The Moscow Art Theatre was founded in 1898.

Brin Heads GN Branch

L. K. Brin has taken over the management of the Grand National exchange in Seattle. He succeeds Danny Matin, resigned. Mr. Brin was branch manager for First National in Seattle some 10 years ago and later operated the Egyptian there.

Sidney Accepts Chairmanship

Louis K. Sidney, has agreed to serve as chairman of the producers' committee of the fifth annual "Night of Stars," Madison Square Garden, New York, November 16th, for the benefit of oppressed Jewry in Central Europe. The goal is $100,000.

Atlantic Attachment Vacated

Ferdinand Pecora, New York supreme court justice, has granted the application of Atlantic Film Productions, Ltd., to vacate an attachment against it which was obtained by George McLeod Baynes, plaintiff in a $65,000 breach of contract suit. The attachment was vacated on technical grounds.

IN COURTS

Schenck Deposition To Be Taken In Action Against Loew's

Nicholas M. Schenck, president of Loew's and Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, was expected to give a deposition Friday in connection with the action inaugurated against Loew's by stockholders who object to the profit sharing plan recently adopted for executives of the corporation.

The examination will be conducted by Emil K. Ellis, who returned to New York this week from the coast where he took 11 depositions of MGM executives and producers. Among those examined on the coast by Mr. Ellis were Louis B. Mayer, Al Lichtman, Eddie Mannix, Benjamin Thau, Sam Katz and Bernie Hyman.

Trial of the action is scheduled for the November term of the New York supreme court.

46 Investors Sue Over Condor Stock

An action against Glenn W. Stephens, a former director of Condor Pictures, was instituted in Madison, Wis., this week by 46 Milwaukee investors. They seek to recover $34,318 which they claim to have paid for stock.

Condor Pictures stock was promoted by the defunct B. F. Buckman & Company, Milwaukee investment firm. The circuit court action charges the stock now has no market value and that a registration statement filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission in February contained "untrue" statements.

Dismissal Motion Granted

New York supreme court justice Edward J. McGoldrick this week dismissed a $100,000 libel suit brought by Walter O'Keefe against Maxwell Hawkins and Norman C. White on the ground that the complaint was insufficient in law. Mr. O'Keefe had charged that he was libeled in a plagiarism action brought against him by Mr. White and Mr. Hawkins. The plagiarism action was dismissed.

Keith Ruling Reserved

Decision was reserved in New York supreme court this week on the application of B. F. Keith Corporation to dismiss a $10,000 damage suit brought against it by Sarah and George Mulholland, adjoining property owners of Keith's Prospect Theatre, Brooklyn. The plaintiffs contend that they were forced to move from their homes because of noises caused by the cooling system in the theatre.

"Test Pilot" Action Adjourned

Application for a temporary injunction against Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and affiliated companies, by Dolores Lacy Collins, as administratrix of the estate of James H. Collins, was adjourned to September 20th in New York supreme court. Suit was brought for an injunction against the exhibition of the picture "Test Pilot," damages for $1,000,000 and an accounting of profits for the alleged plagiarism by the picture of the book of the same name written by Jimmy Collins.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE

An international association of showmen meeting weekly in MOTION PICTURE HERALD for mutual aid and progress

A-MIKE VOGEL, Chairman and Editor GERTRUDE MERRIAM, Associate Editor

OPPORTUNITY

Now that the industry's big guns have laid down the initial barrage to introduce the Motion Pictures' Greatest Year campaign, it becomes obvious that final success depends to a great extent upon the follow-through of the man in the field. As pointed out elsewhere in this section by Oscar A. Doob, chairman of the theatre committee, the directors are making available every sort of box-office ammunition in the form of advertising, exploitation and publicity aids. But, stresses the Loew's Theatres ad head, it will be up to the man on the firing line to put all these aids to work locally if the campaign's objectives are to be reached.

In short, gentlemen, it's up to you. A million dollars is being expended to sell the motion picture, to enhance its prestige nationally. In the final count-up, the returns on this tremendous investment will be determined by the effort and enthusiasm of the theatreman.

Never before, has the industry displayed so united a front. Never before, has the industry been so unanimous in recognizing the vital importance of the theatreman. It would appear, then, that the present opportunity to consolidate these gains is one to be seized upon immediately. Thus, local differences must be swept aside and all situations pledged to launch a solid attack so that progress will not be hindered. With this in mind, nothing should delay the formation of committees in every situation with every theatreman on his toes to carry through whatever his individual assignment.

The responsibility is no light one. It will not be shirked by the theatreman eager to protect his livelihood, to do battle for a cause that makes this livelihood possible.

THE SMART BOYS KNOW IT

Theatremen alive to the possibilities of feeding voracious print-appetites of newspaper daily columnists plant many a neat bit of profitable publicity that otherwise might never see the light of day. For instance, there is Les Pollock. The Round Tabler recently wangled the entire space in Howard C. Hosmer's popular "It's This Way" column in the Rochester Times-Union, on the after-hours activities of the cleaning crew at Loew's, and followed that with another sock in the same spot on the theatre's cooling plant.

And it was Joe LaRose, handspringer at the Eastown, in Detroit, who conceived the idea of impressing his cooling plant upon the community by delivering a 300-pound block of ice to Free-Press columnist, Jimmy Pooler. Frozen inside the ice was the name of the newspaperman and a plug for the cooling system. Did Mr. Pooler mention the gift, the giver, the theatre? He did, to the extent of an eight-inch story about the gag in his widely-read column.

No progressive newspaper ever locks doors against free publicity because it is free. Plug or no plug, the Pollocks and LaRoses know that ingenious story angles bearing careful evidences of showmanship will always find a ready market.

WARM WELCOME, INDEED

That deadline date in the July-August Contest is near enough almost to touch right now, which is occasion for a sort of last-call announcement that August 27th is nigh upon us. Thus you folks out thar' who would like a look at the Big Town in September "on the house" had better get those campaigns lined up so as not to be left when they blow the whistle. See last week's issue for all the details.

The home office folks might be a bit tuckered out right now with welcoming Mr. Corrigan back to these parts, but they're saving a bit of that kind of welcome for the six winners. They promise hospitality as warm as today's weather and the thermometer at this writing says 87.

Start movin', folks.

Round Table In Pictures

Above left, is the way Bill Exton, Kenosha, Kenosha, Wis., helped solve the unemployment situation in addition to getting in a good plug for his "White Banners" date. Boys parade downtown area, carrying banners bearing the manager's message, playdates, etc. . . . Leading department store in Brooklyn exploited Joe Lee's "Romance of the Limberlost" opening at the Fox with large window display. In addition, counters in their cosmetic department featured tieup with Jean Parker, star of the picture and Zell compacts.

Another of Frank La Falce's characteristic lobby displays at the Earle, Washington, D. C., this one in advance of "Cowboy from Brooklyn" on screen and "Ice Follies" on stage. Neatness is stressed by the Warner Bros. Washington zone theatres director of advertising and publicity in keeping the layout as simple as possible. Summer atmosphere is created by vases of floral decorations against cool background of yellow and green.

At right is Jack Fretwell's theatre staff dressed in uniform for his buildup on "Dr. Rhythm" at the State, Harrisonburg, Va. Cashier donned nurse's garb, while ushers were outfitted as internes. Small card clipped to pocket of each carried picture and playdate copy.

Giant cutout figure of Errol Flynn was planted on steps of City Hall by R. C. Glasmann, Orpheum, Ogden, Utah, for opening of "Robin Hood." Also shown is target used in connection with the theatreman's archery contest.

At right is photo of what was reported to have been the world's first children's theatre fire drill engineered by Ted De Grazia, Lyric, Bisbee, Ariz. Kids were instructed in the skill of fire-fighting. . . . Below, shot of New York Roxy stage, showing ensemble engaged in unique exploitation advance for "Alexander's Ragtime Band". As part of stage show, week ahead, girls in uniform did a military stilt routine against background of special set-piece.

In collaboration with the local Napoleon Society, Alexandre Lapiner, MGM publicity manager in Prague, Czechoslovakia for opening of "Conquest" arranged display at leading hotel. Rare historical Napoleon material was exhibited with credit card tying in with picture.

SHOWMEN'S LOBBY LAFFS

This cartoon was created by Round Tabler Larry Graburn, Capitol, Nova Scotia.

Merchants Tie-in with Sweeney on "Judge Hardy"

Ten days ahead of opening of "Judge Hardy's Children" at the La Porte Theatre, La Porte, Ind., Wayne Sweeney distributed small cards carrying cut of characters in the picture. Each person presenting a complete set at the boxoffice was admitted gratis. Wayne says the passes were controlled by printing only 50 of the Fay Holdan cards, which would mean that many passes handed out if complete sets were turned in.

Full sheet cards were used in five of the most prominent stores and one card was given with each purchase. The cards themselves were printed "eight-on" to save printing costs.

Farm Couple Chosen For "Wonderful Time"

For three days preceding the opening of "Having Wonderful Time" at the Fox Theatre, Atlanta, Hudson Edwards saw to it that a couple from nearby farm was shown the town in regal manner. Theatre management hooked up with the Atlantic Georgian, which brought about a belated honeymoon featuring "Fulton County's typical progressive farm couple." In stories published in paper Manager Edwards said an effort would be made for them to eclipse the good time enjoyed by Ginger Rogers and Douglas Fairbanks in the picture. Readers were asked where the couple should go and things they should do during their visit.

Campaign Directors Offer Cash Prizes to Theatremen

To further encourage the growing enthusiasm in the field on behalf of the "Motion Pictures' Greatest Year" campaign, the drive directors now inaugurate a contest for cash awards open to all participating theatremen. The details are announced as follows:

The competitions are divided into three classifications, according to population. The first division includes all communities up to 15,000 population; the second division, communities from 15,000 to 100,000. The third division takes in all cities over 100,000.

The first prize in each division will be $500; second prize, $100; third prize, $50; fourth and fifth prizes, $25 each—a total of $2,100 in all. Entries will be judged on advertising and exploitation originated by contestants in addition to ideas based on suggestions and accessories listed in the campaign pressbook.

Prizes will be awarded for the best entries covering the entire campaign. The committee of judges, representing the trade press, will be announced shortly.

Gala Opening Given "Texans"

Contingent of Hollywood stars appearing in the picture, including Lucien Hubbard, producer of "The Texans" attended the world premiere of that opus at the Majestic Theatre, San Antonio, Texas, and were guests at a formal dinner given by Governor James Allred. The party was paraded to the theatre escorted by high school band and police escort.

Tieups were put over with the city's leading department stores, each displaying full windows with tiein copy. Original costumes worn by leading players in the picture were the means of securing other important department store displays which aided in heralding the premiere. For street ballyhoo, specially constructed advertising wagon used by the Interstate Circuit to sell their pictures in outlying districts plugged the opening week in advance.

Special radio hookup was arranged with Station KABC, stars telling of interesting highlights in the picture. Week before opening all local newspapers cooperated with stories and art work consisting of photos of the various stars who arrived in San Antonio for the premiere.

"BEAT THE HEAT"

Loew's Form Hardy Clubs

Loew's Theatres are out to make the Hardy Family permanent citizens and beloved neighbors in all cities in which Loew's have houses. Enthused by the popularity of the Hardy Family series of MGM pictures, which reaches a peak with the current "Love Finds Andy Hardy," Oscar A. Doob, advertising head of the Loew circuit, is trying to make the Hardys a national institution—a moviegoing fad which it is hoped will overlap from picture to picture. The formation of Hardy Family clubs all over the circuit is the foundation for the permanent build-up. Starting with memberships composed of real Hardy families, the club will extend their members to include other large families —the Smiths, Williams, etc. The membership, it is aimed, will include "typical American families," composed of dad and ma and a boy and girl, like the Hardys.

Newspaper sponsorships for the clubs are being arranged. Among the spots where clubs were formed in time to promote "Love Finds Andy Hardy" are Houston (with Houston Post), Boston, Springfield, New Haven, Bridgeport and New York City.

To get over the family angle on "Love Finds Andy Hardy," Loew's Theatres in New York are offering prizes for best and funniest family group pictures to be used as advance lobby display.

"BEAT THE HEAT"

Gould Uses River Bally

To exploit his date on "Crime School," S. W. Gould, Kenyon Theatre, Pittsburgh, Pa., promoted use of bannered aquaplane. Chap on surf board attached to boat rode in back, covering the Monongahela, Ohio and Alleghany Rivers, where he attracted the anticipated attention. Long streamer carrying title letters was also attached to stern of boat.

Vacation Contests Offered Widely on "Wonderful Time"

"Having Wonderful Time" has opened the way for many theatre-newspaper tieups. The catch vacation phrase is a timely one, for instance, where newspapers like to stress the sale of subscriptions for vacation periods or offer the transfer of subscriptions to vacation addresses. The Spokesman-Review, Spokane, Washington, used about a third of a page space for this latter purpose, with illustration of Ginger Rogers and title.

Numerous pages devoted to summer resort advertising and reading matter have carried vacation contest plans with all expenses paid. The camera promotion angle has been widely used. "Having Wonderful Time" has been used as a heading for vacation and resort pages in various communities. This phrase dominated such a section in the Indianapolis Star for several days.

Hook-in between the Orpheum Theatre, Davenport, Iowa local paper and camera stores on "Having Wonderful Time" offered prizes to those turning in to the newspaper the best candid camera shots along with a humorous line on the picture. First prize was a week's vacation, with all expenses paid, to St. Paul and return. Paper published the best pictures submitted while all were mounted on a large board in the lobby of the theatre.

Doughnut Shops Tied In

During the run at the Iowa, Cedar Rapids, a hook-up was made with a chain of doughnut shops wherein window cards carried this caption: "It's always a wonderful time eating good doughnuts. Let 'Red' Skelton show you the proper way to dunk a doughnut in 'Having Wonderful Time.'" At Memphis during the run at the Malco, papers carried the story about the local doughnut-dunking champion.

Postal and Western Union Telegraph services have been tied in the wire services stressing value of telegrams in keeping in touch with friends while on vacation. The Orpheum at Davenport, Iowa, benefitted at the box-office from a colored sticker superimposed on a Western Union blank. It referred to vacation days and carried the theater billing and playdate.

"BEAT THE HEAT"

53-Station Broadcasts For "Men With Wings"

Advance campaign for Paramount's "Men With Wings" has already been inaugurated with a series of national broadcasts of half-hour programs over 53 stations of the Mutual system. The show, titled with same name as picture, will emanate from station KHJ in Los Angeles, with members of the cast and important flying names appearing.

Exhibitors scheduled to play the picture are reported to be negotiating with local stations concerned for time preceding and immediately following the coast-to-coast program.

Where Do You Fit?

by OSCAR A. DOOB

Chairman, Theatre Committee, Motion Pictures' Greatest Year, 1540 Broadway, New York City

As advertising director of Loew's circuit, I am getting many inquiries from Loew managers throughout the country asking, in substance:

"Where do I, and my theatre, fit into this great national drive that the industry is putting on?"

No doubt, other theatremen may have the same and similar questions in mind. Due to the short period of time available and the truly gigantic task of organization facing the drive committees, it is natural there may be some confusion and doubts. Let's try to clarify them:

So far as you are concerned the campaign is local—it centers right in your city or community and it involves your patrons, actual and those you hope to get.

What you get out of this campaign is entirely up to you. If you permit the theatre down the street to make all the fuss and let the public think that theatre alone is having a new season opening and a $250,000 contest, that's your loss.

Many, many theatres in this drive are going to increase their box-office receipts 20 percent or more. It's up to you to get your share of the returns. The committees are preparing a vast amount of practical materials to use to advertise the campaign—a great number of usable suggestions for exploitation and publicity—and they are planting in newspapers, magazines, etc., a tremendous amount of general publicity on the industry in general. But it will be up to YOU—the man at the point of sale (the box office)—to put all those aids to work in your locality.

Another question asked is: "Will this national campaign interfere with the new season campaign I was planning for myself and which I have every year?"

Decidedly it should not. The national campaign is something added. It gives to your local campaign a flair, a spectacular contest, the brains of some of the country's leading advertising men, a huge sum of money to augment your local plans. Whatever campaign you had in mind before this national drive was projected should blossom into a ten times better campaign.

"What's this I hear about combining with all other theatres in this drive? Does that mean I must give my competitors my good ideas?"

That question is a tough one to answer briefly. The competitive spirit in our business is very keen and it is difficult to set it aside. But in this drive, the competitive spirit can continue and still leave plenty of room for unselfish, wholehearted cooperation among and between competing theatres for the common good of motion pictures. Many of the more spectacular and far-reaching activities of the drive can best be carried out as a project of ALL theatres in the city or community. A combined front with newspapers, for instance, will surely get more results than individual publicity efforts. If you plan a new season parade — floats, bands, etc. — it will make a much better showing if all theatres or most theatres cooperate to make the thing representative of a great industry. If you want Chamber of Commerce cooperation, a proclamation from the Governor or the Mayor—and many other exploitation items—the theatres working as a unit can accomplish more than any one theatre working alone.

With a common interest—to promote business and encourage moviegoing generally—this is one time exhibitors can meet on mutual, unselfish ground. This drive has a BIG purpose; let's not be petty in carrying it through.

In most cities and communities, there will be little trouble in quickly organizing a local "drive committee" and subcommittees of exhibitors and publicity men. Even movie editors can be on those committees, as this campaign is the most important movie news of the day.

Many theatres already are reporting city-wide committees having been formed and big plans ready to go.

The Theatre Committee has compiled a mailing list of all circuits and theatres to receive bulletins of special interest to theatres. Suggest that you make sure you are on that mailing list. We are trying to include everybody—and everybody's welcome—but we may unintentionally overlook somebody. Write at once, with name of person to receive the bulletins. Also send to the committee details on your campaign plans. The trade press is cooperating by giving space to your reports so that others may benefit by your ideas. Your questions will be answered and every other possible help will be given you by the Theatre Committee.

Warner "Stunt-a-Day" Drive Helps Business to Thrive

Ohio Theatremen Attack Summer Opposition With Five-Week District Contest

by DICK WRIGHT

District Manager, Warner Ohio Theatres

At a meeting of the managers of the Ohio Zone in Mr. Nat Wolf's office it was agreed that we would inaugurate a Stunt-A-Day Drive for a five week period from May 22 to July 1. We were particularly anxious to continue our energetic activities in the selling of our attractions as we had been doing all during the Spring and we felt that it was time to let out another notch, particularly since we had a new competitor—the heat and the lure of the outdoors just on top of us.

The idea of the Stunt-A-Day Drive was to further stimulate activity in exploitation and selling of our attractions. We made up a daily stunt calendar which was filled out in advance, listing the various exploitation ideas that each manager expected to put over during the period. The selection of these 30 stunts was entirely up to the manager and of course were those which each manager felt he would get the most out of insofar as box office results were concerned. Mr. Sidney Dannenberg, in charge of advertising for the Warner Ohio Theatres and his assistant, Mr. Manny Pearlstein compiled a list of 300 stunts reported in the issues of the "Mouthpiece" for the past five and one-half years. These stunts ranged from benefit ticket sales, special house rentals, street ballyhoo, promotion of heralds, lobby stunts to institutional stories, etc. There was one stipulation in the drive which was that there would be no special allowances granted for any of the stunts put over.

Completed Calendar Mailed In

At the expiration of the 30 day period, each manager was instructed to send in his completed calendar with visual evidence of his having actually performed each stunt. A committee of judges, consisting of Nat Wolf, Division Manager, Mr. Dannenberg, Mr. Pearlstein, and District Managers Mr. Jess Fishman, Mr. Ray Brown, and the writer were appointed to decide which in their estimation was the most comprehensive insofar as consistent selling every day for thirty days was concerned, plus, of course, the merit of the stunts used.

The Stunt-A-Day Drive expired recently with results far beyond expectations. We found that every manager during this drive was loyal enough and conscientious enough to work hard in putting forth additional efforts to make the drive a success. In the following paragraphs, I will endeavor to point out highlights of the campaigns as executed by the various managers.

In Portsmouth, Knox Strachan, city manager of the Warner Theatres there, for his engagment of "In Old Chicago" placed a display case in his lobby containing old fire helmets, 1871 hand grenade fire extinguishers, and other early fire equipment. He also had an 1871 edition of the Portsmouth Times with an account of the Chicago Fire and also an actual photo of the ruins. As a street ballyhoo he used a piece of fire equipment used in 1860 which was appropriately bannered. 3,000 blotters were made up by the local insurance company at no cost to the theatre and were distributed in schools and office buildings.

Holds Archery Contest

Mr. Strachan on his engagement of "Adventures of Robin Hood" arranged for a four day archery contest which was held in the local downtown vacant store room on the main street. This was handled entirely by the Boy Scouts and was open to the public. Persons could shoot free of charge and were eligible to receive two passes to the theatre if they had high score for the day. Approximately 200 persons participated in this contest. Also the Portsmouth Boy Scouts had an inter-troop contest and the individual high score for the scouts for the four days, received a Scout Axe given by the Scout Master. Newspaper carried stories and the Boy Scouts mimeographed 2,000 copies of the rules of the Archery Contest which were distributed prior to the contest and currently. Mr. Strachan also located a man who had taken archery lessons from Mr. Hill, who was the archery advisor and instructor for the actual filming of the picture. Newspaper carried stories about this man.

On "Dr. Rhythm" Mr. Strachan tied up with a prescription gag with the Smith Drug Stores. The prescriptions carried a number. If this number appeared in the window of either store, the person received a pass. Six numbers were posted in the two windows. Prescription blanks were handed out at the theatre and the two stores with each purchase. 5,000 of these were distributed.

In Findlay, Glenn Nelson, manager of the Harris Theatre, tied in with the city on a Pet Parade which was one of the big features of a celebration sponsored by the city. Streets were roped off for the event and the theatre received a splendid amount of good will and publicity. On his engagement of "Penrod and His Twin Brother," Mr. Nelson staged a local Kiddie Review with the Findlay Dance Studio. He also tied in his newspaper which made a census of twins in Findlay with the request that they register at the Harris Theatre on the days the picture played. Thirty-six sets of twins appeared and claimed their free tickets for the current show. Nelson used many other old gags during the Stunt-A-Day Contest which included a guessing contest, wherein passes were given to the first nearest correct guess as to the number of beans in a jar, and a horse and buggy street ballyhoo.

When Doc Elliott, city manager of the Warner houses in Lima played a stage engagement of Olson and Johnson, he put on a campaign which certainly woke up the people of Lima. Six days before the opening, the Veterans of Foreign Wars Band paraded the downtown section with banners announcing the play date. Five days before opening, a bannered Studebaker car, 1912 model, covered the downtown section, circus grounds and parks. The car also made the smaller surrounding towns and the residential district of the city. Special window display at the leading drug store plugged the show, with passes given away to persons finding two items exactly alike in the window. Doc Elliott promoted hundreds of inches of tap ads, thus retaining his title "King of the Tap Ad-Getters."

Merchant Tieups Aid

Grattan Johnson and Don Reilly, managers of the Sigma and State Theatres in Lima, respectively did a lot of extra selling through the medium of Merchant tie-up of miniature postal telegraphs typed and put in laundry bags, grocery store bags imprinted with their attractions, and special lobby displays at no cost to their theatres.

Lou Lamm, manager of the Palace Theatre in Lorain concentrated on window displays during the drive and was able to promote a number of windows from the chain drug stores in Lorain as well as the hardware, jewelry and five-and-ten-cent stores. Mr. Lamm found that an award of a Lone Ranger Cowboy Suit every Saturday brought the kiddies out in droves and was well worth the effort used in lining up this give-away.

Searches for Largest Family

In Coshocton, Harry Bodie, manager of the Sixth St. Theatre tied up with the Tribune for a search for the largest family in Coshocton County in conjunction with the showing of Judge Hardy's Children. Newspaper gave Bodie three front page stories and plenty of publicity on the picture.

At the Lincoln Theatre, Massillon, Mr. Irv Solomon sold the local dairy chain on an ice cream cone contest in which the dairy paid for all the heralds and cones used.

ELLIOTT, SCHOLER WIN DRIVE PRIZES

As this issue goes to press, winners in the "Stunt-a-Day Drive", detailed in these columns, are announced by the committee of judges. "Doc" Elliott, city manager, Lima, Ohio, finishes first in the Southern territory of the district. Joe Scholer, city manager, Sandusky, Ohio, takes down first money in the Northern territory.

Stores Cooperate for "Wells Fargo"

L. J. Williams, El Rey Theatre, San Francisco, to sell his opening of "Wells Fargo" contacted local merchants in his vicinity to put on an "Ocean Avenue Stampede" during week of run. Stores were converted into old western fronts with an assortment of signs written on windows to attract attention of passing autos and pedestrians. Dress shop displayed old dresses worn by members of the pioneer families of the Wells Fargo Express Bank Company; hardware store featured miners' supplies in addition to numerous other attractive displays.

Each of the cooperating merchants' windows carried streamers plugging the picture and Stampede, telegram blanks carrying tiein message were distributed at the stores and all their copy carried out the Stampede idea.

Entire street was decorated for the week, all stores false-fronted, the theatre itself being converted into the "Hangtown Opera House" with "no shovin'; no pushin'; git tickets here; check shootin' irons" and other gag copy planted prominently. Stage coach was stationed in front of the theatre ahead and during engagement, passersby having their pictures taken seated in the carriage. Entire staff was dressed as pioneers and Wells Fargo Bank was contacted for displays which included covered wagon and other relics.

'Phone Company Cooperates

Telephone company tieup brought display of switchboard with number of phones alongside to convey the idea of the length of time it took to carry a message during the Fargo days and today, showing how the human voice is carried across country in a few seconds.

Radio announcements were obtained in exchange for screen advertising; outdoor billing was all inclusive and campaign wound up last day with a little buccaroo contest. Circulars were distributed among school children inviting kids from two to 14 to participate in the contest for promoted prizes.

Feature of the campaign was opening day of the Stampede, for which a parade was held with stage-coach, covered wagon, busses, ponies with little buccaroos riding them, troupe of cowboys from nearby rodeo, Boy Scouts, police cars, sound trucks, etc. Entire entourage, including merchants' bannered trucks covered main streets with much shouting, cheering and shooting as the cowboys went over to curbs, lassoed people and tried to ride their horses into the stores.

"BEAT THE HEAT"

Ties Up Local Jamboree

With the fourth annual Smelt Jamboree held in Gladstone, Mich., and nearby Escanaba, J. P. Vogt, manager of the Rialto Theatre, got busy with his 16 mm. camera and took shots of the big events, such as special show consisting of the crowning of the king and queen, parade and smelt run dance. In addition, Vogt took shots of the thousands fishing at night and made a local news reel which he commentated from the stage over his public address system.

"STUNT-a-DAY" DRIVE

Ben Schwartz, at the Ohio Theatre in Canton promoted a local packing company to pay for movies taken at the Eagles Lodge Picnic and also lined up three other large picnics on the same basis. Packing company bannered their trucks and announcements were made at the picnics that the film would be shown the following week at the Ohio Theatre. Ben also worked this same stunt when the Canton Repository and the sponsoring merchants brought the Sky Dancing Team of Benny and Betty Fox to Canton. Although hard to believe, an official estimate of the crowd listed over 100,000 people as having turned out to see this dancing team perform on top of one of Canton's leading hotels. Ben stepped into this one and planted a truck all bannered right in the middle of the square. Movies were taken of the crowd and announcements made accordingly.

In Akron, when John La Due, manager of the Strand Theatre learned that the winner of the marble championship contest was a fatherless boy, he arranged an excellent Father's Day Stunt with the Times Press, wherein they took the lad to dinner and entertained him at the theatre. John acted in being a father to him for the whole day. This gave the theatre some very nice publicity.

Stresses Cooling Plant

Marvin Samuelson, manager of the Colony Theatre in Cleveland laid a great deal of stress on the cooling plant at his theatre, inasmuch as the Colony just opened at Shaker Square last December and the comforts of its cooling system had to be sold to his neighborhood. Samuelson promoted imprinted napkins, grocery store bags, cooperative advertising envelopes, and personal letters to residents of his immediate vicinity, telling them of the comforts patrons could expect in his theatre. He also inaugurated a Kiddie Birthday Club.

In Mansfield, Frank Harpster, manager of the Ohio Theatre utilized the old gag of overprinting the front page of the News-Journal in red ink. This time he used the stunt on the picture "Kidnapped." The words, "Ohio Theatre Manager" in large type as well as the word kidnapped, the message in between was in smaller type. As part of his Stunt-A-Day campaign he personally sold a full page of advertising which the News-Journal ran in green ink tying in his cooling plant and various merchants in the town selling summer merchandise!

Scholer Ties Legion

Outstanding in Jerry Scholer's campaign, at the Ohio Theatre in Sandusky, was his tying in with the American Legion Drum and Bugle Corp, with a bicycle parade sponsored by the Montgomery-Ward Company. This promotion was engineered to sell "Cocoanut Grove." The theatre tied in with banners and passes for the winners. Scholer also placed a Chevrolet in front of the theatre. Contestants were asked to guess the number of gallons of gasoline and quarts of oil the car would use in running over a four day period. Heralds tied in his attractions with this contest.

While the Hippodrome Theatre, Cleveland came through with several "big league" stunts, during this period we'd say the outstanding contribution was the contest put over by Publicist Manny Pearlstein on the attraction "Having Wonderful Time." When the final days' stories of the Cleveland winner broke page one and stayed there through all editions of the day, the promotion in number of inches was said to have been unprecedented in the entire history of motion picture exploitation in this city of 1,000,000. Briefly the contest was one in which readers were asked to write a letter in not more than 150 words giving their impression of what constitutes "Having Wonderful Time" on their vacation. Prizes were promoted vacation trips, cash and guest tickets.

All Managers Represented

Space prohibits enumerating elements of every campaign executed by all the managers. Those boys that were not mentioned in the above paragraphs namely: Julius Lamm, Uptown, Cleveland; Lou Milder, Variety, Cleveland; Frank Savage, Warner, Youngstown; Don Jacobs of the Pastime, Coshocton; Clarence Sletz, Plaza, Sandusky; Bill Dworski, Madison, Mansfield; Wayne Williams, Majestic, Mansfield; Harland Fend, Sherman, Chillicothe; George Fraser, Lyric, Portsmouth, and Dick Cruciger of the Columbia Theatre in Portsmouth, also did a very fine job of selling their attractions throughout the campaign.

To date we are awaiting the completion of a few campaigns from the field before the judges make their decisions as to the winners. We feel that the Stunt-A-Day campaign required a lot of extra effort on the part of each manager, but it was well-worth the time and energy expended.

"BEAT THE HEAT"

Merchants Tiein With Gow on "Snow White"

Following contest suggested in the "Snow White" press book, Mel Gow, Capitol, Nanaimo, B. C., by audience selection had a girl chosen to represent the fairy princess. Dress shop cooperated to the extent of donating complete outfit to winner. One of the leading hotels acted as host to the Princess on opening day and local automobile dealer placed a new model car at her disposal for the day.

Parade was arranged for the Seven Dwarfs and the Princess, who were met by Mayor and police escort at a prearranged spot on the outskirts of the town and then marched into city visiting cooperating stores. Gow reports he had more offers for window display than he could profitably handle, finally tying up with 10 leading marchants for attractive windows. Merchant supplying outfit for the Princess also put on a style revue at the theatre, advertising the event in their ads and throughout the store.

The Bluebook School

ANSWER TO QUESTION NO. 122

Conducted by

F. H. RICHARDSON

Bluebook School Question No. 122 was: (A) Suppose a motor-generator bearing or some other similar one runs hot. What would you consider the best procedure? (B) Would you use water to cool it? (C) What must be avoided when a bronze bearing runs hot?

The following made acceptable replies: C. Rau and S. Evans; G. E. Doe; J. R. Prater; H. Edwards; L. Cimikoski; W. E. Limmroth; M. B. Stout; G. Burdis; J. A. Zachritz; R. Feasel; T. F. Bochert; C. Champney; L. H. Kelley, O. H. Schmidt; W. Schoeneman; C. A. Whitlock; R. and K. Wells; C. G. Jones; P. E. Shell; C. L. Horn; M. and J. Devoy; L. F. and G. Brown; L. Johnson; F. E. Dorp and H. A. Ames; F. H., S. and P. Dalbey; D. and W. Porter; A. D. Lonby; S. Hewitt; J. K. Robinson and R. E. Bullard; P. and L. Felt; G. L. Goss; D. N. Logman; H. T. Randolph; S. T. Logan; G. Thompson; T. and W. Turk; W. B. Hunter; F. W. Brandenburg; R. B. Kent; B. L. Kennedy; L. Day; T. W. Williams; L. B. Daniels, M. A. Cordell and S. U. Lamont; R. M. Schnider; R. Davis and M. F. Brown; S. True; R. Smith and B. L. Oden; E. Exline; B. L. Kent; B. L. Bunt and W. R. Davis; T. L. Ward and W. Jones; T. W. Redhouse; B. L. Morris, H. M. Jackson and W. V. Henderson; G. L. Baxter; M. F. Robinson and L. A. Beachwood; S. L. Maxwell; E. Lomax; G. T. Jones and Leonard; W. R. Watthews and J. R. Davidson; P. Slobodny; C. Umphrey; M. D. McGuire; W. B. Hennesy; M. Samuels and P. L. Goldstein; L. D. Tomlinson; T. S. Anderson; H. Bunker; H. H. Todd and L. E. Dodson; J. M. Kelner and A. W. Baxter; N. S. Reid and H. T. Watkins; A. C. Greene; W. Winkler and R. R. Robins; B. and M. Walker; R. R. Jacobs and B. B. Hornstein; K. Irwin; G. and T. A. Johnson; D. R. Spencer; E. and F. Wentworth; L. N. Schofield; E. Davis; D. A. Shea and H. T. Plum; H. J. Benjamin; L. M. Richardson; C. A. Whitlock and N. T. Baxter; L. and F. Savlor; K. L. Brant; B. L. Smith.

I believe that of the many excellent answers to Section A, that of J. R. Prater is perhaps best. He says:

"If a motor-generator bearing or some other similar one runs hot, the best procedure would depend upon the type of bearing and whether the condition appeared gradually or suddenly. On sleeve bearing machines, if the bearings gradually run warmer over a period of several days or at a change in season, try using a lighter or a heavier oil. Too-heavy oil may easily "starve" a bearing in cold weather, especially when first starting up. Unless the set is a very heavy one, an oil equivalent to a No. 10 S.A.E. should be plenty heavy enough. Even heavy grades of dynamo oil are no heavier than that, and they are used on large power house generators. Turbine oil is excellent when a light oil is needed.

"If the bearing becomes hot rather suddenly, see that it is getting oil—the oil ring may be stuck, or the oil may be too low in the oil well.

"If the bearing is receiving oil but still runs hot, drain and refill with new, rather thin oil. If it has been allowed to run dry, flush the bearing thoroughly with thin oil or kerosene to wash out any metallic particles or scale which may have formed in the dry bearing. Then fill the well with proper grade oil and see that it stays filled.

"If ball bearings run hot, screw down the greasecups a turn or two and be sure you are using the proper type of acid-free grease. Ball bearings seldom heat unless dirt has been forced into them with the grease, possibly causing broken balls or badly roughened balls and races. Even then the bearing would probably become unusually noisy before serious heat would develop."

In the course of the answer of Rau and Evans the following occurs: "A remedy, which however has not been tested by the writers, is to drop a bit of white lead into the oil well, which will permit the machine to operate to the end of the show, when of course the offending bearing must be cleaned out, the initial fault found and remedied."

That is a new one, to this scribe at least. Have any of our readers tested it out?

(B) L. Cimikoski says, "Water should never be applied directly to a hot bearing, though cold wet cloths may be applied to its outer surface, which may assist in cooling it to some extent—at least enough to avoid danger of 'freezing' when the armature is stopped. When this plan is resorted to, the machine should be kept running, with load cut off if possible, the bearing drained and refilled with a somewhat lighter oil than that ordinarily used."

M. B. Stout (he's located in Petersburg, Alaska) says, "Should a bearing run hot, if possible cut down the speed but never permit a complete stop. Apply graphite or light machine oil, or both, until it has cooled down. Then stop the machine, flush the bearing thoroughly with kerosene, relubricate and put it back in service. This is the practice employed in machines employed in radio. I am certain this course should be pursued in all cases, regardless of whether the bearing is bronze or not."

(C) R. Feasel replies, "When a bronze bearing runs hot there is greater danger of the shaft 'freezing' to the bearing if the machine is shut down entirely than with other types of bearing. The best plan is to immediately apply cold cloths to the outer surface of the bearing—ice cold, if possible—drain and flush the bearing with thin, fresh oil. This procedure should reduce the temperature sufficiently to avoid danger of 'freezing' the bearing when the machine finally is stopped."

To which I would add, if there is an idle machine, immediately switch the load to it, which will remove most of the strain from the bearing, thus inducing reduction of temperature with the machine still running and danger of freezing avoided.

I asked John Hertner, president of the Hertner Electric Company, about the white lead suggestion of Rau and Evans, and he has replied:

"I have never had any experience with white lead in a hot bearing, but it appeals to me and I would personally try it should I have the opportunity. White lead is often used where it is desired to keep metal from cutting. For instance, in making a press fit, a coat of white lead in machine oil will facilitate getting the parts together and will minimize the danger of cutting and sticking when only partly back in place, which often means removing and incidentally destroying the part that was being forced onto the shaft because the only way to get it off is to cut it into chips in the lathe.

"In a bronze bearing it would seem that the particles of white lead would form a coat on the metal, would fill all the small cavities formed by the initial cutting which is the source of the heat, and by preventing a metal-to-metal contact between shaft and bearing, would prevent its 'freezing.'

"Ball bearings sometimes run pretty hot because of having been filled with too much of too heavy grease. The churning of the grease absorbs considerable power and this means a liberation of heat. If the bearing housings are designed to hold oil, it is really a better lubricant than grease, although the latter is widely used."

BLUEBOOK SCHOOL QUESTION NO. 128

(A) What unit of measurement is employed for expressing carbon diameters? How may that unit be reduced to fractions of an inch?

(B) At what temperature is carbon volatilized—transformed into gas?

(C) Do carbon cores contain chemicals? If so, for what purpose?

(D) For what reasons was carbon selected as the base for electric arc electrodes?

(Note: Remember, this is a Bluebook school and the answer to all save possibly some special questions can be found in that book.)

THE RELEASE CHART

Productions are listed according to the names of distributors in order that the exhibitor may have a short-cut towards such information as he may need, as well as information on pictures that are coming. Features now in work or completed for release later than the date of this issue are listed under "Coming Attractions." Letter in parentheses after title denotes audience classification of production: (A) Adult, (G) General. Numerals following audience classification are production numbers. Dagger symbol indicates picture is of the 1937-38 season.

NOTE: The totals for running time are the official figures announced by the home offices of the distributing companies.

When a production is reviewed in Hollywood, the running time is as officially given by the West Coast studio of the company at the time of the review, and this fact is denoted by an asterisk (*) immediately preceding the number. As soon as the home office has established the running time for national release, any change from the studio figure is made and the asterisk is removed.

Running times are subject to change according to local conditions. State or city censorship deletions may cause variations from the announced and published figures; repairs to the film may be another reason.

J. C. JENKINS—HIS COLYUM

Lincoln, Nebraska

Dear Herald:

Doggone the doggoned luck. Every time we come down here to Lincoln to see Bob Livingston, the manager of Lincoln's popular theatre, he's gone. This time we were told that he was out gathering up dogs for the government, to chase rabbits out of the shelterbelts and for other purposes. Bob knows a good able bodied dog better than all the kennel superintendents in the state.

While we were here we visited the capitol building to see that everything was running all right, and it was. We found enough people warming chairs in the building to make a good size town.

We hope we will be pardoned for swelling up a bit when we recall that we have completed a twelve million dollar building and we don't owe a nickel on it.

Every time we go to Paulena, Iowa, to visit Mr. and Mrs. Johannsen of the Paulena theatre we have a good time, they see to that. In fact, northwest Iowa has a lot of excellent theatre managers, such as Dale Goldie at Cherokee, Kerberg at Sheldon, Doc Sanders at Sanborn, Mr. and Mrs. Sartorius at Hartley, Mr. and Mrs. Bill Bogart at Rock Valley, E. W. Kerr and "Morrie" at Council Bluffs, not to mention that boy Recnagel who operates the theatre and the Illinois Central railroad at Fonda, and Boma of the Rialto theatre at Pocahontas, who ran us ragged on the golf links once and—but gee whiz, we can't mention all of 'em, the woods are full of 'em.

About the only way to get Shine Mason of the McAllen theatres of McAllen, Texas, to come up here would be to stage a bull fight. Shine is strong for bull fights, in fact he's strong for the bull at anytime.

Our most excellent friend, Bill Weaver of the HERALD office in Hollywood, writes us that he arranged with Monogram for our daughter Ruth, and our daughter-in-law Florence and her children, to see them shoot a circus picture on the Monogram lot. Wasn't that fine of Bill? He's always been that way ever since he was a boy and used to play the piano in Mr. Anderson's theatre at Boone, Iowa, after he came back from the Des Moines river where he had been fishing for bullheads. Thanks Bill, your equals (if you ever had any) have all passed on. Give our regards to Mrs. Weaver.

ESCAPISM and NOSTALGIA

SAYS Mr. Howard Barnes of the New York Herald Tribune of "Alexanders Ragtime Band": "In many respects the show is the epitome of escapist drama."

That, gentlemen, is also the epitome of the advanced school of screen criticism.

Mr. Barnes takes his two columns on page one of the Herald Tribune's Sunday amusement section to try to pick this production apart with a dissection needle under a microscope to find out what makes it tick. That cost the life of Heaven knows how many spruce trees for pulpwood and gets us exactly nowhere.

"Escapist" indeed.

It would appear that in the eyes of many of our young men of what may be called the Watts school, a customer looking for entertainment, as opposed to an evening worrying over "Realism" and the Utopian aspects of the sickle-and-hammer brand life, is a sort of dope who must be branded as an "escapist."

WHAT a discouragement it must be to the earnest Leftists to discover that the population of these United States is so full of escapists as is indicated by the altogether remarkable box office patronage of this picture.

What an amazement that anything dating from the glamours of the common people of remote 1911 should have a triumphant revival value in 1938. This is alarming evidence of a tendency toward survival of the old bourgeoise traits of a people who believed in a gold dollar and primed their own pumps.

It is alleged by Mr. Barnes that those parts of the production that come within his personal experience memory "are enormously nostalgic."

The high-brow movie criticism has been full of nostalgia diagnoses for several years. It was probably the late and very nostalgic Mr. Andre Sennwald who started that one around.

You, and Mr. Barnes, are hereby informed that in these days of social and political progress both escapism and nostalgia are treason.

SPEAKING of politics and pictures, it was inevitable that the opening of "Marie Antoinette" in Broadway Tuesday night should be an occasion for special observation by and of our metropolitan school of screen criticism.

One finds Mr. Barnes considering: "It is a bit odd to find the French Revolution used as incidental color for a royal tragedy. While there is no arrant judging of historical facts, 'Marie Antoinette' enlists your sympathy on the side of a stupid monarchy, apologizes for its shortcomings and inevitably makes the republicans the villains of the piece. . . . If I were a Frenchman, though, I am certain I would resent the distortion of a world shaking event to make a setting for her loves and her death."

Apparently the critic wants to change the subject. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer was interested in making a piece of entertainment built around Norma Shearer in the role of Marie Antoinette. Mr. Barnes seems to want a screen history of the French Revolution. They will never get together.

Anyway, Mr. Barnes did at last come to say that " 'Marie Antoinette' is a handsome engrossing entertainment, which has not shirked its ultimate tragedy." He just will have that "ultimate tragedy." Maybe it's his nostalgia again.

"LIFE IN ACTION"

"THE dramatic arts in particular flourish when life is not in repose but in action."

And that is why, according to Mr. Owen D. Young, chairman of the board of General Electric Company, thinks "We may expect the arts, especially the drama, to take a major place in our life during the next half century."

Mr. Young was speaking at the opening of the Mohawk Drama Festival, Union College, Schenectady.

"I suspect," said Mr. Young, "that the last half century has been devoted to invention and discovery in the physical sciences with the result that our methods of production have outgrown our machinery for handling it, our material development has become out of balance with our social and political mechanism and life is again not in repose but action."

Concerning the uptrend that he foresees in drama and the other arts, Mr. Young remarked that there was a significance in the support being given such activities by the great Foundations, such as the Rockefeller and Carnegie institutions.

Regardless of what merit may be contained in Mr. Young's theory of advance of the dramatic arts in periods of stress, it has already been made clear enough that the Rockefeller interests have been having a good look at the drama of the screen, beginning in a fashion downstairs with the biggest theatre in the world, the Music Hall. Rockefeller funds have also been exploring the function of the screen in education. More is yet to be heard.

INDICATIVE

THE WPA Theatre is proud about an attendance total of 250,000 for a year of its New York shows. The WPA or Federal theatre of these parts has been conspicuously leftist. It is therefore of interest to compare its following with that of the motion picture which, drawing upon the same metropolitan territory, entertains about twice that quarter of a million every week. The ratio is one to a hundred.

THE Pan American Union has been looking into the amusement habits of Mexico and finds that the motion picture ranks first, the theatre second, bullfights third, fourth to athletic sports, fifth to jai alai, sixth to cockfighting and seventh to circuses and carnivals. Perhaps the Mexicans have discovered that it is within the capacities of the camera to transmit any and all of the thrills of the other diversions.

This Week

Contest

The headquarters committee for the "Motion Pictures' Greatest Year" campaign issued the official rules for the $250,000 Movie Quiz contest which will open September 1st and a complete list of the 94 productions on which the contest questions will be based. Announcement was made also that subscription pledges for support of the campaign have passed $900,000.

An explanation of the method in which the contest is to be conducted, the official rules, the film list and news of the campaign are treated on pages 12, 13 and 14.

Another Conference

Assistant Secretary of Commerce Patterson this week disclosed that he has some very vague plans for calling representatives of the motion picture and other industries in for a general business conference, on subjects which he would not discuss, at a time he could not set, subject to approval by the President, according to Francis L. Burt, in Washington.

In answer to all questions, the assistant secretary said merely that he had "some very vague plans" for such a meeting but that nothing definite had been developed.

Going to Town

Next Tuesday has been selected for a Swing Jamboree at Soldiers Field, Chicago, which is expected to attract from 500,000 to 1,000,000, depending on the weather. The occasion is the beginning of a campaign to make people conscious of Chicago as a city during the time that New York and San Francisco are having their fairs. The campaign is under the direction of the New Century Committee of Chicago. Other events planned soon by the committee include a Lake Michigan Day with a regatta, a bathing beauty contest, a motion picture and candid camera contest, a Farmers' Day and many others. The bathing beauty contest is being conducted in Chicago theatres mostly with the Essaness and Warner theatres cooperating.

Admission Tax

Last hopes for relief from the admission tax apparently faded this week with prediction by Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, chairman of the Senate finance committee, that an entire new tax would be promulgated at the next session of Congress, not only retaining the admission and other nuisance levies but providing for new tax money, probably through the broadening of the tax base by lowering personal exemptions. The nuisance levies are due to expire June 30th next unless extended by Congress.

Film Roadshows

From a five-year high mark of ten roadshows during the closing season, distributors are preparing to drop to practical elimination of two-a-day engagements during the 1938-39 season. Thus far only one distributor is roadshowing a production scheduled for the new season, although executives pointed out that a final decision on each picture is not made until after the film is completed. During the last five years there were a total of 30 pictures roadshown. The decrease in the number of roadshow attractions for the coming year is attributed by executives of distributing companies to (1) economic conditions, (2) patrons being show-wise and knowing a roadshow attraction will be released at popular prices within a few months, at the most, (3) protests from exhibitors, and (4) inability of distributors to obtain the houses they want.

Roadshows and the reasons why they are on the wane are discussed on page 15.

Record Breaking

A gross of $80,000 for the second week of "Alexander's Ragtime Band" and a run of six or seven weeks at the Roxy Theatre, New York, was predicted this week as the film continued to attract record crowds. During the first week the picture broke all attendance records by having a total attendance for the week of 192,520 persons. The admissions totaled $87,489.84.

A breakdown of the attendance figure for the week is included in a story on page 27.

Georgian Suit

During a lull in the Government suit against the industry, occasioned by the granting of an extension to November 1st of the time set for answering briefs to be filed, an anti-trust suit asking $654,000 in damages was filed against the Lucas & Jenkins circuit in Georgia and nine distributors. The Savannah Theatre Company, complainant, charged "a conspiracy to monopolize the motion picture theatre business in the cities of Savannah, Macon, Augusta, Gainesville, Athens, Barnesville and other towns."

As indicated last week the distributors' committee charged with the preparation of a program of self-regulation of trade practices will hold no further meetings until after Labor Day when reports from attorneys on the possible effect of the Government suit on the negotiations will be considered.

Anti-trust and trade practice news is detailed on page 17.

Columnist Curb

Studios should adopt some method of fair control over radio columnists who review films, Frank Newman, head of the Evergreen Circuit, declared this week at the western regional convention held by National Theatres Inc., at the Ambassador, Los Angeles. Radio reviewers often do more harm than good, Mr. Newman said, and his remarks led to the subject being one of the principal topics discussed at Tuesday's session. The delegates also discussed the possibilities of eliminating giveaways entirely. George Powser, district manager for Long Beach, the Imperial Valley and San Diego, said he is making an experiment in eliminating giveaways and suggested that other district heads study their situations for eventual total elimination of cash drawings and chance games.

Columbia in Britain

Columbia will spend $1,000,000 or more on three British pictures to be produced at London Films Studio at Denham within the next year, Joseph A. McConville, Columbia foreign manager, said Wednesday, when he returned from Europe. The program will be augmented by "a few extra deals later" with British producers, he added. The three major films will be designed for world distribution on the 1939-40 list and will be made under the supervision of Irving Asher, associate producer at the Alexander Korda plant. Mr. McConville said it will be determined later whether the three films will be aimed at double or triple quota credit. He said he expected the contracts to be signed late this week following conferences with Harry and Jack Cohn.

No Wage Change

The result of one of the shortest conference on terms since the signing of the five year basic agreement between studio unions and producers was an agreement to maintain present wage and hour schedules until next year. The meeting, held in the New York office of Pat Casey, studio labor contact for the producers, opened with a request by the unions for a 10 per cent increase and a counter request by the producers for a 10 per cent decrease.

See page 19.

Theatre Closings

The number of summer theatre closings this year, despite the widespread talk a few weeks of wholesale darkenings, is no greater than in 1937, it is revealed this week in a nation-wide survey conducted by MOTION PICTUE HERALD. Exhibitors, pessimistic in the spring, now are confidently looking forward to a decided turn for the better in fall business. Those houses which have closed for the hot weather days are, for the most part, the same theatres which go dark each year. Many houses originally scheduled to close have remained open. The theatremen, generally, have not resorted to cutting price scales.

The results of the survey are given in detail starting on page 37.

Theatres' Wage-Hour Status to Be Decided; Studios Seen Exempt

The status of theatre employees under the new Federal Wages and Hours Act which goes into effect October 24th may be a matter for determination by the administrator, Elmer F. Andrews, who took office this week, but production activities probably will be little affected, it was indicated in Washington this week.

Managers of theatres will be beyond the application of the law under a provision exempting persons employed in executive or administrative capacities. Whether the exemption will extend to ushers and other employees will depend upon the definition which the administrator will issue as to whether theatre operations, particularly those of circuit houses, are in or affect interstate commerce.

Film talent, Mr. Andrews intimated, will be considered professional and as such will be exempt from the provisions of the law. While the new administrator made no pretense of issuing an official dictum, he inferred that in all probability the exemption would be held to apply also to the technical forces of the studios. He indicated the motion picture industry would not be unduly burdened by the new act, since it is one of the "high wage" industires on which the minimum wage provisions will have little effect.

The act provides a floor of 25 cents an hour and a ceiling of 44 hours a week for the first year of operation, the limits increasing to a floor of 40 cents an hour and a ceiling of 40 hours a week in 1945.

Executives in all branches of the industry are exempt as professionals, it was said. It is the general expectation that distributors will come under the law because they handle merchandise in interstate commerce.

Corrigan Film

Douglas Corrigan on Tuesday signed with RKO Radio to bring to the screen the story of his life and the flight to Ireland that lifted him to fame. The deal was completed by Leo Spitz, president, and the papers were signed on the "old crate" in which the young flyer made his "big mistake." Production will start immediately on completion of the script, which is already being developed in Hollywood under the direction of Pandro S. Berman, vice-president in charge of production. Mr. Corrigan left New York for Albany immediately after signing the contract on the first leg of his nation-wide tour.

Best in Scandinavia

Scandinavian film critics, approached by the trade journal, Biografbladet to name their choices for the ten best motion pictures of the year, placed five American pictures, headed by "The Life of Emile Zola" at the top of the list. Of a total of 210 votes cast on non-Swedish productions 146 were for American pictures, 50 for French, 10 for Russian, two for German, one for British and one for Austrian.

Kris Winther on page 34 gives the results of the poll.

Britannic Publicity

Establishment of an advisory committee to coordinate the confused and disunited production of films by various departments in the British Government has been recommended in a report for the Select Committee on Estimates. The council severely criticised the present divers methods used by the various departments at present, calling them inadequate, inefficient and uneconomical and incidently declaring that not enough attention is paid to making sure that the films reach a wide public audience.

News from Britain written by Aubrey Flanagan and concerned with the present move toward admission price control by Government is on page 31.

"Birth" Action

Certiorari proceedings, served on Dr. Ernest E. Cole of the Department of Education of New York last week in accordance with a court order obtained by the American Committee on Maternal Welfare, will be returnable in Troy, September 16th, in special term, supreme court. The action is due over the rejection of the picture "The Birth of a Baby," by Irwin Esmond, director of the Motion Picture Division of the Department of Education.

PLANS COMPLETED FOR 'MOVIE QUIZ' CONTEST; RULE BOOKLETS PREPARED

Committee Expects 100,000,000 Entrants for National Awards; Reports Indicate Enthusiastic Cooperation by Theatre Men

Plans for one of the vital elements of the industry's "Motion Pictures' Greatest Year" campaign neared completion this week with announcement of the rules for the "Movie Quiz" contest in which $250,000 is to be distributed to the theatre going public as prizes and the preparation of booklets containing the rules and the list of productions which will figure in the contest. The contest procedure has been approved by the Post-office Department.

Entrants in the contest will be required to answer questions, listed in the booklet, on 30 of the 94 pictures designated, write a 50-word appreciation of the film they consider the best, and submit their answers to the contest committee before midnight of December 31st. The first and second prizes will be $50,000 and $25,000, with the others ranging down to 5,000 prizes of $10 each.

More than 100,000,000 of the 32 page booklets will be printed for distribution through theatres to patrons. Because of the quantity the cost to exhibitors has been kept down to $5.50 a thousand copies. The industry's message to the public, outlining its reasons for the slogan "Motion Pictures Are Your Best Entertainment" and the official rules of the contest will preface the booklet. Billboard and newspaper advertising all over the country will acquaint the public with its existence, directing readers to ask at their local theatres for copies. The rules and the productions, as announced by the committee headed by Charles McCarthy and Robert Gillham, are listed in full on opposite page.

Employees Asked to Help

Theatre and exchange employees have been asked to aid in the campaign by pledging 10 acquaintances to enter the "Movie Quiz" contest. Pledge cards will be supplied to every company office in the country. Oscar Doob, chairman of the theatre committee, said employees of Loew's already have been supplied with the pledge cards and it was hoped that 100,000 entrants would be obtained through them. Other members of the theatre committee are Harry Goldberg and John Dowd.

Shipment of accessories in the campaign started Friday and shipment to all branches will be completed, it is expected, by August 23. The campaign accessories will be sold through the branches at the prices listed below:

1-sheets (2 styles)	.05 each
3-sheets (2 styles)	.15 each

HOW EXHIBITORS CAN JOIN CONTEST

To enable his patrons to enter the "Movie Quiz" contest an exhibitor must take the following steps:

Become a participant in the "Motion Pictures' Greatest Year" campaign by subscribing to the campaign fund at the established rate of 10 cents per seat.

Arrange to book at least 30 of the 94 contest pictures being released between August 1st and October 31st.

Obtain his supply of the official "Movie Quiz" contest booklets containing rules and instructions for contestants and a list of the contest pictures for distribution to his patrons after September 1st.

Arrange for proper accessories and local advertising to call the attention of his community to his "contest" theatres and his playdates for the pictures involved.

1 Style 28-Ft. Burgee Streamer	1.80 each
1 Set—4 slides (sold only in sets)	.35 set
Movie Quiz Books	5.50 per M
Wide assortment of ad and scene mats	10 per column
Trailers—4 styles	prices to come
Campaign Press Books	Free

The first of a series of five trailers for use by exhibitors in the campaign will be ready within a few days it was said at headquarters this week.

Charles B. Paine, former treasurer of Universal Pictures has been appointed to handle the financial phases of the sale and distribution of campaign accessories. James Clark is chairman of the general committee in charge and Mr. Paine will work with him and with Frank C. Walker, treasurer of the campaign.

Circuit Heads Push Drive

The importance of unselfish cooperation by all theatres was emphasized by Joseph R. Vogel of Loew's in a letter to all district managers, managers and theatre staffs of Loew's out-of-town circuit.

Harry Goldberg, director of advertising and publicity for Warners, has addressed meetings of district managers and advertising and publicity men in Chicago, Milwaukee and Washington, outlining for them the plans for the campaign.

Announcement from campaign headquarters in New York on Tuesday placed the total of industry pledges at slightly over $900,000. Indications were that the $1,000,000 goal would be reached before the end of the month.

At the district and division managers' meeting held in Kansas City by National Theatres, Spyros Skouras, operating head of the circuit, pledged his company's cooperation in the campaign.

All Hollywood studios will cooperate in the making of a 15 minute radio transcription which will trace the development of sound films for program use in connection with the industry campaign. The transcription will be prepared under the direction of the Hollywood radio committee of the drive of which Irving Rubine of Warner Brothers is chairman.

Sound tracks will be contributed by studios for re-recording. These will include Al Jolson's "Mammy" song from his first sound film, Clark Gable, Claudette Colbert, Shirley Temple and others. Will H. Hays will contribute an introductory resume of the history of sound film.

Appointment of a committee to handle special features of the campaign was announced this week by George J. Schaefer, chairman of the executive committee. Acceptances for the group have been received from Charles L. O'Reilly, chairman, of New York; Tony Sudekum, of Nashville, Tenn.; John Balaban of Chicago; George W. Trendle of Detroit; Robert J. O'Donnell of Dallas, Texas, and Charles Skouras of Los Angeles.

New York Meeting Called

The committee for the New York metropolitan area called a meeting for Thursday at the Hotel Astor at which more than 50 community committees were to be named to work in the five boroughs, adjoining counties, and New Jersey. Joseph Seider, Max Cohen, Harry Brandt and Irving Dollinger are co-chairmen of the metropolitan area committee. Mr. Cohen is treasurer; Leon Rosenblatt, secretary, and Leo Abrams chairman of the distributors' committee for the area. Committee members include Jack Bowen, Laurence Bolognino, Arthur Rapf, J. M. Hirshblond, David M. Levy, Lee Newbury, Robert Wolf, Samuel Rinzler, Edward Bell, Harry Randell, Rudolph Sanders, David Snapper, Samuel Strausberg and others.

Additional regional meetings were scheduled for Seattle, St. John, N. B., Louisville and Toledo this week. Martin Smith, chairman of the Toledo committee is engineering a special exploitation fund for local parades and street decorations.

Exhibitors in the Dallas territory met Monday and pledged support to the campaign after hearing detailed plans for the drive from R. E. Griffith. Plans were made for putting the drive on statewide basis with local committees in charge.

Montreal exhibitors also pledged their cooperation at a meeting presided over by J. J. Fitzgibbons, chairman of the Canadian unit.

Frank La Falce, Warner publicity man, has been named chairman of the publicity committee for the Washington, D. C., area. Rodney Conger has been appointed to a like position in the Baltimore territory.

Exhibitor Organization Continues

A large group of southern theatre men assembled in Atlanta Monday for a one day meeting to pledge support to the campaign. William K. Jenkins, general chairman, presided. Speakers included O. C. Lam of Rome, Ga.; Roy Martin, of Columbus, Ga., and Robert Mochri.

Sidney C. Davidson, former director of exploitation for Warners, has joined the campaign committee to work on general promotion and national tie-ups.

Further encouragement to support the campaign was given Loew managers at a meeting at the Ziegfeld theatre, New York Monday night attended by district managers, managers and assistants of the circuit in the metropolitan area. C. C. Moskowitz, in charge of operation in the metropolitan district; Marvin Schenck and Oscar Doob explained details of the campaign and urged every Loew theatre not only to put on a drive of its own but to cooperate with other theatres.

COMPLETE TEXT OF CONTEST RULES

The official rules of the "Movie Quiz" contest to be conducted in conjunction with the "Motion Pictures' Greatest Year" campaign, as announced by the committee in charge, follow:

1. This contest is open to everybody residing within the 48 States of the U.S.A., District of Columbia and Canada with the exception of persons employed by, or related to any person employed in the motion picture industry. Motion picture boards of review or censorship and those connected with the same, persons whose occupation or business is reviewing motion pictures, motion picture radio commentators, employees or relatives of employees of the advertising agencies, judges and the judging organization associated with this contest are not eligible to enter.

2. This contest is a game of skill. A group of 94 motion picture films will be released and shown on the screen between August 1, 1938, and October 31, 1938. Free booklets will be available at all theatres where these motion pictures will be featured. These booklets will contain simple questions and the correct answers will be found in the pictures shown on the screen. The name of the Motion Picture and the question to be answered for that particular picture is clearly described in the booklet. The question asked belongs only to that one specially designated motion picture and to no other. Thirty questions must be answered to be eligible in this contest.

3. When thirty questions have been answered, then write a statement of not more than fifty words telling the name of the motion picture you liked best and why. Fancy writing or phraseology are not necessary. Just write as if you were telling a friend why the picture appealed to you. Only one fifty word letter may accompany your set of Thirty answers. Your statement may be typewritten or in longhand. Fancy penmanship or artistic writing will not influence the judges. Do not decorate your entries.

4. Your statement must be original and over your own name and signature and bear your true name and bonafide address. Each contestant may submit only one entry. Use one side of paper only in submitting your entry.

5. It is not necessary to wait until the end of the contest to submit your entry. When you have completed the answers to thirty questions you may submit them. Be sure to enclose the fifty word statement with your answers.

6. Entries will be judged by the highest number of correct answers to questions. In the event of ties then the best fifty word statement will be selected and graded on the basis of sincerity, merit, originality and advertising value to determine the winners.

7. In the further event of ties in best statements submitted, duplicate prizes will be awarded.

8. The sponsors of this contest will not be responsible for entries lost in the mails. All entries must be sent by first class mail. In fairness to all contestants no correspondence will be entered into regarding the contest.

9. All entries become the property of the sponsors of this contest and none will be returned.

10. Mail your entries to Movie Quiz Contest (address to be announced), New York City, N. Y. All entries must be postmarked not later than midnight, December 31, 1938.

$250,000 TO BE SPLIT FOR 5,404 PRIZES

There will be 5,404 prizes in the "Movie Quiz" contest totaling $250,000. First prize will be $50,000 and second prize $25,000, with the others to be awarded in the following order and amounts:

Two of $10,000 each.
Five of $5,000 each.
Five of $2,000 each.
Ten of $1,000 each.
Forty of $500 each.
Forty of $250 each.
Three hundred of $100 each.
Five thousand of $10 each.

The prize winners will be announced as soon after the close of the contest on December 31, 1938, as is practicable.

11. The sponsors of this contest pledge that each and every entry will be carefully read and considered by a nationally known, independent judging organization highly skilled in contest work.

12. To assure absolute fairness to each and all contestants, the final adjudging and distribution of awards will be made by an honorary committee as follows: (To be announced).

13. The judges' decision will be final. Each and every participant in this contest agrees to abstain from any form of litigation whatsoever in any and all matters relating to this contest. Your signed, submitted entry is an express acceptance of the rules and conditions governing this contest.

14. A complete list of winners will be released as soon as possible after the contest closes. Watch for announcements.

Caution: Under no consideration should you purchase solutions to this series of questions from so-called solution experts. The correct answers are known only to the judges and to nobody else.

Method Illustrated

In addition to making public the above rules, the contest committee also offers this sample of how questions will be listed:

Let us presume that the picture is "The Singular Mr. Quiz," a Fictitious Picture Corporation production, starring Joe Doakes and Martha Millicent. (The title and the stars are of course suppositious).

In one of the scenes from this picture, Joe and Martha are left alone in the drawing room of her Park Avenue mansion. Suddenly Martha walks out on Joe. The question is: "Why did Martha walk out on Joe in the picture, 'The Singular Mr. Quiz'?"

One of these four answers is the correct one:

1. She remembers that she has to address a meeting of the League for Prospective Brides.
2. She smells something burning in the kitchen.
3. The script calls for it.
4. They have quarreled.

Common sense, plus your recollection of the picture should tell you that Number Four is the correct answer. Check it.

The question may involve neither personalities nor action, but may deal with the description of a scene or a major "prop" as for example:

"Frozen Champagne" (again an imaginary title), a Super-Super Co. production, starring Pierre van Zinch and Gwendolyn Goldilocks.

Pierre and Gloria have finally disposed of the stolen jewels, and sail from New York to Zanzibar to escape the police. They embark on the following type vessel: (Check the correct answer).

1. A two-seated kayak.
2. The Hoboken ferry.
3. A tramp steamer.
4. The Confederate iron-clad "Merrimac."

Number three is, you may have guessed, the correct answer.

Exhibitor Units Pledge Support

tors conferred in New York on Monday with Harold B. Franklin and pledged their support of the campaign. Members were Maurice Shulman, Jacob Fishman, Lawrence Caplan, Irving Jacocks and Edward Levy.

Pledges of financial support for the campaign were received from approximately 100 circuit and independent theatre men who attended the regional organization meeting in Des Moines last week, Ralph Branton, chairman of the Des Moines and Omaha territory committee reported. Plans were made for local meetings throughout the territory.

Approximately $4,000 was contributed by independent and circuit exhibitors at a meeting in Minneapolis presided over by W. A. Steffes and addressed by A. W. Smith, Jr. Named on committees to promote the campaign in the territory were John Friedl, Will Glaser, Ben Friedman, S. J. Blackmore, John Pillar, Marty Lebedoff, Julius Overmoe, W. H. Workman, Ralph Cramblet, Frank Mantsky, Charles Weiner, Moe Levy, Barry Burke and Eddie Rubin.

Members of the United Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Eastern Pennsylvania, Southern New Jersey and Delaware pledged complete cooperation for the campaign at a meeting in Philadelphia last week. George Aarons was named secretary for the local drive committee which includes Ted Schlesinger, Lewen Pizor, Ben Amsterdam, Sam Gross, Harry Bodkin, Luke Gring, Milt Rogasner and Leo Posel.

Final details for the participation of St. Louis exhibitors will be completed at a mass meeting to be held at the Coronado Hotel next Monday.

A mass meeting of exhibitors and distributors was held Monday at the Uptown theatre, called by the committee on the national advertising drive. Outlining purposes of the drive and enlisting the support of exhibitors were Elmer C. Rhoden, Fox Midwest head, chairman; Clarence A. Schultz, Commonwealth Amusement Corporation head; Glen W. Dickinson, head of the Dickinson Circuit, and Ed Dubinsky-Durwood, head of the Dubinsky Brothers circuit.

Allied Theatre Owners of New Jersey adopted resolutions Tuesday at Asbury Park calling upon the organization to inform its members that participation in the national industry advertising campaign is not recommended by it. The resolution also called for the resignation of any of the organization's officers and directors from posts which they may be holding on committees of the New York exchange territory for the "Motion Pictures' Greatest Year" campaign.

The reasons given for the resolution were that the campaign was undertaken without consultation with the New Jersey organization; that exhibitors as well as producers and distributors are asked to share in the cost of the campaign; that participation in it may place exhibitors in "a precarious position" in negotiating new season contracts, and that it might imply undue friendliness with the rest of the industry which is participating in the drive.

Distributors of foreign language pictures were invited to a meeting in New York this week to discuss a booking drive for their product to be conducted during the industry campaign. Sponsors pointed out that the industry's drive was concentrated upon American pictures.

FILM ROADSHOWS DROP; 30 IN LAST FIVE YEARS

Ten in 1937-38 Season; "Marie Antoinette" the Lone Instance to Date This Year; Distributors Tell the Reason Why

Roadshowing of motion pictures, a selling practice met with decidedly divided opinion among exhibitors, is on the wane. Under the present plans of distributors the practice will be practically eliminated during the 1938-39 season despite the fact that many executives consider engagements on a two-a-day basis excellent exploitation.

Dating as far back as 1913 when "Quo Vadis" made a huge profit in a 22-week engagement at the Astor theatre, New York, roadshows have passed the stage where distributors look to them for any appreciable profit, it was pointed out in the home office sales offices. Instead, a roadshow today is designed primarily to arouse interest and to serve as the backbone of exploitation and advertising campaigns when the picture is released generally.

With the exception of the current showing of Metro-Goldwyn Mayer's "Marie Antoinette" at advanced prices in New York, San Francisco and Los Angeles, not one picture is scheduled for roadshowing in the new season. Executives of the distributing companies emphasized the point, however, that this does not necessarily mean there will be no roadshows. In most cases, they said a final decision is not made until after the film is completed.

Generally speaking, however, the days of a picture drawing capacity audiences week after week at $2.20 top are considered past. Also looked upon as a thing of the past is the setting out by a producer to make a picture specifically for roadshowing.

While distributors freely conceded this, at the same time each executive qualified his remarks with the word that "it all depends upon the individual picture." Gradwell Sears, sales manager of Warner Brothers, flatly declared that there "can't be anything such as a trend in how pictures are to be handled."

The books show that in the closing season there were ten roadshows. In the 1936-37 season there were eight; in 1935-36, none; in 1934-35, six, and in 1933-34, six.

Numerous reasons were cited by distributors for the decline in interest in roadshows, chiefly:

1. General business conditions are unfavorable.

2. Potential patrons are show-wise and know that a roadshow attraction will be released at popular prices within a few months, at the most.

3. Complaints from exhibitors.

4. Inability by distributors to obtain the houses they want.

There have been repeated exceptions to the four reasons mentioned, however. One distributor pointed out that Warner Brothers roadshowed its "Midsummer Night's Dream" in thousands of theatres. This was prompted by the fact, the spokesman said, that the picture appealed to a class instead of mass audience.

As another example of the necessity of judging each picture on its merits as to whether it should be roadshown, A. Montague, Columbia sales manager, cited his company's "Lost Horizon," which was among the ten roadshows last year. "If I had the same picture tomorrow," he said, "I'd roadshow it again." He pointed out that because of the idealistic type of the picture, it held no appeal for the masses until after they had been awakened to its entertainment content.

Backed by a $75,000 campaign, the picture developed into a hit attraction, and had it been released without a roadshow, Mr. Montague said he believed "it would have opened in numerous theatres and would have been gone before the audiences realized they wanted to see it."

Mr. Montague also praised the roadshowing of "Lloyds of London" by Twentieth Century-Fox. "Who would have thought," he asked, "that there would be drama connected with an insurance company? At the start the picture just seemed to be a story of the growth of an insurance company. Audiences had to be shown that there was drama in the picture."

Exhibitors, Mr. Montague contended, are not opposed to the roadshowing of pictures that need it.

Exploitation Value First

A spokesman for MGM said that every one of its roadshow attractions has made money but he added that the exploitation value of a roadshow was considered of far greater importance.

At Twentieth Century-Fox, Martin Moscowitz, assistant to Herman Wobber, distribution executive, pointed out that distributors roadshow only those productions that are done on a massive or spectacular scale. When $2,000,000 has been spent on a production, he continued, the loss of $50,000 on a roadshow is only a "drop in the bucket" compared to the exploitation and advertising value.

Both Mr. Montague and Mr. Moscowitz mentioned the fact that patrons have grown show-wise, and said that in addition to knowing that a picture will be released to popular price theatres within a short time, patrons are aware that many of the legitimate theatres in which roadshow attractions are exhibited are not so comfortably equipped as the regular first-run motion picture theatre. It was generally agreed by distributors that audiences at roadshows are made up of persons who ordinarily attend first-run theatres. Patrons of neighborhood and subsequent-run houses are not considered potential roadshow audiences.

Different from Earlier Days

That these factors have developed or appeared with the growth of the industry is shown by the manner in which roadshows were handled in years gone by. Howard Hughes' "Hell's Angels," for instance, played simultaneously at two Broadway houses for almost a year.

"The Birth of a Nation," however, is still considered the classic of roadshows. Terry Ramsaye, author of "A Million and One Nights," told of the success of this picture when he recorded the death of Joseph Jefferson McCarthy in MOTION PICTURE HERALD, March 6, 1937. Mr. Ramsaye wrote:

"'The Birth of a Nation' cost about $100,000 and its gross income from roadshow exploitation was in the vicinity of ten

Roadshows of Eight Companies Compared for Five-Year Period

During the last five years there were a total of 30 feature pictures roadshowed by the eight large companies. During the 1935 season not a single film was roadshowed. The number each company showed during the five years was as follows:

Company	1937	1936	1935	1934	1933	Total
Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer	4	2	0	2	0	8
Paramount	0	2	0	1	3	6
RKO	0	0	0	0	0	0
Twentieth Century-Fox	2	0	0	1	3	6
United Artists	2	1	0	2	0	5
Warner Brothers	1	3	0	0	0	4

MUSIC HALL A FACTOR

millions of dollars. Of larger importance, however, was the encouragement that it gave to the rise of the motion picture from the limitations of the nickelodeon. There had been other notable roadshow exploitations before, conspicuously 'Quo Vadis,' a tremendous success but not so definitely integrated with the stream of motion picture development as the showmanship brought to bear by Mr. McCarthy and his associate, Theodore Mitchell, on the American 'Birth of a Nation.'"

One of the factors to which the decline of the roadshow is attributed is the first-run showing of pictures at the Radio City Music Hall in New York, and New York is generally considered the necessary starting point for successful roadshowing of a production. The top RKO Radio product plays the Music Hall. Coincidentally this company and Universal are the only two which have not roadshown a picture in the last five years.

A few weeks ago plans were drafted by United Artists for the roadshowing of Alexander Korda's "Drums," but the plans were abandoned when the company could not obtain the houses it wanted in Chicago and Philadelphia.

The 30 pictures roadshown in the last five years were:

1937-38

Captains Courageous—MGM
Firefly—MGM
Goldwyn Follies—UA
The Good Earth—MGM
Hurricane—UA
In Old Chicago—Fox

As a rule only six cities now are considered good roadshow locations. Besides New York they include Chicago, Philadelphia, Boston, Los Angeles and San Francisco. A possible seventh is Miami, during the winter season. Here, too, however, the distributors pointed out that there have been and probably will be exceptions, for "it all depends upon the picture."

Jack Lefton, for 16 years salesman with Universal out of Cleveland, has joined Republic, succeeding R. O. Flemm, resigned.

BILLBOARD RESTRICTION DEFEATED IN NEW YORK

New York's Constitutional Convention this week defeated a motion by Lithgow Osborne, Conservation Commissioner, to discharge from the Committee on Highways. Parkways and Grade Crossings a proposal which would have permitted the Legislature to limit the erection of signboards and other advertising devices in the Adirondack and Catskill Parks and on the State's parkways and scenic highways.

As originally drafted the measure applied to all highways in the state but was amended by Mr. Osborne to apply solely to the places specified in the final form.

Robert Moses, Republican chairman of the highways committee, who had opposed the earlier draft as "too broad in scope," joined Mr. Osborne in urging that the amended proposal be brought to the floor.

National Theatres Executives Meet

Detailing of the circuit's general policies for the coming year and a pledge of cooperation with the industry's "Motion Pictures' Greatest Year" campaign by Spyros Skouras concluded a two day meeting of National Theatres managers and executives in Kansas City August 11th.

Mr. Skouras on the first day of the meeting presented $150 cash prize awards to managers who won the recent business drive of the circuit. The winners were Morrill Moore, B. M. Montee, C. H. Zile, C. C. Murray, and J. Earle Hayes of the Fox Midwest division; Ember Brennan, Lowell Parmentier, Gene Kilburg and Harold Knudson of the Wisconsin division, and Don Dugan, Harold Jones, Jack Copeland and Harry Ashton of the Intermountain division.

Charles P. Skouras discussed general operating methods, Arch Bowles went into details of theatre operation, and H. J. Fitzgerald urged managers to get back to fundamentals and pay attention to details. Herman Wobber, general sales manager of Twentieth Century-Fox, and H. E. Jameyson, district manager of Fox Midwest, deplored the activity of radio commentators and newspaper columnists. William F. Rodgers, MGM sales manager, outlined his company's product for the coming year.

All those attending the meeting were the guests of E. C. Rhoden of Fox Midwest, at dinner on the first night and the convention closed with a banquet and show.

"Showmanship in production of pictures is not enough—there must be showmanship in exhibition," Darryl F. Zanuck told the delegates of the western regional meeting at a dinner given in their honor at the Twentieth Century-Fox studio Tuesday.

Rockefeller Unit Grants Funds to New Film Center

Another grant for work in visual education field, the seventh of its kind made by the General Education Board of the Rockefeller foundation, was announced this week as going to the American Film Center to aid in meeting the organization's expenditures during the first six months of its existence.

The company has established temporary offices at Rockefeller Center, New York, and, according to Donald Slesinger, "the center will devote its energies to the promotion of the use of the moving film as a medium of education."

The organization's work, he explained, will not duplicate any of the work being done by other groups in the field. It will serve, he continued, as a "middleman" between the users of educational films and the producers. He stressed the point that although there will be a charge for the Center's services, the organization will be a non-profit company.

"It will accomplish its objective," Mr. Slesinger continued, "by serving as the connecting link between scientific, educational, social, industrial and governmental organizations which have film ideas and the production and distribution units capable of bringing the ideas to the screen and before the public. It will also offer its research facilities to producers of films for entertainment."

The Center, he added, will not engage in actual production. Confining its activities to consultation, research, supervision and planning, it will work with, and through existing units in the educational and theatrical fields, he said.

Mr. Slesinger was formerly professor of law at Yale University and dean in the division of social sciences at the University of Chicago. He now is director of education of the New York World's Fair.

Other members of the board are Dr. Alice V. Keliher, chairman of the commission of human relations, Progressive Education Association; Dr. Luther Gulick, director of the Institute of Public Administration, director of the Regents Inquiry into the Character and Cost of Public Education in the State of New York, and Eaton Professor of municipal science and administration at Columbia University; Kenneth D. Widdemer, director of the committee on neighborhood health development of the New York City Health Department, and Fanning Hearon, director of the Association of School Film Libraries, Inc.

Special Trailer Made

Warner Brothers has made a special trailer to advertise the first of a series of films concerning secret service operatives. W. H. Moran, former chief of the United States Secret Service, appears in the trailer with Ronald Reagan, who is scheduled to play the operative in the pictures.

RKO Radio managers and salesmen in the United States and Canada are to compete for $3,000 in prizes in a sales drive on March of Time, retroactive to July 1st and ending Feb. 24, 1939.

ANTI-TRUST SUIT FILED IN GEORGIA DURING LULL IN GOVERNMENT ACTION

Independent Asks $654,000 Damages of Circuit and Distributors; Companies Given Stay on Federal Charges

Filing of an anti-trust suit by an independent circuit owner in Georgia against the Lucas & Jenkins circuit and nine producer-distributors marked an otherwise quiet week in the troubled sector of industry trade practices. The long heralded suit against Balaban & Katz and major distributors in Chicago was delayed until next week, the independent group which is contemplating the action claiming that the postponement was due not to the expectation of further negotiation but to the absence from the city of their attorney, Joseph Rosenberg.

An expected extension to November 1st of the deadline for the filing of answers by 39 of the defendants in the Government's suit against the industry was granted on Monday.

Sidney R. Kent, chairman of the distributors' committee charged with the preparation of a program of trade practice regulation said no formal meetings of the group are scheduled for the next few weeks, and it is probable that no further discussions will be held until after Labor Day. Last week it was said that study of the problem would be delayed until after attorneys had studied the possible effect of the Government suit on negotiations.

The Georgian complaint, brought by Mr. and Mrs. Fred Wise of Savannah as owners of the Savannah Theatre Company, was filed in the fifth federal district court in Atlanta and asked $654,000 damages. Named individually as defendants in the action were Arthur Lucas and William K. Jenkins, officials of the circuit, together with Paramount Pictures Distributing Company, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Distributing Company, Columbia Pictures Corporation, United Artists Corporation, Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation, RKO Radio Pictures, Inc., Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., Vitagraph, Inc., and Universal Film exchanges, Inc.

The petition, filed by John I. Kelley, an attorney, charged that Lucas & Jenkins, about January 1, 1936, "entered into a conspiracy with the defendant producers and distributors to monopolize the motion picture theatre business in the cities of Savannah, Macon, Augusta, Gainesville, Athens, Barnesville and other towns. This was done, it was claimed, through contracts which made it impossible for the Savannah Theatre Company to obtain sufficient first-class films to maintain its business.

The complainant charged that prior to January 1, 1936, the Savannah Theatre Company had operated the Savannah Theatre successfully and lucratively for 14 years, building up a business that "in normal years realized a gross earning of as much as $90,000 per annum."

The petition alleged that the "conspiracy" had reduced the plaintiff's business by more than $40,000 per year for the last four years. In addition, the company declared it suffered an estimated $40,000 loss through depreciation in the value of the property and a $13,500 shrinkage in the value of its equipment. Actual damages of $218,000 was claimed. Under terms of the anti-trust laws, he seeks three times this amount, plus costs.

Citing what it charged was further evidence of the monopolistic practices of the defendants, the complainant company told of a thwarted attempt to build a surburban theatre in Savannah. The petition said the idea of erecting suburban theatres not in competition with downtown houses was conceived as an expedient to escape the effects of the picture shortage.

The petition stated that a site some 20 blocks from theatres belonging to defendants was purchased for $11,500 and that another $1,000 was spent upon preliminary plans and a tentative agreement reached for films. But, the plaintiff said, Lucas and Jenkins hastily obtained another lot in the immediate vicinity, erected a theatre, "triumphantly named the Victory theatre," obtained exclusive film contracts and forced the plaintiff to abandon its plan to erect surburban theatres.

When notified that the suit had been filed, Arthur Lucas' comment to the press was that he was "highly flattered at being sued for such a sum."

"My only regret is that the suit is not for $60,000,000," he said. "I have been in business in Savannah for 30 years, while the party who has filed this suit was operating in New York, Brooklyn, Oklahoma and other points.

"It is merely an instance where an individual finds he is unable to do as much business as he wants to and demands that somebody else give him a part of their business.

"The attorney who filed this action has filed many other suits of somewhat similar character in a half dozen cities in Georgia. We are accustomed to these sort of tactics."

Extension Granted

The consent for extension of time in the Government anti-trust suit was given in stipulations filed in the United States district court in New York by Wendell Berge, assistant to the attorney general. The extension operates from August 9th.

J. Robert Rubin, as attorney signed the stipulation in behalf of Loew's, Inc., Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Corp., Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Distributing Corp. of Texas, Nicholas M. Schenck, Arthur M. Loew, J. Robert Rubin, Edgar J. Mannix, Leopold Friedman, Louis B. Mayer, William F. Rodgers, Isidor Frey, Charles C. Moskowitz, John R. Hazel, William A. Parker and Harry Rapf. The consent further provided that if any other defendants listed in the complaint as part of the Loew group appeared in the action before October 12th, the time to answer would automatically extend to November 1st.

Schwartz & Frohlich acted as attorney for Columbia Pictures Corp., Columbia Pictures of Louisiana, Inc., Columbia Pictures Distributing Co., Inc., Jack Cohn, Abe Schneider, Abe Montague, Saul Bornstein and Charles Schwartz, in signing the stipulation which provided that the extension would operate for any other defendants in the Columbia group.

Chadbourne, Hunt, Jaeckel & Brown, as atttorneys, signed the extension for Universal Pictures Co., Inc., Universal Film Exchanges, Inc., Big U Film Exchange, Inc., J. Cheever Cowdin, Samuel Machnovitz, James P. Normanly, N. J. Blumberg, Peyton Gibson, Paul G. Brown, Budd Rogers, Daniel M. Sheaffer, Willis H. Taylor, Jr., Matthew Fox, Willson A. Scully and Joseph H. Seidelman. The stipulation also operates for any other defendants in the Universal group.

The Chase National Bank of the City of New York, as a defendant in the suit, was also granted an extension to November 1st.

Paramount Pictures, Inc., Paramount Pictures Distributing Co., Inc., and 15 of the individual defendants in the Paramount group filed a notice of appearance in the suit Monday in which Simpson, Thatcher & Bartlett formally filed notice that it represented the Paramount defendants as attorneys.

Donovan, Leisure, Newton & Lumbard entered the extension as attorneys for Irving Trust Company and the RKO group of defendants.

Theatre Divorce Decree Ready

Attorneys for Paramount and the State of North Dakota on Monday completed preparation of the decree giving effect to the recent federal statutory court decision upholding the constitutionality of the North Dakota theatre divorce law. The decree was to be entered in federal court at Fargo this week.

Under the form agreed upon a 30 days stay of enforcement will be granted Paramount and the Minnesota Amusement Company to allow time for preparing an appeal. With the filing of the appeal Paramount will petition the United States supreme court for a writ of supersedeas to restrain enforcement of the law pending a determination of the appeal.

IRENE CASTLE IN HOLLYWOOD

Irene Castle McLaughlin, member of America's first internationally famous dance team with her late husband, Vernon Castle, arrived in Hollywood this week to assume her duties under a contract with RKO Radio studio. She is to be costume designer, technical adviser and writer for a film co-starring Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers, based on the career of the Castles. Miss Rogers is to portray the role of Irene Castle in the picture.

Vernon Castle was killed in an Army plane crash at Fort Worth, Tex., in the World War.

In 1916 Irene Castle starred in a serial entitled "Patria" that had considerable censorship difficulties because of protests by Japan and Mexico.

Warner District Managers Confer at Home Office

Following screenings of three Warner Brothers pictures, the company's district managers met Monday at the home office, New York, to discuss merchandising plans with Gradwell L. Sears, general sales manager; Carl Leserman, assistant sales manager; Roy Haines, eastern and Canadian sales manager; Ben Kalmenson, western and southern sales manager, and Mort Blumenstock, in charge of publicity and advertising in the east.

The films screened were "Four Daughters," "Garden of the Moon" and "Valley of the Giants."

Samuel Goldwyn has signed Richard Connell, short story writer and scenarist, to write an original for Vera Zorina.

Crabtree Dinner Marks Silver Jubilee Of Five Kodak Research Scientists

The scientists who have been honored at Rochester on the completion of 25 years' work in photographic research, left to right: Dr. Loyd A. Jones, John G. Capstaff, John I. Crabtree, Samuel E. Sheppard, Dr. C. E. Kenneth Mees.

At the last of a series of five anniversary celebrations which, taken together, recalled the formation of the Kodak Research Laboratories, John I. Crabtree, head of the department of photographic chemistry at the laboratories, was honored Tuesday night at a dinner at the Ridgemont Golf Club, Rochester. Mr. Crabtree, a former president of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers has completed 25 years' service with the Laboratories.

Edward Peck Curtis, sales manager of the motion picture film division, was toastmaster at the dinner; Dr. C. E. Kenneth Mees, vice-president in charge of research and development, made an informal address and Dr. Merle L. Dundon presented a barometer to the guest of honor.

The Kodak Research Laboratories were established when Dr. Mees was invited to Rochester from England in 1912 as director. Dr. Mees's 25th anniversary was observed last December at a tea attended by most of the 500 laboratory-staff members and their wives. In the time intervening between December and August, the silver anniversaries of three other Kodak research pioneers—Dr. Samuel E. Sheppard, Dr. Loyd A. Jones, and John G. Capstaff—have been celebrated.

After earning his doctor of science degree at the University of London, Dr. Mees served for six years as managing director of the English photographic firm of Wratten & Wainwright. The Kodak Company acquired that business as one condition of obtaining Dr. Mees's services in 1912. He became a director of the Eastman Kodak Company in 1923, and a vice-president in 1934.

Dr. Sheppard is assistant director of the Kodak Research Laboratories, and head of the department of physical and organic research. He likewise holds the degree of doctor of science from the University of London. Dr. Sheppard continued his studies at the University of Marburg, in Germany; at the Sorbonne, in Paris; and at Cambridge, in England. He joined the staff of the Kodak Research Laboratories in January, 1913.

Dr. Jones is head of the department of physics of the Laboratories. He earned an electrical-engineering degree and the degree of master of arts from the University of Nebraska. The University of Rochester awarded him an honorary degree of doctor of science in 1933, having awarded the same degree to Dr. Mees in 1921. Before joining the Kodak Research Laboratories as one of the first staff members, Dr. Jones served as a physicist at the United States Bureau of Standards for two years. Dr. Jones's extensive research work and scientific publications have been in the fields of photometry, physical optics, illumination, colorimetry, the physics of photography, visual sensitometry, and motion-picture engineering.

Mr. Capstaff, whose department of the Laboratories is engaged in color work, attended Armstrong College, at Newcastle-on-Tyne, England, before establishing his own photographic business at Newcastle. He joined the firm of Wratten & Wainwright at the time when it was acquired by the Eastman Kodak Company, and he remained with that firm in England for more than half a year before joining the new research staff at Rochester.

Mr. Capstaff headed the research that produced the present system of home movies. He was responsible for development of the earlier Eastman 16-mm. color process, Kodacolor, to practicality; and he has another color process to his credit as well: an experimental 35-mm. two-color process completed in the early 1920's. Mr. Capstaff has also done a great deal of work on processing machines and printers.

Mr. Crabtree, the last of the "charter members" of the Kodak Research Laboratories to reach the quarter-century mark with the Kodak organization, heads the department of photographic chemistry and the department of film developing of the Laboratories. He earned the degrees of bachelor of science and master of science from Victoria University, at Manchester, England. He joined the Kodak organization directly after receiving the latter degree. He has written two books and many scientific papers. In 1924 he was awarded the Progress Medal of the French Photographic Society. He was president of the Society of Motion Picture Engineers in 1930 and 1931.

Vitagraph Charges Plagiarism of Stills

Charging plagiarism of 34 still photographs, Vitagraph, Inc., this week filed a suit in United States district court, New York, against the Behrend Motion Picture Supply House, Inc. The plaintiff contends the defendant unlawfully plagiarised and sold the photographs owned by Vitagraph.

The complaint asks for an injunction and for an assessment of damages of $250 for each alleged plagiarism. In response to an application of Vitagraph, Robert P. Patterson, federal judge, issued a writ to impound the photographs pending the outcome of the trial.

Plans Meeting August 24

Federal anti-trust suits, the cooperative advertising campaign to be undertaken by the film industry and the Neely anti-block booking bill will be discussed August 24th when the Theatre Owners and Managers of the Rocky Mountain Region meet in Denver. Frank H. (Rick) Ricketson, division manager for Fox Intermountain Theatres, will be the principal speaker.

MGM Bookers Shifted

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's Detroit bookers have been shifted. Arthur E. C. Zuelch of Detroit has been transferred to Minneapolis as first booker, succeeding Clyde Cutter, who resigned to become an exhibitor; Clifford Perry, third booker, succeeds Mr. Zuelch, and Herbert Brown, student booker, has been given a permanent position.

STUDIO WAGE LEVELS UNCHANGED AT BASIC AGREEMENT CONFERENCE

Union Request for Increase and Producers' Request for Cut Compromised at Brief Session Under Five - Year Contract

Requests by producing companies for a 10 per cent decrease in existing wage schedules for studio unions and counter requests by the unions for a 10 per cent increase resulted this week in a compromise agreement between the companies and the five internationals which are signatories of the five-year basic agreement under which the present wage and hour schedules will remain in effect until next spring.

The agreement was reached in New York Monday at a two-hour conference of company heads and representatives of the internationals, one of the shortest sessions in the history of the annual conferences involving the basic agreement. The discussions of terms, provided for in the contract, usually take place in March but this year neither party requested the conference until this month.

Pat Casey, studio labor contact, who was chairman of the discussions, was to return to Hollywood this weekend. Major companies were represented at the session by Barney Balaban and Austin Keough of Paramount; Earle W. Hammons, Educational; Sidney R. Kent, Twentieth Century-Fox; Nate J. Blumberg, Universal; Eugene Picker, Columbia; Harry D. Buckley, United Artists; Nicholas M. Schenck, Loew's; Leo Spitz, RKO, and Albert W. Warner, Warner Brothers.

The unions were represented by Joseph N. Weber, American Federation of Musicians; George Browne and William Bioff, International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employees; Jack Flynn, representing William Hutchinson of the Carpenters and Joiners International, and James Castle for Daniel Tobin of the Teamsters and Chauffeurs International.

Studios Get Nylander Summons

Dr. Towne Nylander, Los Angeles regional director of the Labor Relations Board, on Monday issued formal complaints to ten studios charging refusal to bargain collectively with the Screen Directors' Guild and ordering them to appear on charges August 22d when the directors' petition to be declared the collective bargaining agency for directors, assistants and unit managers will be heard. Issuance of the complaints was indicated last week when the studios denied application of the Wagner Labor Relations Act to production because, they claimed, the making of pictures is not in interstate commerce.

Leonard Janofsky, attorney for the Screen Writers' Guild, on Monday sent notices of certification of the Guild as the writers' bargaining agency to 13 studios with a notice that an early reply was expected.

Laboratory Strike Called

A strike of 55 employees was called this week at the Du-Art Laboratories, New York, by Motion Picture Laboratory Technicians Union, Local 702. John H. Rugge, union president, said the laboratory had refused to negotiate a contract calling for a closed shop, higher wage scales and an adjustment of working conditions. He claimed all employees of the title and laboratory departments were members of the union.

Chicago Operators Ask Increase

Officials of the Chicago local of the projectionists union indicated this week that a 20 per cent salary increase would be asked when negotiations for a new contract are started at the end of this month. The present contract expires August 31st. The union reduced wages for July and August by 10 per cent at the request of exhibitors early this summer.

Local 306 Picketing

A final drive to organize film theatres in the New York metropolitan area 100 per cent was started this week by Local 306, Moving Picture Machine Operators Union, with the support of the stage hands and musicians. Pickets were to be posted at Century circuit houses in Brooklyn and on Long Island. The Century circuit is the last major group to refuse to deal with Local 306. It employs members of the Empire State Union.

Two additional features in which Greta Garbo will star for MGM are "Nitotcha," to start when she returns to Hollywood November 1, and "Madame Curie."

Joints Creak and Muscles Ache At Hollywood Uplifters Outing

by VANCE KING
in Hollywood

Joints creaking and long unused muscles aching, some 70 film workers who joined their sons Sunday in the annual motion picture fathers' and sons' day at the Uplifters Club returned to their jobs this week after some of the most strenuous exercises many had since stretching their feet at their first previews.

The annual event, started by Sol Lesser, was featured, as usual, by the baseball game in which the fathers were vanquished soundly by a score of 19-4, according to Harry Rapf's score card, but some doubt this.

The fathers might have done better, but it seemed that every time one of the boys hit the ball to center field, it missed Mr. Lesser's cupped hands. Even the conniving of Gummo Marx, who umpired with Howard J. Green, failed to give the fathers much support. Mr. Marx insisted upon cleaning his pipe while calling strikes, raising the question of whether he could watch the home plate with his back to it.

There were other races for youngsters and oldsters. Jules White won the paper race, which consisted of rolling with his nose a roll of tissue. For this accomplishment, he received grass stains on his light trousers and a pair of suspenders. Mr. White won another event, the egg race, and received another pair of suspenders.

The White family had another representative in the winners' ranks. Richard White, son of the Columbia short subjects producer, won the 50-yard dash for boys under 12 years of age. He received a cup.

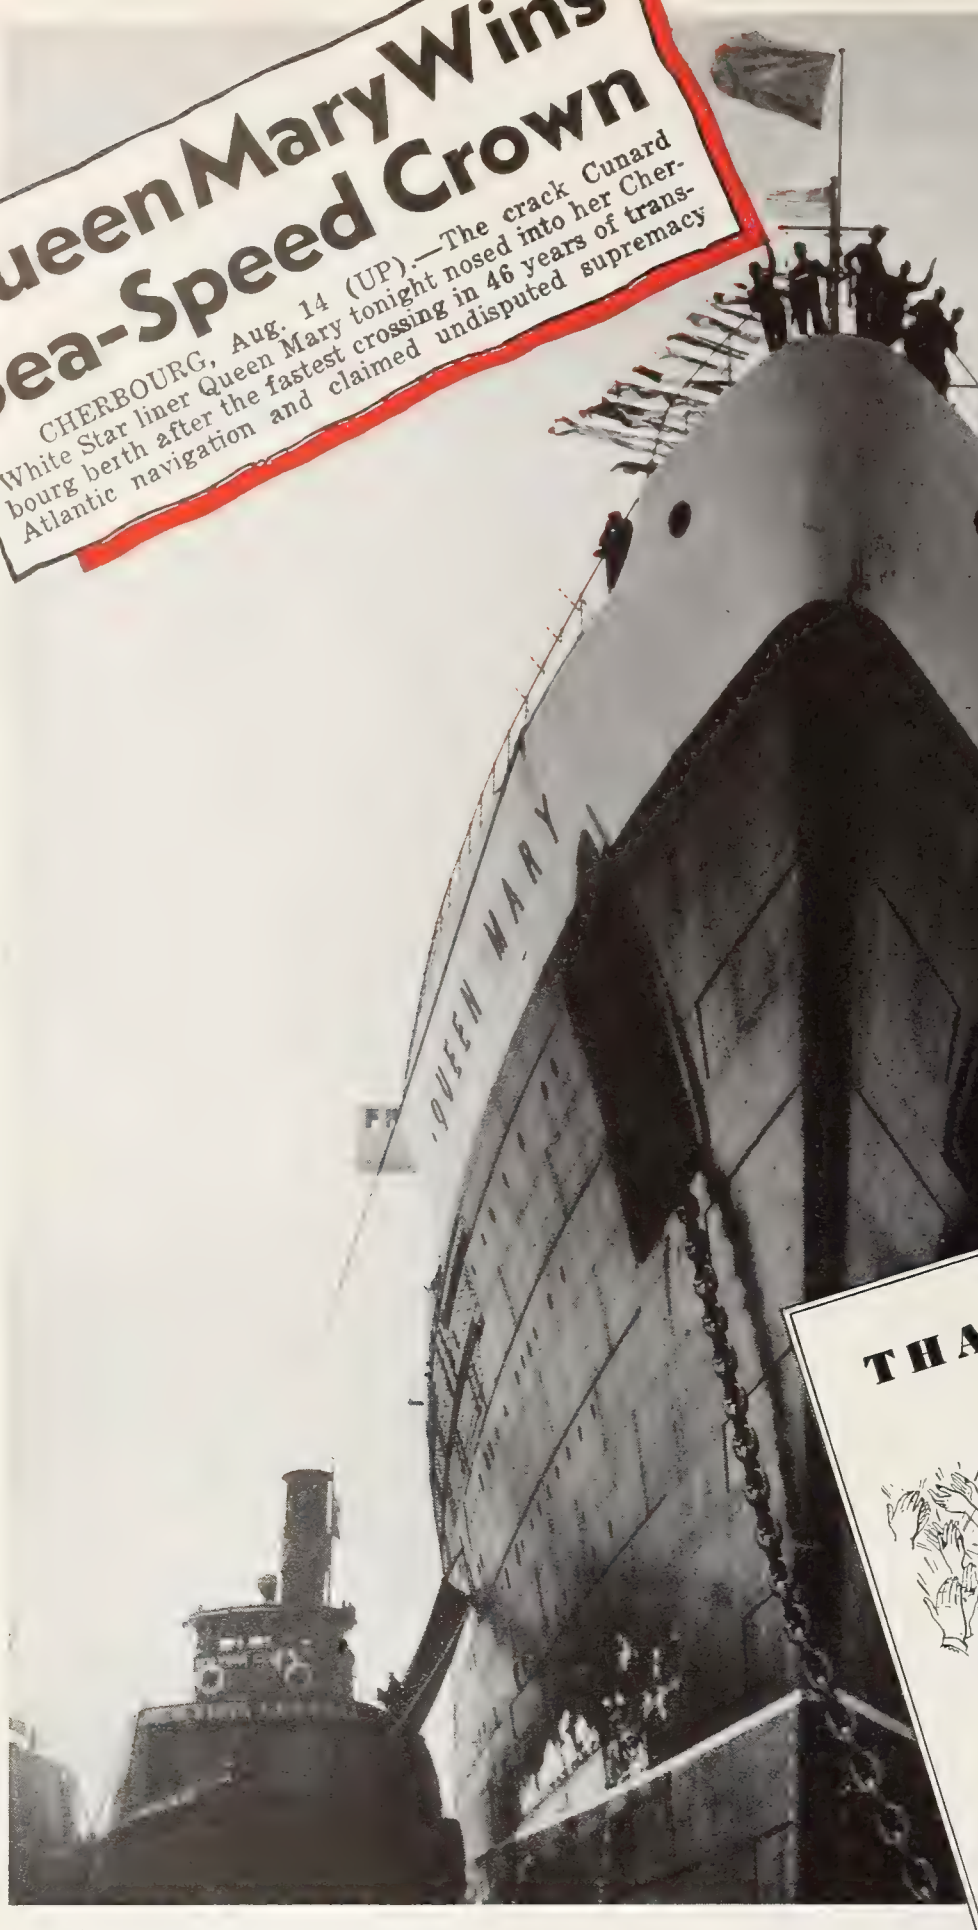
Winners of other events were: Three legged race (boys under 12 and parents): B. B. Kahane and son; three legged race (boys over 12 and parents): Sam Briskin and son; sack race (boys under 12): Robert Marx; sack race (boys over 12): Matty Rapf; fifty-yard dash (boys under 12): William Beaudine, Jr.; egg race (under 12—the boys, not the eggs): Jules Goldstone.

The day started off with the serving of breakfast outdoors. Charles Irwin was master of ceremonies, and Jerry Bergen added to the entertainment.

There was a tug of war game scheduled, but the fathers failed to rally enough strength to enter it, so it was called off.

Anti-ASCAP Bill Sought In New York by Allied

A bill limiting the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers' activities, patterned on the legislation recently upheld in the state of Washington, will be sponsored by Allied of New York in that state's legislature when it convenes in January.



The directors of the organization have authorized Harry G. Kosch, Allied's general counsel, to draft the bill. Mr. Kosch believes it will have a good chance for passage in view of the rejection of ASCAP's appeal on the Washington statute by a three-judge federal statutory court. That law prohibits blanket licensing of the use of music and provides for individual licenses with the copyright owners.

Allied's board also approved the proposal to hold its first annual convention jointly with that of New Jersey Allied October 19-21 at the Ritz Carlton in Atlantic City.

Monogram will have six productions before the camera within the next few days.

EDUCATIONAL AND GN IN MERGER AGREEMENT

Proposal to Be Submitted to GN Creditors and U. S. District Court for Formal Ratification

Launching of the combined Educational and Grand National companies was predicted for early next month as a result of the signing of a merger agreement in New York City last Friday by Earle W. Hammons, Educational president, and Loyd Wright and Edward A. Alperson, co-trustees of Grand National.

The agreement was reached within 24 hours after Mr. Alperson arrived in New York from the coast for conferences with Mr. Wright who had discussed the details of the merger with Mr. Hammons for a full week. Immediately after the signing of the pact, the trio left for the coast, planning to call a meeting of Grand National creditors to obtain their approval. The merger was discussed at a creditors' meeting two weeks ago and was approved in principle but formal final ratification is necessary.

Should the creditors vote the necessary approval, the agreement will be presented to the United States district court, Los Angeles, immediately thereafter. The court's sanction is necessary because of the fact that Grand National is undergoing reorganization under Section 77-B of the Bankruptcy Act. In the formal announcement of the signing of the agreement is was predicted that the matter would be presented to the court "in about ten days."

The announcement also stated that details of the plan would not be disclosed until after court approval has been obtained.

However, while the principals were negotiating the agreement, it was generally understood that the Educational proposal provided for making available approximately $1,000,000 in new financing for the new company, which also would have the combined residuary revenues from the unamortized films and other assets of both companies, amounting to an estimated $2,900,000. Grand National creditors, it was said, will be offered either part cash and part stock or all stock in exchange for the $350,000 of claims.

It was expected that the name of the new company will be New Grand National but it also was reported that the trade mark of Educational Pictures will be retained.

Franklin Warner, head of Fine Arts Pictures, which operates at the Grand National studio, accompanied Mr. Hammons, Mr. Wright, and Mr. Alperson to the coast.

Under the merger plans, Mr. Hammons will head the new company and Mr. Alperson will have charge of distribution.

Reports of the proposed merger were heard in New York and on the coast early in the year when it became known that Twentieth Century-Fox did not plan to renew its distributing agreement with Educational. The five-year pact expired this summer and Twentieth Century-Fox will produce and distribute its own short subjects during the new season.

Exhibitor Groups Set Outing Dates

Four exhibitor groups this week set dates for outings and two more changed the originally planned dates to others. The Rocky Mountain Screen Club picnic and the convention of Theatre Owners and Managers of the Rocky region was set back to Wednesday and Thursday of next week.

The convention will be held at the Cosmopolitan Hotel, Denver, Wednesday, while the picnic will be held the next day at the Evergreen golf course at Evergreen, 40 miles from Denver. The West Virginia Managers' Association also changed the dates of its convention to September 5th and 6th. The convention will be held at the Greenbrier Hotel, White Sulphur Springs, West Va.

The annual picnic of the Northwest Film Club has been scheduled for next Thursday at Shadow Lake, Seattle. This will be the fourth yearly gathering of film exchanges and theatre employees of that territory.

The annual New Haven film district outing, the 18th, will also be held next Thursday at Ye Castle Inn, Saybrook, Conn.

The Motion Picture Theatre Owners of Western Pennsylvania will hold its sixth annual stag corn roast and outing August 28th at Dr. C. E. Herman's farm, Carnegie.

The Kansas-Missouri Theatres Association has set September 7-8 as the dates for the annual convention, which will be held at Variety clubrooms on film row in Kansas City.

Gus Sun, head of a vaudeville booking exchange which bears his name, at Springfield, Ohio, will be host to theatre managers of Ohio, Indiana, Kentucky, West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Michigan and Illinois next Wednesday at an annual picnic to be held at the Van Dyke Club, near Mechanicsburg, Ohio.

New Orleans Exchanges Drop Protest on Tax

All protest over payment or collection of the recently-enacted one per cent New Orleans and Louisiana, city and state, exhibition tax on films has been abandoned by New Orleans exchanges, but may be contested in courts by the Saenger Corporation. Mr. Saenger declined to say when and whether action to contest the tax will be filed.

In Oklahoma City the Oklahoma County excise board reached a compromise agreement on assessments with a figure of $56,445 as compared with the $23,300 total voluntarily submitted.

Assessments were set at $975,000 at one time in the two months of arguing between the exchanges and the board, principally upon the point of what actual value prints stored at the exchange should carry.

Senator Denounces Press 'Dictatorship'

Senator Sherman Minton, Democrat, of Indiana, in denouncing the "big business" section of the American press, in another attack on the press charged this week that there are wealthy newspaper publishers in the United States who are conducting a censorship akin to European dictatorships, and who "would not scruple to throw this country into Fascism rather than surrender their privileges."

Senator Minton spoke at a forum luncheon in the Hotel Astor, New York, which opened the first annual meeting of the board of governors of the American Press Society.

Paul Scott Mowrer, president of the American Press Society and editor of the Chicago Daily News, who introduced the Senator, described the Society as "a national professional organization of working newspaper men and women, dedicated to the belief that theirs is an honorable profession which is in the nature of a public trust."

In opening his attack, the Senator singled out the Newspaper Publishers Association, recounting how last spring when he had called the attention of the country to the "impudent and hypocritical proposal of the Newspaper Publishers Association to censor free speech by curbing radio," his move had been construed as a move to "curb, censor and muzzle the press."

"This was all untrue," Senator Minton said, "but that was the story that was carried to the country by the newspapers. I did not attack the freedom of the press. I defended freedom of speech that was being attacked by the Newspaper Publishers Association, which had advocated censorship of radio."

Speed Claimed For Color Film

A newly perfected emulsion which is said to increase the speed of color film greatly and the use of two new dyes have increased the possibility of using 35 mm Dufaycolor film in Hollywood in the near future, according to Col. Leslie R. Naftzger, vice-president and general counsel of Dufaycolor, who returned this week from Europe.

The new emulsion, fine-grained, makes it possible for Dufaycolor to be used with the same lighting facilities that are used for black and white filming, Colonel Naftzger said. No special lighting, no filters and no special cameras are required, he explained. The improvement was perfected by Ilford, Ltd., in England.

Also, permission has been obtained to use a red sensitized dye which previously was barred from this country because of the question of certain infringements on Kodak patents. A green dye developed by the British Chemical Company, said to blend better into the spectrum than the green previously used also has been adopted by Dufaycolor.

Films in production or planned with Dufaycolor in England are far in excess of previous seasons, Colonel Naftzger said, and the British company within the next twelve months will print 15,000,000 feet of film.

THE HOLLYWOOD SCENE

Studios Busy

Time is turning into mid-August and the wheels of Hollywood's production mill are turning too. Pictures are starting and finishing at a rate just as steady as the clock's. Eleven new ones were sent on their way since the last report a week ago; twelve were finished. Some of the productions coming soon promise to be good entertainment.

Here are the seven day happenings. Columbia started two pictures. Edith Fellows, Robert Fiske, Jacqueline Wells, Robert Paige, Charles Waldron and Virginia Howell went to work in "Thoroughbreds." A Coronet Picture for this company's release will engage the attention of Luck Jones and sundry others for several days to come.

Several Start Two

Warners also started two. "Going Places" will present Dick Powell, Anita Louise, Walter Catlett, Allen Jenkins, Minna Gombell and Harold Huber in the theatres along about the time the leaves begin to fall. About that time, also, Errol Flynn, Basil Rathbone, Donald Crisp, David Niven, Barry Fitzgerald, Tony Marsh, Peter Willis and Michael Brook will be appearing in "Dawn Patrol."

Two pictures went into work at 20th Century-Fox as Mr. Darryl F. Zanuck arrived home from his European vacation. "Corn on the Cob" is an incident in the "Jones Family" series. The leading trio in "A Practical Joke" will be Michael Whelan, Jean Rogers and Chick Chandler.

Universal also started a pair of productions. The principals in "Swing That Cheer" listed at the moment are Tom Brown, Andy Devine, Robert Wilcox, Samuel Hinds, Constance Moore and Stanley Hughes. Bob Baker and most of the company that just finished "Twins of the West" went to work almost immediately in "Guilty Trail," despite the heat.

Over at RKO-Radio Ann Shirley, Edward Ellis and Lee Bowman got busy with "A Man to Remember," while next door Paramount was wondering what to do about "St. Louis Blues" now that George Raft has been suspended because he didn't like his part and Dorothy Lamour is recuperating from an operation. Who knows but here again lightning may strike a tyro with ambitions, as it did in a similar situation not long ago at Warners when Errol Flynn turned down the role in "Four Daughters" and John Garfield took it up in such a way that he'll probably have a Hollywood address for some time to come.

Two Complete Pairs

Detoured months ago by that Act of Congress known as 77-B, "Renfrew of the Mounties," a Grand National number, was restarted. Jimmy Newell, Jean Carmen, Warren Hull, Stanley Blystone and Walter Byron will be among those on display at some future date.

While all this was going on, the new production company headed by Malcolm Brown, made its entry by starting "The Masked Phantom," which will feature Betty Burgess and Randy Rawlins.

Two companies each finished two pictures. RKO-Radio chalked "Ranger Code" (tentative title) and "Room Service" off its active list. The first mentioned is a George O'Brien picture with Rita Hayworth, Ray Whitley, Tim Holt, William Royle, Charles Stevens, Neal Hart, Lucio Villegas, Cecilia Callejo, Chris Pin-Martin and Jim Mason. The three Marx Brothers, Ann Miller, Lucille Ball, Frank Alberson, Cliff Dunsant, Donald McBride, Charles Halton, Philip Wood, Ales Asro and Phillip Loeb are in "Room Service."

Monogram's "The Mexicali Kid" will feature Jack Randall, Eleanore Stewart and Wesley Barry. Its "Wanted by the Police" will parade Frankie Darro, Lillian Endicott, Robert Kent, Evelyn Knapp, Matty Fain, Sam Bernard, Thelma White and Willy Costello.

Sally Rand is the star of "Murder on Sunset Boulevard," which George Hirliman, Sam Coslow and Hugo Frencke made. Other personalities are Dennis Moore, Reed Hadley, Jean Carmen, Esther Muir and Katherine Kain.

At 20th Century-Fox "Hold That Co-ed" was finished. John Barrymore, George Murphy, Marjorie Weaver, Jack Halen, Joan Davis, George Barbier, Johnny Downs, Paul Hurst, Glenn Morris and Donald Meek are among those who will be seen in it.

MGM's contribution to the quota of finished films was "Three Loves Has Nancy." Robert Montgomery, Janet Gaynor, Franchot Tone.

"Billy the Kid Returns" came off the line at Republic. Roy Rogers, Smiley Burnette, Lynn Roberts, Morgan Wallace, Fred Kohler, Sr., Betty Rodman and Art Dillard are the principals.

For Columbia distribution Larry Darmour completed "Not for Glory." It will present Jack Holt, Beverly Roberts, Noah Beery, Jr.

Fine Arts finished an untitled film which will present George Houston, Beth Marian, Al St John, Alden Chase, Walter Byron, Kit Gurad.

Universal's "Twins of the West" will have Bob Baker, Marjorie Reynolds, Forest Taylor, Glenn Strange and Jack Rockwell.

Warner Bros. completed "Brother Rat." Wayne Morris, Priscilla Lane, Jane Wyman, Jane Bryan, Eddie Albert, Ronald Regan, Johnnie Davis, Henry O'Neill, Gordon Oliver, Larry Williams, William Tracy, Olin Howland, Jessie Busley, Louise Beavers, Robert Scott, Fred Hamilton and Jock Mower are the names which exhibitors will have an opportunity to display.

OUTDOOR ADVENTURE FILMS FOR THE FALL

Adventure is the entertainment keynote of pictures scheduled for fall distribution.

Among the big pictures to come in the months when the leaves turn many colors elsewhere and the weather turns good in Southern California are the Paramount trio, "Spawn of the North," "Men with Wings" and "If I Were King."

Columbia will have "I Am the Law" and "Wings of Doom." From 20th Century-Fox will come "Suez," "Submarine" (splinter fleet-wooden anchors) and possibly before Santa Claus, "Jesse James."

MGM will have "Too Hot to Handle" and Warners' "Juarez," "Valley of the Giants," "The Oklahoma Kid," "Devil's Island," "Wings of the Navy," "Heart of the North" and "Unlawful."

Republic will have "Billy the Kid Returns" and "Tenth Avenue Kid" ready. RKO-Radio's big adventure number will be "Gunga Din." Besides a couple of importations, including "Drums," United Artists will offer Sam Goldwyn's "The Lady and the Cowboy."

In the immediate offing will be "Northwest Passage," "Dawn Patrol" and "The Sea Hawk," and the westerns.

Mirabile Dictu

In our years in Hollywood, we have entertained many visitors and sometimes their requests have stumped us. But came Gertrude Merriam, spark plug associate editor of the Managers' Round Table, to remark that she'd like to go to a Charlie McCarthy broadcast. Kindly Ed Fortman, in charge of press relations for the J. Walter Thompson agency, was only too glad to accommodate Vance King's request for tickets, even though the accommodation necessitated depriving another pair of their tickets.

Then, as we prepared ourselves for something probably impossible, we asked Miss Gertrude what else she would like to see or do or whom she would like to meet. With all our preparation we weren't ready for the shock we got.

"Yes," she said, "I'd like to see that beautiful window in Forest Lawn Memorial Cemetery!"

Miss Mildred Early got the assignment to see that Miss Merriam saw what she wanted to see.

Wrong to Doubt

We happened to be over at Hall Roach's when Frank Selzer gave birth to a "this'll knock 'em dead" idea. It was that Mr. Roach would hold the premieres of "There Goes My Heart" in the natal cities of its stars. It happened that all the stars were American born, but Alan Mowbray was born in England and it didn't seem possible that Mr. Roach would stand for the expense, even though it was shared, of sending him over there.

But like the man who cried "Excelsior" or "Eureka" or something, Mr. Selzer yelled "I got it. We'll have some city adopt him!" We scouted the idea.

Straightway he dispatched 1,500 letters to city governments, chambers of commerce and so on. The other day a bale weighing about 17 pounds landed on our desk. It contained the replies from hundreds of communities, all of whom, for one reason or another, would be glad to adopt Mowbray.

THREE PREMIERES IN FOUR NIGHTS KEEP EAST'S NOTABLES ON THE RUN

There's "Sing, You Sinners" at Saratoga, "Drums" at Hollywood on Broadway, and "Marie Antoinette" at Astor

Notables in business and sport, celebrities and motion picture executives were kept busy this week attending a world premiere, a New York opening of a roadshow attraction and a trade showing.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., with its world known race track, was chosen as the scene for the world premiere, Saturday night, of Paramount's racing picture, "Sing You Sinners," which co-stars Bing Crosby and Fred MacMurray.

On Monday evening Alexander Korda's "Drums," United Artists release, was previewed at the Hollywood theatre, New York, for the trade and notables.

On the following night, MGM opened its "Marie Antoinette" at the Astor theatre on Broadway for a two-a-day engagement. The world premiere of the picture was held in Hollywood July 8th (MOTION PICTURE HERALD, July 16th).

Balaban Heads Delegation to "Sing, You Sinners" Premiere

Barney Balaban, president of Paramount Pictures, Inc., headed a home office delegation that traveled from New York to Saratoga Springs for the premiere of "Sing, You Sinners" at the Community theatre. Among the other officials of the company present was Robert Gillham, director of publicity and advertising.

Woven into the plot is a race track story. Several races are included, with Mr. Crosby's horses playing a prominent part in the action.

Among those present were:

Another Paramount picture, "Spawn of the North," is to have its premiere at the Carolina theatre, Blowing Rock, N. C., before "an audience of people who never have seen a motion picture," according to the company.

Invitations to the opening have been extended by Paramount to 119 residents of the Southern Blue Ridge Mountains and the recipients have signed affidavits affirming that they never have seen a motion picture. Some of the guests will be interviewed in the lobby during a half-hour broadcast over the Mutual System.

Showing of "Drums" Mild Form of Premiere

The trade showing of Alexander Korda's "Drums" was conducted in New York in a style that made it a mild form of a premiere. There were no bright lights around the house but photographer's bulbs flashed along the sidewalk and crowds were attracted to gaze at the arriving theatremen and executives.

Guests of honor at the showing were Sirdar Kumar J. J. Singh, president of the India Chamber of Commerce; N. R. Checker, chairman of the India League, and Magan S. Dave.

"Marie Antoinette" Museum Seen by 200,000 Persons

Before the opening of "Marie Antoinette," Howard Dietz, advertising and publicity director for MGM, announced that "all the traditions having to do with a premiere" would be ignored.

Despite the promise of a lack of ostentation, the premiere attracted a huge crowd of fans and autograph seekers who were kept back from the entrance to the theatre by 70 police officers. There also was a radio broadcast of the event over Station WHN.

Although Norma Shearer, star of the picture, arrived in New York Tuesday morning to attend the premiere she was overcome by the heat and were kept in her hotel by physician's orders.

MGM's "Marie Antoinette" museum at the Astor closed last week. More than 200,000 persons, including thousands of school teachers and students, were said to have visited the exhibit, which consisted of hundreds of costumes, period antiques and other accessories used in the filming of "Marie Antoinette."

Special Edition Marks Theatre Reopening

A special edition carrying congratulatory messages was published August 18th by the Pioneer Journal of Wadena, Minn., to commemorate the reopening of the Cozy theatre after extensive remodeling and alterations. The 400 seat house, modernized by its owner, J. C. Quincer, at a cost of $30,000, will be formally reopened on August 24th.

Will H. Hays, president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, gave a luncheon at the California Club, Hollywood, this week, in honor of Albert Lasker, retired head of Lord and Thomas, advertising company. Fifty attended.

$7,051,673 Earned By Eastman Kodak

Eastman Kodak Company this week reported a net profit of $7,051,673 for the 24 weeks ended on June 11th, equal after preferred dividends to $3.05 a share earned on 2,250,921 no-par common shares, compared with $11,475,066, or $5.01 a share, earned in the comparable period of 1937.

The profit includes $33,346 on sales of securities and a provision of $488,849 for reduction of securities to market value, compared with $58,773 profit on sales of securities in the 1937 period, when no adjustment of security values was made.

Net sales were $57,131,939, compared with $61,273,205 in the 1937 period. Sales of photographic products were not seriously affected during the 1938 period by the curtailment in general business, the report says, but income from operations was reduced considerably by higher operating costs.

Disposition by Joseph M. Schenck, Beverly Hills, Cal., of 19,200 shares of Twentieth Century-Fox common stock and 1,000 shares of $1.50 cumulative preferred during June was the only film transaction reported by the Securities and Exchange Commission in its semi-monthly summary, issued this week.

As a result of his stock sales, the report showed, Mr. Schenck at the close of the month had reduced his holdings to 149,443 shares of common and 23,284 shares of the preferred.

The summary carried reports on the holdings of men becoming officers or directors in motion picture companies, showing that no securities in their respective companies were held by Gene F. Kaplan, Los Angeles, made an officer in Grand National Films February 16; Richard Jones, 3d, New York, elected an officer of Keith-Albee-Orpheum April 14, 1937, or George L. Bagnall, Hollywood, Cal., elected an officer in Paramount December 14 last.

However, it was shown, Edwin L. Weisl, New York, made a director in Paramount June 21, held 3,200 shares of the company's convertible second preferred stock, and Daniel M. Sheaffer, Philadelphia, elected a director in Universal September 2, 1937, held, through Universal Corporation, 228,927 shares of the company's common, 220 shares of cumulative first preferred and 20,000 shares of second preferred.

The option held by N. L. Nathanson, president of Famous Players Canadian Corporation, for the purchase of a block of 1,000 common shares at $14 per share, to be exercised on July 1st, last, has been extended by the company to December, according to T. J. Bragg, secretary-treasurer.

Under a five-year agreement between Mr. Nathanson and the company, effective last year, he is privileged to buy 1,000 shares annually on a sliding scale starting with the price of $13 per share in 1937. The option was used before July 1st last year. The current market quotation on Famous Players common on the Toronto Stock Exchange is $35 per share.

E. I. duPont de Nemours and Company this week declared an interim dividend of 75 cents a share, payable on September 14th, compared with dividends of 50 cents each paid on June 14th and March 14th.

"RAGTIME BAND" BREAKS MORE RECORDS AT ROXY

$80,000 Gross Estimated for Second Week; 20th-Fox Reports Records in 11 Cities

A gross of $80,000 for the second week of "Alexander's Ragtime Band" at the Roxy theatre, New York City, was predicted as the record-breaking business of the first week continued through the first four days of this week. In addition, Twentieth Century-Fox home office executives reported the picture "is leaving a trail of shattered records in 11 key cities throughout the country."

An all-time attendance record of 192,520 persons, paying a total of $87,489.84 in admissions, was set in the first week of the picture's run at the Roxy. The day-by-day attendance figures follow:

FIRST WEEK

Friday	29,614	Monday	25,970
Saturday	34,149	Tuesday	26,134
Sunday	26,630	Wednesday	26,336
		Thursday	23,687

SECOND WEEK

Friday	23,908	Sunday	23,735
Saturday	31,790	Monday	21,192

The Saturday's attendance for the second week, it was pointed out, was 4,491 greater than that of the greatest day recorded for "The Cock-Eyed World" which held the previous house record.

On the strength of the business holding up to only slightly less than for the first week, it was freely predicted that the picture would have a six or seven-week run in New York.

On Wednesday it was announced the film would be held for a third week.

The first week policy of opening the doors to the theatre earlier than normally each day and also of having a daily late evening performance starting shortly after midnight has been continued.

Every attendance record established at the Roxy during its 11½ years of existence has been broken during the "Alexander's Ragtime Band" engagement, the management reported.

Twentieth Century-Fox reported new records in other cities. At the Metropolitan theatre, Boston, the opening day throngs numbered 15,769, breaking the house record; in Philadelphia, drawing 10,084 to the Stanley, the picture broke all existing records; in Pittsburgh, at the Alvin, it set an all-time high, playing to 10,880 in the 1,767 seat house.

A record run for the picture was predicted by the management of the Chicago theatre, Chicago, after the picture, at 3 P. M. on the opening day, was drawing crowds 33 per cent larger than any previous high.

At Portland, Ore., it was reported that "Alexander's Ragtime Band" did double the business of "In Old Chicago" and topped the record of "Thin Ice" by $500 when it opened at the Paramount theatre.

The picture's opening day at the Hippodrome, Cleveland, topped the record held by "In Old Chicago" by $892 and kept up the record breaking pace over the weekend.

A record weekend gross also was established at the Majestic, Houston, when "Alexander's Ragtime Band" topped the "In Old Chicago" record by $1,752.

Receipts at the Majestic, Dallas, for the opening day were $253 greater than the previous record held by "In Old Chicago."

On the Coast, according to Twentieth Century-Fox, "every day sets a new record at the Chinese theatre, Hollywood, and Loew's State, Los Angeles.

All records, the company reported, have been shattered at the Apollo theatre, Atlantic City. Business over the weekend was recorded as $200 greater than any previous three-day period.

155 Members in Chicago Allied

Five new members have joined Allied Theatres of Illinois in the last week, bringing the total number of member theatres to approximately 155. The new theatres and owners, all from Chicago, are: Howard theatre, Lester Retchen; Harmony theatre, B. Banovitz; Astor theatre, James Roder; Metropole theatre, Edward Brunnell, and the Homewood theatre, John Jones, Jr.

The organization will continue its drive for new members, Jack Kirsch, newly elected president of the group and successor to the late Aaron Saperstein, said this week. Indications are that a sizeable group will join the organization in the coming months.

Allied has become a major factor in Chicago's theatre setup. At present the group is planning to file suit in federal court asking that clearance schedules be adjusted in what they feel is a more equitable manner. Present clearance schedules call for 10 weeks' playing time after Loop openings before the pictures are available to the first-week-of-release houses which constitute the majority of independent theatremen.

It is thought probable that Balaban and Katz circuit along with the major companies to be named in the suit, will decide to make some concessions which will stop the legal action.

Eastman Kodak Camera Has Photo-Electric Cell

Eastman Kodak Company announced this week that a new line of cameras will be marketed next month with a type which uses a photo-electric cell as a feature. The new six-20, the company said, is intended for amateur use and automatically adjusts itself according to light conditions to give perfect exposures of scenes before it. It is said to have shutter speeds of 1/25 to 1/200 second with the photo-electric device while double exposures are made impossible.

HOLLYWOOD ANTI-NAZIS REPUDIATE U. S. AGENT'S CRY OF "COMMUNIST"

Executive Secretary of League Says Investigator Made No Effort to See Its Books; Washington Unexcited

by VANCE KING
in Hollywood

The cry of "Communist," shouted this week at unnamed Hollywood film stars by an investigator for the Dies congressional committee hunting for subversive activities, brought a sharp retort from the Hollywood-Anti-Nazi League for the Defense of American Democracy, which said the charges of investigator Ed Sullivan "are in themselves a threat to democracy."

Donald Ogden Stewart, president of the organization, which has a membership of more than 5,000, chiefly film workers in every branch of production, joined with Marion Spitzer, vice-president, and Alan Campbell, secretary, in a statement which indirectly acknowledged their organization was the target of the Sullivan attack.

The statement read:

"It is ominous that the Dies investigating committee has adopted the practice of making accusations without revealed facts to substantiate them. When Hitler is mobilizing a million men at the Czechoslovakian borders, when another investigator of the Dies committee finds that the National Guard is being invaded by the Nazi Bund, and that there is an effective German spy ring throughout the country, these charges leveled at an organization devoted to the task of combatting Nazism are in themselves a threat to democracy. The Hollywood Anti-Nazi League repudiates this attack. We stand on our record and call for a real investigation of Nazi activities in this country which, after exposing Nazi activity, will point out the need of action against this activity instead of attacking organizations formed for the purpose of taking such action."

Military Investigators Active

Meanwhile, it is learned here that military and naval intelligence units of the United States have for the last year and a half doubled their activities in Hollywood. This was said to be because of the unsettled conditions in Europe which might affect us. Mr. Sullivan, it was learned, had been in Hollywood about a month ago on his investigation. However, Betty Anderson, executive secretary of the League, said Mr. Sullivan had not contacted her office or asked to see the books of the organization, which, she said, are open to all accredited authorities.

There are several organizations actively engaged in aiding the Spanish Loyalists in which well known film personalities are interested.

The Medical Bureau and North American Committee to Aid Spanish Democracy have sent 22 ambulances and a large amount of medical supplies, food and clothing to the Loyalists. One of the ambulances, autographed by 15 stars, was blown up in the fighting in Spain, according to the Bureau's executive secretary, Seema Matlin.

The Motion Picture Artists Committee and the Motion Picture Democratic Artists Committee also are interested in the Spanish Loyalist Cause.

Including in its membership many musicians working in films, the Musicians Committee to Aid Spanish Democracy, formed two months ago, recently gave a soiree to raise funds for the Loyalists.

In State Politics

The Motion Picture Democratic Artists Committee is taking an active part in state politics. Headed by Melvyn Douglas, it is attacking Governor Frank Merriam, conservative Republican, and espousing the cause of Culbert Olson, running mate of Upton Sinclair when Sinclair was defeated by Merriam four years ago.

Active participation of top Hollywood names in this political situation dates back to the Merriam-Sinclair fight for the gubernatorial post. At that time, talent was asked to give one day's pay to a Merriam fund to fight Sinclair. Resentment of several of the actors, writers and directors echoed in this year's campaign when the Democratic Committee headed by Melvyn Douglas petitioned Governor Merriam to give one day of his pay to the Committee for its campaign for Olson.

The Anti-Nazi League has a weekly program on station KFWB, attacking foreign dictatorships and appealing for new members. Playlets and talks are presented.

Participation of stars in causes declared by some to be liberal and by others "Communistic" were bared four years ago when a number of top actors, including James Cagney, were declared to have contributed to the defense fund for Caroline Decker and other leaders in the Salinas lettuce strike.

NAMING NAMES IN HOLLYWOOD

In a special article from Hollywood to the New York Daily News on Tuesday the writer named the following as sponsors of the Anti-Nazi League:

Eddie Cantor, Herbert Biberman, Florence Eldridge (Mrs. Fredric March), Oscar Hammerstein III, Rupert Hughes, Sylvia Sidney, Gloria Stuart, Paul Muni, Dorothy Parker, Ernst Lubitsch, Lewis Milestone, Dudley Nichols, Viola Brothers Shore and Frank Tuttle.

Walter Wanger was listed as a member and several additional producers were reported to have assisted the League.

Named among workers for the North American Committee for Loyalist Spain were Franchot Tone, Joan Crawford, Luise Rainer and Gale Sondergaard.

Stars who contributed services to the soiree Sunday night of the Anti-Nazi League also were named: Johnny Green, Dixie Dunbar, Johnny Downs, Bert Lahr, Fred Keating and Milton Berle.

Edward Sullivan, the investigator who made the charges, is, according to Associated Press, a Charlestown, Mass., newspaperman and member of the intelligence staff of the Massachusetts National Guard. For a time he edited the Tri-City Tribune in Connecticut and formerly published a small newspaper in California.

Charges Arouse Little Interest in Washington

by FRANCIS L. BURT
in Washington

Little interest was aroused in Washington by Edward Sullivan's picture of the West Coast as a hot-bed of radicalism. That Hollywood stars have helped to finance Communistic activities has been long understood.

Mr. Sullivan devoted most of his report to conditions in areas other than Hollywood, but the film feature made the most striking headlines.

"All phases of radical and communistic activities are rampant among the studios of Hollywood," he declared. "A number of film celebrities are using their large salaries to finance communistic activities, including groups which were conducting agitation campaigns in agricultural regions in California."

"I might say in passing," he added, "that a very large number of motion picture stars are strongly opposed to all this subversive activity but, as one very prominent star told me, if he spoke out loud about the situation he would soon be ditched by the studios and a campaign of vilification would be started against him to ruin him with his public."

The whole situation, he said, is one "which the movie moguls desire to keep from the public."

The investigator suggested that the public should be informed as to the individuals, both native and foreign born, who use their large salaries to supply radicals with funds.

"Another activity which should receive complete attention and investigation is the collecting of funds in Los Angeles and Hollywood by the North American Committee to Aid the Spanish Democracy and its twin brother, the Medical Bureau. This activity, which is carried on by well known radicals among the motion picture colony, has the support of the Communists."

Still another Hollywood activity, he said, is the Anti-Nazi League.

Representative Martin Dies of Texas, chairman of the committee, pointed out that the time and funds required to make a thorough investigation of all the charges laid before the group are beyond those at the dosposition of the committee.

Mr. Sullivan is expected to be called before the committee in the near future to testify as to the source of his information regarding conditions on the West Coast, and members of the committee, it was indicated by Chairman Dies, may go to Hollywood to study the situation at first hand.

Communistic activities of members of the industry also entered the hearings before the committee Tuesday, when John P. Frey, official of the American Federation of Labor, submitted a number of documents, one of which he held highly confidential and which he intimated referred, among other things, to activities of film personalities in Mexico.

BRITISH EXHIBITORS ON HOLIDAY FACE SEAT CONTROL HEADACHE ON RETURN Provincial Watch Committees Seen Ready to Promulgate Expected Imitations of London Council Price Order

by AUBREY FLANAGAN

in London

British exhibitors, basking on those sunlit sands and sipping that cooling lager, to which playful but pointed reference was made two weeks back, seeking rest and relaxation in Britain's annual vacation month, August, are gradually but forcibly becoming aware that yet another headache is likely to meet them on their return to the hard material world of business—the headache of increasing municipal interference with their business.

As every realist student of the film trade scene was early convinced, the Hitlerization to which London cinemas have been, or are about to be, subjected, in the matter of seat prices, is not going to cease at London's territorial boundaries. Already there are many ugly signs and portents indicating that those who forecast that the precedent created by the dictatorial democrats of County Hall, Millbank, would be followed not only soon, but widely, were right.

The whole question of seat control and the dangers of widespread municipal interference is, indeed, certain to be brought from the restricted realm of local politics, and examined—and challenged—as a national issue by the Cinematograph Exhibitors Association as a whole.

The London County Council, whose administrative area is wide and covers an area far larger than any American city, works on licensing policy and kindred matters on a basis of friendly cooperation with the adjacent counties of Middlesex, Surrey and Essex, and the independent boroughs of West and East Ham, has circulated to these administrative areas, and to other areas covered by the London and Home Counties Branch of the CEA, copies of its ruling, and its views thereon, with the obvious if unspoken suggestion that they should fall into line with the capital. He would be an errant gambler who would not stake big money on the certainty that these districts will fall into line.

In the provinces, too, ominous shadows of municipal stick waving have been seen. The London County Council's disturbing and, it would seem, somewhat undue gesture has been considered in more than one Council and Watch Committee, and that but few public pronunciamentos have been made is due only to the fact that Councillors and Watch Committeemen, like exhibitors, consecrate the month of August to lazing by the sea.

At Wrexham, Northumberland, however, the municipal foot has come well and truly down on the local cinema proprietors, with the institution of a local rule, all too obviously inspired by the emphatic and determined democratization process of Mr. Reginald Stamp and his London County Council. There the Watch Committee, whose business it is not only to cast a careful eye on the moral welfare of the shipbuilding town and its folk, but to administer its licensing laws, has decided to investigate the matter of increase of seat prices on Saturday night.

As is well known, it is an almost universal custom of entertainment enterprises of all kinds and types to increase slightly the prices of seats on Saturday nights. The custom obtains not only in cinemas, but in theatres, music halls, circuses, swimming baths, ice hockey stadiums, boxing booths and elsewhere. Complaints from ratepayers in the district, complaints which might have been ignored with a kindly and understanding smile before the London decision, are to be investigated by the Watch Committee with a view to ultimate action.

The whole situation has received, however, even if indirectly, a nervous shock during the last few days, with the issue of a significant letter on theatre licensing from the Home Office—under whose aegis the 1909 Act is administered—to the Wiltshire County Council. The Council sought the guidance of Whitehall on the question of redundancy, and the rights or wrongs of refusing licenses on such grounds. The Home Office reply is significant—how significant can be seen from its terms:

"I am directed by the Secretary of State to say that he is advised that the object of the Act as shown by its title is primarily that of securing safety at cinematograph exhibitions, and that its provisions must be read with this object in mind . . . the licensing authority would be entitled to refuse a license on the ground that there was some objection to the premises from the point of view of safety, or possibly that the applicant was not a person who could be entrusted with the responsibility of securing the safety of the audience, or complying with any conditions imposed by the authority as to safety or other matters.

"But . . . the refusal of a license on the ground of redundancy without reference to the matters referred to above would not be a proper exercise of the discretion conferred on the licensing authority by the Act."

Now CEA members are asking whether this policy lead of the Home Office, an exact interpretation of the Act under which cinema licenses are issued, does not inferentially criticise local authorities who take upon themselves the imposition of conditions outside the terms of public safety and personal desirability. Under what section of an Act designed to secure and retain public safety, they ask, is the London County Council empowered to control the prices of seats in picture theatres? It is a pretty problem, but that a new complexion is cast upon it by this Home Office judgment is patent. It is in fact just what the doctor ordered!

Further tinder has been cast into the fire by the London County Council's recent suggestion to exhibitors that they should not wait until January to have the rules enforced on them, but that they should operate them voluntarily at once. London exhibitors will ignore the suggestion, will, in fact, carry on precisely as they have been doing until they are further instructed by their CEA officers.

It will, none the less, need a great deal of self control to restrain them from derisive and acidulous comment upon the Council's statement that "complaints from members of the public generally are of the opinion that they have not received fair treatment from many licensees in the matter," and the gratuitous suggestion that in voluntarily operating the seat price rule "they will restore that spirit of confidence which the Council holds is essential to the successful conduct of the entertainment industry." They would be interested to see this mountain of public protest, which so many of them believe to be nothing short of a political molehill.

Next step, then, is the fighting of a test case which will confront, immediately, the first new picture house to open in London, which picture house will almost certainly ignore the new seat price requirements of the Council. Junior Counsel's opinion is still being prepared, and until then a complete and final forecast of action is difficult. It will, however, be a stand up and fight battle, for the Council are determined that unless a new licensee agrees to accept the new conditions he shall be refused a license.

All eyes then will be fixed on London, for the sway of battle in the Metropolis will influence the actions of the rest of the country. It is for that reason the CEA will not let the fight be lost without a determined struggle.

SEATING AND PRICE CONTROL PROPOSED

The London County Council order affecting cinema seating and admission prices is worded as follows:

"The licensee . . . shall . . . exhibit and keep exhibited in a conspicuous position at each entrance to the theatre and so as to be easily seen by members of the public . . . a plan or diagram . . . clearly showing the seat accommodation . . . together with the prices charged for the various seats for every period of the day, and such prices shall not be raised during the day.

"Whilst any seat is unoccupied . . . no person desiring to occupy such a seat shall be kept waiting longer than is necessary, or be refused admission . . . for the purposes of occupying such a seat.

"Notices shall be exhibited in the auditorium, or such other indication given as may be approved by the Council . . . showing clearly to persons inside the premises the position of the seats for which the respective prices are being charged. . . ."

Gabriel Pascal Arrives With Print of "Pygmalion"

Gabriel Pascal, managing director of Pascal Film Production, Ltd., London, arrived in the United States last week with a print of "Pygmalion," based on the play by George Bernard Shaw.

Mr. Pascal disclosed that he has options on two more Shaw plays, "The Devil's Disciple" and "Caesar and Cleopatra." He said he will make "Devil's Disciple" in Hollywood and will do the exteriors for the other picture in Italy and the interiors at Pinewood.

"But I will not make any more pictures without American cooperation," Mr. Pascal said. "If we foreign producers can't get American cooperation we may just as well just make B pictures."

Besides starring in it, Leslie Howard co-directed "Pygmalion."

Ruffled Rakes

London of 1700, with its ruffled rakes and bemasked highwaymen, is being recreated at the Warner-First National Studios at Teddington, where Derek Twist's story "The First Gangster" goes into production shortly. Already first steps have been taken to set up replicas of Southwark Mint, the famous Red Lion Tavern in Fleet Street, haunt of eighteenth century thugs and cutthroats, the Kings Bench Prison, the fashionable houses of Mayfair, London River and the grim gallows of Tyburn.

All these will form backgrounds and settings for a costume piece in the modern gangster manner, with Jonathan Wild, noted highwayman and hold up man of the period, educating aristocratic David Wedderburn to a life of violence and robbery—with a supposedly palliative flavour in his subsequent donations to the poor.

Wedderburn's career brings him to the gallows, but a last minute rescue enables him to escape to the New World, to leave behind him a reformist movement which helps to clean up London's seamy side.

Meanwhile production has been launched at Teddington on "The Nursemaid Who Disappeared," a dramatic variation on the theme of the "snatch racket," and the vain efforts of an American gang to start a kidnapping business in London.

The story is based on one by Philip Macdonald, author of mystery thrillers, and the film will be directed by Arthur Woods.

In the role of Anthony Gethryn, suave English amateur sleuth, whose talents are canvassed and borrowed by Scotland Yard to unmask the racket, will be Arthur Margetson. Others in the cast include Joyce Kennedy, Coral Browne, Lesley Brook, Edward Chapman and Elliott Makeham.

As settings for "The Nursemaid Who Disappeared" Warner-First National have selected various typical locations and streets in suburban London.

"Citadel" Shooting

South Wales sequences have now been cleared up at Denham on the MGM-British production of "The Citadel," and with the narrative development Robert Donat has moved to Harley Street settings and wears a London moustache.

Before this stage was reached, however, sequences were shot in a coal mine, set supposedly sixty feet below ground, a realistic construction set up with the aid of miners from South Wales, covering an area of 27,000 feet, and employing as material assets hundreds of tons of coal. Rails, pit props, picks, shovels, Davy lamps, and rescue apparatus were brought from the minefields to add a final touch of authenticity to the scenes in which Donat, as the young doctor, rescues a man from death under a fall of rock.

Lion Gets "Frog"

Holidaying in London, Una O'Connor has been engaged by Herbert Wilcox to play a lead role in the new Imperator Production "The Return of the Frog," currently on the floor at Beaconsfield, for release by British Lion. Maurice Elvey is directing.

Miss O'Connor has the role of proprietress of a dockland club of allegedly tough variety, and is filmically married to Gordon Harker. Her engagement by Wilcox, however, suggested a development of the original role and, it is stated, the script was adjusted so as to permit Miss O'Connor to appear as "a screaming virago."

Apart from Miss O'Connor and Gordon Harker, the cast of this Edgar Wallace thriller includes Rene Ray, Aubrey Mallalieu, George Hayes, Hartley Power, Cyril Smith, Meinhardt Maur, Charles Lefaux and Denis Cowles.

A scene from "Prison without Bars," directed by Brian Desmond for London Films at Denham which is now in the cutting room and in which four discoveries of Alexander Korda appear. They are Lorraine Clewes, Mary Morris, Corinne Luchaire and Peggy Wisher.

Nile at Denham

Bent on speeding the processes of production two units are currently at work at Denham, Bucks, on the Zoltan Korda picture "The Four Feathers." Both are at present engaged on exteriors, one of them with the Nile scenes on Denham's homely creek, the River Colne.

Five hundred coloured artistes are working on the crowd scenes, many of them hailing from the dock areas of Cardiff and Liverpool and the grimy streets of London's East End.

Casting on this London Film Production is now complete and the list of players includes June Duprez, Korda find, engaged for the leading feminine role, John Clements, Ralph Richardson, Aubrey Smith. Allan Jeayes, John Laurie, etcetera.

Cutting "Marigold"

Back from Scotland and its heather clad Highlands, with all studio sequences likewise completed, the Associated British unit making "Marigold" have concluded their production work and the film is now being cut and assembled. Thomas Bentley directed, with Gunther Krampf at the camera.

Due to take possession of the vacated stage is "Luck of the Navy," a rousing spy melodrama with a comic vein, said vein for the most part supplied by provincial comedian Albert Burdon as a naval rating. Also in the cast are Diana Beaumont, Judy Kelly, Edmund Breon, Leslie Perrins and Doris Hare.

Balcon's Second

Having put the final touches to the casting of his first independent production Michael Balcon is now set to start work on "The Gaunt Stranger" at the Ealing Green Studios of Associated Talking Pictures.

Cast in the role of Sam Hackett is Sonnie Hale—husband and erstwhile director of Jessie Matthews—whilst Wilfrid Lawson, one of British film production's most trustworthy character actors, Alexander Knox and Louise Henry have been selected for other roles in the opus.

Walter Forde directs, and the film will be released here by Associated British Film Distributors.

ASIDES and INTERLUDES

By JAMES P. CUNNINGHAM

The American Federation of Labor's IATSE motion picture union is making progress with its campaign to control the labor organization of everything that films, even to horses on the racetracks. They have taken jurisdiction over the photographing of horse-race finishes on those tracks using cameras to record the winners, a practice that is becoming widely prevalent to settle arguments over close finishes.

Heretofore the cameramen at the tracks have all been non-union, engaged and equipped by each track. H. L. (Doc) Gantz, of IATSE's Local No. 666, Chicago, was the first union cameraman to handle race track photo finishes, taking over last month at the Lincoln Fields Jockey Club, at Crete, Illinois.

The system of filming was developed by Arthur Kuprion, of Louisville. It is one of the fastest bits of filming. Development of the film is complete in 12 seconds. It emerges from the fixing bath within 30 seconds and is ready for inspection by the judges in 60 seconds. If the judges are undecided over the winner and call for photos, by the time they climb to the top of the camera tower the wet negative is threaded and ready to project onto a 16x20 screen built into the wall of the darkroom.

Hollywood Will Again See a Cowboy in a Car

THOMAS EDWIN MIX, millionaire and million-dollar cowboy, is riding the highways to Hollywood and films again, at 60 miles an hour and 60 years of age.

Tom hasn't toted a gun for the movies in five years. His motorized circus has been traveling up and down the country and across, and now is working its way out of the middle west to California and the Mix ranch. In the fall, the show will close and Cowboy Tom will pick up in western thrilers where he left off in "Rustler's Roundup" at old Carl Laemmle's Universal City, in 1933.

Twenty-eight years ago, in the early summer, "Colonel" William N. Selig was found by Terry Ramsaye, in his historical researches, on his way to Oklahoma to make pictures of frontier life—"western thrillers" then, "outdoor adventures" now (in color, with music a la Ted Fiorito and cowboy crooners a-strumming guitars). A whole constellation of star cowboys was rounded up to perform for "Colonel" Selig's camera their feats of skill and daring.

While the cowpunchers circled and wheeled and galloped and jumped their bucking mounts past the camera, a swashbucklin' United States marshal, with a bright silver star on his beaded buckskin vest, sat lazily with one leg over the saddle horn, watching the proceedings with an interested eye. From time to time he nimbly rolled a cigaret in a bit of corn husk, Mexican fashion.

The United States marshal was Tom Mix. He had run the gamut of the thrills of the west and the wellknown "great outdoors of God's country where men are men," etc. His father was Captain Mix, of the hellroaring Seventh United States Cavalry, a veteran wounded in the knee at the battle of Wounded Knee.

And Tom himself in his turn had had more than a smell of powder. A youngster, with the experience of the Southwest behind him, he went to Cuba as a scout in the Spanish-American War, thence to the Philippines and on to the fighting in China at the battle of Tien-Tsin. Then, back from foreign adventures and scarred with the wounds of conflict, he joined the Texas Rangers. Up in the valleys of the Pecos in New Mexico, it was Tom Mix who rounded up the bandit Shont brothers and collected a rifle nick in his shin bone along with the prisoners. The bandits were brought back, dead and alive, fifty-fifty. Now, settled down, back there in 1910, Mix had nothing to do but be United States marshal.

This summer day had brought him the sight of something new under the sun—the motion picture camera. He felt impelled to participate.

"Is this a private roundup—or can I get in?"

"If you've got any speed, help yourself," replied the cameraman.

Mix slipped back into the stirrups and shot his pony out into the field. There was action aplenty. Then, just by way of topping it off, he roped and bulldogged a steer in a closeup in the matter of 16 seconds.

In July, 1910, "Colonel" Selig released "Ranch Life in the Great Southwest," and Tom Mix was started on his way to fame and the career of a motion picture cowboy, a career that eventually sent him rambling the palmed boulevards of Hollywood in a long-nosed, multi-cylindered sport car with red Spanish saddle leather and Mexican silver trimmings, combining the decorative tradition of the range with the luxuries of the storybook life of the screen star, luxuries which came from salaries ranging as high as $17,000 a week, from William Fox and Fox Film, in 1925.

Tom Mix still rides a long-nosed white car, and the nose is pointed toward Hollywood.

A father and his small son entered the Glen theatre at Glenburnie, Maryland, and were each handed a pair of those colored isinglass "eye-frames" with which to view the Pete Smith "Audioscopik" short on the bill. Audioscopiks came on, and the boy tore the eye-frame in half, holding first the red and then the green "glass" up to the same eye. The father remonstrated with the boy for destroying the frame, explaining that one "glass" should be over each eye, and not the two over one. The boy replied that he had not been able to see out of the other eye for some time. That afternoon, Johns Hopkins' Wilmer Eye Institute discovered that the youngster had been blind in the one eye for about a year as a result of a tumor growth which, unnoticed for another month, would have caused death.

SCANDINAVIAN CRITICS VOTE U. S. FILMS BEST

"Zola" Wins Preference in Poll; 146 of 210 Ballots Go to American Product

by KRIS WINTHER
in Copenhagen

Approached by the Swedist trade journal Biografbladet, the 21 leading film critics of Sweden have each designated the ten motion pictures, shown in the past season, which they consider to be the best. Although a total of 39 different pictures were named on the lists submitted by the critics, "The Life of Emile Zola" was represented on each. In order to avoid undue patriotism in making the selections the voting was divided into two parts, Swedish and non-Swedish pictures. As none of the Swedish productions in question as yet have been internationally distributed outside of Scandinavia, they need hardly be taken into consideration here.

146 for American Films

Of the total of 210 votes cast on non-Swedish production 146 were for American pictures, 50 for French, 10 for Russian, 2 for German, 1 for British and 1 for Austrian pictures. The ten productions heading the poll were:

"The Life of Emile Zola" (Warner)	21
"Captains Courageous" (MGM)	19
"The Good Earth" (MGM)	16
"100 Men and a Girl" (Universal)	16
"The Awful Truth" (Columbia)	16
"Le Roman d'un Tricheur" (French)	13
"Peter the Great" (Russian)	10
"Pearls of the Crown" (French)	10
"Grand Illusion" (French)	9
"The Lower Depths" (French)	9

In case two or more pictures received the same number of votes, they are listed in the sequence given in the lists submitted by the critics. Following the above ten, other foreign productions given votes were:

"Night Must Fall" (MGM)	8
"Big City" (MGM)	7
"Dead End" (UA)	7
"Lost Horizon" (Columbia)	4
"Conquest" (MGM)	4
"Angel" (Paramount)	4
"Maytime" (MGM)	3
"They Gave Him a Gun" (MGM)	3
"The Firefly" (MGM)	3
"Le Coupable" (French)	3

Two votes each were given "The Prisoner of Zenda" (UA), "The Ruler" (German), "They Won't Forget" (Warner), "Prison sans Barreux" (French), "Stage Door" (RKO), "It's Love I'm After " (Warner), and each of the following received one vote each: "Knight Armour" (UA), "The Hurricane" (UA), "Alibi" (French), "Rosalie" (MGM), "La belle Equipe" (French), "Mad About Music" (Universal), "Pepe le Moko" (French), "A Day at the Races" (MGM), "Cafe Metropole" (20th-Fox), "Griboulle" (French), "Victoria the Great" (RKO-British), "Die Ganz Grossen Torheiten" (Austrian) and "Make Way for Tomorrow" (Paramount).

It would not be quite fair to compare these results with the pictures that have been released in the United States in the corresponding season, as several factors must be taken into consideration. First of these is the fact that releases frequently may be made in Sweden a whole year or more after the general release in America, which also is brought out by several of the pictures included in the above lists, which on the other side of the Atlantic Ocean more properly should be classified in the foregoing season. Further the question of censorship plays a prominent role in this connection. Pictures that may have been enormous successes in the country of their origin are perhaps banned and hence never shown in Sweden. This is brought out very clearly in a note added to one of the submitted lists, which reads: "Personally, I should classify 'Winterset' as probably being the very best picture of the year and seriously regret that only those in close connection with the motion picture industry were given an opportunity to view this work of art." ("Winterset" was banned by the censor-board of Sweden and hence never came beyond the trade show stadium).

It is interesting to note that even as the 21 critics were unanimous about placing "The Life of Emile Zola" on their lists, the one Swedish production that was named by all 21 participants was likewise a biographical picture, "John Ericsson, the Conqueror of Hampton Roads," in which Victor Sjostrom starred. The other Swedish pictures to receive the greatest number of votes (only 5 were to be selected) were: "Storm over Skären" (18 votes) "Fram för Fremgang" (17 votes), "Den stora Kärleken" (9 votes) and finally "Häxnatten" and "Kamrater i vapenrocken" tied with 8 votes each.

Film School Opened

Although a training school for those seeking to enter the motion picture industry in Denmark has been attempted from time to time without being able to make a definite success a new group of five are starting a school of this nature in Copenhagen under the name "Skandinavisk Film Skole."

The five venturing out upon this enterprise are Theodor Christensen and Karl Roos, two young authors whose main claim to notability is a book entitled "Film," Ernst Wirth, theatre architect and decorator at the State Opera in Berlin and for four years connected with the radio station Munich-Nurnberg as instructor, E. Jensen, filmfotographer formerly connected with the Danish production company "Palladium," and finally the actor-instructor Ejner Federspiel who claims to be especially able in directing beginners.

The curriculum includes the following:

Group A: Manuscript writing, Instruction, Direction, Editing of films; Photography, Color-Photography, Sound-Photography, Synchronizing; Film-technique (Developing, Printing, etc.), and, Film-architecture and Film-Decorations.

Group B: Make-up and Acting.

Pupils are at liberty to select any two under Group A or attend all classes under Group B. It is the intention of the promoters of this school to produce a picture during the training period and at the end of the semester they will attempt to place their production in some motion picture theatre. Classes are arranged so that each participant in the course will have to attend either three whole days or six half days weekly.

Famous Canadian Managers Meet To Plan Jubilee

For three days, commencing Wednesday, August 24th, managers and executives of the Famous Players Canadian Corporation will be in convention at Toronto. Managers from all parts of Eastern Canada will register at the King Edward hotel for the annual meeting.

The opening day will be devoted to short talks by various home office officials, and Clarence Robson, Eastern division supervisor, again will take over his duties as chairman of all meetings.

Managers then divide into three groups and meet under chairmanship of their district managers. At these regional meetings managers will have an opportunity to discuss their own particular problems. The meetings will be conducted under three main headings—"Advertising," "Policy" and "Booking."

Each group will meet Wednesday night and all day Thursday under the leadership of C. Robson. Morris Stein and R. S. Roddick.

On Friday morning a general meeting will be held in the convention hall in the King Edward hotel, to be attended by all managers and Famous Players' home office staff. J. J. Fitzgibbons, Clarence Robson, Morris Stein, R. S. Roddick and A-Mike Vogel are to speak at the final meeting, the highlight of which will be an address by President N. L. Nathanson, who returns from Europe to attend the meeting.

A luncheon for the managers, head office staff and visitors will be held in the hotel following the meeting, and in the afternoon Mr. Nathanson will be host at a picnic at the Rouge Hills Golf and Country Club, where staffs of the film exchanges will join the Famous Players group. Arrangements have been made for golf and other sports.

This year the company is celebrating its 20th anniversary jubilee and this will be the keynote of the convention. Considerable time will be given to the "Motion Pictures' Greatest Year" campaign and an interesting Show of Showmanship is also being arranged.

Following the Eastern Convention Mr. Fitzgibbons and the other executives leave for Banff, where Western Division managers will be in convention.

National Decency Legion Classifies Eight Films

Of eight pictures reviewed and classified by the National Legion of Decency in its listing for the current week five were approved for general patronage, two were found unobjectionable for adults and one was listed as objectionable in part. The films and their classification follow.

Class A-1, Unobjectionable for General Patronage: "Four's a Crowd," "Kinderartz Dr. Engel" (German), "Painted Desert," "Rich Man, Poor Girl," "South of Arizona." Class A-2, Unobjectionable for Adults: "Bulldog Drummond in Africa," "Der Mustergatte" (German). Class B, Objectionable in Part: "Alexander's Ragtime Band."

CLOSINGS ARE NORMAL; ADMISSIONS SCALES HOLD

Exhibitors Concede Business Is Off But Not So Much as Was Expected, and They Hold on for Fall Upturn

The record number of summer theatre closings freely predicted in the spring, as a result of general business conditions, has failed to materialize. With hot weather days past the half way mark for 1938, theatre closings are no greater than the number in 1937.

While some exhibitors concede that business is off in comparison with last year's level, as would be expected because of the general recession, they also agree that this summer's attendance has held up sufficiently well to warrant continued operation in many situations where closing had been contemplated. In most cases where theatres did close, plans already are underway to reopen them.

The pessimistic viewpoint of a few weeks ago is now attributed by exhibitors to the general business decline of that time and to the widespread talk of a shortage of product. Now, a study by MOTION PICTURE HERALD shows that the theatremen have completely reversed themselves and are confidently expecting a marked upturn in attendance by the fall.

The optimism is based in many sections upon the fact that crops are good. In other districts, particularly the South, the theatre operators point to the fact that industry is drafting plans for a busy season.

Such houses as have been darkened for the summer months are, for the most part, the same houses which are closed every year for two to three months at this season.

The study shows that the majority of theatres which have closed are operated by circuits. Independent operators, generally speaking, are "sticking to their guns."

In some instances, exhibitors have effected economies by closing their houses two or three days a week.

Admission prices, as a whole, have not suffered because of the summer decline in general business. In only a few cases have prices been cut in an attempt to attract more business. The general theory expressed is that good attractions will draw as many persons at present levels as they would if prices were cut. The theatremen also feel that summer reductions are not advisable because patrons will complain when prices are advanced in the fall.

In support of the contention that major calibre attractions will result in good box office returns despite summer weather, a compilation of holdover records shows that from the last week in May until July 1st, 24 features played approximately 650 weeks of holdovers in the first-run theatres of 23 key cities scattered about the country. Distributors also point to this fact to disprove charges that they are withholding strong attractions for fall release.

The fact that the large number of theatre closings expected a few weeks ago has not materialized was explained in this fashion by an industry spokesman in New York:

"I can remember for the last 20 years, exhibitors started to complain in the spring about the approaching summer slump. But this year, because of the business recession, the talk was greater and plans actually were made for wholesale closings.

"However, as the weeks stretched out the exhibitors found that they were getting by. They thought that if they could hold out until the Fourth of July they might get a break and do a good business. Well, they got the break and then they postponed their closing dates again.

"Now it's more than halfway through the summer. In another week they'll begin making plans for the fall, and the summer slump will have been forgotten."

In some areas closings have exceeded those of last year but the opposite is true in other territories, making the national situation just about the same as in 1937. The conditions in the various sections are explained in the following:

Kansas City Exhibitors Using Less Pictures

Summer closings in the Kansas City area have not yet exceeded those of a year ago in number of units. However, the amount of film being used by theatres currently is from five to ten per cent under that of July, 1937, due largely to reduction in number of changes.

One practice of economy, which appeared this year with the advent of high temperatures, is the darkening of the house for one mid-week change, usually two days, leaving the theatre two changes the remainder of the week.

So far independents have closed fewer houses than last year. A noticeable amount of activity among theatres in the smaller country towns early this spring is taken as an indication that farmers are in good shape after last year's wheat crop and this year's improved conditions.

Fox Midwest has about half a dozen "B" theatres closed or scheduled to close for the summer, among them the Orpheum, Wichita, Kan.; Paramount, Joplin, Mo., which has been operating only two days a week; Zinn, Winfield, Kan.; Arbo, Nevada, Mo.; Orpheum, Topeka, Kan.

Dubinsky Brothers have closed the Electric, St. Joseph, Mo. Commonwealth has closed the Garden, Washington, Mo; the Strand at Great Bend, Kan., and may close one other No. 2 house, but not more than that. M. B. Presley has shut down the old Globe in Savannah, Mo., where he operates the new Globe, for the summer. The house at Republic, Kan., closed several weeks ago, but this was not considered due to hot weather.

One of the most important local closings was that of the RKO Mainstreet.

Admissions have held up well in the face of conditions. After grosses failed to develop an expected increase last fall, and instead eased off, there was some adjustment of prices. But there have been few if any changes lately, and none traceable directly to summer weather.

Fox Midwest contemplates no price shifts. Actually it has had some increases: the Waldo, Kansas City, went from 20 to 25 cents recently, for instance. In Kansas City the Bijou, C. E. Esterle's house, shifted from 25 to 10 cents this spring, and the Bagdad, independent suburban formerly 20 cents, now is almost altogether 10 cents.

Business in New Orleans Ahead of 1937 Level

No theatre in the New Orleans area has been closed down because of business declines, but two at Shreveport, one at Vicksburg, Miss., and one at Ruston, La., have been shut down through regrouping of ownership which gave the new owners rival houses. Several new houses have been opened in the last six months.

Business in South Louisiana and New Orleans has been up to and above the 1937 levels, but in the Shreveport area of North Louisiana and the agricultural belt of Mississippi low prices for farm commodities are reported reflected in the shifting of ownership of several houses of suburban class and closing of some.

Oil discoveries in southern Louisiana have kept business up to as much as 20 per cent above the 1937 level.

Saenger operates 49 theatres from Pensacola to Texas and none of these has cut prices or gone on restricted showings for the summer except the Tudor, in the central New Orleans business area. Prices were cut there from 40

Sixteen theatres have been closed in the Chicago territory the last few months, but, for

CHICAGO ENGINEERS ACCEPT PAY CUT

Following in line with the projectionists' acceptance of a 10 per cent salary reduction for July and August, building engineers in Chicago this week voted to take a 12½ per cent pay cut for eight weeks, retroactive to July 4th. Despite the fact that these two groups have acceded to the salary cuts asked by Balaban & Katz and RKO, the circuits, to date, have been unable to persuade the stagehands' union to accept similar reductions.

Although voting to take wage cuts, the individual paychecks of the engineers, it was understood, will not be affected, the union having worked out a plan to absorb the cut as an organization.

Kansas City exhibitors did not fare as well as the Chicago theatremen in their negotiations with the unions for salary cuts. The stagehands' and operators' unions refused a request for a 25 per cent reduction made by the Mainstreet, Midland and Newman theatres, all downtown first runs.

GOOD CROPS NOTED IN SOME AREAS

the most part, they are the same houses that cease activity each summer.

There has been no attempt by either circuit theatres or independent houses to get more business by cutting prices. Any reduction in scales is generally regarded as about the last thing exhibitors want.

Among the 16 houses that have been darkened are the Julian, which closes each summer because of a lack of Scandinavian and other foreign product; the Pastime, which was razed, and the Temple, which is being rebuilt.

One Atlanta House Closes, as Usual

Lucas & Jenkins' Georgia Theatre is the only Atlanta house that has closed for the summer, this move being in line with its usual custom.

Admission scales have not varied except at the Cameo, owned by Georgia Wilby, which formerly charged 15 and 20 cents on Fridays and Saturdays but is now getting a straight 15 and 10 cents.

Throughout Georgia only a very few theatres have closed for the summer.

Portland Theatremen Expect Increased Business in Fall

A survey of the Portland trade territory, comprising the full state of Oregon, the counties of Washington bordering on the Columbia River, and several spots in Northern California, shows that in spite of frequent labor troubles and the general recession, theatre business is holding to about 30 per cent under normal, and exhibitors are in hopes that before the fall months are over attendance will be back to average.

In Portland there has been but one major ace house closed, "Blue Mouse," of the Hamrick-Evergreen chain.

Admission scales are down to 25-30-35c for the first runs, but with the number of out-door attractions, the reduction in admission prices has not increased attendance.

Suburban houses thus far have maintained prices; a few of the grind houses have dropped from 15 to 10c.

There were no closings in the Oregon territory during the same period of last year—May to July.

Only Three Houses Closed in St. Louis

The general lack of spending money, plus a reported product shortage, has had no serious effect on the motion picture exhibitors in the St. Louis district. Only three theatres have been closed for the summer and price scales, established in September, 1936, are, with a few minor exceptions, being maintained.

Fanchon & Marco, who had only one theatre in Missouri, closed last summer, closed three this year—the Fox, largest of the city's first-run houses, for economy and repairs, and two subsequent-run houses, the Pageant and Union, for economy.

While closing these three houses, Fanchon & Marco opened a new airdome, with a seating capacity of 1,500, in the north end of the city, with an admission charge of 25 cents for Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday, and 15 cents for the other three nights. This caused the only changes in the price scales.

To compete with the new airdome, three theatres in the northside district, the Dakota, Yale and Normandie, all independents and members of the St. Louis Theatre Owners Association, cut their price from 25 cents to 20 cents on June 1st, and to 15 cents on July 1st.

Fred W. Wehrenberg, president of the organization of independent owners, is authority for the statement that none of that group has closed or intends to reduce prices further. None of the independents was closed last summer.

INCREASED BUSINESS SEEN IN NEW ORLEANS

Business in the New Orleans distributing area for the second quarter of 1938 is estimated at 10 to 20 per cent above 1937 by exchange and exhibition representatives.

While grosses were slightly off in New Orleans for a few weeks, the smaller communities in south Louisiana are said to be far ahead of the 1937 level under impetus of the almost weekly discovery of new petroleum reserves.

In addition to activity in the oil fields, some within 20 miles of New Orleans, several large public works projects, many small ones, and sustained business generally are given as reasons for continued good business.

Jacksonville Houses Continue Operations

In Jacksonville, Fla., all theatres are operating as they were a year ago and through the winter. Farther south, particularly on the lower east coast, there have been closings but they were seasonal, following a precedent of many years.

M. C. Moore, president of the Southeastern Theatre Owners' Association, said that no theatres had been closed down because of business conditions. The same general conditions can be found throughout the Southeastern area, he said. None of the E. J. Sparks theatres in the Jacksonville section have closed, although two are closed in Daytona Beach, the Florida and the Crystal.

Business Off in Lincoln But Theatres Remain Open

Although general business conditions would justify the closing of several houses in Lincoln, Neb., and surrounding territory, exhibitors prefer to keep the theatres open, believing that conditions will change in the fall.

Business is generally estimated as being off from 15 to 30 per cent as compared to 1937 as a whole, although business is only about 5 per cent under that for the summer of last year.

The Varsity, a 17,100-seat house in Lincoln, expected to close within the next month for remodeling.

Baltimore Theatre Converted Into Stores

Although Baltimore has been affected somewhat by the general slump this summer, there have been no closings, except the Grand theatre, which was sold and will be converted into stores.

The Eureka has gone on a five-day policy, as is customary each summer.

A standard scale of admission prices has been maintained and there are only a few theatres double featuring.

New York Closings Not As Numerous as Expected

Although Spring estimates placed the number of houses to be closed during the summer in the metropolitan area of New York at more than 100 the actual closings were under this figure.

Seven RKO houses closed in the metropolitan area will be operating again within the next two weeks. Loew will reopen seven in the New York area next week. Randforce will reopen three after Labor Day, as will National Theatres, and five Skouras houses will renew operations in the near future. Other circuits announcing early reopenings include Brandt, six, and Century and Cocalis, one each. The only varying note in the plans came from Consolidated Amusement which said it has no plans to reopen the Ascot, Bronx, and may darken four or five other houses.

The Skouras circuit had planned to close 13 theatres and the Brandt circuit intended to close 12 but they darkened only seven and eight, respectively.

Reductions in union wage scales for the summer was seen as a possible means of forestalling closings and with this in mind, Major Leslie E. Thompson of RKO Theatres, in behalf of RKO, Loew's and other circuits operating in the metropolitan area, undertook negotiations with union leaders. The negotiations reached the conference stage but nothing further was done.

Increased Business Reported In Los Angeles Territory

Los Angeles, unquestionably, is one of the brightest spots on the map of theatre operations. Not a single theatre in the territory has been forced to close either as a result of poor business or the inability to procure product with which to continue double bill programs, which are the standard in every house. As Fox West Coast Theatres, the Warner group, the Paramount, operated by Fanchon and Marco, and the Pantages and the Hillstreet, operated by RKO, have found business slightly improved over last year, and it has not been necessary to make any changes in admission price scales. The same tariffs which have been in effect for the past several years are being maintained.

On the other hand, several new theatres have been built and opened recently. The latest are the Laurel, on Ventura Boulevard, where, although some difficulty is being encountered, it is said, in obtaining sufficient product, Manager M. D. Howe reports favorable business, and the Sun-Val Drive-In, second outdoor theatre in the area. This open-air spot, equipped with individual loudspeakers, has a capacity of 600 cars and the accommodations have been taxed practically every night since the opening.

Indicating the upward trend of business in Los Angeles, Fox West Coast, which planned a series of auto give-aways in Grauman's Chinese and Loew's State theatres, the circuit's ace houses, abandoned the idea when a series of screen attractions became available.

One Memphis House Closes, To Operate Occasionally

The only major closing in Memphis with the summer is that of the Orpheum theatre, first-run downtown, which expects to operate occasionally as important stage attractions are available, combining them with such films as it can get.

Outside the city there are few reports of closings in the Memphis territory. Business is only fair, but not so weak that the showhouses are closing. Bright prospects for fall are encouraging continued operation.

Warm Weather Closes One Nebraska Theatre

As was the case in the summer of 1937, theatres in Omaha have remained open.

Only one theatre in the territory has been closed since the advent of hot weather. It is the Elms at Elmcreek, Neb.

Theatres are maintaining their admission prices well, according to reports to the Film Exchange at Omaha.

Business On Upgrade In San Antonio Houses

Theatres of San Antonio and vicinity have weathered the recession without closing or cutting prices. The San Antonio theatres—all operated by the Interstate Circuit—have taken losses at times but business is on the upgrade again.

The policy of the local theatres has been to augment the bills. Name bands such as Glen Gray and Cab Calloway have been added to the programs of the Majestic, the ace house of the Alamo City.

Duals have been eliminated with the exception of the State theatre, which plays to the Mexican trade and shows duals Saturday and Sunday.

San Francisco Situation Remains Same as Last Year

Only one San Francisco first run house—the Embassy, owned by Herman Cohen—has closed for the summer. Other first runs are maintaining regular prices.

Neighborhood houses in the bay area are all staying open and maintaining regular tariff schedules.

The situation is virtually the same as last year when United Artists, also owned by Mr. Cohen, was dark for three months. But this year Mr. Cohen decided to divert all available product to United Artists, leaving the Embassy dark until "more and better pictures" are available in the fall.

All 13 Houses Continue To Operate in Seattle

Contrary to general business conditions, all 13 theatres in the Spokane territory have remained open. Last year two houses closed for the summer months, the Rex and the Empress, which are both subsequent run houses.

There has been a general tendency to drop prices in the second-run and subsequent-run theatres. Theatres that have reduced prices in reecnt months include the Libert, Granada, Post Street and Empress.

Admission Prices Maintained in Buffalo

Buffalo theatre admission prices are holding their own against the business recession and mid-summer "dog days." First run houses worked out a new price scale early in June when downtown box offices reports slipped to unseasonal lows.

At that time, Shea Theatres instituted a blanket five-cent cut at the Buffalo, Great Lakes, Hippodrome and Century. LaHay Theatres, which operates the remaining first-run house, the Lafayette, followed suit.

In their seven neighborhoods, Shea Theatres, however, stood as fast as they customarily do, neither cutting any admission nor closing any theatres. LaHay Theatres also made no changes at their Niagara Falls and Tonawanda properties.

Contrary to custom, the Little (German) theatre remained open this summer and Manager Herman Endres plans to go on showing his imported product throughout the year.

The outlook for Basil Brothers' circuit of 13 theatres in the surrounding territory is unchanged but unpromising. Nick Basil, one of the partners, said, "We have not started to cut yet, but we haven't any customers either. It looks terrible but I don't think we we'll do anything about it."

Matt Konczakowski, who runs a small chain in the Polish districts, is keeping his Grand theatre open Tuesday and Wednesday this summer. He closed it during July and August in 1937.

Another neighborhood operator, Joe Schuchert, took over the Stadium late last year and has kept it dark during the summer months, although prices in his other houses have remained constant. The Stadium was closed most of last year.

Carolina Theatres Remain Open

A survey of theatres in the Carolinas indicates there have been no theatre closings this summer. Summer closing is not customary in this section, and theatre business, while not as brisk as in the fall, winter and spring, does not decline, except in a very few instances, below the point where theatres can be operated at a profit.

Theatres are maintaining admission scales, which have not been changed in a long time.

Delaware Maintains Record Of No Theatre Closings

Not a single theatre in Delaware closed its doors during the year ending this month. The situation was the same in the previous year.

Theatres in the state are more than holding their own, with encouraging strides in several quarters. At Millsboro, Del., Walter (Huck) Betts, former National League pitcher with Boston, opened the $25,000 Ball theatre a month ago.

Several months ago plans were announced for a new four-story theatre at Dover by James J. Walker, agent for a group of Wilmington financiers.

Walter W. Bacon, mayor of Wilmington, recently broke ground for the new $660,000 Warner theatre in Wilmington, the largest and most expensive theatre in the Philadelphia-Wilmington-Baltimore area since the construction of the Mastbaum theatre in Philadelphia. The house will be completed December 20th and the first show presented by the Stanley-Warner Co. on December 26th.

Employees of the Stanley-Warner Queen, downtown first-run house, were given two weeks' notice more than a week ago and rumors were circulated that the theatre would shut down this month but officials of the company in Philadelphia still deny the house will close.

Delaware theatres have maintained admission scales set last October when prices were advanced in the Wilmington area. Practically all of the city's 12 theatres advanced admissions then.

The sharpest increases were noted at Loew's, and the Stanley-Warner Aldine, both first-run houses, where increases from 40 to 50 cents, evenings, tax included, were announced. The Rialto, first-run independent downtown, increased five cents. Matinee hours at reduced prices were changed in some theatres and others made straight increases.

Five-cent increases were made at the Stanley-Warner Arcadia and Queen and the independent neighborhood Park.

Small Attendance Forces Five Denver Houses to Close

Five theatres in Denver have closed for the summer months. Joe Decker, Civic Theatre executive, explained: "Theatre business in Denver for the past six months has been even slower than in 1932."

At this time last year there were no theatres closed in Denver. Business at that time held up well, and exhibitors found it less expensive to remain open than to close.

Virtually all Denver theatres are maintaining their admission scales. There has been no evidence of price cutting in an attempt to revive business.

The theatres closed are the Webber, Park, Tivoli, Mission and Alameda.

Few Closings Scheduled In Connecticut Cities

Theatre closings in Connecticut are about the same as those of last year. Of about 35 Warner houses under the New Haven office jurisdiction four planned to close for the summer. The Tre-

MOTOR INDUSTRY STARTS REHIRING

An indication of industrial upturn expected in the fall and counted upon by many exhibitors to swell box-office grosses was seen in Detroit this week when the automobile industry began the rehiring of workers.

Thousands of telegrams were dispatched to employees of several leading motor plants in Detroit, including General Motors Corporation, Packard, Plymouth, Motor Products Corporation, United States Rubber Company, Murray Corporation, De Soto Motors, Fisher Body Company and Kelsey-Hayes Wheel Company.

Although few, if any, of the plants will be operating at full production for the next few weeks, the effect of the reviving operations in the industry upon the Detroit unemployment situation was immediately visible.

Government agencies reported that hundreds of families were taken off relief rolls.

mont, Ansonia, is dark during the summer, as usual, while the Capitol, Danbury, has been closed for the first time in eight years.

The Alhambra, Torrington, reopened last summer after a long dark period, was closed once more this spring. Similarly the Capitol, New Britain, has been closed after being open for a few months.

Of the 12 Loew-Poli houses, the Poli, Meriden, is closed as usual, and the Palace, Hartford, usually kept dark during the summer, is operating after being closed for one week. The Lyric, Bridgeport, also is closed as usual. The State, Hartford, a Harris Brothers house, is operating part time this summer, although closed last year. The Cameo, West Haven, will be kept dark by the Tabackmans for several months, as usual.

The Tower, Walnut Beach; Strand, Sound View, and Casino, Grove Beach, summer theatres, are operating as usual this summer.

Slight reductions in children's admissions have been placed in effect in Hartford, Torrington, and a few other spots, but no appreciable reductions have thus far been inaugurated and exhibitors do not contemplate any such moves.

Trend in Des Moines Toward Increase in Admissions

Few theatres in the Des Moines area have closed for the summer and the optimism which theatremen have for the fall is reflected in the fact that there is considerable construction of new houses underway or contemplated. There have been no reductions in admission prices, the general trend being toward increased prices.

Three Indianapolis Houses Closed, Two Dark Last Year

This summer a few hundred more seats are available to theatre goers in Indianapolis than there were last summer, despite the fact that closings increased from two to three.

Following well-established custom, the Indiana, 3,200-seat downtown house operated under a Monarch-Fourth Avenue agreement, and the Granada, de luxe neighborhood of the Fountain Square Theatre Company, closed early in June. In addition, the Daisy, small neighborhood, closed July 4th to stay dark till September 1st. The other two houses are expected to open about Labor Day.

Offsetting this is the recently-opened Vogue, de luxe neighborhood operated by Carl Niesse, and two suburban houses, the Speedway, in Speedway, and the Grove, in Beach Grove, both opened since last summer.

There are no changes in admission prices and apparently none is contemplated. Openings slightly outdistanced closings in the towns and small cities of central Indiana and exhibitors in this area also are reluctant about changing admission rates.

No Houses Closed In Washington

More theatres, rather than fewer—day and night, summer and winter—is the theme in Washington. Several houses are under construction or projected, and two or three new ones have been opened since the beginning of the year.

Different in many basic respects from any other city in the country, Washington is the last to feel recessions, the first to react to recovery. Depression throughout the country means increased population in Washington, as the Government swings into recovery programs; but now recovery throughout the country also means increased activity in Washington, as the Government expands with the nation.

With more than 600,000 within the restricted confines of the District of Columbia and another 150,000 or more in contiguous suburbs in Virginia and Maryland, all drawing their living from the Government or from the Government employees, Capital exhibitors give little thought to summer closings.

And, by the same token, there is little worry about admissions.

Given a good picture, the Washington houses will "pack them in." And since they are practically all air-cooled and there are no beach resorts around the corner to compete, it is possible, at least, to break even, even in the hot summer months.

Seven Albany Houses Closed

Seven theatres in the Albany territory are either closed or reduced to week-end billings for the summer months. In each instance, these theatres were open full time in 1937.

They are: Lincoln, Schenectady (independent), operating Saturday and Sunday; Bright Spot (independent), Rensselaer, closed for summer; Rivoli (Rosenthal), Troy, closed for summer; Palace, Troy (Rosenthal), Saturday and Sunday; Regent, Amsterdam (Schine Circuit), closed for summer; Palace, Watertown (Schine Circuit), closed for summer; and Hippodrome, Gloversville (Schine), Saturday and Sunday.

Business is spotty in the Albany territory. Tremendous popularity of professional baseball (Eastern League), pulls throngs into the Albany park and keeps show-goers at home to some extent, due to broadcast of games.

The Constitutional Convention with its delegates, families, lobbyists, employees and hangers-on, is helping somewhat in Albany during the first half of the week.

Price scales have not changed to any extent since the first of the year.

Birmingham Exhibitors Show Optimism

Exhibitors in the Birmingham area are optimistic. There has been no material change in either admission prices or in the number of theatres closing for the summer but, with a good crop on the way to being harvested and new industries opening in Birmingham as elsewhere in the South, the exhibitors see a ray of hope that price levels can be raised in the fall.

Attendance the last few weeks has picked up noticeably, even though many residents are away on vacation.

RKO-Shubert Closes In Cincinnati

The theatre closing and admission situation in the Cincinnati territory is the same as last year. The only house to be shuttered is the 2,150-seat, first run RKO Shubert, located several squares away from the downtown "theatre belt," which usually opens the season with stage shows and pictures, subsequently going into straight films toward the end of the winter months. Concurrently with this change of policy, the admission scale is reduced from 60 cents to 42 cents top, including tax. The closing of this house, however, is an annual custom.

Although the business curve at the subsequent-run and suburban houses has flattened out, even more so than in 1937, the exhibitors are "standing by their guns," because, as one spokesman for this group put it: "We do not want to educate our few remaining patrons to go downtown for their amusement."

"There's no point in reducing admissions," this spokesman continued. "While present admissions are so low, we are merely able to get by, the additional number of patrons that might be attracted by a slight price slash would scarcely justify such a move. We feel that if a person is sufficiently interested in a picture to want to see it, that person will not allow a few cents either way to prevent his attending, except perhaps, the families of the unemployed, who may be 'pinching pennies,' but this class of patronage is sporadic rather than constant, and, therefore, doesn't mean anything in the aggregate. We're coasting along from 'hand to mouth,' as it were, in the hope that there will be a pickup in the fall. A couple of surburbans did reduce prices five cents some weeks ago, but there was no appreciable pickup in business, so that's the answer."

Same Two Houses Close In Louisville as in 1937

The same two theatres which closed in Louisville last summer are closed again this summer. They are the National and the Drurylane.

No other theatres have closed in the last two years and there have been no reductions in admission prices.

Admission Prices Lowered In Salt Lake City Area

Independent exhibitors throughout Utah, Idaho and Montana are operating about the same number of houses as in the summer of 1937, but there has been a general lowering in admission prices. Circuits having more than one theatre in a town have generally closed at least one.

This is true of the Simon Amusement Company, operating in 14 towns in Idaho and Montana. Fox West Coast has closed the Alcazar theatre in Great Falls, Montana—one of three theatres in the town; the Liberty in Missoula,

BRITISH UNITS PLAN U. S. SALES COMBINE

New York representatives of British producers have indicated that their principals are discussing the formation of a single national distribution organization in the United States to handle the combined product of British studios. The plan at present is said to be only in the conversation stage with a definite study of the possibilities to be made before next fall if a sufficient volume of product is indicated.

The cooperative sales and distribution organization would be designed to furnish British producers complete representation in the American market at an apportioned minimum cost. Gaumont British, Associated British Pictures and British Lion are said to be interested.

THE KEYSTONE OF YOUR FUTURE

SAME HOUSES CLOSE AS LAST YEAR

Montana, one of five theatres; the Fox in Butte, Montana, one of five theatres. Joe English, independent exhibitor, has closed one of two theatres in Anaconda, Montana. These Montana houses are due to open as soon as the mining operations begin in the fall with the expected upswing in business.

Intermountain Theatres, Inc., has closed the Isis theatre in Preston, Idaho, one of two theatres operated by the circuit; the Pinney in Boise, Idaho, one of four theatres; the Colonial, Ogden, Utah, one of four theatres; the Grand in Logan, Utah, one of two theatres, and the Paramount in Salt Lake City, one of six theatres. Admission prices throughout both circuits have returned, for the summer, to the 1936 level. Business generally is decidedly below the 1937 mark, but the outlook is optimistic. In Salt Lake City, the reopening of the Utah Copper Company, August 1st, will return 2,500 men to work and a return to the pre-recession business is expected in the fall.

Business Seen On Upgrade in Houston

While business for the last two months has been below the usual level of summer slumps, there have been no theatres closed in the east Texas section and none in Houston.

Without exception, prices have been maintained, and officials of the Interstate Theatres, Inc., operators of three downtown and seven suburbans in Houston, declare business is on the upgrade.

On the other hand, a move is on foot in Tyler, the famous rose-growing town of East Texas, to build a new theatre of large proportions. Karl Hoblitzelle, head of Interstate circuit, recently turned down a proposition to build there, saying business did not justify the project at this time. But civic leaders are continuing with the promotion.

Pittsburgh Houses Reduce Hours of Operation

Despite the fact that business is off more than 25 per cent as compared to the same period last year, theatre closings in the Pittsburgh territory have been kept at a minimum. Among the independent exhibitors, none has suspended operations, although several have cut down their hours of operation, matinees, in many cases, having been eliminated for the warm months.

The Warner Brothers circuit is the only one that has darkened any houses. Five of the Warner houses have been closed and three or four more are expected to suspend activity within the next few weeks. There were no closings in 1937.

In no case, however, has there been any price cutting. Both the circuit and independent managements are striving to maintain their scales in the belief that business will improve early in the fall.

Virginia Theatres Operate On Same Basis as Last Year

Virginia's motion picture theatres are operating on virtually the same schedules as prevailed last year.

Several new playhouses have been opened this year and a few others are expected to be completed within the next six months.

The Strand, formerly the Bijou, is the only one to close in Richmond. It will be converted into a billiard parlor.

34 Houses Closed in Texas As Compared to 36 Last Year

Thirty-four Texas theatres were closed this summer, as compared with 36 at the same time last year, according to Miss Bonnie Clark, secretary of the Dallas Variety Club.

Interstate Circuit, operating 140 theatres in the state, reported that not one of its houses had been closed and that there had been no reduction in admission prices.

R. E. Griffith Theatres, which has a circuit of houses throughout the southwest, reported a few closings in scattered and isolated sections and in some spots prices were dropped from 35 to 25 cents.

The 34 closed houses and the towns in which they are located include Majestic, Acklerly; Grove, Blooming Grove; Dittman, Brownesville; Rex, Carlisle; Myers, Carrolton; Astor, Dallas; Deport, Deport; Lyric, Dublin; Strand, Fransston; Texas, Gainesville; Dorbandt, Jacksonville; Uptown, Jasper; Rose, Levelland; Rex, Lubbock; Strand, Lueders; Popo, McKinney; Nusho, Miami; Palace, Midland; Dixie-col, Navasota; Pastime, Newton; Oak, Oakwood; Petersburg, Petersburg; Valencia, Pharr; Rex, Poth; Palace, Pyote; Texas, Roaring Springs; Wallace, Ropesville; Rialto, Range; Astor, Rusk; Main, San Marcos; Ritz, St. Jo; Austin, Seguia; Palace, Silverton, and Ritz, Van Alstyne.

Syracuse Theatre Leased For Road Show Attractions

The only major change in the downtown situation in Syracuse during the last few weeks was the leasing of the RKO-Schine-Strand to Jules J. Leventhal, as part of his upstate road show circuit. Mr. Leventhal will use the house, originally slated to close, for six to eight weeks.

Among the neighborhood theatres, the Harvard and the Avon are the only two closed up to date. The Harvard will be dark for six weeks during construction next door which has blocked off the street. The Avon is operating on a Saturday, Sunday, Monday policy for the Summer.

The Brighton, operated by the Gilbert Corporation, probably will be dark within the next few weeks as it was in 1937.

As for admission scales in Syracuse, the RKO-Schine-Eckel, formerly a 40-cent top house, has been scaled down to 20 and 25 cents on a double feature policy of "B" pictures.

Several Philadelphia Houses Closed for Repairs

Theatre closings in the Philadelphia area show little change from last year. The Warner Brothers circuit is keeping all its houses open except the Aldine, first-run mid-town house which has been closed each summer for the last five years.

Sam Cohen's independent house, the Grant, is closed for the summer months and another to be shuttered is the Douglas, an independent house catering to a colored clientele. William Leopol, who operates the Locust in West Philadelphia, also has closed his house for the summer and the David Milgrim circuit of Affiliate Theatres have closed a few houses but insist the closings were merely for repairs.

Among these are the Walton in Germantown, which will reopen the first week in August, and the Rialto, which will reopen the third week in August.

Pizor-Segal has closed two neighborhood houses, the Windsor and the Tioga, for repairs.

So far as admission prices are concerned, all exhibitors maintain that they are keeping winter prices in effect and contemplate no reductions.

The Fays in West Philadelphia, a vaudeville-film house, has been closed since May. The house usually closes for the summer but darkened a few weeks ahead of schedule this year because of the banning of chance games. The Grand, West Philadelphia, also closed because of the chance game ban. The house usually plays "name" colored bands on the stage, and second run pictures.

Northwest Closings Same as Usual

Theatre closings in the Minneapolis trade territory are no more numerous this summer than in preceding years. The Minnesota, a 4,200-seat house in Minneapolis, has been close indefinitely and the Minnesota Amusement Company has announced there is little likelihood that it will renew its lease when the present one expires next February.

Other Minneapolis closings, all Minnesota Amusement Company theatres, are the American, Granada and Nokomis, neighborhood houses. At Appleton, Minn., R. Risch has closed his house and the North Dakota closings include the theatres of R. Schaber at Ashley; E. Tisko at Stanley, and Alvin Larson at Noonan.

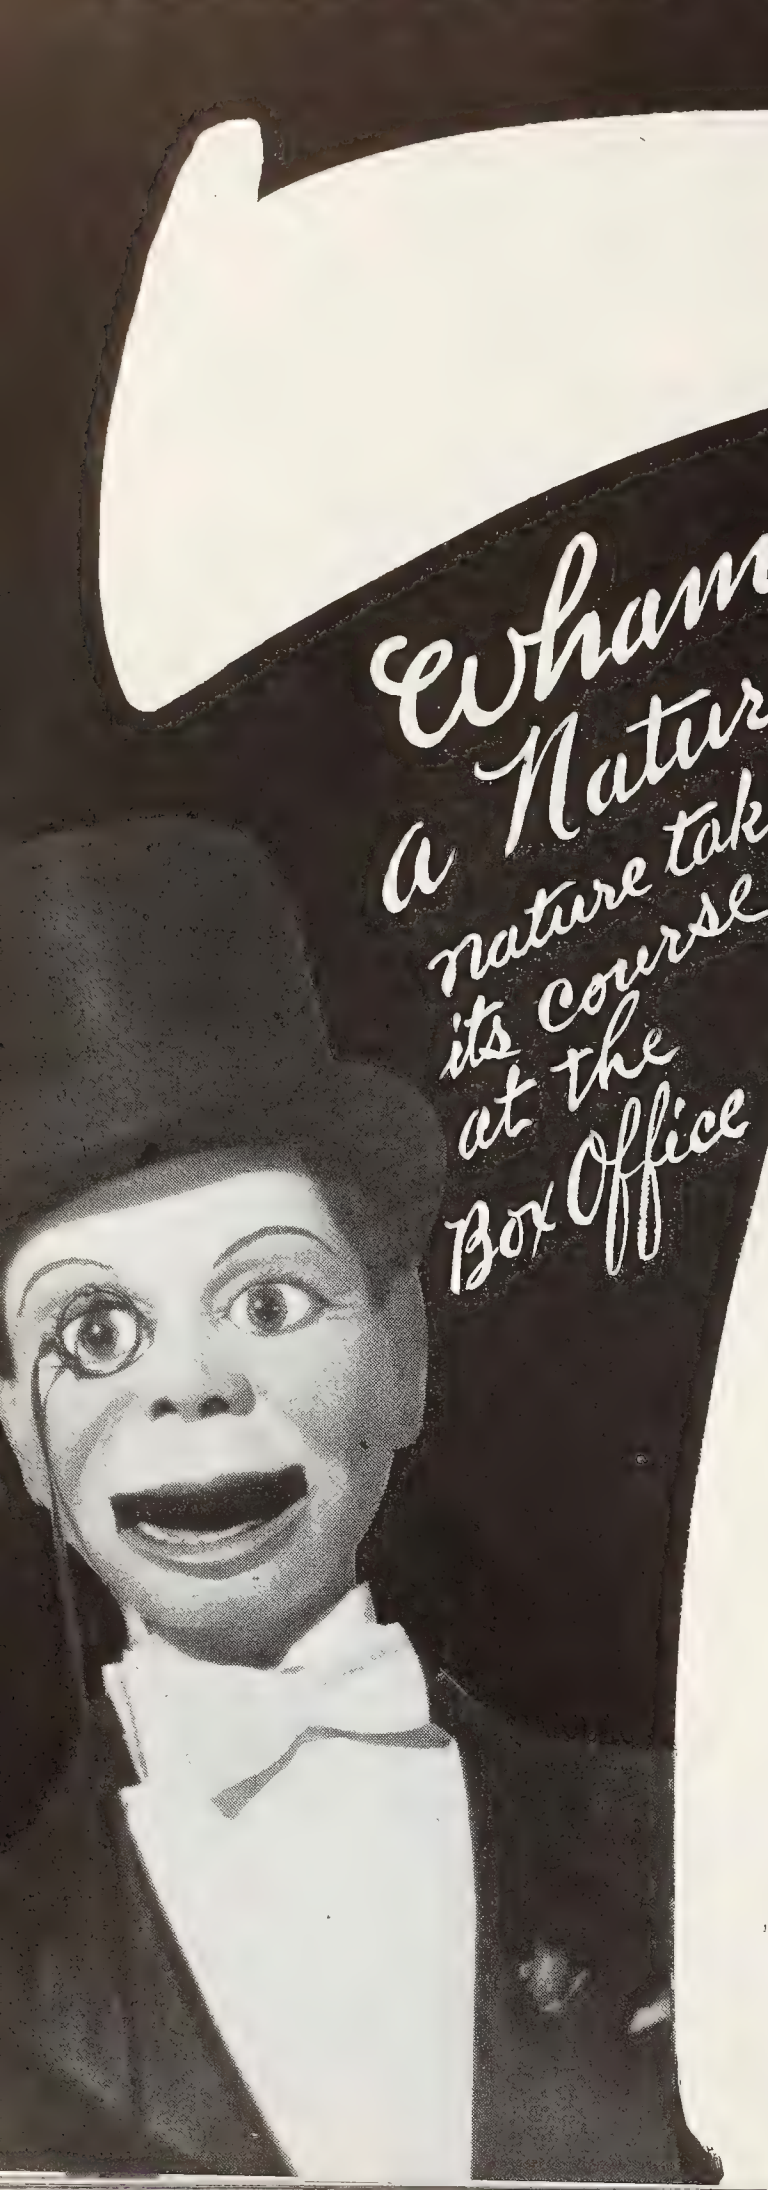
In Minneapolis, the State has reduced its prices to what is termed a "summer schedule."

Invitations Extended To Wisconsin Jubilee

Leading executives in the Motion picture industry this week received invitations to attend the Wisconsin Silver Jubilee celebration which will be held at the Schroeder Hotel, Milwaukee, August 30th and 31st. The invitations were extended by Ben J. Miller, secretary of the Film Board of Trade in Milwaukee.

Committee chairmen in charge of arrangements for the event are Sam Shurman, Ray Smith, reception; E. J. Weisfeldt, E. F. Maertz, banquet; B. J. Miller, speakers; Mrs. Frank Fischer, ladies' activities; Harold Mirisch, hotel reservations; George Langeheinrich, registration; Jack Keegan, publicity; R. A. Tesch, program book; Al Sickels, boat cruise; Ed Krofta, trophies; Merril Devine, exhibits; Charles Trampe, business meeting, and Max Krofta, ticket sales.

Pathe and Colorfilm Building 16mm. Plant



A laboratory to handle 16mm. negative will be built in Hollywood by Pathe in association with H. T. James, president of Colorfilms, Inc. Both color and black and white film will be produced.

Construction, which is budgeted at $500,000, will start within 60 days, and plant operation are slated to begin within six months.

Ohio Censors' Actions

The Ohio division of film censorship at Columbus reviewed 349 reels, and ordered 24 eliminations in July, contrasted with 485 reels reviewed, with 15 eliminations, in July last year.

SHOWMEN'S REVIEWS

This department deals with new product from the point of view of the exhibitor who is to purvey it to his own public

Spawn of the North

(Paramount)

Sea Spectacle

Dear Mr. Exhibitor: For extended play dates you want a picture which combines action, love, suspense, human interest, poignancy of situation, and thrills. You want something that keeps your audience on the edge of the seat, lets it sit back for a while as it loses itself in the romance, and then gives it a punch line as gripping as an O. Henry story. Don't you?

Well, Paramount's "Spawn of the North" just about fills the prescription.

Remember the earthquake sequence in "San Francisco"? Remember the gale sequence in "The Hurricane"? Remember the fire of "In Old Chicago"? Those were catastrophes of nature which solved the human equation in screen plots. Totally different, yet as effective as temblor, hurricane and conflagration, is the menace of a glacier in "Spawn of the North."

The picture emerges from its years of preparation—Paramount has had this on production schedule for number of years—as an exploitation man's dream. The background is salmon fishing Alaska in the days of long ago and it's virtually virgin territory for motion picture exploitation. The action revolves about attempts of pirates to steal the catches of honest fishermen.

Besides this aspect of the picture, there are George Raft, Henry Fonda, Dorothy Lamour, Akim Tamiroff, John Barrymore, Louise Platt and Lynne Overman in leading roles. All of them have their fans—you should have seen the record-breaking pack of fans outside the Westwood Village theatre Monday night, and two women were taken to Emergency Hospital because of injuries received in the rush.

The principal conflict is between Raft and Fonda, who as close friends part company, the one turning to fish piracy, the other to upholding law and order. Miss Lamour discards her sarong for the heavy woolens of the near Arctic, and in a role so different from those which have made her quite a favorite with motion picture audiences, to say nothing of her wide radio following, she made a definite impression on the crowded preview audience in her part as a girl who loses her misguided lover. Tamiroff has one of the most villainous roles that he has played, that of Russian leader of the pirates. Barrymore and Overman have comic relief parts. Miss Platt is a comparative newcomer to the screen and much may be heard of her later.

So you want some action, Mr. Exhibitor? Henry Hathaway, who upon graduation from western pictures gave you "Lives of a Bengal Lancer" and "Souls at Sea," directed the picture. Action? The picture has plenty, Mr. Exhibitor. The fight scenes between pirates and fishermen contain everything from hatchet throwing, gunfire and hand-to-hand struggles to the cutting out of the bottoms of boats with harpoons. And action is combined with plausibility. Jules Furthman, who worked on the scripts of "Come and Get It," "Mutiny on the Bounty," wrote this with Talbot Jennings another of many credits, including "Good Earth," "Romeo and Juliet" and "Mutiny on the Bounty." It's from the widely known book of Barrett Willoughby.

What about the supporting cast? Well, it includes Fuzzy Knight, Vladimir Sokoloff, Duncan Renaldo, John Wray, Michio Ito, Stanley Andrews, Richard Ung and "Slicker." The last named is quite an exploitable asset. "Slicker" is a trained seal which figures in most of the comedy relief. The preview audience forgot itself and almost applauded the seal's scene-stealing movements.

The story? It's packed with everything. A bare outline will suffice. "Dawson" and "Kemerlee" are the best of friends until "Dawson," embittered by his failures, turns to fish piracy. Joining "Skain's" gang, "Dawson" is shot and wounded by "Kemerlee" in a fight between fishermen and pirates. To redeem himself, "Dawson" pilots the boat of the gang leader into a glacier killing himself and "Skain."

Mr. Exhibitor, you and your fellows should have been at that theatre in Westwood, Cal., to hear the gasps and sighs when the picture gave the audience respite from the tension. You should have been there to hear the blending of laughter with suspense. Wait till you see the picture yourself.—VANCE KING.

Produced and distributed by Paramount. Producer, Albert Lewin. Director, Henry Hathaway. Photographer, Charles Lang. Screen play, Jules Furthman. Based on a story by Barrett Willoughby. Film editor, Ellsworth Hoagland. Assistant director, Holly Morse. Sound, Harry Mills. Art directors, Hans Dreier and Roland Anderson. P. C. A. Certificate No. 4,255. Release date, August 26, 1938. Running time, when seen in Hollywood, 112 minutes. General audience classification.

The Missing Guest

(Universal)

Mystery Melodrama

With settings of a thunderstorm, an old house, mysterious passages, devices which produce weird sounds and a 20 year old murder, Universal's "The Missing Guest" is a mystery melodrama having as its chief characters a fast talking reporter, in the person of Paul Kelly, a pretty heiress, Constance Moore, and a young man, half-brother of the heiress, William Lundigan.

Kelly, as "Scoop" Hanlon, irrepressible reporter given the beauty column on his newspaper as a disciplinary measure, is offered his old job back if he solves the secret of an old mansion whose owners disappeared 20 years earlier, and whose daughter and friends are reopening the house. "Hanlon" crashes the party and, after hair-raising adventures, exposes the killer, but not until another death takes place.

Others in the cast are Edwin Stanley, Selmer Jackson, William Wayne, George Cooper, Patrick J. Kelly, Florence Wix, Pat Flick, Harlan Briggs. John Rawlins directed, and Barney A. Sarecky is associate producer. Charles Martin and Paul Perez did the screenplay, based on Erich Philippi's story, "Secret of the Blue Room."

Previewed at the RKO Hillstreet Theatre, Los Angeles, to a Saturday night crowd which evidently enjoyed the suspense.—V. K.

Always in Trouble

(20th Century-Fox)

Comedy

Jane Withers never enjoyed the benefits of an expensively produced picture or of a name supporting cast. Despite this, almost solely through her own talents and naturally appealing personality, she attained a position among the ten leading box office personalities in last year's MOTION PICTURE HERALD poll. The paradox is repeated in "Always in Trouble." The picture's hopes for entertainment and commercial success depend almost solely upon Miss Wither's talents and personality. Both are called upon for considerable exercising.

True to the title, Jane is always in trouble. Her troubles aren't as much mischievous as they are the results of her highly imaginative attempts to bring the grownup members of her newly rich family to their senses. Though unexpectedly become rich, her father, "J. C. Darlington," would prefer to continue the life he knew as an oil field worker; "Jerry" is sympathetic to that ideal. Wealth, however, brings social ambitions to "Mrs. Darlington" and sister "Virginia," and an opportunity to eat all he can to "Uncle Ed." To straighten out the family, also to give "J. C.," who has taken to tippling, a chance to sober up, "Jerry" tricks office clerk "Graham" into staging a fake kidnaping, after the yacht on which they have been cruising is wrecked and the crowd lands on an island. Ensue a lot of comic and sometimes exciting goings-on as a gang of smugglers, who think "Graham" is a real kidnapper, plot to hijack him out of the ransom. Jane, with the unwilling connivance of "Uncle Ed," outwits the pseudo mobsters in a series of situations, the highlight of which is a wild fracas in which "Mrs. Darlington" proves an accomplished frying-pan swinger.

Miss Withers, working like a little Trojan, delivers her usual good performance and actually is the basis for all the show's amusement. Undoubtedly the film should prove attractive to her following as it did to those of them who were members of the preview audience. However, spectators, who see Jane for the first time in "Always in Trouble," may wonder how it ever was possible for her to attain such a high ranking in the list of box office favorites.

Racket Busters

(Warner Bros.)

Topical Melodrama

Names, action and a title for a sturdy selling handle with which to grasp exploitation opportunities tell what is to be done with "Racket Busters."

There is Humphrey Bogart as "Martin," the racketeer, and a convincing one as attested in "Crime School," and in "Swing Your Lady" and "Men Are Such Fools." George Brent, as the independent trucking contractor who finally makes the special district attorney's business his business, scored in "Jezebel." Then there are Gloria Dickson as his ("Jordan's") wife, Allen Jenkins as his pal, and Walter Abel as the prosecutor.

Heading the support are Penny Singleton, Oscar O'Shea, Henry O'Neill, Anthony Averill, Elliott Sullivan, Fay Helm, Joe Downing, Norman Wills and Don Rowan.

Lloyd Bacon, directing the Cosmopolitan production from an original screenplay by Robert Rossen and Leonardo Bercovici, has enveloped a far from new story with incident and montage in such forceful style as to make actionful even the speeches of the prosecutor (and Abel gives them as much life as is possible). Nor can the story be called old because the subject is thoroughly topical and an air of authenticity pervades the telling of it.

The romantic turn is of little consequence to the story except in the employment of the wife's sacrifices and courage in inspiring "Jordan" to fight for their rights.

"Martin," as a wedge to cut into the food commission market, begins organizing the truck drivers and finally calls a strike. "Jordan," at first going his own way with a let-live philosophy, finds his accounts fading under the merchants' fear of the demonstrated terrorism. However, not until "'Horse' Wilson," who has set up his own business, goes to address the strikers, and "Jordan's" wife tongue-lashes him as a quitter, does he get into the fray, drive a careening truck into the front room of the racketeers' headquarters building, and down "Martin" in a fist-crunching melee.

Block-Heads

(Roach-MGM)

Laurel and Hardy

Laurel and Hardy's last for MGM release before Hal Roach takes the duo over to United Artists for a series of four reel pictures, "Block-Heads," presents a sequence of "gags" or blackouts worked up by the pair with comic elaborateness. There is little story binding the episodes together.

Outstanding, for a Laurel and Hardy feature, is the absence of the pantomimic portrayals which have been greatly responsible for the popularity of the pair. The film starts with the World War being shown in montage sequences, and Laurel being ordered by his superior officer to guard a trench while the rest of his company goes "over the top." After a few more montage sequences, the scene shifts to 1938, and Laurel is still in the trench, not knowing the war is over.

Hardy hears about Laurel and invites him as a house guest. Then follows an episode in which Hardy mistakenly thinks Laurel has lost a leg in the War. Hardy's termagant wife, Billy Gilbert as the jealous husband of Patricia Ellis, and strangers complicate their plans and the picture, until the final blackout which has Gilbert vowing vengeance for Laurel and Hardy's innocent flirting with "Mrs. Gilbert" and chasing them through the apartment house court. As he fires his gun several times and shouts something which sounds like "I'll teach you to flirt with my wife," about a dozen other men make hasty exits from other apartments.

The original story and screenplay on the title sheets is credited to five writers—Charles Rogers, Felix Adler, James Parrott, Harry Langdon and Arnold Belgard. The late John G. Blystone had this as his last directorial assignment. Hal Roach, Jr., received his first associate producer credit on the picture.

Smashing the Rackets

(RKO-Radio)

Melodrama

Here is a fast paced melodrama, intelligently presented. The theme of cleaning up the rackets and racketeers in a big town is excellent screen fare when ably told and that is precisely how this picture goes about telling it. Its exploitation value also is heightened by the national publicity accorded the current racket smashing campaign in New York City. To alleviate any tendency towards a dry expose of racketeering, which the film isn't, romance has been interwoven into the main theme of the story and is an integral part of the whole.

The chief character of the story is a former Federal Bureau of Investigation agent appointed a special prosecutor to a district attorney who is more of a politician than people's representative. Chester Morris plays the role knowingly. The part of his main opponent in the racket smashing campaign is taken by Bruce Cabot, as a successful lawyer and the higher-up, the master-mind behind the puny brained racketeers. Frances Mercer and Rita Johnson, sisters in the story, have the romantic leads.

"Jim Conway" (Chester Morris), after his appointment as a special prosecutor, maneuvers the district attorney into appointing him to investigate the rackets. He loses his first case in court due to lying witnesses marshaled by the gang which is terrorizing the city. Meanwhile he meets "Susan Lane" (Frances Mercer), a society girl. "Susan's" sister, "Letty" (Rita Johnson) becomes involved with "Steve Lawrence" (Bruce Cabot).

"Lawrence" has "Whitey Clark," a chief racketeer, killed, and elevates his slayer "Chin" to the leadership of the gang. When "Chin" demands a larger cut of the profits "Lawrence" tries to betray him to "Conway." "Chin" learns of the plan and seeks "Lawrence," to kill him. Instead, "Chin" is shot by "Letty." "Conway" arrests "Lawrence" for "Chin's" murder but "Lawrence" threatens a scandal which would convict "Letty." To save the others she commits suicide and "Lawrence" is sent to prison on evidence presented by "Conway."

Reviewed at the Rialto theatre, New York, on the hottest day of the summer up to that time. Every seat in the theatre was taken and a few standees stoically maintained their equilibrium in the rear of the house. Comment or expressions of pleasure or displeasure were rare but that effort was scarcely to be expected.—Paul C. Mooney, Jr.

Mis Dos Amores

(Cobian-Paramount)

Melodrama

First of a series of pictures starring Tito Guizar and being made all in Spanish for South American countries and other Mexican-Spanish markets, "Mis Dos Amores" (My Two Loves) is a combination of music and melodrama blended to make the most of situations in which a youth is condemned to die for a murder he did not commit. The frustration side is played heavily in the story, but Guizar as the youth, "Julio," is vindicated by the story of a six year old daughter of the slain woman.

Guizar is supported by Blanca de Castejon, Emilia Leovalli, Romualdo Tirado, Juan Tor-

Function of Advertising in Distribution

By Terry Ramsaye

Mutual Director of Publicity Discusses Policies and Methods—Discourages General Advertising of Brands

LET us consider some primary facts. There are two kinds of motion picture advertising.

A—Advertising to sell film to the exhibitor.

B—Advertising to sell seats to the public.

It is principally about the Class A, or distributor to exhibitor advertising, that we are concerned here. I am seeking to make clear to the exhibitor, and any others interested, not what he should do but rather what is being done to and for him in advertising.

Now let us sub-divide our Class A advertising, the advertising in behalf of the producer and distributor. Looking into it further we find:

1.—Advertising to present the merchandise, the picture.

2.—Advertising to make the picture appear a success—a sort of post-mortem jubilee intended to foster immortality.

3.—Advertising addressed apparently at the exhibitor or the public but in fact intended for the banker and investor, to keep up a front and maintain credit and borrowing power.

4.—Advertising to keep a star happy, or to promote a president or a general manager or other official in influence.

5.—Advertising just to be advertising, because everybody has the impression that a picture concern ought to do a lot of advertising.

Contrary to many hasty opinions, all of these classes of advertising enumerated, except the fifth and last, are usually amply justified commercially.

Terry Ramsaye.

The motion picture did not become a business until it began to advertise. It is a better business today because it is a vigorous, perhaps often violent advertiser.

Something like six years ago a big advertising agency sent me to a very high official of a then dominant factor in the motion picture industry to mildly suggest to him that advertising might help his business. He listened about half a cigarette and, then looking me coldly in the eye, remarked:

"Young man, advertising is fandangle and a luxury which we can afford but do not need. If we should advertise and should get more business we would be much distressed. Let us not waste any more of each other's time."

This big man was sincere. He is now exceedingly well unknown and his concern is a commercial ghost.

Competitors arose who did advertise—any anybody today in the picture business can write the rest of this paragraph for himself.

For the purpose of advertising to present the pictures to the exhibitor's attention—No. 1 in our schedule—there are four commonly used media; the trade paper, the direct broadside or circular, the local newspaper and the billboards.

The obvious absurdity of using costly billboards and newspaper space to reach the relatively few exhibitor readers is glossed over most frequently by an attempt to make the space appear to be devoted to the establishment of brand value in the public eye, among ultimate consumers. But the everlasting final fact is there, that the advertiser is using the space with the single aim of inducing the exhibitor to pay rental for film.

Upon the evidence now available no advertiser has yet been able to make motion picture brand value stand up in the attention of the public or exhibitor to a profitable degree. If anybody steps up to point a disputing finger at certain brand names I shall be forced to point back at the stock quotation and dividend records.

This is not a failure of advertising, but rather a fact of manufacture. Motion pictures can be branded but they can not be made to a brand standard, at least they have not yet been so made.

If picture brands had important value big stars and special productions could not dominate the market. The name of the star is the nearest thing to a brand in the picture business, but stars have a way of slipping out from under brand control.

Picture patrons do not call up the box office and ask if you have a Burr Oak brand feature. They want to know "Who have you got on to-night?"

Also it must be admitted that billboards and newspapers can have but small and indirect part in the selling of motion pictures to the exhibitor. I do not mean to decry either the billboards or the newspapers as media—they have a big basic value to the exhibitor, and beyond doubt the newspaper is the best existing medium for exhibitor advertising, the advertising which sells seats to the public.

With thus disposing of two of the media sometimes used—less frequently now than formerly—we have left two other avenues to the exhibitor's attention, the trade paper and literature mailed direct.

Direct literature is not just now as fashionable as it was two years ago. There is a prevailing notion that the motion picture exhibitor has gotten and still gets so much of this matter that he has adopted a practise of ignoring it all in self-defense. Experiment and investigation by the advertising experts of many concerns indicate that this notion is probably well founded. A piece of direct literature sent out in 1915 to 20,000 exhibitors drew the astonishing total of 3,000 replies or inquiries. A similar broadside, probably much better as advertising copy, prepared by the same man, mailed to 14,000 exhibitors in 1917 drew a total of twenty-five replies.

I am not sure the second one was wasted, since the proposition is said to have sold well, and the circular may have had a considerable introductory value, but most assuredly it was not the sensational success that the 1915 circular was. Probably the time is near at hand when the direct broadside can profitably go to work again for a while.

This leaves us with the trade paper to discuss. The trade paper, much debated and ofter berated, remains as the only medium which has been a consistent and continuous performer for the motion picture advertiser.

Probably every exhibitor whose business is worth considering reads one trade paper at least and dips into several on occasion.

It is certain that any proposition which is intelligently set forth in the advertising pages and editorial columns of the trade press becomes instantly known throughout the industry and to all exhibitors, in a degree very significantly related to its news value.

All real advertising is news in a sense. No other business has as much news in it as the picture business.

Every trade paper which presents the news of the business and gives service to any considerable number of exhibitors is a good medium—just as good as its exhibitor-reader circulation, which is probably very close to its paid circulation.

The exhibitor who reads a trade paper is interested in his business. His business is likely to be worth having. The advertiser may get some of that exhibitor's business if the advertising tells a plain effective merchandising story about a good product.

The problem is a much simpler one than a great many buyers of space ever suspected. Experience is slowly proving this and bringing an improved appearance in the advertising sections of the trade press.

Every once in a while some exhibitor takes his pen in hand to write to the advertising department of some picture concern to remark that a lot of money is being wasted in "colored inserts" in the trade press, or to offer a similar advertising criticism. The exhibitor feels that he is paying for the advertising. He is—assuming that the distributor-advertiser does business at a profit. However, commercial experience has proven that in any competitive line of merchandise whatever, the manufacturer-distributor who refuses to advertise seldom achieves a volume of business which permits a maximum of value in the product.

A good product calls for good advertising.

The distributor of pictures who is bashful in his advertising is likely to have something of which he is not extremely proud.

The distributor's advertising is to him as the lobby to the theater. If the show inside is not up to the screen test neither the lobby nor the advertising can long get the money. But that is no argument against using them if the goods can be delivered inside.

The picture concern which inspires good advertising made of good printing on good paper is more likely to offer a worthy screen production than the company which makes its announcements on pages which look like a shipping clerk's stencil.

Freshman Year

(Universal)

College Comedy

This is a lively tale of collegians and campus affairs, a nice first in a series of films in kind scheduled to come from Universal. It differs from most collegiate comedies in that the young folk in it are less incredible and their problems more realistic than par for the type. Not until it tapers off into one of those amateur musical comedies staged more effectively than most professional ventures does the picture fall into routine pattern. The Diamond Brothers, the Murtah Sisters and the Lucky Seven make this portion of the entertainment sparkle, and when Ernest Truex is thrust into a sort of encore finale it shines.

The young folk playing the principal roles do well by them. William Lundigan, Stanley Hughes and Frank Melton are a congenial and engaging student trio. Dixie Dunbar and Constance Moore are satisfactory coeds. Mr. Truex lends his seasoned talent advantageously.

The story is about three freshmen whose extreme freshness gets them into much trouble with faculty and student body of a small college. Although primarily comic in content, the story develops considerable emotional tension at mid-point. It ends happily for two of the three students, sadly for the third, a circumstance which contributes body to the proceedings.

Frank McDonald directed understandingly a well pointed screen play by Charles Grayson from a story by Thomas Ahearn and F. Maury Grossman. George R. Bilson, associate producer, distributed his resources judiciously. Two songs by Harry Barris and Joe McCarty and a third by Irving Actman and Frank Loessor possess lilt and swing.

Barnyard Romeo

(Universal)

Entertaining

"Love conquers all obstacles" is the theme of this cartoon which was produced by Walter Lanz. The "obstacle" in this case is a vampish Peacock who lures the barnyard Romeo, Clock Gobble, away from his true love, Dulcie Duck. A plea by the Peacock that she is "so hungry" sends the turkey on a hunt for worms, and in the meantime Dulcie takes steps to win back her lover. She dresses as a gay caballero and serenades Miss Peacock, who immediately is attracted and deserts Clock Gobble. Broken hearted Clock jumps in the river but is rescued by Dulcie. Running time, 7 minutes.

Pudgy the Watchman

(Paramount)

Pudgy as a Mice Catcher

When Betty Boop's cute little canine, Pudgy, fails his mistress in the mission of mice catcher, the little lady brings in a substitute, a hungry and mean tempered cat. But the feline, after corralling the rodents, celebrates by hitting the cider barrel, and his mice captives escape to give the drunken bully a hectic and upsetting time. Miss Betty sees the errors of her ways and reinstates the pup. Cartoon liking audiences should find something to like in this animation. —Running time, seven minutes.

The Magician's Daughter

(MGM)

Cute Trick

As the title says, the magician had a daughter. Now there is nothing strange in that state of family affairs, but when she falls in love with a snooping gentleman of the fourth estate, complications more formidable than usual beset the path of happy romance. The young man solves the romantic dilemma by neglecting to get coverage on the back stage expose of papa magician's bag of tricks. All this minor conflict on the love versus duty theme is made considerably more palatable by the refreshing acting and singing of the two love birds. Frank Albertson and Eleanor Lynn, and by some cleverly contrived trick camera work.—Running time, 18 minutes.

We Live in Two Worlds

Plea for International Peace

Under the scholarly and precisely spoken commentary of J. B. Priestley, eminent English penman of novel and play plots, a semi-mystical peace plea in favor of goodwill among nations is voiced in this important, interesting and different sort of documentary film. Explaining the meaning of existence on the double orbed plane, Mr. Priestley points out to the audience that the modern day man lives in the particular nationalistic sphere of his own country and on the wider world level of international connections. Comparing the confining limitations of an individual nation, which are made the more intense and definite in the light of clashing political ideologies, trade quotas and border restrictions, with the barrier-breaking work of international communications such as the telephone and the radio and the permundial methods of traveling via the train, ship and airplane, the speaker illustrates his line of reasoning by taking the very quaint and lovely case of the country of Switzerland. Within the boundaries of this small nation, the spectator witnesses the people pursuing their peculiar nationalistic ways of work, recreation and religious observance. But, with the magic of power, the country has spread out to encompass the whole world. It is in this section of the preachment that some exquisite camera work of the Swiss people and their terrain has been developed with poetically beautiful effect. True, there is the general atmosphere of the platform replete with charts and maps.—Running time, 11 minutes.

Follow the Arrow

(MGM)

Exciting

Mr. Howard Hill, whose uncanny skill with bow and arrow has been seen before in feature length treatment, exhibits his bag of tricks by spearing flying targets, downing clay pigeons in a contest of skill and quickness with a gun shooting adversary, halving ordinary playing cards and piercing thick targets. The piece de resistance comes when the archer goes "William Tell" and spikes an arrow at a good distance on the quaking head of a not too confident subject. There is excellent photography and a bevy of young ladies is decorative. Oh, yes, Pete Smith is on hand with his breezily toned remarks.—Running time, 10 minutes.

Paramount Pictorial, No. 1 (P8-1)

(Paramount)

Good

Consisting of three items that will appeal to the sport fan and the nature lover, this newest Pictorial number should prove to be material for any show. Topic number one on the bill of fare shows the catching of a prize piscatorial specimen and the subsequent work expended on its remains to preserve it as parlor trophy and an everlasting monument to the fisherman's skill. The second part has some beautiful scenic views of Zion and Bryce Canyons, made all the more arresting by glowing color. The concluding sections allows footage for expert demonstration of some acrobatic skill on ski and surf boards.—Running time, 10 minutes.

How To Raise a Baby

(MGM)

Or How to Make an Audience Hysterical

Mr. Robert Benchley, the very talented "how to do things" man, is in this instance concerned with some important problems of child upbringing. Lecturing on such timely topics of parent training as the bathing, feeding and character development of the young offspring, Papa Benchley illustrates the points of his discussion with a set of hilarious little ones to put into not very successful practice the pedagogical points preached. Mothers and fathers as well as their movie going broods, together with parents to be, should enjoy this "Benchleyian" lecture.—Running time, nine minutes.

Paris On Parade

(MGM)

First Rate

For those who wanted to attend the Paris exposition last year but who failed to get there, this FitzPatrick "Cook's tour" of the exhibition grounds should prove a satisfying substitute. Inspecting the festivities' exhibits and personnel with the arresting eye for camera angles peculiarly trademarked with the work of this series, the travel reporter shows the spectator individual exhibits of various countries as well as some peculiarly native dancing. The trip is made unusually interesting by color shots of the water displays and pyrotechnical splurges.—Running time, nine minutes.

Mines' Films Seen by 10,351,732 in Year

Films released by the Bureau of Mines, Department of the Interior, Washington, were shown on 102,637 occasions to an attendance of 10,351,732 persons, in the fiscal year ending June 30th, it was disclosed this week. In the same period 942 reels were added to the Bureau's film library, making a total of 4,095 reels the Bureau has available for distribution. Members of the mineral and allied industries appropriated approximately $75,000 to carry on the Bureau's work in the fiscal year.

The manufacture and utilization of safety glass is depicted in a new two-reel silent film entitled "Safety Glass," which is the latest addition to the library. The film was prepared in cooperation with an industrial concern.

To Make Personal Appearances

Each of the four "daughters" in the Warner Brothers production, "Four Daughters," will make a personal appearance in conjunction with the engagement of the feature. Priscilla Lane will make the New York trip; Gale Page will appear at the Los Angeles showing; Rosemary Lane will attend the Philadelphia screening, and Lola Lane will be present at the Des Moines opening.

Universal Signs Kelly

Burt Kelly, who recently was associated with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer as an aide to Nat Levine, this week signed a one-picture deal with options as an associated producer at Universal. His first assignment will be "West Side Miracle."

Joseph Von Sternberg has signed a long term directorial contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

IN COURTS

Infringement Actions Started Against Chicago Circuits

Philip S. Fisher, president of the Hollywood Amusement Company, has filed two infringement actions, with requests for temporary injunctions, against Publix-Great States Theatres and Indiana-Illinois theatres, in United States federal court, Chicago.

The first named suit was assigned to Judge Wilkerson's court and the second to Judge Holly's court.

The Fisher company charges it has patents on electrically operated projection slides and seeks to have the circuits stop using such slides in connection with various screen games.

Deposition Taking in Loew's Case Postponed

At the request of counsel for the defendants, the taking of additional depositions from Loew's officials preparatory to the trial of the Loew's stockholders suits attacking executives' contracts was postponed until this Friday. Originally, Emil K. Ellis, attorney for the plaintiffs, was scheduled to take the depositions of Nicholas M. Schenck, president; J. Robert Rubin, vice-president, and general counsel, and David Bernstein, vice-president and treasurer, last Friday.

In addition to the three officials all directors also are to be interrogated by Mr. Ellis.

Decision Reserved On Fox Cash Offer

Allen B. Endicott, Jr., federal referee, this week took under advisement a $500,000 cash offer to clear part of the Fox bankruptcy situation. The offer was made by Mrs. Eva Fox and Mrs. Mona Tauzig and Mrs. Belle Schwartz, daughters, conditional on withdrawal of a suit filed October 13, 1936, to recapture alleged William Fox assets from the All-Continent Corporation.

The recapture suit, now pending in the United States district court, Atlantic City, was filed by Hiram Steelman, trustee of the William Fox estate, who is petitioning the court to accept the settlement offer as the best available.

Examination Before Trial Sought

Jacob J. Shubert applied this week to the New York supreme court for an order directing the examination before trial of Charles D. Coburn, defendant in an action brought by Mr. Shubert in behalf of Douco Corporation of which he is a vice-president and director. Mr. Shubert is seeking to cover the proceeds of an alleged sale of the film rights of the play, "The Farmer's Wife."

Receivership Petition Filed

A voluntary petition in receivership was filed this week by the Loudys Amusement Corporation, operator of the Beacon Theatre, 2521 Broadway, New York. Liabilities of $53,130 and assets of $12,239 were listed.

Warner Bros. has closed with the Cabart and South Side circuits in Los Angeles for the 1938-39 product.

COLUMBIA PICTURE

IN THE CUTTING ROOM

Three Loves Has Nancy

(MGM)

Comedy-Romance

Laugh provocation is the primary purpose of this production. For its story premise it uses an old set-up, but the idea has been given a fresh treatment. For its premise it has two men in love with a girl who is in love with a third. One of the three deliberately sets out to make love; the second has it thrust on him; the third has run away from it.

Norman Krasna, who knows how to write screen stories—"The First Hundred Years," "As Good as Married," "Wife versus Secretary" and "Hands Across the Table" for example—as well as produce them ("Big City" and "First Hundred Years"), is the producer. Richard Thorpe, who made "Toy Wife" and more recently "The Crowd Roars," is the director.

The principals are Robert Montgomery, whose most recent pictures are "Yellow Jack," "Live, Love and Learn" and "Hundred Years"; Janet Gaynor, last in "A Star is Born" and soon to be seen in "The Young in Heart," and Franchot Tone, recently featured in "Three Comrades" and "Love is a Headache."

In the supporting cast will be found a group of players who often have demonstrated their abilities. Slated as active participants in the incidents that are born of the rivalry and actions of the leading trio are Reginald Owen, who was in "Everybody Sing" and "Paradise for Three"; Claire Dodd, in "Rich Man, Poor Girl" and "Fast Company"; Cora Witherspoon, featured in "Marie Antoinette" and "Professor, Beware"; Fay Holden, the mother in the "Judge Hardy" series, and Guy Kibbee and Charley Grapewin.

While the principals belong to the sophisticated set, the story is anything but that. As a matter of fact, some of the situations and episodes which the writer watched in the making bordered closely on slapstick. At any rate, the situations that have been evolved and the dialogue that goes along with them have a farcical character.

Release date: October 14, 1938.

Renegade Rangers

(RKO Radio)

Action, Adventure, Romance

"Renegade Ranger" will be George O'Brien's fourth picture for RKO-Radio on this season's program. While the theme will follow the familiar line of action and adventure, it also will introduce a novel twist. This time, O'Brien, a Texas Ranger, is sent in pursuit of a killer. It turns out that the killer is not a tough hombre, but a beautiful Mexican senorita. He arrests the girl, despite the perils of struggles with her, her desperate followers and a former Ranger pal now lined up with them, fracases with her powerful local enemies, but his real job, as love takes a hand, is to clear her name and round up the real criminal.

George O'Brien is very determined that he shall improve his standing among the ranks of Western stars this year and "Painted Desert," "Border G-Man" and "Gun Law" have served to give him a running head start toward realization of that ambition, and it is to be expected that "Renegade Rangers" will permit no slackening of the pace. O'Brien again is using a screen play prepared by Oliver Drake, who did "The Painted Desert" and "Gun Law" as well as several others for him, and he will work under the guidance of David Howard, who has directed him in sixteen pictures.

He has a new leading woman, Rita Hayworth, earlier seen in "Juvenile Court," "Wings of Doom" and "There's Always a Woman" for Columbia. Ray Whitley, the singing cowboy, will be with him once more, and so will young Tim Holt. Otherwise he is using a supporting cast made up of players long experienced in outdoor action adventure films. Included are Charles Stevens, William Royle, Neal Hart, Chris-Pin Martin and Jim Mason as well as the noted Spanish actor, Lucio Villegas.

Release date: Sept. 16, 1938.

Escape from Yesterday

(Paramount)

Melodrama

Many times motion pictures have made good use of the premise, actual and fictional, in which a son is pitted against his father. It will be repeated, but in a different way, in "Escape from Yesterday."

A Russian Cossack, transplanted to America, becomes the leader of a meat packing racket. He gets a shock when his wife, whom he has not seen for years, brings his son to him and immediately disappears. He's thrilled when he discovers the boy can fight and drink as hard as he. But the law catches up with him, sends him to Leavenworth, and the boy, hoping to help his father escape, joins the army and is stationed at that post. With the aid of a girl, through whom romance is developed, he negotiates the escape. When he is ordered to join the detail charged with recapturing the fleeing felon, the lessons of honor, decency, loyal Americanism, plus love that he learned in the army and through association with the girl, come into conflict with paternal ties. Though the climax is said to be stirring, emotional and thrill packed, the outcome is as one would expect.

Akim Tamiroff will play the principal role. Frances Farmer and Leif Erickson, both of whom have appeared in recent Paramount productions and recently were on the New York stage, are featured as the girl and Tamiroff's son. Supporting players include Lynne Overman, Vladamir Sokoloff, Wade Crosby, Dewey Robinson, William Newell, John Bliefer, Alex Woloshin and James Flavin.

Alfred E. Greene, maker of "Thoroughbreds Don't Cry," for MGM, "The League of Frightened Men," Columbia, and long with Warner Bros., is the director.

Release date: Nov. 4, 1938.

Stablemates

(MGM)

Human Interest

Although "Stablemates" will have its action on such race tracks as Santa Anita, Del Mar, Hollywood Park and Tanforan, and Seabiscuit, Specify and Indian Broom will be seen in the several races, the basic story actually concerns the bond of affection that existed between a boy and a man. In action it deals with the adventures of a jockey who accepted a horse in lieu of wages and a frowsy track follower and formerly famous veterinarian who attaches himself to the boy as they take their runner to various tracks trying to win purses which will enable them to live. Thematically, it concerns what the boy tries to do when, learning his pal is an escaped convict, he endeavors to prevent him from returning to the venue of his crime. Though the old swipe saves the boy and his horse, he goes back to jail as the boy prepares for high school and college. The terms of both will be completed simultaneously, when they can join forces again.

The picture will present Wallace Beery in a role very similar to that he did so remarkably well in "The Champ." With Mickey Rooney, who has come to the front with an amazing rush the past several months, the new picture provides exhibitors with a hard-to-beat star name combination. It may be noted that Beery, although effective in "The Old Soak" and "Bad Man of Brimstone" is, in this production making a determined drive to recapture the prestige that was his in the days of "The Champ," "Min and Bill" and "Pancho Villa."

While practically all the action centers about Rooney and Beery, Minor Watson, Margaret Hamilton and Arthur Hohl are important in the sustaining episodes. A Harry Rapf production, as were "Bad Man of Brimstone" and "Thoroughbreds Don't Cry," "Stablemates" is being directed by Sam Wood, who made "Lord Jeff," "A Day at the Races" and "Navy Blue and Gold."

Release date: Sept. 9, 1938.

Listen, Darling

(MGM)

Comedy

In their last pictures, Freddie Bartholomew in "Captains Courageous" and "Lord Jeff," and Judy Garland in "Everybody Sing" and "Love Finds Andy Hardy," both young players have been shown to favorable advantage. In this, "Listen, Darling," while they will have the benefit of a quality supporting cast, the pair will be given the opportunity actually to carry the show. The theme of the plot in which they are the principal workers is intriguing. He and she dislike the man, a cantankerous, irascible small town banker who would marry her mother. Legal minded Freddie becomes the "brains" behind a plot to find the right kind of man. Their machinations, which become hilariously complicated as the result of the antics of Freddie's pestiferous younger brother, not only give the mother one man to think of, but three, as she finds on her hands not only the banker, but an eligible whom the youngsters picked out, and a third who butts in on his own accord. In essence the picture looks as if it will fall into the "family" idea of films, which presently seems to be sweeping the country.

The mother will be played by Mary Astor, who was seen in "Hurricane" and "Woman Against Woman." Gene Lockhart, outstanding in "Algiers," will be seen as the penny-pinching banker suitor. Alan Hale, also featured in "Algiers" and "Adventures of Robin Hood," will be seen as the swain who butts in, while the man whom the youngsters picked out for

King of Alcatraz

(Paramount)

Melodrama

Title significance to the contrary, this will will not be a story of life on that rock in San Francisco Bay on which Uncle Sam imprisons his most dangerous public enemies. It has to do with a felon who escaped Alcatraz, but all the action takes place aboard a ship on the high seas. Thus the story is one of high adventure, desperate doings, heroism and conflicting romance, against background that has given the screen some of its most exciting yarns.

The escaped criminal and his gangsters, emulating the technique of Chinese pirates, take control of all the vessel's key spots. At gun point they take control of the bridge, engine room and, most important, the radio room. While holding the girl as hostage, they compel the romantic rivals, both radio operators, to broadcast fake messages. Both are wounded in a fight following their attack on a dozing guard and the regaining of control of the liner, one operator's life is saved when the girl, following radio instructions, performs an operation, and the other dies.

For this production, which, it is anticipated, will prove a punch packed romance melodrama, Paramount has selected a versatile troupe of players who have appeared together often in similar stories, among them Lloyd Nolan and Robert Preston, as rivals for Gail Patrick's affections, and J. Carroll Naish, as the gangster. Important roles have been assigned Virginia Dabney, Nora Cecil, Porter Hall, Harry Carey, Richard Denning, Dorothy Howe and Gustav von Seyffertitz.

Robert Florey, long experienced in handling melodrama pictures made by Warner Bros. and Paramount, is the director.

Release date: Oct. 21, 1938.

Youth Takes a Fling

(Universal)

Romance

Joe Pasternak, who has made all the Deanna Durbin pictures for Universal, seems to have that happy faculty of endowing his productions with definite qualities that pay off at the box office. His formula is a judicious admixture of hopes, dreams, laughter and tears. Those are the elements going into "Youth Takes a Fling."

A boy from the Kansas prairies wants to be a sailor. Every time he hears a steamboat whistle, a strange fascination grips him. But a shop girl loves him.

In interesting character portrayals the film will present a capable cast. The principals are Joel McCrea and Andrea Leeds, last seen, respectively, in "Three Blind Mice" and "Letter of Introduction." Both were in "Come and Get It."

Wings of the Navy

(Warner Bros.)

Flier's Adventures

Because of Howard Hughes, Corrigan, the English pig-aback and the German catapult planes, not to say anything at all about "Test Pilot" or "Sky Giant," there appears to be quite a current public interest in aviation. Now comes Warners' "Wings of the Navy."

Lloyd Bacon has directed several navy-aviation pictures, notably "Devil Dogs of the Air," and it is fitting that he should be the man behind this story of the navy in the air.

For name value the picture has George Brent, Olivia de Havilland, John Payne and Frank McHugh, supported by Henry O'Neill, Donald Briggs, John Ridgely, John Gallaudet, Max Hoffman, Regis Toomey, Alan Kenwood and Albert Morin.

Much of the action takes place at the Naval Aviation Base at Pensacola, Fla., and is concluded at North Island, San Diego, Cal. In those locales, where insight is given into navy flying life, the original screen play by Michael Fessier ("Valley of the Giants" and "Song of the City," MGM) will tell a story of brotherly love, devotion and sacrifice.

Release date: To be determined.

Pathe's Profit for Six Months Set at $51,678

A net profit of $51,678.74 for the six months ended June 30, 1938, was earned by Pathe Film Corporation and subsidiary companies, according to a profit and loss statement issued this week.

Income from film developing and printing sales was $478,178.97 and from film rentals, $5,795.12, making a total of $483,974.09. A loss from operations of $27,982.04 was recorded through the deduction of $511,956.13 for depreciation and amortization, producers' participation and amortization of advances, operating expense, and selling, general and administrative expenses.

Other income, including interest and discount earned, dividends received and miscellaneous totaled $80,821.42, leaving a profit, before interest expense, of $52,839.38. The interest expense was $1,160.64.

The statement also pointed out that Du Pont Film Manufacturing Corporation, of which Pathe owns 35 per cent of the common stock, had a net profit of $639,000 for the first six months of 1938 as compared with $725,000 in the corresponding period of 1937. The portion of the earnings accrued to Pathe amounted to $223,000 in 1938 as compared with $253,000 in 1937. Of these earnings, the statement continued, $153,000 were undistributed in 1938 and $183,000 in 1937. The undistributed amounts, it was explained, are not reflected in the income account.

ARE YOU DRIVING A CAR WITH TWO-WHEEL BRAKES?

LOW INTENSITY PROJECTION, like a car with two-wheel brakes, is not adapted to the modern tempo of the motion picture industry. It doesn't give your business the security which you desire. Theater goers want brighter screen illumination than it provides, a more comfortable level of general illumination, and more accurate reproduction of color. They are getting these advantages in the thousands of theaters now equipped with high intensity projection. These are the houses that are doing a capacity business.

SIMPLIFIED HIGH INTENSITY projection puts these same advantages within your reach. It will enable you to hold your present patronage and increase box office receipts. Yet the cost is surprisingly small.

Write for the free, illustrated booklet, "The Eternal Triangle in Picture Projection." It gives a clear demonstration of the Box Office value of improved projection. Then ask your dealer's salesman to show you how little it will cost.

FLIGHT INTO NOWHERE: Jack Holt, Jacqueline Wells—This one is just a very little better than "Making the Headlines." Better use it as a double bill. Running time, 65 minutes. Played July 20-21.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash. General patronage.

HOLIDAY: Katharine Hepburn, Cary Grant, Doris Nolan, Lew Ayres, Edward Everett Horton, Binnie Barnes, Jean Dixon—This is one grand picture but it is not from the box office gross that I should have had for a town of this size. Why I do not know, but they sure stayed away. Those who saw it sure enjoyed it and lost no time in saying so. Grant seemed a little out of place with the Great Hepburn. R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash. General patronage.

MAKING THE HEADLINES: Jack Holt, Beverly Roberts—This is the weakest Holt that I ever played. Even the kids were disappointed with this one. Running time, 66 minutes. Played July 15-16.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash. General patronage.

PENITENTIARY: Walter Connolly, Jean Parker, John Howard—Good entertainment. Not strong enough for extended runs. Its weakness is a far fetched plot of a warden's daughter falling for a convict, but will get by nicely. Running time, 79 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

ROLLING CARAVANS: Jack Luden, Eleanor Stewart—Very good, especially the dog. After raising eleven pups, I appreciated it.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

First National

GOLD IS WHERE YOU FIND IT: George Brent, Olivia de Havilland, Margaret Lindsay, Claude Rains—Everyone that saw it said they enjoyed the picture very much but they felt that it was just a propaganda picture ballyhooing the State of California. Nevertheless, it pleased. Running time, 95 minutes. Played July 17-19.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash. General patronage.

Grand National

GIRL SAID NO, THE: Robert Armstrong, Irene Hervey—The worst handicap this picture has is the advertising accessories. Had the oriental art been omitted from the photos, etc., I believe that the drawing power would have been increased. Even the advertisement mats carried too much art and reference to the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta angle. The production, itself, is a gem. The musical finale is exceptionally good. Played June 8-9.—Harry M. Palmer, Temple Court Theatre, Washington, Ind. General patronage.

SING, COWBOY, SING: Tex Ritter, Louise Stanley. Not a bad story but poor photography and recording spoilt this western in our spot. Too many dark scenes that are too dark. Not so good as some we have had from this producer. Running time, 55 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

WHIRLWIND HORSEMAN: Ken Maynard, Joan Barclay—Ken, I am really surprised that you would submit to such direction as this. The story idea was good but, oh, that cutting room. They really made "hash" out of this picture. You can make good westerns, Ken, and if you want to retain your following, why not bristle up and demand better production. Running time, 60 minutes. Played August 5.—Harry M. Palmer, Temple Court Theatre, Washington, Ind. General patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

BEG, BORROW OR STEAL: Frank Morgan, Florence Rice, John Beal, Janet Beecher—A clever comedy drama. Slim business on a midweek date.—Roy W. Adams, Mason Theatre, Mason, Mich. Small town patronage.

BIG HOUSE: Chester Morris, Wallace Beery—A good picture but didn't do the business we anticipated. —Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario.

CHASER, THE: Lewis Stone, Ann Morriss, Dennis O'Keefe—Only a fair picture deals with the accident insurance racket. I doubt if it can successfully stand up by itself. Play it with a double feature and you shouldn't be disappointed. Running time, 63 minutes. Played August 2.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

FIRST HUNDRED YEARS, THE: Robert Montgomery, Virginia Bruce, Warren William, Binnie Barnes—Picture okay. Business not so good. I see Shearer has refused Scarlett in "Gone with the Wind." Better take it, Norma, you need something after "Marie Antoinette."—Charles L. Fisk, Fisk Theatre, Butler, Mo. General patronage.

HOLD THAT KISS: Maureen O'Sullivan, Dennis O'Keefe, Mickey Rooney—Good entertainment. Not strong enough for extended runs but will entertain all the way. Running time, 79 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. General patronage.

JUDGE HARDY'S CHILDREN: Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone, Cecilia Parker—Swell! Small towns could not have better film fare. Think this is one grand family and hope we can continue to have them, about four a year, for some time to come. Running time, 77 minutes. Played July 29-30.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

JUDGE HARDY'S CHILDREN: Lewis Stone, Mickey Rooney, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden—Here's a pip. There is more genuine entertainment in this than a half dozen super specials I could name. Did a very good midweek gross. Played July 26.—B. Hollenbeck, Rose Theatre, Sumas, Wash. Small town patronage.

LOVE IS A HEADACHE: Franchot Tone, Gladys George, Mickey Rooney, Ted Healy—A nice programmer that did no business.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

MAN-PROOF: Myrna Loy, Franchot Tone, Rosalind Russell, Walter Pidgeon—A tiresome dish of dialogue and drinking that failed to pay out on a Sunday date.—Roy W. Adams, Mason Theatre, Mason, Mich. Small town patronage.

ROSALIE: Nelson Eddy, Eleanor Powell, Ray Bolger, Frank Morgan, Edna May Oliver—Very fine production that was liked by all. Nelson Eddy very good. Running time, 122 minutes. Played July 29-31.—O. W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Small town and rural patronage.

SHOPWORN ANGEL: Margaret Sullavan, James Stewart, Walter Pidgeon—Here's a picture for any spot and extended runs. Lots of audience appeal, plenty of action, heart throbs. An honest-to-God American picture. Running time, 87 minutes.—W. E. McPhee, Strand Theatre, Old Town, Maine. Small town patronage.

SWISS MISS: Laurel and Hardy, Della Lind, Walter Woolf King—Nonsense from start to finish. It scared plenty off, but the ones who came roared. Some very good trick photography and direction. Played August 4-5.—James I. Denham, Rex Theatre, Port Lavaca, Texas. General patronage.

TEST PILOT: Clark Gable, Myrna Loy, Spencer Tracy, Lionel Barrymore—Another honey! Believe this picture pleased more than any we have shown this year. Very fine cast and interesting story without too much airplane footage. Running time, 119 minutes. Played July 24-26.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

TEST PILOT: Clark Gable, Myrna Loy, Spencer Tracy, Lionel Barrymore—Three big stars to pull them in, and they came. Picture pleased. No raves. Running time, 119 minutes. Played August 5-6.—A. Goldson, Plaza Theatre, Chicago, Ill. General patronage.

THIRTEENTH CHAIR, THE: Madge Evans, Lewis Stone—Fine programmer. Quite a fine thriller.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

TOY WIFE, THE: Luise Rainer, Melvyn Douglas, Robert Young, Barbara O'Neil, H. B. Warner—I think a sob picture is good for any theatre occasionally. The ladies surely ate this up and we did a satisfactory business with it.—Running time, 100 minutes. E. C. Arehart, Strand Theatre, Milford, Iowa. Lake resort and general patronage.

WOMAN AGAINST WOMAN: Herbert Marshall, Virginia Bruce, Mary Astor, Janet Beecher, Marjorie Rambeau, Zeffie Tilbury, Juanita Quigley—Very good story but did not seem to please. Herbert Marshall is no matinee idol here; neither is Virginia Bruce very popular, although Metro seems to think she is. Mary Astor is good and Zeffie Tilbury, who takes the role of "Grandma," is a riot. If she had been on the screen about fifteen minutes more the picture would have been a wow. Juanita Quigley is good and as usual Marjorie Rambeau gets the laughs. Not good enough for a Sunday show. Running time, 61 minutes. Played July 29-31.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

YANK AT OXFORD, A: Robert Taylor, Maureen O'Sullivan, Lionel Barrymore, Vivien Leigh—Here is one of our biggest box office disappointments. Didn't make film rental.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

YELLOW JACK: Robert Montgomery, Virginia Bruce, Lewis Stone, Charles Coburn, Henry Hull—A picture of the Spanish American war period that should bring back fond memories to all citizens but did not cause much comment from our Sunday matinee crowd. The picture to us was rather draggy with Montgomery having all the dialogue. He carried his part exceptionally well but it did not stir one as the false drops in the background were too apparent and left a false note on the entire production. Hollywood is cutting costs at the expense of the production and naturally the box office is affected. Running time, 83 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Legonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

YELLOW JACK: Robert Montgomery, Virginia Bruce, Lewis Stone, Charles Coburn, Henry Hull—Good dramatic production but no box office appeal. Fell flat here. Played July 22.—B. Hollenbeck, Rose Theatre, Sumas, Wash. Small town patronage.

YELLOW JACK: Robert Montgomery, Virginia Bruce, Lewis Stone, Charles Coburn, Henry Hull—A surprise grosser. In fact, Metro's second best, beaten only by "Test Pilot."—E. C. Arehart, Strand Theatre, Milford, Iowa. Lake resort and general patronage.

Monogram

ATLANTIC FLIGHT: Dick Merrill, Paula Stone—This got by with the Saturday crowd.—Roy W. Adams, Mason Theatre, Mason, Mich. Small town patronage.

MARINES ARE HERE, THE: June Travis, Gordon Oliver—A pip of a picture for your double bill or it will stand alone if surrounded with good shorts. We single billed and secured excellent results and sent away pleased patrons. Running time, 60 minutes. Played July 27.—Harry M. Palmer, Temple Court Theatre, Washington, Ind. General patronage.

ROMANCE OF THE LIMBERLOST: Jean Parker, Eric Linden—A natural for the mid-western section. Well produced with that lovable star, Jean Parker. Any exhibitor can do well by his box office with this picture. What a relief to see a movie with the gangster and the rowdy kid angle eliminated. Played July 30.—Harry M. Palmer, Temple Court Theatre, Washington, Ind. General patronage.

SHADOWS OF THE ORIENT: Regis Toomey, Esther Ralston—A topnotch double feature production. One that will find itself in the number one spot in the estimation of the theatre patrons. Suspense well built up and the production adequate. Monogram appears to be showing their heels to some of the long established majors when it comes to entertainment values in their productions. Running time, 69 minutes. Played June 3-4.—Harry M. Palmer, Temple Court Theatre, Washington, Ind. General patronage.

Paramount

BAR 20 JUSTICE: William Boyd, Russell Hayden—Ho-hum. Another western. These Hopalongs are all about the same. They don't mean anything at the box office anymore. Played July 29.—B. Hollenbeck, Rose Theatre, Sumas, Wash. Small town patronage.

BIG BROADCAST OF 1938, THE: W. C. Fields, Martha Raye, Dorothy Lamour, Bob Hope, Ben Blue, Shirley Ross—From the reports I had read, I didn't expect anything but I was still disappointed. Just a lot of hokum and wasted film. Shows like this sure don't help the film industry. Running time, 90 minutes. Played August 5-7.—O. W. Chapek, Annex Theatre, Anamoose, N. D. Small town and rural patronage.

COLLEGE SWING: Martha Raye, George Burns, Gracie Allen, Bob Hope, Edward Everett Horton, Betty Grable, Jackie Coogan—Some very witty comedy in places but not what it should be. Played August 1-2.—James I. Denham, Port Lavaca, Texas. General patronage.

HER JUNGLE LOVE: Dorothy Lamour, Ray Milland, Lynne Overman, Dorothy Howe—A preposterous story but did an excellent business and the cash customers seemed to like it. Played July 19.—B. Hollenbeck, Rose Theatre, Sumas, Wash. Small town patronage.

HUNTED MEN: Lloyd Nolan, Lynne Overman, Mary Carlisle—Ran this on a double bill and find it one of the best pictures of its kind that Paramount has given us this season. Nolan is a star and should have better stories to work with. An excellent picture in all respects. Running time, 65 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

PROFESSOR BEWARE: Harold Lloyd, Phyllis Welch, Lionel Stander, Raymond Waldburn—Everyone that left my theatre was very much dissatisfied with the picture; everyone casting bad cracks about the picture. It might have been pleasing to a few but a very few. I am sorry that I cannot endorse this ptpicture under any circumstances. Running time, 95 minutes. Played July 31-August 1.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

RHYTHM ON THE RANGE: Bing Crosby, Frances Farmer, Martha Raye, Bob Burns—If you have a sick box office and cannot secure a picture of the new release that will make it, well, just book this one in again and you will get the surprise of show business. This is second run. Showed it two years ago. Opened it tonight, Sunday, in a pouring down rain and thunder storm and by 7:30 we turned them away and they told me how well they liked it. No one even mentioned it being a reissue and we made no mention of reissue in our advertisement. You have not seen or heard anything yet until you see again Bing sing "Empty Saddles."—W. H. Brenner, Cozy Theatre, Winchester, Ind. General patronage.

SIGN OF THE CROSS: Frerdic March, Claudette Colbert, Charles Laughton, Elissa Landi—A marvelous picture when first made and it still is. Claudette Colbert should try to see this and perform like that again, possibly her greatest. March does a fine piece of work and if you play it be sure to advertise the famous milk bath. We could not get them in to see it.—W. H. Brenner, Cozy Theatre, Winchester, Ind. General patronage.

TIP-OFF GIRLS: Lloyd Nolan, Mary Carlisle—Just another week programmer intendled for use as a filler on dual bills. No drawing power whatsoever. Running time, 62 minutes. Played July 22-23.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

TROPIC HOLIDAY: Dorothy Lamour, Ray Milland, Martha Raye, Bob Burns—My audience thought it was awful. I thought it was terrible. Don't play it unless you are looking for a "white elephant." After having to give such a bad report on one Paramount picture I feel it my duty to mention that Paramount is putting out what is supposed to be a swell picture, "Spawn of the North," with Henry Fonda, George Raft and Dorothy Lamour. Running time 75 minutes. Played August 3-4.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

Republic

DUKE COMES BACK, THE: Allan Lane, Heather Angel, Genevieve Tobin—A good boxing picture that is sure to click in any spot. Played July 1-2.—G. W. Barber, Jr., McCrory Theatre, McCrory, Ark. Small town patronage.

INVISIBLE ENEMY: Alan Marshal, Tala Birell, C. Henry Gordon—A fair action picture that failed to draw on the weekend.—G. W. Barber, Jr., McCrory Theatre, McCrory, Ark. Small town patronage.

OLD BARN DANCE, THE: Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, Helen Valkis—The best Autry picture to date. Business plenty good when we play an Autry. Will click anywhere on a Friday-Saturday date. Played July 22-23.—G. W. Barber, Jr., McCrory Theatre, McCrory, Ark. Small town patronage.

PRISON NURSE: Henry Wilcoxon, Marian Marsh—A good action picture that went over big here.—G. W. Barber, Jr., McCrory Theatre, McCrory, Ark. Small town patronage.

PUBLIC COWBOY, NO. 1: Gene Autry, Ann Rutherford—This is a very poor picture but there was no complaint from the Autry fans. Did a fair Saturday business.—Roy W. Adams, Mason Theatre, Mason, Mich. Small town patronage.

WRONG ROAD, THE: Richard Cromwell, Helen Mack—O. K. on a Saturday double bill.—Roy W. Adams, Mason Theatre, Mason, Mich. Small town patronage.

RKO Radio

BLOND CHEAT: Joan Fontaine, Derrick de Marney—Decidedly too English for American theatres. Bounced over the heads of a midweek audience. Running time. 60 minutes. Played August 3.—Harry M. Palmer, Temple Court Theatre, Washington, Ind. General patronage.

FIGHT FOR YOUR LADY: John Boles, Jack Oakie, Ida Lupino, Margot Grahame—Not much to brag about. Just another picture. Would not recommend this one. Running time, eight reels. Played July 28.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

FIT FOR A KING: Joe E. Brown, Helen Mack—Drew a fair Saturday crowd and pleased 100 per cent.—Roy W. Adams, Mason Theatre, Mason, Mich. Small town patronage.

HAWAII CALLS: Bobby Breen, Ned Sparks—This picture is a dream and, boy, did we go to town. Played this one the night following "Gaiety Girls," and did folks thank us. Ned Sparks sure did his bit to make this show a hit. Running time, 72 minutes. Played July 28-29.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash. General patronage.

STAGE DOOR: Katharine Hepburn, Ginger Rogers, Adolphe Menjou, Andrea Leeds—A very good picture which played to rather slim Sunday business.—Roy W. Adams, Mason Theatre, Mason, Mich. Small town patronage.

STAGE DOOR: Katharine Hepburn, Ginger Rogers, Adolphe Menjou, Andrea Leeds—Very good show for city customers but ran into bad weather so could not judge how my country customers would like same, but a very good performance by these stars. Running time, 90 minutes. Played July 7.—A. L. Dove. Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage .

Twentieth Century-Fox

BATTLE OF BROADWAY, THE: Victor McLaglen, Louise Hovick, Brian Donlevy, Raymond Walburn—All we do when we play such a picture is to help wear out the sprockets. Running time, 85 minutes.—E. C. Arehart, Strand Theatre, Milford, Iowa. Lake resort and general patronage.

FOUR MEN AND A PRAYER: Loretta Young, Richard Greene, George Sanders, David Niven, William Henry—Picture well liked by those who attended, but no drawing power. Business 'way off. Running time, 85 minutes. Played July 31-August 1.—A. Goldson, Plaza Theatre, Chicago, Ill. General patronage.

FOUR MEN AND A PRAYER: Loretta Young, Richard Greene, George Sanders, David Niven, William Henry—Picture well liked by those who attended but no drawing power. Business 'way off. Running time, 85 minutes. Played July 31-August 1.—A. Goldson, Plaza Theatre, Chicago, Ill. General patronage.

GATEWAY: Don Ameche, Arleen Whelan, Lyle Talbot, Gregory Ratoff, Binnie Barnes—A fairly good picture from the standpoint of entertainment. From the box office standpoint, I would look the second time. Running time, 75 minutes. Played August 5-6.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

IN OLD CHICAGO: Tyrone Power, Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Alice Brady—We ran this alone and had no complaints in regards to second feature. A box office natural. Running time, 111 minutes. Played July 24-25.—A. Goldson, Plaza Theatre, Chicago, Ill. General patronage.

IN OLD CHICAGO: Tyrone Power, Alice Faye, Don Ameche, Alice Brady—Grand show! Personally, though, would have liked it better if the 25 minutes of fire and commotion had been cut down to not more than 10. And what a lot of money this must have cost. Running time, 115 minutes. Played July 31-August 2.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

KENTUCKY MOONSHINE: Ritz Brothers, Tony Martin, Marjorie Weaver, Slim Summerville—A screwy plot but enjoyed by our audience. Running time, 85 minutes. Played August 7-8.—A. Goldson, Plaza Theatre, Chicago, Ill. General patronage.

ONE IN A MILLION: Sonja Henie, Adolphe Menjou—My patrons are still talking about this production, Play it in any spot. 'Nough said. Running time, nine reels. Played July 16.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

ONE WILD NIGHT: June Lang, Dick Baldwin, Lyle Talbot, J. Edward Bromberg—Saw several bad reports on this but made good family night for me. Plenty action. No tiresome foreign dialect, no songs and plenty long enough.—Charles L. Fisk, Fisk Theatre, Butler, Mo. General patronage.

THIN ICE: Sonja Henie, Tyrone Power—Good business on a hot Sunday.—Roy W. Adams, Mason Theatre, Mason, Mich. Small town patronage.

WALKING DOWN BROADWAY: Claire Trevor, Michael Whalen, Phyllis Brooks, Thomas Beck—Just a nice program picture which seemed to please very much. However, there were so many unsolved threads which left us in a quandary. Running time, 65 minutes. Played July 27-28.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

WEE WILLIE WINKIE: Shirley Temple, Victor McLaglen—Why mix this wonderful star up with all these soldiers. The kids come to see her as well as the grownups, and they don't like shooting and too much of the military stuff. Kids do not understand all this shouting of orders. Running time, 80 minutes. Played July 21.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

WINGS OF THE MORNING: Annabella, Henry Fonda—Went back and picked up this old timer which proved to be a very beautifully made and well acted feature. Running time, 87 minutes.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

United Artists

ADVENTURES OF TOM SAWYER, THE: Tommy Kelly, May Robson, Walter Brennan, Jackie Moran, Ann Gillis—A natural. Don't let anyone kid you differently. Business great.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

GAIETY GIRLS, THE: Jack Hulbert, Patricia Ellis, Arthur Riscoe, Googie Withers—This is one of those English pictures that does not mean a dime to the box office and the proof of this is that I played it on Dime Night and I grossed 50% less on this night than I did the week later. Why do they force us to take them? Running time, 73 minutes. Played July 27.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash. General patronage.

GOLDWYN FOLLIES, THE: "Charlie McCarthy," Edgar Bergen, Adolphe Menjou, Ritz Brothers, Andrea Leeds, Phil Baker, Zorina—Those who did, did. Those who didn't, didn't. In other words, there did not seem to be any middle ground for the likes and dislikes on the part of our patrons. We had some walkouts. Yet, on the other hand, we had quite a number of repeats, people who came back and brought their friends. Personally, I believe that the batting average in favor of those who did like it was considerably higher than the do-nots. It is a picture that will enhance the prestige of any theatre, no matter whether it is in the "sticks" or in the city. Running time, 109 minutes. Played July 5-7.—Harry M. Palmer, Temple Court Theatre, Washington, Ind. General patronage.

I MET MY LOVE AGAIN: Joan Bennett, Henry Fonda, Dame May Whitty, Alan Marshal, Louise Platt—Disappointed in this one. Had the cast but just seem to get across with our patrons. Think the Platt girl stole the show. Joan, you better go back to light roles. Running time, 80 minutes. Played August 3-4.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

I MET MY LOVE AGAIN: Joan Bennett, Henry Fonda, Dame May Whitty, Alan Marshal, Louise Platt—As usual, any picture with love in title will do a Brody. Better call your shots, Joan, or you'll get behind the eight ball.—Charles L. Fisk, Fisk Theatre, Butler, Mo. General patronage.

SCARFACE: Paul Muni, George Raft—This picture did us a little business. Not what we expected but we think it was due to the heat.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

WHEN THIEF MEETS THIEF: Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Valerie Hobson—An exceptionally well produced subject with young Doug doing the gymnastics such as his father did in the silent days. Met with an enthusiastic response from our patrons and was freely commented upon as being very entertaining. Played June 1-2.—Harry M. Palmer, Temple Court Theatre, Washington, Ind. General patronage.

Universal

BLACK ACES: Buck Jones—Fair Saturday business.—Roy W. Adams, Mason Theatre, Mason, Mich. Small town patronage.

RAGE OF PARIS, THE: Danielle Darrieux, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Helen Broderick, Mischa Auer, Louis Hayward—Very poor grosser but it was quite generally well liked for those that ventured out. I think on her next picture she will do better. Running time, 85 minutes.—E. C. Arehart, Strand Theatre, Milford, Iowa. Lake resort and general patronage.

SPY RING, THE: William Hall, Jane Wyman—O.K. for the action fans.—Roy W. Adams, Mason Theatre, Mason, Mich. Small town patronage.

YOU'RE A SWEETHEART: Alice Faye, George Murphy, Charles Winninger, Ken Murray—The Sunday crowd enjoyed this picture. Fair business.—Roy W. Adams, Mason Theatre, Mason, Mich. Small town patronage.

Warner Brothers

BLONDES AT WORK: Glenda Farrell, Barton MacLane—Warner is sure coming to the front with this series. The folks here eat them up and, believe it or not, this series is going over better than some of their more expensive program pictures. More power to you, Glenda and Barton, for keeping this series the way it is. Running time, 63 minutes. Played July 22-23.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash. General patronage.

JEZEBEL: Bette Davis, Henry Fonda, George Brent, Margaret Lindsay—A splendid show that gives you Bette Davis at her best. Played July 28-29.—James I. Denham, Rex Theatre, Port Lavaca, Texas. General patronage.

LITTLE MISS THOROUGHBRED: Ann Sheridan, John Litel, Frank McHugh, Janet Chapman—Here is a sleeper if there ever was one. This new little girl star should be one of the screen's finest child actresses. Good in all respects and will stand alone in anyone's spot. Running time, 60 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

LOVE, HONOR AND BEHAVE: Wayne Morris, Priscilla Lane, John Litel, Dick Foran—Those who woke up in time to see the last three reels got a big kick out of it. Nothing but an average program picture. Played August 3-4.—James I. Denham, Port Lavaca, Texas. General patronage.

SERGEANT MURPHY: Ronald Reagan, Mary Maguire—Just a good programmer, and if built up right with good shorts will stand alone. Running time, 57 minutes. Played July 13-14.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash. General patronage.

Miscellaneous

BIRTH OF A BABY, THE: Richard Gordon, Eleanor King—Fair business on a four day midweek run. The best people came to see it and all the comments were favorable.—Roy W. Adams, Mason Theatre, Mason, Mich. Small town patronage.

Short Features

Columbia

DOGGONE MIXUP, A: Broadway Comedies—Just gets by. Running time, 18 minutes.—Fischer and Bichler, Mattray Theatre, Strasburg, N. D. Small town patronage.

FIRE PLUG, THE: Scrappy Cartoons—Better keep your eyes open, Walt Disney, as this series will be crowding pretty hard if they improve the way they are. Running time, nine minutes.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash. General patronage.

FRIENDLY NEIGHBORS: World in Color Series—This one is perfect as it tells us about our own northern neighbor, Canada. The color is perfect and is not as boresome as some of the travel talks are. Running time, 11 minutes.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash. General patronage.

JUGGLING FOOL, THE: Bobby May—This reel is justly named because this fellow juggles everything that it is possible for him to get his hands on. Play it up as a special featurette and watch them be satisfied. Running time, 11 minutes.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash. General patronage.

LITTLE BUCKAROO, THE: Krazy Kat Cartoons—This one is a knockout, if the old folks are asking for this series as much as the kids. Running time, 11 minutes.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash. General patronage.

OLD RAID MULE, THE: Andy Clyde—Andy will be always the same—yesterday, today and tomorrow and folks seem to enjoy him very much. Running time, 20 minutes.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash. General patronage.

PLAYING THE PONIES: Broadway Comedies—Fair. Running time, 18 minutes.—Fischer and Bichler, Mattray Theatre, Strasburg, N. D. Small town patronage.

POOR ELMER: Color Rhapsodies—One of the poorest of this series. Play it on your weak night.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

SCREEN SNAPSHOTS SERIES: Harriet Parsons—Anything about Hollywood makes a good filler.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

SET 'EM UP: Special Sport Thrills—A very good bowling subject.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

SITTER DOWNERS, THE: Broadway Comedies—Stooges in tops.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury. Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

SITTER DOWNERS, THE: Broadway Comedies—Very good.—Fischer and Bichler, Mattray Theatre, Strasburg, N. D. Small toyn patronage.

SPORT STAMINA: Special Sport Thrills—Fair. Nothing to brag about. Plenty of others better and I imagine for the same price, too.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

THRILLING MOMENTS: Special Sport Thrills—Very good. Running time, 10 minutes.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash. General patronage.

Educational

DANCING BEAR, THE: Terry-Toons—Thought this a very poor cartoon. The quality of cartoons is improving so rapidly that any who do not move along in the bandwagon are left way behind.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs. Neb. Small town patronage.

JITTERBUGS: Buster West, Tom Patricola—Personally, I thought this a waste of time and film, but judging from the laughs it pleased the cash customers, proving what I have said a good many times: people want to be amused, not educated. Running time, 16 minutes.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

WANNA BE A MODEL? Two-Reel Comedies—Aside from the novelty of the drawings which were made before your eyes, this one was terrible.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

BILLY ROSE'S CASA MANANA REVUE: Musical Comedies—This is tops for a musical. Popular with the audience.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

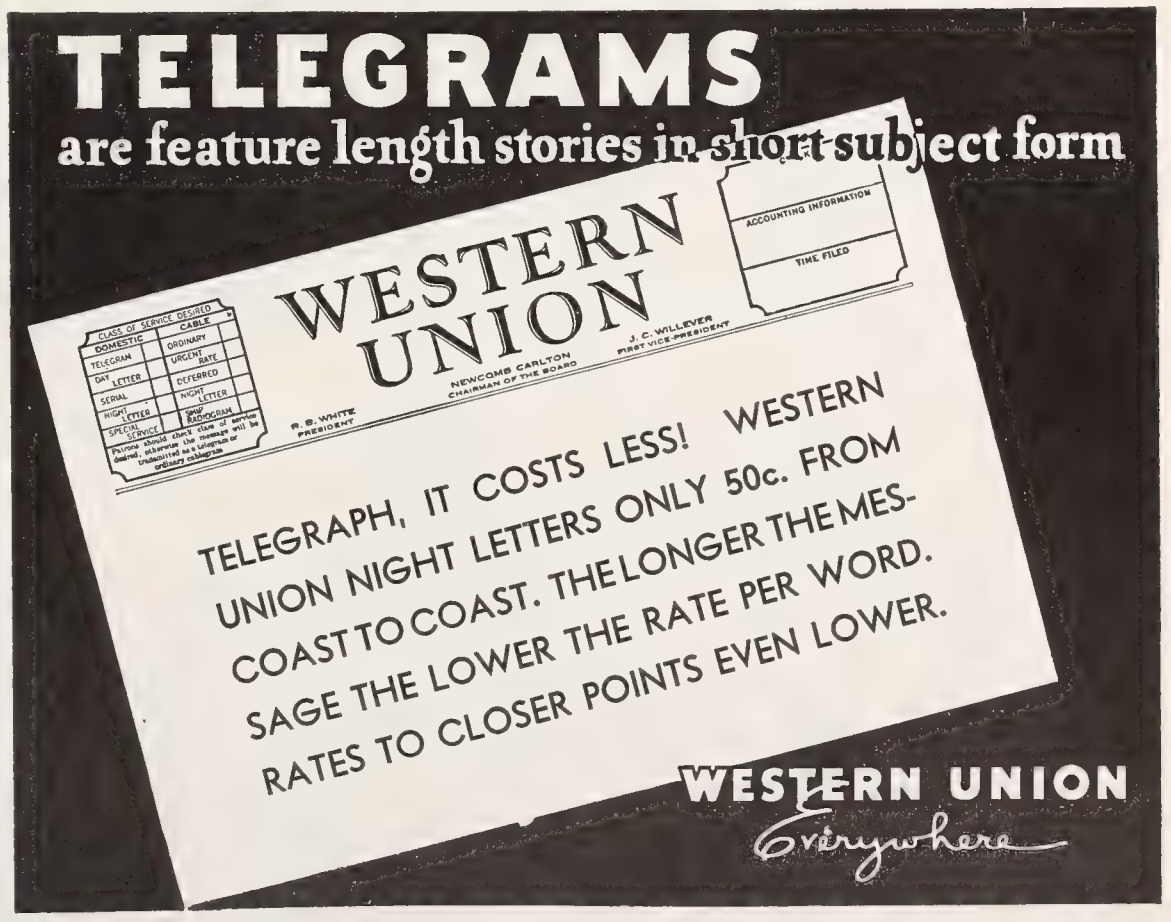
CZECHOSLOVAKIA ON PARADE: Fitzpatrick Travel Talks—Again FitzPatrick gives you the tops in travel talks. The colorings and the selection of subjects in this reel are remarkable. Very good. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

GLIMPSES OF AUSTRIA: FitzPatrick Travel Talks—Very fine. Lovely coloring.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

GRAND BOUNCE, THE: Pete Smith Specialties—The story of a bouncing check.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

HOW TO FIGURE INCOME TAX: Robert Benchley—This one was over the heads of our small town patronage. Usually, his "stuff" is well liked even though you must follow it closely. But, this just didn't go.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

JOAQUIN MURRIETA: Historical Mysteries—Excellent as are all of this series. These shorts hold the audience absolutely spell bound. Do not waste them. Running time, 10 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.



MIRACLE MONEY: Crime Doesn't Pay Series—When a short subject gets more comment than a feature, boys, you have got something. This is what happened when we played this along with "Hold That Kiss." Absolutely the tops of anyone's short subjects. Running time, 20 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

MIRACLE MONEY: Crime Doesn't Pay Series—Every one of these subjects is fine. Haven't had a poor one in three years and they always satisfy our people.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

MODELING FOR MONEY: Pete Smith Specialties—Up to Pete Smith's high standard for shorts. Everybody liked it.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

NEWS OF THE DAY: Good.—Pearce Parkhurst,

Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

PERFECT DAY, THE: Laurel and Hardy Reissues—Fair minus. This reissue not so good. Print was in fairly bad shape with lines and flickerings all through the film due to no fault of our machines. Running time, 20 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

RURAL SWEDEN: FitzPatrick Travel Talks—Up to the usual standard of these fine reels. The best on the market.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

Paramount

BIKE PARADE: Ted Husing—This one isn't so hot. It brings back memories to the older folks. It all depends on the type and class of people you play to whether or not you should book this one.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

FASCINATING ADVENTURE, A: Grantland Rice Sportlights—Another fine outdoor subject. These are among the most interesting shorts of the year.—Horn and Morgan, Inc., Star Theatre, Hay Springs, Neb. Small town patronage.

LOST KITTEN: Betty Boop Cartoons—Very good. These cartons should meet with success in 'most any theatre. Running time, seven minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

OUT OF THE INKWELL: Betty Boop Cartoons—The poorest Boop cartoon we have run. The idea is different but it did not click. Running time, seven minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

PARAMOUNT NEWS: O. K.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

POPEYE: Very good. Running time, seven minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

POPEYE THE SAILOR MEETS ALI BABA AND THE FORTY THIEVES: Popeye the Sailor Special—Not worth the price of a special. Running time, 17 minutes.—Fischer and Bichler, Mattray Theatre, Strasburg, N. D. Small town patronage.

RIVER, THE: Special Government Short—A grand picture put out by the government as propaganda. As is usual with these things, it is about twice too long. People tire of so much river running here and there and everywhere. Teaches a good lesson but it could have been done in one reel instead of three.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

STAR REPORTER, NO. 3: Headliners—As usual, Husing gives you something different and novel. This one is no exception and the acts are well selected and diversified. Husing's comments are always tops. Running time, nine minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

STAR REPORTER, NO. 3: Ted Husing—This is a fairly good short subject and while nothing to rave about it should prove to be fairly interesting to the average theatre patron.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

SWING SCHOOL: Betty Boop Cartoons—Quite enjoyable. Why not give the whole series a try, Mr. Exhibitor? Running time, seven minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

THANKS FOR THE MEMORY: Screen Song—The only good Screen Song we have had this season. It is only fair at that. Running time, seven minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

ZULA HULA: Betty Boop Cartoons—Fair.—Fischer and Bichler, Mattray Theatre, Strasburg, N. D. Small town patronage.

RKO Radio

EARS OF EXPERIENCE: Edgar Kennedy Comedies—Some of these are good and some are not. This one is fair. Running time, 20 minutes.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash. General patronage.

HARRIS IN THE SPRING: Phil Harris and His Orchestra—Very good entertainment. Running time, 20 minutes.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash. General patronage.

HAWAIIAN HOLIDAY: Walt Disney Cartoons—Good colored reel. Enjoyed by all. Running time, one reel.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

MARCH OF TIME, NO. 4: Not so good as the usual. Play these old but still enjoyed by the grown-ups. Poor print.—A. L. Dove, Bengough Theatre, Bengough, Saskatchewan, Canada. Rural and small town patronage.

MICKEY'S TRAILER: Walt Disney Cartoons—The usual antics of the famous trio, but Donald Duck and Pluto, the dog, steal the whole show. Running time, nine minutes.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash. General patronage.

RENTED RIOT, A: Leon Errol Comedies—A fair reel of entertainment. Running time, 20 minutes.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash. General patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

MOVIETONE NEWS: Keeping up its expectations.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

MOVIETONE NEWS: O.K.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

Vitaphone

DAFFY DUCK AND EGGHEAD: Merrie Melodies—Very good. Running time, 11 minutes.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash. General patronage.

FORGET-ME-KNOTS: Bernice Claire—One of the better Brevities. The act with the hoops is something different and it is a better reel than we have had for some time. Still room for improvement in this series. Running time, 20 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

GOT A MATCH: Joan Abbott—Very good. Running time, 20 minutes.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash. General patronage.

LITTLE ME: Wini Shaw—This young lady is a very promising comer, if Warner continue to build her up with their most excellent short subjects. Running time, 21 minutes.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash. General patronage.

NOW THAT SUMMER IS GONE: Merrie Melodies—We have had better Merrie Melodies than this one. But, it is not bad. Having gone into the third dimension in their cartoons, Merrie Melodies are getting better each issue. Running time, eight minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

ROMANCE OF LOUISIANA: Broadway Brevities—These historical shorts of Warners are very interesting, and folks never fail to tell us about them. Running time, 21 minutes.—R. W. Crickmore, Rainbow Theatre, Newport, Wash. General patronage.

Miscellaneous

WHY NOT LIVE? A very good, enjoyable and educational short subject. One that every living persons should see. It has a good moral and cautions one to be more careful. Running time, nine minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

At Music Hall August 25

Columbia's Frank Capra production, "You Can't Take It with You," will be pre-released at the Radio City Music Hall in New York on Thursday, with general release September 29th. There will be trade showings in 31 key situations. The advance showing will be combined with a national magazine advertising campaign early in September.

Republic Radio Tieup

Republic Midwest has arranged a tieup with WHB at Kansas City under which the radio station is using a half hour radio version of "The Lone Ranger" and announcing theatres playing the serial, while the theatres are running trailers calling attention to the WHB show.

Carole Lombard and William Powell, first co-starred in "My Man Godfrey," will be together again in the second Ernst Lubitsch production financed by Myron Selznick. The story will not be a comedy. The stars will be paid only in straight percentage of profits.

MANAGERS' ROUND TABLE

An international association of showmen meeting weekly in MOTION PICTURE HERALD for mutual aid and progress

A-MIKE VOGEL, Chairman and Editor GERTRUDE MERRIAM, Associate Editor

THAT DAY OF REST

What happens when a manager is forced to work seven days a week with no day off for himself. Well, sooner or later, the lad gets punch-drunk. He just goes through the motions of his job. Brain goes dead, temper runs short, and poisons of fatigue, physical and mental, do the rest. What might have started out as a promising investment in manpower turns into a dud and the bossman bemoans what he is pleased to term his bad luck in picking men. But it isn't bad luck, friends. Rather, it is plain economic short-sightedness, and a costly one, too.

A dispatch recently received here reads that a midwest circuit announces a day off for managers. The same circuit has just completed a series of personnel changes from the top down. It is evident things were not going so well, that the managers were not clicking as they should. So the new bossman removed one of the immediate reasons for the weakness in operation by granting his managers the same consideration given by other enlightened circuits. And things should go much better from now on.

It would surprise you to know that otherwise well-intentioned exhibition executives—even if the number is small—regard the day of rest as of no especial value. Oftimes, they work seven days a week themselves, and see no reason why their managers should not do likewise. They will tell you that too many men would probably hang around other theatres, day off or no, and advance other arguments that do not hold up. But the fact remains that the manager who has to work seven days a week cannot do the full job he is hired to do. And that job is mighty important today.

There is general agreement that the final success of the current industrywide drive depends largely upon the man in the field. There is unanimous opinion that grosses good pictures deserve can only be had with the exercise of more spirited and profitable showmanship by the theatreman.

All of which is true. A lot of it has to do with how much leeway the manager is allowed by his superiors. But as much, if not more, depends upon how well rested he is to pack this important responsibility.

Your successful manager can best be described as a top host, diplomat, personnel director, handshaker, exploiteer. He is expected to possess rare talent, ingenuity, imagination, good judgment, ability to think fast, and what not. That he measures up so well to this description, even with the best of treatment, is the industry's good fortune. But this good fortune cannot endure where good men are brought to exhaustion by unrelenting and uncalled for seven-day labors.

Isn't it fairly obvious by now that the physical condition of the manager has more than just a little to do with the financial well-being of the boxoffice?

IT SURE CAN DO

Sage comment by Manager Earle Holden, in the Capitol News, house organ of the L&J Atlanta unit of the same name. It bears repeating here and deserves further study by those who regard patrons in less than a personal light. Under the appropriate heading, "Sweet Sound," Holden says it thus:

"Remember that a man's name is to him the sweetest and most important sound in the English language. We have many patrons who visit this theatre every week. Here is an opportunity for doormen, cashiers and others who come directly in contact with patrons, to make a big hit. Try to learn the names of these patrons and when they visit this theatre, call them by name. It will please them very much. They will tell their friends about the fine treatment they secure here."

The ability to remember people by name, among other things, has brought high office to politicians, great wealth to head waiters, fat contracts to salesmen. As Earle indicates, it also brings folks to one theatre rather than another.

LAST CALL: From the date of this issue, there remain just seven days for entries in the July-August Contest to reach Headquarters in order to be eligible for the prizes of one-week all-expense trips to New York. Midnight of August 27th is the deadline date, which means that campaigns must be at your Round Table no later than that date. As soon as the winners are selected they will be informed to hold themselves in readiness to arrive in New York on Monday, September 26th.

Round Table In Pictures

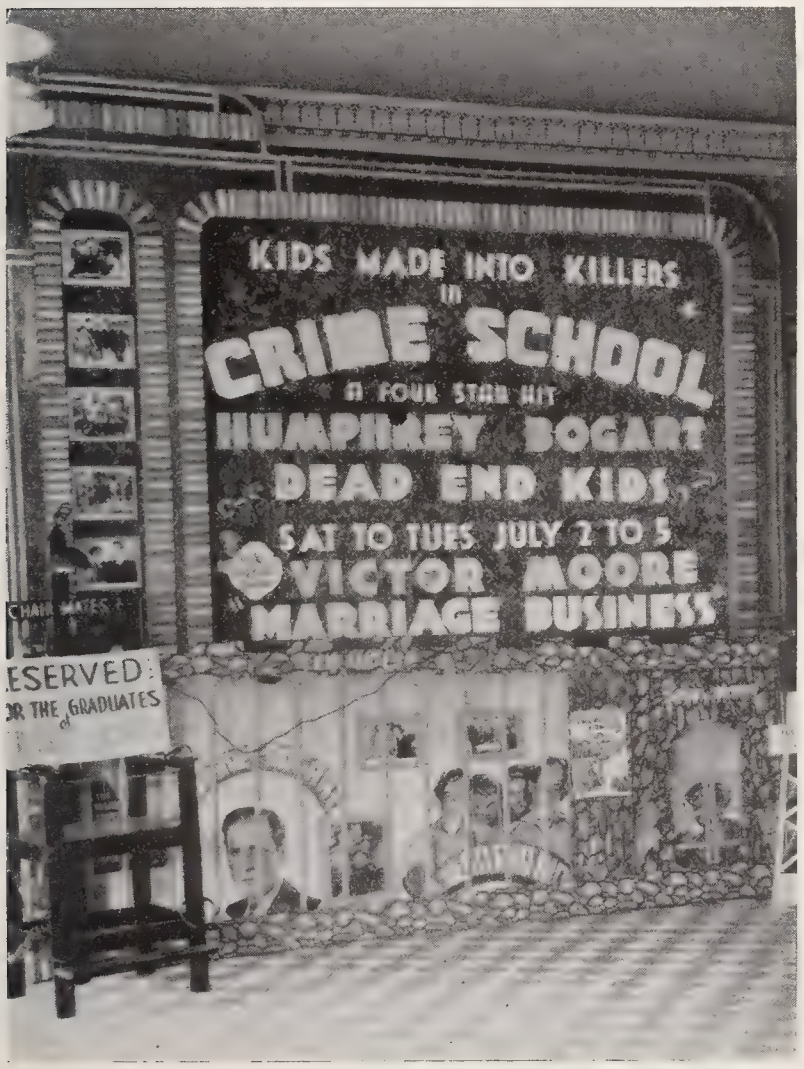
Criss-crossed by strings of gay pennants, decorated Journal Square, main traffic center of Jersey City, presented an appropriate background for the date on "Robin Hood" at Warners' Stanley, upper left, theatre front covered with 75-foot title banner. Campaign was waged by Manager Rudy Kuehn and assistant, Bob Deitch.

Rotary motor, propellers and other aeronautical paraphernalia were planted out front of the Capitol Theatre, Dallas, Texas, for Louie Charninsky's date on "Air Devils". Simulated palm trees, scene stills and 24 sheets completed the display. Boxoffice was converted into thatched hut, in front of which was grass mat.



Candid cameraman went about the streets of Santa Barbara snapping groups of threes to exploit Howard Ralston's opening of "Three Comrades" at the Warner Granada Theatre there. Snaps were later posted in the lobby of the theatre, and to folks identifying themselves, guest tickets were awarded.

Original film costumes were placed on display in leading department store window of San Antonio for the world premiere of "The Texans" at the Majestic Theatre. Picture was accorded outstanding premiere, with state, government and Hollywood celebrities present.

Electric chair with buzzer and flicker light connected to high-voltage switch panel which gave effect of current coming from switch was used by George Stoves on "Crime School" at the Maspeth, Maspeth, L. I. Prison bar effect was also planted.

Miniature town with a silhouette effect against a fiery colored background was constructed by J. D. Hillhouse for "Old Chicago" at the Mirror, Dallas. Six spots with red gelatine focus gave the front a typical 1870 Chicago fire setting.

Gala premiere was given the opening of "Algiers" at the Four Star Theatre, Los Angeles, Calif. Immense banners carrying title letters were atop marquee, in addition to colored smaller pennants. Entire front was covered with varicolored awning, with star heads at either side.

SHOWMEN'S LOBBY LAFFS

Idea submitted by Ben Reeves, manager, Lincoln, Stanford, Ky., based on conversation overheard in lobby.

FIRST DAME: "I wonder if we ought to see it. I never could understand those polo games."

Wedding Gowns On Regale Stage

With summer bringing its attendant increase and interest in marriages, L. E. Jorgensen, Regale Theatre, Salem, S. D. decided the young women in his town would like to see the various wedding gowns modeled on his stage. And so, this theatreman put on a revue, all gowns having been used in Salem and surrounding territory.

Localites through screen and newspapers were invited to model in their wedding finery and as each girl crossed stage, the history of the dress, name of girl wearing it and other pertinent remarks were made by local girl who arranged the musical numbers. Cash prizes were awarded winners decided by audience appeal, and Jorgensen reports a couple of the gowns modeled were supposed to have been over 90 years old.

"BEAT THE HEAT"

Radio Yodeling Contest Planted on "Swiss Miss"

Dave Murphy and his assistant Dale Woodrull of the Rialto Theatre, Allentown, Penna., arranged a yodelling contest for "Swiss Miss" through tieup effected with local radio station. Thrice daily plugs on the contest and picture were secured for ten days in advance. Final auditions were given, winner chosen by votes from listening audience. Cash prize was donated by cooperating jeweler, runnersup receiving tickets.

Girl in Swiss costume distributed heralds, teaser ads were run in papers, trick throwaways, folded several times so that just the word "nuts" was revealed were also given out and several window tieups were made with leading stores.

"BEAT THE HEAT"

Prescription Gag

Marshall Rooks for his date on "Doctor Rhythm" tied up local druggist who imprinted pads of prescription blanks with picture copy which were distributed by store and theatre. Copy at bottom offered holders gratis soft drinks.

Cooking Class Held On Stage by Marquis

Comprehensive was the cooking school campaign recently put over by Manager Joseph Marquis, Egyptian Theatre, Brighton, Mass. Various merchants were promoted for daily and grand prizes of cash and merchandise in exchange for which Joe advertised the cooperating merchants on his trailer and in lobby in addition to displaying the prizes.

Three weekly cooking sessions were held on the stage and announced ahead through newspapers, trailer, heralds, programs, etc. Recipes which were tried out on stage were distributed to patrons and cooperating newspaper ran photos together with stories and list of winners.

Denham Promotes Gifts For "Buccaneer" Chest

Special lobby display for "The Buccaneer" was constructed by Jim Denham, Rex Theatre, Port Lavaca, Texas, consisting of large chest, modeled in approved manner, alongside which stood full size cutout of Fredric March in pirate gob and smaller standees giving cast, playdates, etc.

Cash and gift contributions were solicited from 25 merchants. Cash donations paid advertising costs and chest was filled with the gifts bearing name of donor. Lucky number heralds were distributed and to patrons holding numbers corresponding with ones marked on packages in chest, gifts were presented.

"BEAT THE HEAT"

Gas Station Tieup

H. Ferguson, manager of the Liberty Theatre, Malden, Mo., assisted by Irv Waterstreet, MGM exploiteer, made a tieup with local gas stations. Each day the stations selected three city auto license numbers which were posted on boards. The lucky ones were entitled to five gallons of gas free on purchase of an equal number.

'Marie Antoinette' Contest Features Ten Paris Trips

Strong newspaper campaign, wide billboard coverage and artistic lobby decorations, all in keeping with the background of the picture were featured in the immediate advance for the opening, on Tuesday night, for the reserved seat engagement of "Marie Antionette" at the New York Astor. In addition, book stores have put in special window displays and tie-ups with the picture, and novelty jewelry and costume shops are featuring similar tie-ups arranged by William R. Ferguson. Special advertising and selling accessories, not included in the usual material available for exploitation have been prepared.

The local campaign was inaugurated by the now famous "Marie Antoinette Museum." Under the sponsorship of Howard Dietz, the interior of the Astor Theatre was redecorated a month before the opening of the film to display valuable properties used in the picture. More than a quarter of a million persons were reported to have attended this free museum exhibit. It is estimated that sixty per cent of them were from out of town.

Exhibitors Offered Trips

One of the biggest motion picture contests ever launched is a highlight of the national campaign. Ten round trips to Paris on the "Normandie" and "Ile de France" have been announced by M-G-M in cooperation with the French government. The prizes will be awarded to writers of the best essay on the subject: "Why I Should Like to Visit the Country of Marie Antoinette." Four of the trips will go to American theatre patrons; two of them to the exhibitors who put over the best local essay contest campaigns; two additional trips to the winners of M-G-M's special screen test unit campaign; one trip to the Canadian movie patron; and one to the Canadian exhibitor judged to have made the best record in the essay contest. Planned also for the national campaign is extensive billing, special advertising and numerous tieups.

Various Institution Slants Used by McCuan

Various are the institutional slants used by L. W. McCuan, Lido Theatre, Providence, Ky., to sell his theatre. Among those recently inaugurated by this theatreman is a government post card which is mailed to newcomers. With the caption, "Let's Get Acquainted," copy follows in which Mac invites the immediate family to present the card at the boxoffice, where it will be accepted in lieu of admission ticket.

Another stunt used was neatly printed invitation card which was mailed to each member of the graduating class, congratulating them on their promotion and extending the hospitality of the Lido. To sell "Holiday," Mac carried copy in his ads reading "Santa says only 151 more shopping days until Christmas. If you had 365 days, you couldn't shop around for a grander 'Holiday.'"

Carrier Directs Publicity Drive for Albany Jobs

by DICK CONNERS
in Albany

With virtually every medium of exploitation linked to it, Albany's "Sales Mean Jobs" campaign has eclipsed the brilliance of any promotional program ever conducted in New York State. As it progresses, the drive is accomplishing in no minor degree its fundamental purpose of obliterating the pessimistic attitude of consumers and substituting an optimistic, cheerful outlook while at the same time encouraging into circulation the dollars that have been frozen because of the recession complex.

From a nucleus of 18 business, industrial, professional and civic leaders, the campaign's steering committee has increased to more than 50 persons, both men and women, all of whom are responsible and prominent citizens. First action of the committee after its organization about five weeks ago was to appoint "Jimmy" Carrier of the Fabian Theatres as director of publicity.

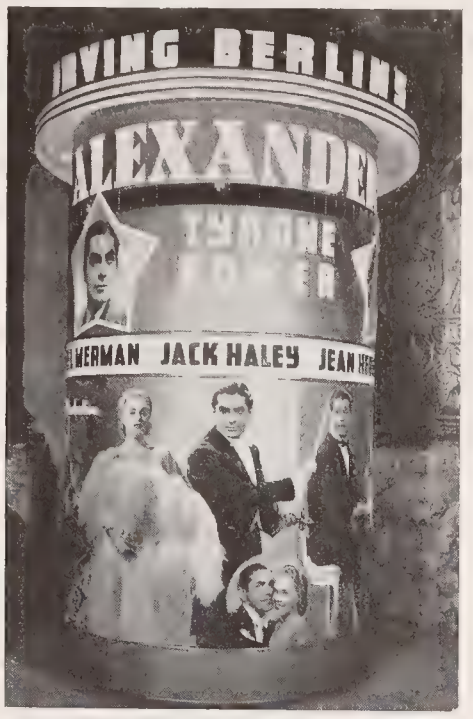
Under Carrier's creative yet solid, practical thought and direction, the campaign has spread out and willingly into its folds came practically every type of business and industry—from the one-arm lunch and the corner candy store to the heavy industry which is located in the Albany district.

Never before has a local promotional campaign been fortunate enough to obtain the informational and advertising outlets which are tied up. Newspapers, theatres, the radio, transportation groups, mercantile organizations, civic and professional groups and industry are cooperating to an unlimited degree in pushing across to consumers that "Sales Mean Jobs." And incidentally, the cost of the entire campaign to date is less than $500 to the promoters.

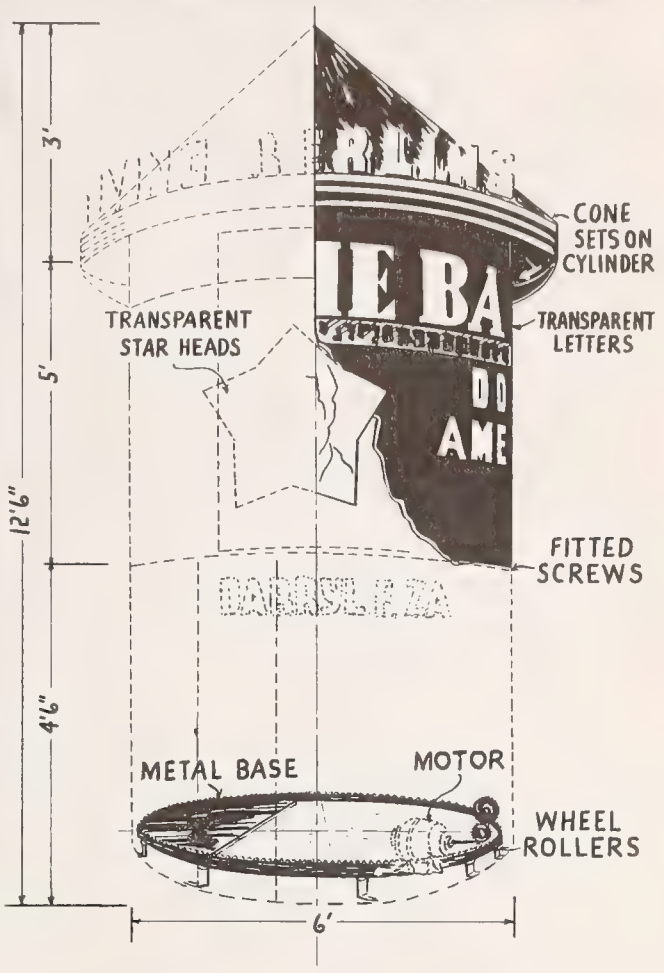
All Business Tied In

Through the following goes the message: Every theatre in the city is running trailers centering on "Sales Mean Jobs," "Men and Women Go Back to Work When Idle Dollars are Put to Work," etc. These trailers are screened at each show. Both the morning and evening newspapers are devoting daily columns on page one to the drive. The two stations in the city both give time, free, to speakers selected by the steering committee, each night.

All street cars and buses have "Sales Mean Jobs" placards in their car advertising strips, all taxi companies have provided their autos with bumper strips. Stores in the city are providing window displays, slugs in newspaper advertising, part of any radio program they may sponsor, and through the education of their sales forces in the campaign.



The oil industry in Albany, where several companies have district or state headquarters, has supplied its trucks and autos with banners and placards. Controlled gas and oil outlets are given placards for windows. Other industries, in addition to educating their employes in the fundamentals and aspirations of the campaign, are distributing placards and buttons. Twenty-four sheet space has been given free by billboard companies.



That, briefly, and in general, is the set-up which has resulted in making the area "Sales Mean Jobs" conscious. Some idea of the scope covered by the committee is shown by its personnel which includes the mayor of the city, bankers, newspaper editors and advertising managers, professional men and women, prominent club women and homemakers, business men, leaders of industry, theatrical men, radio men, realtors.

Carrier has put on a widespread campaign in all directions to the extent that inquiries for further details have been reported from theatremen in other situations.

Reeths Hosts Expert Archers for "Robin Hood"

Archers' Club of Sheboygan, Wis., were given passes to see "Robin Hood" for those who had the best scores on the day of their first meeting, this for part of Fred Reeths' campaign at the Sheboygan Theatre there. Scout master sent roto-heralds and bulletins to all scout masters and troop leaders in the city and county advising them to see the picture and likewise tell their parents of it.

Entire staff wore "Robin Hood" hats ten days ahead and during date, red feathers were distributed to all children attending Saturday morning show and special parade of American Legion Boy Scout Drum and Bugle Corps marched throughout city opening day.

"Rosalie" Given Gala Opening in Sweden

Leading Stockholm orchestra was promoted by MGM exploitation manager Walter Fuchs to play hit tunes from "Rosalie" ahead of that date's opening at the Riviera-Rival there. Florists Association was also contacted for the distribution of tagged roses to every woman attending opening matinee. Miniature photo of Nelson Eddy were alsc given with each bloom.

Largest department store devoted 12 of its windows to displays which included scene stills and giant cutouts of the stars. Various music stores were also brought into the campaign, devoting their windows to attractive displays and through tieup arranged with four leading restaurants a "Rosalie" cocktail was concocted.

Mad List Prepared By Conner for "Music"

Marlowe Conner, Rhodes Theatre, Chicago, for "Mad About Music" distributed teaser cards with the following copy: "Mad list or what to get mad about; check yours off for today—I'm mad about: business, the weather, my golf game, my sweetheart, my wife, my husband, and Music, because Deanna Durbin is the star and now I'm not mad any more. See," etc., etc.

On "Penrod's Twin Brother," Conner ran newspaper stories inviting all twins to be his guests during the run. In addition, a mother and daughter and father and son night was held.

SECOND QUARTER TOP EXPLOITATION

Campaigns submitted for the Second of the Quigley Awards awarded First and Honorable Mentions included many single exploitation ideas that proved highly effective. Selected from among these entries are set down briefly the highlights of the slants that proved profitable to the winners.

In Bridgeport, Conn., Matt Saunders, at Loew's Poli, was instrumental in forming a local gas model airplane association of 15 local boys who build model planes. Planes were displayed in lobby and feature writer took pictures of layout and boys being interviewed. Other air stuff included group attendance of local licensed pilots at opening performance. Aviators lined up in front of theatre wearing flying helmets tying in with date. Miniature stage display in lobby was decorated with wings, helmets, flying equipment borrowed from local Sikorsky plane factory. Action stills and star heads were spotted for added interest.

Crowd-Stopping Street Stunts Feature Pollock's Campaigns

On day before opening of "Test Pilot" through the cooperation of the Rochester Pilots' Association, twenty-four planes were rounded up and flew over the theatre and the city, remaining in the air for one whole hour. A squadron of twenty-two planes flew high in arrow formation; one plane flew just below them with plane banner, and below that, an autogyro, which Pollock reports as a top traffic stopper.

Hooking up with Friday the 13th, which was opening day for "There's Always a Woman," Les planted three ladders in front of downtown store windows, each carrying theatre sign about half way up. Merchants were willingly cooperative, as stunt made people stop and also to examine window displays.

Newspaper Contests Headlined In Paris "Snow White" Campaign

Tied with Le Journal, important Paris daily, for the campaign on "Snow White" at the Cinema Marignan, was a contest involving four questions, each broken down into a number of queries. First, the French actors who could best play the parts of the dwarfs. Second, listing the dwarfs in order of their characteristics that most impressed contestant. Third, number of admission at the theatre, first week, and fourth, number of entries in the contest.

SIX WEEKS REMAIN IN THIRD QUARTER

From this issue, there are six weeks to go before the ending of the Third Quarter of the Quigley Awards, which started on July 1st and ends September 30th. Campaigns on pictures, institutional drives, clubs, etc., put on during that period are eligible for entry. It is not necessary that entries include every campaign.

Amateur Photo Contest Exhibit Sponsored by Newkirk, Paper

To tie in with the wide interest in amateur photography, Manager J. G. Newkirk, Loew's Granada, Cleveland, cooperated with the Lakewood Post, community weekly, on an amateur photo contest wherein the entries would be shown in lobby and prizes awarded for the best black-and-white shots in two divisions—indoor and outdoors. Paper ran page one stories for four weeks and Newkirk built further interest with a trailer for the same period.

Pictures were displayed at theatre for two weeks with results in attendance and interest so gratifying that plans are now in work to make it an annual affair.

Telephone Stunt for "Judge Hardy" Stirs Interest in Quick Booking

With his regular show all set and the weekly mailing list covered, Bill Exton found it necessary to switch his bookings and to date in "Judge Hardy's Children," instead. To notify as many people as possible of the change, Exton put two girls on the phone from the lobby calling every number in town and followed that with a neat Boy Scout tiein. Scouts were guests at preview where they were asked to tell their friends about it and as an extra bonus, the first 10 friends who phone to the theatre about the new show would receive free tickets. Exton reports over 200 calls as a result.

Hidden Treasure Tiein Planted By Sears on "Sawyer" Date

At the cost of $25 a day for four days in the form of five dollar bills, Manager Bill Sears, aided by Ralph Stitt, worked with local daily to sponsor a hidden treasure hunt for the benefit of "Sawyer" at the Orpheum, Minneapolis. There was no digging attached to it. Orders for the bills were secreted around town and finders required to take the orders to theatre for the money.

Each day the paper printed a map, showing the area in which the "treasure" would be planted, downtown and in the lake district. Publicity included daily scene cut and full plugging in three-column box.

Joe E. Brown Acts as M. C. For Penn's Pet and Doll Parade

The success of his first Pet and Doll Parade, put on last year by Ed Penn and his assistant, Bill Sorenson, Fox-Arlington, Santa Barbara, Cal., encouraged the theatreman to repeat the party this year. Put on with the cooperation of the local News-Press, the theatreman was able to obtain the services of Joe E. Brown to act as master of ceremonies. The star rode at the head of the parade, judged the entries, awarded prizes, autographed pictures, and later, congratulated the winners in a broadcast over station KTMS.

Thirty-seven prizes were given for the best, most lovable, funniest dolls and pets. Ice cream for all entries was promoted. Paper contributed nearly 500 inches of free space in publicity and display advertising.

Texans Tie "Jungle Love" To Annual Food Exposition

The annual five-day food exposition held in the Houston, Texas, municipal coliseum proved an excellent spot to plug "Jungle Love" playing at the Majestic, with Manager Raymond Jones and publicist, Bill Bell, promoting the exhibit of Chase & Sanborn, for a lot of effective and costless plugging. Since the coffee manufacturers sponser the radio program on which Dorothy Lamour appears, a drawing was put on at the booth for guest tickets and announced over a series of loud speakers. Giant banner across the front of the booth plugged the picture and the radio program. Theatre heralds were also distributed.

On "Robin Hood," Bell tied in the local distributor of Robin Hood shoes for a showing of 24-sheets plugging the pictures, for prizes and favors at a special Saturday morning kid show, for large sized co-op ads and window displays.

Miller, Pearlstein Promote Hiking Club for "Robin Hood"

The Cleveland Hiking Club did a bit of cooperating with Manager Ed Miller and publicist Manny Pearlstein for the "Robin Hood" at the Hippodrome by designating two walks taken on Sunday before opening by the name of the picture. Notice of this was forwarded to all members and friends and notices placed on bulletin boards at headquarters. Heralds were also distributed at annual Boy Scout circus. Selected as the attraction for Festival Week put on by the local Cinema Club, the picture was aided by a display in prominent downtown window of many props from the picture sent on from Hollywood.

Special 20-chapter serialization of "Old Chicago" was started in the Press, 17 days ahead of opening. Paper plugged the feature in house ads, distributed four-page heralds carrying first chapter. Each installment was accompanied by scene still and box with theatre plug.

EPORTED BY WINNERS OF "MENTIONS"

Three-Story Cutout Letters Sell "Pilot" for Caldwell

A firm believer in signs that sock, Wally Caldwell turned out a number of effective displays for "Test Pilot" at Loew's Valentine, Toledo, Ohio. Mounted on side of the three-story upright were a series of cutout letters, three feet high with wavy edges spelling out "thrills" and spaced out to the full depth of the sign. Star names in 30-inch lamped cutout letters and operated on flasher were mounted on marquee, later replaced with 30-foot compo cutout silver-coated plane, appropriately lettered and illuminated at night with giant spotlights.

For "Three Comrades" Wally tied one of the papers to a drawing contest wherein sketch of Bob Taylor was run and readers invited to "muss up" the star's classic profile. On a one-day shot over 200 answers were reported.

Harvey Ties Spanish War Vets To Advance on "Yellow Jack"

Selling the local veterans of the Spanish War on the idea of seeking recognition for their part in history, Manager Paul J. Harvey tied in the organization for this "Yellow Jack" date at the Strand, York, Pa. The post voted a membership to Lewis Stone and wired the invitation to Hollywood, the star accepting in a return wire. Local dailies, usually pretty tough, ran stories on both wires and also the proclamation by the post.

Two of the vets had served under Major Reed in the fever unit and were induced to broadcast their experiences. Theatre received a good plug on this and also a break with lobby decorations of flags and decorations loaned by the veterans. Opening day was designated in honor of the vets, who paraded to the theatre in uniform as guests of Harvey.

"BEAT THE HEAT"

Junior Firemen Attend De Grazia's Theatre Drill

Reported to be the first event of its kind was the theatre fire drill arranged by Ted De Grazia, at the Lyric, Bisbee, Ariz. Put on with sufficient color, says Ted, that most of the kids thought it was the McCoy. All local units cooperated. Fire truck responded to alarm, raised ladders, etc. Older boys acted as guides, police and sheriff's deputies were on hand to help out. Gag got plenty of local and state publicity, also breaking in the general fire insurance and engineering trade press.

Tied in with local dairy, was the "Baby Movie Health Parade" staged by De Grazia. Mothers were asked to register at theatre on special cards supplied by milk company. Weekly drawing was held for 10 children whose pictures were taken by movie camera and shown at theatre the week following. Ted placed all photos on giant milk bottle cut-out in lobby for extra buildup.

CAMPAIGNS IN DRIVE ELIGIBLE FOR AWARDS

Entries in the "Motion Pictures' Greatest Year" contest, details of which were published in last issue of the Round Table, are also eligible for the Quigley Awards. All campaigns put on in August and September may be entered for the Third Quarter. Campaigns put on from October 1st, to the end of the contest, may be entered for the Fourth Quarter, the last period of the 1938 Awards.

Parkhurst Stages Big Drive For Reopening of Theatre

For his campaign to announce the reopening of the Paramount, Scroon Lake, New York, Pearce Parkhurst put over a number of tieins with which was featured the publication of the first issue of his Schroon Lake Observer, a four-page weekly, widely circulated in the resort area. First page was given over to banner-line story of opening, wires from Hollywood stars, photo and story on the theatreman. Inside was carried letter of welcome from Chamber of Commerce, congrat. ads from merchants, mailing list blank, etc. Back page to policy, coming pictures, etc.

Parky invited list of local notables, all via special delivery, left programs at postoffice and other similar spots, called up every phone number in the district, among other angles.

Bombay Newspaper Carries "Snow White" Supplement

Unique feature for the date on "Snow White" at the New Empire, Bombay, India, was a first-time special eight-page picture supplement issued by "Times of India," leading daily, put over by J. Remi Crasto, RKO Radio exploitation manager. Crasto sold all Indian film producing companies on coming in with ads to acclaim the feature, paper devoting rest of space to publicity and photos.

Juvenile angle was worked with contest in newspaper "Junior's Corner" with children invited to fill in questionnaire printed in paper and containing a number of queries having to do with the picture. Best answers received copies of the book.

"BEAT THE HEAT"

College Archery Contest Staged By Bartlett for "Robin Hood"

Highlight of his "Robin Hood" campaign at the Fox Illinois, Jacksonville, Ill., was the archery contest staged by Manager Ralph Q. Bartlett, between students of two local colleges at a cost of about $20, for loving cup, banner, ad, and hauling hay, promoted, to back targets, which with arrows were furnished by the colleges.

Contest was held in public park with city officials and newspapers cooperating with college heads as directors and officials. In addition, Bartlett had costumed rider on street for bally and date was plugged on highly popular radio program sponsored by one of the schools.

"Sawyer" Top-Spinning Idea Proves Draw for Saxton

The Playground Athletic League, director of public school activities in Baltimore, was promoted by Bill Saxton to sponsor a top-spinning contest as a tiein for "Sawyer" at Loew's Century. Over 30,000 children were reported in on the stunt with guest tickets to the winners. League publicised the event with special bulletins to all schools and newspaper also went for it.

To find local lad with most freckles, Saxton hooked up with one of the papers for a contest with prizes of clothes, fishing outfit, and winner to serve as city mayor for a day, etc. Judging was held on Saturday morning in City Hall Plaza with an entire block roped off for the thousands of contestants. Publicity on this ran 11 consecutive days.

Sizer Goes Parisian For "Gold Diggers" Date

They also have ice cream parlors in Paris according to Eaton M. Sizer, manager, Jeffris, Jamesville, Wis., which thought he borrowed to create the proper atmosphere for "Gold Diggers In Paris." In addition to cut-outs, foreign posters, banners and pennants, a huge parasol, table and chairs were set up out front and ice-cream served a la Parisian. Two girls in costume acted as waitresses and announced the picture as they served patrons.

Gag lobby attraction was a carnival booth with background in keeping. In center of display, large wheel was placed to spin for lucky numbers. Patrons were invited to try their luck for free tickets and a group of girls were on hand to spin the wheel and explain the gag.

"BEAT THE HEAT"

Scouts Build Dwarf Heads For Williams "Snow" Date

Handcraft talents of local youngsters were employed profitably by Rex Williams for his date on "Snow White" at the Hoosier, Whiting, Ind., by interesting Boy and Girl Scouts to build papier mache heads of the seven dwarfs, made from mud models. Heads were displayed in lobby ahead and won first prize in citywide handcraft competition. Girl Scouts made costumes to go with dwarfs heads which enabled Williams to promote "personal appearances" in all school rooms.

Rex also ultilized the schools to build up interest in his Lone Ranger Club by having local rider, masked and labelled star of the serial, visit classrooms where pupils were given time out to visit with him and to learn about the new club.

NOTE: The totals for running time are the official figures announced by the home offices of the distributing companies.

When a production is reviewed in Hollywood, the running time is as officially given by the West Coast studio of the company at the time of the review, and this fact is denoted by an asterisk (*) immediately preceding the number. As soon as the home office has established the running time for national release, any change from the studio figure is made and the asterisk is removed.

Running times are subject to change according to local conditions. State or city censorship deletions may cause variations from the announced and published figures; repairs to the film may be another reason.

The Bluebook School

ANSWER TO QUESTION NO. 123

Conducted by
F. H. RICHARDSON

Bluebook School Question No. 123 was: (A) If any part of a motor or generator feels warm to the touch, does that fact necessarily indicate anything wrong? (B) What is the maximum permissible temperature of such machines, or any part thereof? (C) Describe accepted method of obtaining temperature of any part of a motor or generator except those in rotation. (D) How may a close approximation of temperature of rotating parts be obtained?

The following made good on all but Section D. Only G. E. Doe, J. A. Zachritz and O. H. Schmidt made wholly good on that one, though T. F. Bochert came pretty close. Those making acceptable answers to the other sections were: S. Evans and C. Rau; M. and J. Devoy; T. F. Bochert; O. H. Schmidt; L. H. Kelley; E. H. Toedte; S. Hewitt; G. Burdis; W. Schoeneman; R. and K. Wells; C. A. Whitlock; R. R. Lee; W. E. Limmroth; W. E. Manske, Jr.; H. Edwards; L. Johnson; F. W. Brandenburg; G. L. Goss; L. Day; P. Slobodny; H. H. Todd and L. E. Dodson; M. F. Robinson and L. A. Beachwood; T. W. Redhouse; E. and F. Wentworth; B. and M. Walker; W. B. Hennesy; H. Bunker; G. Thompson; D. and W. Porter; H. T. Randolph; D. N. Logman; K. Irwin; M. D. McGuire; D. A. Shea and H. T. Plum; B. L. Morris, H. M. Jackson and W. V. Henderson; E. Lomax; T. and W. Turk; G. L. Baxter; L. and F. Savlor; W. S. Maxwell; L. M. Richardson; E. Exline; B. L. Kent; N. S. Reid and H. T. Watkins; L. B. Daniels and M. A. Cordell; W. B. Hunter; C. Umphrey; S. True; A. C. Greene; H. J. Benjamin; R. M. Schnider; L. F. and G. Brown; S. T. Logan; F. H. S. and P. Dalbey; D. R. Spencer; C. H. Lowrie; T. S. Anderson; R. R. Jacobs and B. B. Hornstein; B. L. Bunt and W. R. Davis; F. E. Dorp and H. A. Ames; W. Winkler and R. R. Robbins; L. W. Whitmore; B. B. Kent; P. and L. Felt; K. L. Brant; J. M. Kelner and A. W. Baxter; M. F. Brown and R. Davis; T. L. Ward and W. Jones; J. K. Robinson and R. E. Bullard; B. L. Odeon and R. Smith; J. R. Davidson and W. R. Matthews; E. Davis; L. D. Tomlinson; W. R. Allen and H. Samuels; S. L. Maxwell; P. L. Goldstein and M. Samuels; G. T. Jones and A. Leonard.

(A) G. E. Doe says, "That some (any) part of a motor or generator feels even uncomfortably warm to the hand does not of necessity indicate the part is exceeding temperature within the limits of safety. We are advised (page 325 of our Bluebook) as follows, 'The standard regulations of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers permit a maximum temperature of 90 degrees centigrade, which equals 194 degrees Fahrenheit, for motors or generators, or any part thereof. Since the human body, ordinarily, has a temperature of about 98 degrees, a motor or generator part may feel very hot to the touch, though still be at safe operating temperature.'

"This is of course a direct quotation, which Dad has warned us against, but nevertheless it would seem the matter could not be stated more clearly. The final answer to a doubtful temperature is to have a suitable reliable thermometer in the motor-generator room and take the temperature after the fashion described in other sections of this answer. The method of bedding the thermometer bulb described in the Bluebook is excellent. I have personally made a test of it, finding quite a lot of difference in the reading with a bulb so bedded, and a bulb placed in contact with the metal at the same point."

(B) Since Doe has adequately covered this in answering Section A, we will not consume space by repetition.

(C) T. F. Bochert says, "Bed the bulb of a suitable thermometer in a stiff putty such as glaziers use. Then bed the putty on the part to be tested for temperature, leaving the whole in contact an ample space of time for the putty ball, as a whole, to attain the temperature of the metal contacts. Be sure to use a stiff putty, else it may and probably will get soft enough to run under the action of heat."

Incidentally, it may be well to add that glazier's putty can be made as stiff as may be required by mixing in ordinary spanish whiting, which may be secured from any dealer in painter's supplies and I believe in almost any drug store. A dimes worth will be more than ample.

(D) On this one J. R. Prater made what is perhaps the most comprehensive answer, though not wholly correct because the metal under the putty is not necessary. Bedding the putty directly on a commutator will do no harm, provided the resultant film of oil will be wiped off thoroughly afterward. This latter is on the authority of the Hertner Electric Company. Also, the radiation of heat may be checked by bedding the putty and the wrapping the part being tested in several thicknesses of soft cloth. Prater says:

"A close approximation of the temperature of even rotating parts may be obtatined by taking the temperature of a stational part as near as possible to where it contacts the moving one. For example, a bearing housing near the commutator would be very nearly the same temperature as the the commutator because the armature shaft makes mechanical contact with both. Even if the bearing were itself generating considerable heat, much of it would be conducted to the commutator. Similarly, approximate results may be obtained by shutting the set down and immediately bedding the putty and thermometer to the part, taking care never to put the putty directly on commutator or exposed parts of armature windings. If such parts are to be measured directly, first place a thin sheet of metal over the part and bed the putty on the sheet metal, holding it in as good contact as possible with the part to be measured. Since the machine would cool somewhat during this process, and there would also be some heat lost in transferring to the sheet metal holding the putty, readings thus obtained should be regarded as serious, even if they are a few degrees below permissible temperature. Ordinarily, readings taken on the top of the frame are a sufficiently reliable guide to the temperature of rotating parts enclosed directly below, especially those parts which contact, or almost contact, the frame."

John Hertner of the Hertner Electric Company, has submitted this comment: "I would not recommend laying anything under the putty when measuring commutator temperature. Putty will not injure the commutator in any way."

BLUEBOOK SCHOOL QUESTION NO. 129

(A) What qualities must projection carbons possess?

(B) Must carbons be free from moisture when used? If so, why?

(C) What is the luminosity of carbon at point of volatilization? Does conductivity of carbon increase as temperature is increased?

(D) Which has the higher conductivity, the carbon core or its surrounding shell?

(Note: Remember, this is a Bluebook school and the answers to all save possibly some special questions can be found in that book.)

Paramount Suspends Raft For Refusing "Blues" Role

Paramount studio this week suspended George Raft from the contract list, charging refusal to report for work in "St. Louis Blues." The company said that Raft, through his agent, Myron Selznick and Company, refused to start work in the role after having signified his complete approval of his part in the final script, notwithstanding that his contract does not require such approval.

Production schedules are now being arranged at Paramount to enable the picture to start filming shortly with a new male star heading the cast opposite Dorothy Lamour. Raoul Walsh will direct with a cast including Tito Guizar, Maxine Sullivan, Jessie Ralph, "Punkins" Parker, William Frawley and Jerome Cowan. Jeff Lazarus is the producer.

RCA Service Contracts

Nate Goldstein's Western Massachusetts Theatre circuit of 17 houses and Southern Amusement Company of St. Charles, La., 20 theatres, have signed RCA service contracts.

BARRETT WILLOUGHBY
315 HILLCREST ROAD
SAN CARLOS, CALIFORNIA

July 27, 1938

Dear Henry Hathaway:

Just by accident I happened to see the preview of Paramount's version of my book, Spawn of the North. Despite the fact that the picture is an adaptation which does not closely follow my Alaska novel, you have turned out such a splendid, breath-taking picture of Alaska that even I, a jealous author concerned for her brain-child, was completely carried away as I watched. My sincere congratulations, Mr. Hathaway, on your masterly job of directing.

The audience was by turns awed, laughing, gasping, admiring, spell-bound and breathless. A girl near me wept profusely over George Raft in his death scene. (I could scarcely keep from embracing her!) After the picture got underway, though, I became so absorbed in it that I forgot all about the audience.

For a couple of days after the preview friends kept phoning me they heard the picture discussed in the stores and garages and other places of business on the Peninsula where they happened to be, and nearly everyone was planning to see it again. The men were all wild about the fight at the fish trap. They say it is the best fight ever filmed. The little seal and the pictures of wild life--the salmon run, the bears and the eagles caught the fancy of the children and women, from what I can hear. Many have mentioned the introductory music with enthusiasm.

Personally, I don't think the cast could be improved upon. Tamiroff was so real I wanted to shoot him myself!

Spawn of the North was the first preview I ever saw!

Yours, with sincere admiration,

Barrett Willoughby

The LION'S ROAR

Leo doesn't think any the less of his collection of Academy Award statuettes, but it was a pleasant change to get a Blue Ribbon this week.

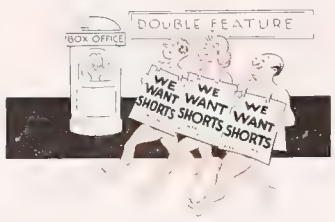
For "Love Finds Andy Hardy."

Readers of "Box-office" magazine voted it the best film released during July for the whole family.

Ditto for exhibitors!

We've got inside information about the next of this series, "Out West With The Hardys."

A chap who heard the plot over a luncheon table at the studio described it as "excellent." Since he is conservative this corresponds to your "terrific."



Repeat bookings of the previous "Hardy" pictures are reported from many sections of the country.

A smart showman in Michigan is playing them on the same night of the week for three weeks in a row. He established it as "Hardy Family Night."

Getting additional business thereby.

Also our Hardy congratulations.

Patrons like Shorts. There have been several surveys lately proving that the public is more "short-conscious" than ever but you'll be a lot more convinced by a personal survey in your own lobby. M-G-M's intelligent, exploitable and entertaining subjects continue to lead their field. For instance currently: Pete Smith's "Follow The Arrow" and "The Story of Dr. Carver." And we guarantee you'll get plenty of comment on the human-interest, informative and inspiring, "The City of Little Men."

EXTRA! As we leap to press!

"MARIE ANTOINETTE" FIRST POPULAR PRICE engagements terrific. A proved $2 sensation in Los Angeles and New York, M-G-M set first popular price tests in small towns (Petoskey, Frankfort, Michigan; Lake Geneva, Delevan, Sheboygan, Wisconsin) where it is beating M-G-M's Biggest, such as, "Test Pilot," "San Francisco," "Saratoga" foreshadowing tremendous nationwide hit.

THEY'RE SAYING NICE THINGS ABOUT YOU, LEO!

The announcement of the release of "Marie Antoinette" at popular prices, entailing cancellation of road-shows, has met with widespread industry approval. To help the industry put its best foot forward at the commencement of the united screen drive this Fall M-G-M delivers a production which raises the stock of all companies. A patron of the Astor Theatre writing to the Management reflects what this move means: "For some time there has been a lot of talk that Hollywood was failing us, that they were no longer capable of turning out great films. Can these critics still stand by that statement after 'Marie Antoinette'?" And celebrated showman Charles P. Skouras writes to Loew's President, Nicholas M. Schenck: "Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in this picture gives a starved entertainment world the greatest of its many achievements. I predict 'Marie Antoinette' will go on to be the box-office hit of the year and the Academy Award Winner."

THE EDITORIAL WHEE!

Nobody had to call Leo's attention to that widely discussed editorial in Jay Emanuel Publications last week.

In case you missed it, we reprint it here in part:

"Praising Metro sales policy is not a new departure for this department. It is therefore time to commend Metro for continuance of that fair selling policy which exhibitors have been so quick to recognize. Let the Metro spirit of fairness be best exemplified by a letter received by exhibitors. (The letter concerns designation of pictures in uncompleted percentage brackets). Metro could have filled the higher brackets but it isn't doing business that way. It feels treating exhibitors fairly pays bigger dividends. And other companies' sales departments wonder why exhibitors shout so loudly in praise of the cohorts of Leo. It was never more apparent—fair play brings greater returns always."

Thanks Mr. Editor.

The Government Says

By Martin Quigley

MR. THURMAN ARNOLD, assistant attorney general of the United States in charge of the anti-trust suit against the major film companies, wrote an article which is illuminating in its disclosure of his viewpoint for last Sunday's New York Times.

¶ Mr. Arnold's viewpoint in its political and economic implications has not been unknown, but the article coming on the heels of the government action and being under the authorship of the official in charge is of compelling interest.

¶ It should serve effectually to dispel an impression which seems to prevail in many quarters in the industry that, after all, the action is just another federal suit which eventually will be resolved on the basis of moderate concession and compromise.

¶ Mr. Arnold's approach is rather that of an economist than a lawyer. He is seeking a change in the existing economic system rather than merely an adjustment of economic practices within the requirements of the statute books. He is obviously confident that he knows how the economic machine must function, if it is best to serve the purposes of the national economy, and he is obviously determined that his plans shall be carried into effect either through persuasion of the courts as to how existing laws will accommodate these plans, or by the enactment of new laws.

¶ "A series of statements of the grounds for prosecution in particular cases—as conceived, of course, by the assistant attorney general in charge of anti-trust prosecutions—should furnish a link between the courts and Congress so that one may interpret and the other supplement the law," said Mr. Arnold.

¶ Mr. Arnold refers to financial organization as the outstanding weakness in the depression of 1933. This, he said, led to the public demand for the regulation of the marketing of securities, which has been accomplished by the Securities and Exchange Commission. He states that the policies of the great industrial organizations during the recent or current depression led to a demand for investigation of monopoly practices, which demand—we seem to recall—was voiced principally if not exclusively by Administration spokesmen, Mr. Harold L. Ickes and Mr. Robert H. Jackson.

MR. ARNOLD then expresses in effect his belief that, with respect to the supervision of industrial organization, we are now at the stage at which we were in 1933 with respect to the regulation of the financing and marketing of securities. His reference seems to carry the suggestion that industrial organization needs to be subjected to the same detailed and rigorous form of regulation which the SEC applies to the securities business.

¶ "My guess is," says Mr. Arnold, "that present conditions will lead us to the development of more effective supervision . . . than we have ever had before. I hope this prediction is correct because if it is not we are moving inevitably toward a highly centralized industrial state like Germany and Italy rather than a model of a more competitive economy like Sweden."

Mr. Arnold may be reminded that the most conspicuous and the most characteristic attribute of a state like Germany or Italy is its totalitarianism and authoritarianism—a system under which a state committed to the principles of a planned economy prescribes in exact detail the policies and practices which business must observe. An essential of this system is an assumption on the part of the government that it is sufficiently all-knowing to be able to determine just how the economic machine should function.

¶ There is a vast philosophic as well as practical difference between the effort on the part of a state to prescribe procedure as compared with the formulation by the state of regulatory principles of a general character.

¶ There are, of course, those who say that an effort to gain compliance with regulation is not sufficient to correct certain kinds of abuse.

¶ There are also those who say—and even more who act as if they believed—that the processes of democracy are not adequate to meet the crisis of the times.

THE affairs of the motion picture industry, if subjected to prudent and reasonable regulation, may be bettered to the end of widening the enjoyment of the prosperity of the business to include all branches and all responsible factors and at the same time contribute importantly to the public interest.

¶ Measures which attempt to go beyond such prudent and reasonable regulation may be viewed with genuine apprehension, because they may amount only to the pursuit of impracticable objectives, rendering the whole effort futile and leaving undone many necessary and desirable matters of trade practice renovation and adjustment.

¶ Mr. Arnold argues that in many industries of centralized control the policies maintained contributed importantly to the recent or current depression. In these cases, he said, prices were arbitrarily fixed when merchandise movement lagged, factories were shut down and great unemployment resulted. While avoiding any attempt to examine the economic interpretation expressed it may be pointed out that no such conditions appear in the record of the motion picture industry. Admission prices have been and are bargain prices. There has been no

Censorship

The Federal Government moved this week to place a branch of the motion picture under national censorship, the Federal Trade Commission in Washington notifying producers of advertising films that henceforth their films would be subject to the Commission's scrutiny.

The sudden move which brings the Federal Government a step closer to the operations of the business immediately brought up the question of whether the trailers of theatrical producers advertising forthcoming productions—and which films likewise move in interstate commerce—would be subject to the same "scrutiny" by the Commission.

See page 13.

Telecasts

RCA's National Broadcasting Company this week resumed its experimental television broadcasts after a lapse of almost three months during which minor adjustments and changes were made in the transmitting apparatus in the Empire State Building. The week also brought a denial from the American Television Corporaiton of reports that home receiving sets produced today may become obsolete through changes in the basic operations of transmitting a program. ATC announced it would guarantee its sets against obsolescence for one year.

Television is discussed on page 28.

shut down of the studios and no wholesale unemployment.

¶ The economic machine of the motion picture industry is not out of gear. The condition calls not for the application of extreme, experimental measures, but rather only the maintenance of a status of fair and competitive trade practice consistent with American commercial traditions.

¶ An effective statement of the reasonable and practicable ideal in Mr. Arnold's own words is the following paragraph from his Times article:

¶ "The answer is not a question of breaking up large businesses into smaller ones regardless of their efficiency. We desire only to condemn combinations going beyond efficient mass production which have become instruments arbitrarily . . . exercising coercive power."

Ready for Campaign

The motion picture industry stood poised this week for the launching next Thursday of its first concerted promotional effort to increase attendance at the box office throughout the country. Newspapers in all sections of the United States and Canada will announce the opening of the "Motion Pictures' Greatest Year" campaign, the main feature of which will be a $250,000 "Movie Quiz" contest. In preparation for the start of the drive, committees in New York, on the coast and in all other territories were kept busy this week making final preparations. The "Movie Quiz" booklets have been forwarded to the designated exchanges, as have the huge press books.

Final plans for the drive are discussed on page 15.

"Boring from Within"

The hunt for subversive activity and radical tendencies being conducted in Washington by the Dies Congressional committee took a spectacular turn with charges by witnesses that the WPA Theatre Project is Communistic in all its pomps and works and specifically in its director, Mrs. Hallie Flanagan. Even more spectacular and headline worthy were charges that Shirley Temple and other Hollywood stars have lent their names to Communistic organizations. Accordingly, the Dies Committee has decided on direct studies of the Hollywood scene.

The charges are rehearsed on page 29.

No Cooperation

Paramount this week abandoned its cooperative advertising campaign for exhibitors and will supplant them with straight advertising in national magazines. Warner Brothers, while issuing no formal announcement, indicated it too would eliminate cooperative campaigns with exhibitors in favor of another advertising medium. The Warner Brothers move was described as an enlargement of the plan decided upon last winter when the company announced it would alter its cooperative advertising policy to the extent that the company would have complete control over all advertising in which it shared expenses. Jack Cohn, vice-president of Columbia, denounced exhibitors who fail to live up to an agreement to split the expenses of advertising over and above that originally planned by the exhibitor. He indicated that Columbia might soon follow the example set by Paramount.

The viewpoints of all large distributing companies as expressed by executives are included in a story on page 18.

Theatre Trend

Theatre building this year indicates a marked trend to smaller houses, it is shown in a summary since the first of the year prepared by the Dodge Reports division of the F. W. Dodge Corporation. In the first seven months, building contracts were awarded for 472 theatre projects in the 37 eastern states, including new construction and major remodeling. The total valuation of these contracts was $13,641,000. The average cost of each was about $28,900. The average floor area was 3,650 square feet. Last year, there were 528 theatre projects, new and remodeling, for which building contracts were awarded from January through July. That was 56 more than in 1938. The total contract valuation, $17,227,000, averaged $32,600 per project. There was an average of 4,930 square feet in each. July contracts dipped under the June level, with 62 projects totaling $1,555,000. They will be made up of 149,000 square feet of floor space. In June, the total was $2,881,000 for 72 projects with 420,000 square feet.

Merger

With federal court approval on Saturday, the Educational-Grand National merger will become a fact, bringing in a new $5,450,000 producing and distributing company, headed by E. W. Hammons, of Educational, and Edward L. Alperson, of Grand National, who will act as vice president and general sales manager.

Official plan of the new setup as sent to creditors by Grand National appears on page 27.

Canadian Treaty

Interest in reciprocal trade relations with the United States has been revived in Toronto as a result of President Franklin D. Roosevelt's recent visit to Canada. The two governments began discussions of the problem some time ago but the matter did not progress beyond the conference stage. It is now predicted that there will be developments in the fall and that there will be concessions on entry of films because of the prevailing feeling that Canada has no industry that requires tariff protection. This applies particularly to features, none being made in the Dominion for the prime purpose of presentation in Canadian theatres. There also is the prospect of relief in the matter of excise imposts on advertising accessories, the making of which in comparatively small quantities would be unprofitable in Canada.

Frank Capra's Day

Columbia Pictures Corporation assembled an array of hundreds of reviewers of the national and international press for a party and first showing of "You Can't Take It With You" in Hollywood Tuesday. Frank Capra was missing. It was to have been his day of days.

Wednesday Hollywood heard why. Forty minutes before the party started, three-year-old John Capra, second son of the director, had died at Children's Hospital.

Washington Report Predicts Consent Decree Will Settle Anti-Trust Suit

by FRANCIS L. BURT
in Washington

Report of possible early settlement of the United States Government's anti-trust suit against the major film companies was heard in Washington Wednesday, widely circulated stories indicating that representatives of the companies were preparing to approach the Department of Justice in about two weeks with suggestions pointing to a consent decree.

While the Department of Justice has laid down the policy that it will accept consent decrees only if the Government achieves all the purposes aimed at in a trust suit, there were indications in Washington that the door to negotiations had not been closed and that any proposals offered by the motion picture defendants would be considered. Officials of the Department refused Wednesday to comment upon the situation.

Settlement of the motion picture suit by negotiation resulting in a consent decree would save both the defendant companies and the Government large sums of money in counsel and other fees and terminate litigation which, if pressed through to the Supreme Court, would keep the motion picture industry in a state of uncertainty for possibly two years, according to the story from the capital.

A dispatch of similar tenor was sent out by the Washington office of United Press Wednesday. The story said that, while no representations had been made by the industry to the Department of Justice since the action was started five weeks ago, a "conciliatory" attitude since that time had led officials to be "hopeful" that a satisfactory consent decree could be worked out.

It was also made known on Wednesday that a letter from Thurman Arnold, assistant attorney general, to counsel for defendants suggested conferences with the Government looking toward a "standstill" agreement for the maintenance of the status quo, pending further steps in the litigation, and that such conferences are planned for early next month. The letter was prompted, it was said, by the acquisition by five of the defendants—Loew's, RKO, Paramount, Warner Brothers and Twentieth Century-Fox—of various theatre properties, and it was stated that the "standstill" agreement would have the effect of preventing further expansion of this kind.

Motion picture lawyers in New York said they were at a loss to explain the source of the Washington reports.

One legal spokesman pointed out that such a step is unlikely, explaining that, even if the majors wanted to consent to a settlement, they could not on the basis of the present contents of the Government's complaint. "It would all depend," he added, "on what the Government would consent to."

Another legal chief flatly stated that no such move is in mind. He said that, with a stay of 60 days already granted the majors for the filing of answers, and possibly another year elapsing before the case is built up, it is hardly likely that there would be any reason to talk about a consent decree at this time. He, too, held that the majors could not consent to the complaint of the Government in its present form and still stay in business.

Meanwhile, counsel for all of the companies were proceeding in New York with a study of the general terms of their answers to the suit. These are expected to include complaints of discrimination and unconstitutionality. Developments of the week in this connection appear on page 23.

U.S. MOVES TO CENSOR ADVERTISEMENTS ON THE SCREEN

by JAMES P. CUNNINGHAM

The Federal Government moved this week to place a branch of the motion picture practically under national censorship by law.

Without making any public announcement, the Federal Trade Commission in Washington formally notified by mail all producers of advertising or "sponsored" films that henceforth their product and the statements made therein, either in spoken dialogue or printed title, would be subject to the Commission's scrutiny.

The Commission acted under its right to censor advertising statements made in media moving in interstate commerce. It refused, however, to release to the press copies of any of the questionnaires, notices or letters sent to the advertising film producers.

This sudden action, which apparently brings the Federal Government a step closer to the actual operations of and to the product made by the motion picture business, immediately brought up the question of whether the trailers issued by regular theatrical producers advertising their forthcoming productions would be subject to the same "scrutiny" by the Commission, inasmuch as these trailers evidently are also screen advertisements likewise moving in interstate commerce.

The Federal Trade Commission has been scrutinizing advertisements in newspapers and magazines for nine years, and advertisements on the radio for four years. Significantly or otherwise action is only now being taken to control advertising contents of the screen, coming but a few weeks after the Government, through the Department of Justice, filed its equity suit to virtually "break up" the component parts of the industry by divorcing production, distribution and exhibition and addressed at controlling the industry's trade practices.

No Method Announced

Little information on the manner and method by which the Commission will censor screen advertisements could be obtained in Washington, other than word of the Commission's decision to demand that scripts or synopses of the ad films be submitted in advance of their filming.

In the Commission's regular bulletin of Monday, going out under the names of the Commissioners: Garland S. Ferguson, chairman; Charles H. March, Ewin L. Davis, W. A. Ayers and Robert E. Freer—no mention was made of the action being taken pertaining to the screen. The statement reported on the Commission's work in the macaroni industry, in paints and varnishes, mirror manufacturing and the baby chick business; also, "A Supplemental Report on Antidumping" was announced.

Some extent of the censorship of advertising on the screen which the Commission intends to undertake may be gleaned from the fact that between 3,000 and 4,000 one and two-reel advertising pictures and so-called "minute movies" are shown in theatres of this country every year.

The Commission usually first files a notice of complaint with the advertiser, and if the advertiser refuses or neglects to alter or eliminate the copy to conform to the wishes of the Commission, proceedings are instituted which can lead to the Federal courts. This is in reference to advertisements inserted in newspapers, in magazines or on the air.

In the case of advertisements on the screen, however, the Commission evidently realizes that its existing machinery prevents it from controlling the material at the scene of exhibition, hence its demand for the submission of scripts or synopses.

Legal or other eventualities in the case of a completed picture not following the lines of alteration set down by the Commission in the script are not clear.

It was that clause of the recent Congressional anti-block booking bill requiring producers to submit synopses in advance of exhibition that resulted in vociferous complaints by the organized industry on the grounds of impracticability.

Recent Activity Remembered

Authoritative spokesmen in the screen advertising field believe they face no alternative but to conform to the Trade Commission's new edict, and since receipt of the official order the other day they have been studying the reputedly new sternness assumed by the Commission within recent weeks. They point to the recent FTC actions against published advertisements of such large merchandisers as Borden Milk Company, RCA Manufacturing Company, Lever Brothers, Arnold, Constable and Company, Standard Brands and Fleischmann's Yeast, Bristol-Myers and scores of others. Complaints in these cases, it is claimed, make it appear that the Commission intends delving into comparatively inconsequential advertising assertions.

Of the dozens of contemplated, proposed or enacted forms of governmental interference with the business of motion pictures appearing since the de-feathered Blue Eagle of the NRA, this new action by the Trade Commission appears to be one of the most potent, other than the Department of Justice's anti-trust suit. While there is no indication at this time that any scrutiny undertaken by the Commission of screen advertisements will extend to regular theatrical trailers exploiting coming pictures, it was pointed out in Washington this week that should a producer send out a trailer definitely misrepresenting a picture, and some theatregoer or rival producer complained, the Commission would take the matter under investigation. The means to the end seem to be simple.

The chief concern of the Commission is advanced, as usual, as protection of the public against misrepresentation of products or services entering into its daily life, in the former category being patent medicines, food, clothing and the like, and in the latter such services as correspondence courses, and such. But, another branch of the government considers that the motion picture does enter into the daily life of the public, as evidenced by the Justice Department's Declaration of July 20th, when, in giving the reasons for undertaking the federal trust suit against the industry, it was said: "The Department of Justice was interested on its own initiative because the motion picture business is not a private affair, but a matter of vital concern . . . to 85 to 90 million people who attend the pictures every week."

Plan Long in Work

In any event, whether the Commission will undertake to determine from the producers' advertising trailers whether the pictures they

ANOTHER U. S. AGENCY FOR MOTION PICTURES

Establishment of a new division concerning international communications—including motion pictures—in the State Department, to be headed by Thomas Burke, formerly with the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, was announced Friday by Secretary Cordell Hull, in Washington.

Establishment of the Division is said to be part of a program of reorganization in which the State Department has been engaged for some time, and was determined upon because of the increasing importance of the international aspects of problems connected with communications, motion pictures, aviation and shipping. To the division will be given the responsibility of initiating the policy action of the State Department and of carrying into effect comprehensive and coordinated programs of activities.

Included in the matters coming under the division will be all international questions involving motion pictures and broadcasting, including the preparation and interpretation of treaties in which those subjects are involved, and the reviewing of correspondents with foreign governments relating to those matters.

The change is said to be purely one of organization and involves no alteration of department policies with respect to films or radio.

PLAN SET FOR DRIVE TO AID BRITISH FILMS

Distributors Here Discuss Project for Cooperative Advertising and Special Sales Setup

British distributors, marketing product in this country for the most part independently or through territorial states-right exchanges, are intent upon widening their sales here, and for this purpose have formulated a plan for the wider exploitation of English-made pictures in the United States.

This was decided last Thursday, following weeks of formulation, at a meeting of ten companies headed by Gaumont British. The meeting was held in the offices of GB, in the old Mecca Building, 1600 Broadway, New York.

Details of the plan are to be worked out at another meeting, to be called within a few days.

Represented at the meeting were Gaumont British, Gainsborough Pictures, Herbert Wilcox Pictures Corporation, British and Dominions Film Corporation, European Film Corporation, Criterion Film Productions, Trafalgar Film Productions, Capitol Film Corporation, Imported Pictures Corporation and Imperator Pictures.

Lists Believed Closed

A formal reply was issued this week from the headquarters of the "Motion Pictures Greatest Year" campaign rejecting GB's request that campaign forms be reopened to admit American distributors of British pictures, to participate in the campaign. Officers of the drive declared it would now be "physically impossible" to revise the arrangements which have been completed already for the conduct of the contest.

Mr. Lee, acting for other distributors of British pictures as well as his own company, proposed that a supplemental list of contest pictures be issued in order to include British product in the contest but the proposal was rejected on the ground that there is no provision for the additional printing cost in the campaign budget.

Mr. Lee had informed the committee that his first knowledge of its invitation to GB was a mesage which gave him 24 hours to send in an acceptance. He said it was impossible to comply with this and that when his answer was given—three days after the specified deadline—he was informed that campaign forms had been closed.

It is understood that in view of the campaign officials' decision, the distributors of British product will endeavor to further their own plan for a promotional campaign on British pictures in the United States market. The basis of such a plan was developed at the meeting last week and an effort to work out details is expected to be made following Mr. Lee's return to New York. Mr. Lee, at present, is on a tour of the company's branches but is expected to return to the home office September 6th.

The promotional plans, it was said, involve cooperative national advertising with special campaign and sales features to benefit participating exhibitors.

Plans of the British companies are understood also to include establishment of a cooperative distribution system for all American representatives of British producers. The proposal has the endorsement of American representatives and is being advocated in home offices in London.

It was previously reported that the plans call for acquisition of a circuit of at least 20 theatres in the New York metropolitan area. The houses would form the nucleus for a circuit of independent theatres in United States that would show "A" English pictures as well as American product.

$1,000,000 SUPPORT FOR NEW ANGLO FIRM

London cables brought word to New York this week that Louis Jackson, head of the newly formed Anglo-American Film Corporation, who sailed for the United States on the Normandie Wednesday, declared that he has guarantees of $1,000,000 in support of the new distributing group.

Mr. Jackson is seeking independent product, and claims deals already are pending. He also declared that he plans to finance American productions for British release.

MILLER SPEAKS FOR FREEDOM OF RADIO

The American people are as determined as the American broadcasting industry to resist any Government invasion of "freedom of the air," Neville Miller, recently elected president of the National Association of Broadcasters, declared in addressing the graduating class at Peabody Teachers' College in Nashville this week.

Government regulation of radio is necessary, Mr. Miller acknowledged.

"But if an agency of the Government seeks to dictate what shall and what shall not be broadcast, then that is another matter." For any Government agency to do that, he declared, would be to "abandon democracy and assume instead the technique of a totalitarian state."

Government Acts to Effect Film Ad Censorship

advertise are as "stupendous," the costuming as "marvelous" or the chorus as "beautiful," remains to be seen.

The control over advertising films about to be exercised by the Commission is authorized under the Federal Trade Commission, and development of the present plan has been secretly in work for weeks.

Sporadic efforts to deal with misrepresentation in published advertisements were made by the Commission prior to 1929, but by that year the practice was of such volume that it was deemed necessary to provide for specialized attention, and a special board was set up, known as the Special Board of Investigation, consisting usually of three Commission attorneys.

Now the Commission holds that the increasing use of motion pictures for advertising purposes has attracted its attention, although, so far as is known, no complaints against the advertisement statements made on the screens of the country have appeared anywhere.

From Washington came word that the Commission was quite concerned when it first undertook its ad-films study, over the method by which the pictures would have to be scrutinized. Whereas newspaper, magazine and radio announcements are changed frequently, allowing for easy alteration, most advertisers using motion pictures make but a few films, at considerable cost, and to survey the advertising in a film after it is issued, as in the case of newspapers and radio, it might be necessary to scrap a film of an advertiser whose misrepresentations might have been made unwittingly.

Accordingly, it was said, the Commission hit upon the idea of having the film producers submit their scenarios before undertaking production. At this point it was explained in Washington that while the Commission does not undertake to dictate what an advertiser shall say, it will indicate what he may not say under the law. It was said the Commission would have no interest with anything in the picture other than the actual advertising, and that it would not be concerned with any of the entertainment features.

One Washington spokesman said that under the plan the Federal Trade Commission would be the only governmental agency to which a motion picture producer could go in advance and find out if the proposed filming was within the law.

Claimed Not Censorship

Review of motion pictures before their production would in no sense be censorship, it was explained. But any producer or advertiser going ahead with the production of a picture containing material which the Commission considered misrepresentative, would have to take his chance in a formal action brought by the Government.

Commission officials said that they were receiving willing cooperation from the publishers of newspapers and magazines and from broadcasters.

In each case where misrepresentation is noted, or where a complaint has been received from the public, a careful investigation is made and, where the facts warrant, and informal procedure has not resulted in the prompt elimination of misleading claims and representations, formal action is taken. In most such cases, however, the matter is adjusted by the respondent signing a stipulation to abandon the unfair practices.

In reviewing advertisements in current publications, the FTC's Special Board watches some periodicals continuously, due to the persistently questionable character of the advertisements published, but publications of recognized high ethical standard, where the publishers themselves carefully censor all copy before acceptance, are surveyed only a few times a year.

Rosenthal Receives Quigley Plaque at Bridgeport Affair

At a combined luncheon of the Lion's Club and Chamber of Commerce at Bridgeport, Conn., Wednesday, Morris Rosenthal of the Majestic theatre was presented with a Quigley Silver Plaque for the second quarter of awards. The plaque was presented by M. Crawford, Chamber of Commerce president and Jasper McLevy, mayor of Bridgeport. Present were Harry F. Shaw, division manager of Loew Poli Theatres and Bridgeport manager.

STAGE SET FOR START OF INDUSTRY'S MILLION-DOLLAR BOX OFFICE DRIVE

Newspaper Advertising, Press Books and Trailers To Carry Opening Message Next Week; Accessories Sent to Exchanges

With committees, sub-committees and regional groups completing final details, the motion picture industry stands ready to start its million dollar "Motion Pictures' Greatest Year" campaign on Thursday.

The drive, the first industry-wide attempt to buoy attendance at motion picture theatres throughout the United States, will be broadcast to the public in newspaper advertisements in all parts of the country. During the campaign, which runs from September 1st to December 31st, there will be 5,000 lines of space used in each newspaper, Howard Dietz, chairman of the advertising committee, said.

In addition to the $1,000,000 campaign expenditure, which includes $250,000 for prizes in the "Movie Quiz" contest, the outstanding feature of the drive, some $2,000,000 will be spent by theatres participating. Oscar A. Doob, chairman of the drive's theatre committee estimated.

Mr. Doob, advertising and publicity director for Loew's, based his estimate on information pouring into campaign headquarters in New York from all sections of the United States and Canada, indicating that exhibitors are eager to support and capitalize on the industry's greatest promotion effort.

"The drive is reviving the lost art of showmanship among many theatres which haven't put on a campaign in years," Mr. Doob declared.

Loew's has budgeted $200,000 as its total expense, and more will be forthcoming if needed, he said. Last fall's campaign cost the circuit $20,000, one-tenth of what it will spend this year. "We believe in these drives," Mr. Doob said, "They always get us business."

Circuits To Spend $1,000,000

It was estimated that the five large circuits, Warner Brothers, Paramount, RKO, National Theatres and Loew's, will spend a total of $1,000,000 or more. With the exception of the contributions to the general campaign fund the circuit's expenditures will be for local campaigns.

Mr. Doob expressed confidence that of the estimated 16,000 theatres operating, 10,000 will be actively participating in the drive. "The large circuits," he commented, "have taken on a large burden and for the first time are unselfishly showing their experience and the work of their organizations with other exhibitors. All theatres will benefit, but the degree to which they will benefit will depend upon their own efforts."

Copy in the newspaper advertisements will review the history of motion pictures from October 6, 1889, when Edison exhibited his first kinetoscope to the program of 100 or more pictures projected for exhibition this fall. At least five advertisements will be used to tell the story and each will be signed by the "The Theatre Owners of . . .", the name being supplied by the proper groups in each locality. The prize contest, the rules for which were announced in MOTION PICTURE HERALD last week, will be tied in directly with the advertisements, which will refer readers to the theatres.

Mr. Dietz praised newspapers as a medium of advertising in the lead story of Editor and Publisher this week. "We are using daily newspapers because, outside of our own screens we have no better medium for reaching with one effort the 75,000,000 or so people who ordinarily attend our theatres," Mr. Dietz said.

"I think also," he continued, "that the size of this campaign with its right-down-to-business copy will have a good influence on other advertising plans. If business in general sees the motion picture industry going after business aggressively, through newspaper advertising, we can hope that other business will do likewise and forget politics, war scares and other time wasters that have made most of business conversation for the past year. Pictures will get the benefit of the revival, newspapers will get it, and the country as a whole will be better off."

Campaign officials this week informed Republic that it was impossible to make new inclusions at this time. The company was reported to have requested that its pictures be included in the "Movie Quiz" contest booklets either as a supplement or by means of a rubber stamp.

Press Books Sent Out

Distribution of a 24-page, newspaper-size, advertising and exploitation press book for the campaign started this week. The books were sent to exchanges for distribution among the theatres participating in the drive. The publicity sections of the press book were still in the hands of the printers but will be shipped as inserts as rapidly as they are received.

The first shipments of the "Movie Quiz" booklets were dispatched to the exchanges last week and they are being sent out as rapidly as they are received from the printer.

A committee, comprising Mr. Dietz of Loew's Barret McCormick of RKO, and Monroe Greenthal of United Artists, were responsible for getting out the press book. The books, it was pointed out, are designed for use by both large and small theatres.

The same color scheme has been followed in all ads and accessories, in banners and posters, so that any display in any theatre can be quickly identified by the public as belonging to the campaign and the contest.

Two full pages of model tie-up ads are included to give the exhibitor an idea of how to combine the sale of the picture he is showing with the general drive and "Movie Quiz" contest.

The ad section permits a complete follow-up campaign. In addition to opening and closing ads, there are special ads for each week in the drive, to supply the intermediary ad program. Regarded as particularly significant in this section, is the full page of four column institutional ads suggested as newspapers' contribution to the success of the drive and to be run as an editorial feature.

Many theatres already have started to identify by trailers, the coming attractions which are included in the list of 94 pictures entered in the "Movie Quiz" contest.

Short Subject in Work

George B. Seitz has been chosen to direct the short subject "The World Is Yours," which will be released nationally in connection with the drive, Frank Whitbeck, who will produce the picture, announced.

Stars of all the studios, it was explained, will be seen in sequences of the short, but the cast that will actually work under Mr. Seitz' direction includes Mickey Rooney, Lewis Stone, Cecelia Parker, Fay Holden and Charles Grapewin. They will portray a typical American family and the picture will deal with their experiences in going to see motion pictures. The production is tentatively scheduled to start August 29th, when Mr. Seitz returns from a location trip in Arizona.

Four units will work on the short subject, Mr. Whitbeck said. In addition to the Seitz company, Gordon Jennings will make special scenes for the picture; Slavko Vorkapich will do special montage effects and Lou Harris and Harman Hoffman, who authored the script and are associate producers, will direct a unit.

All circuits, according to Mr. Doob, are raising funds for local celebrations, parades, combination advertising and so on. One house, he reported, has assessed itself two cents a seat for decorations. Mr. Doob continued by explaining that as the initial punch of the drive wears off in a few weeks, theatres will put on another local drive to sustain interest to the last day of the four-month promotion.

The "Movie Quiz" booklets will be available at the designated exchanges this Friday, the campaign committee announced along with a warning to exhibitors not to distribute them before September 1st. In the initial shipment there will be 20,000,000 booklets and it was estimated that by the time the contest is ended 200,000,000 booklets will be needed.

The five newsreels will produce a series of brief sequences exploiting the campaign and the contest for inclusion in their forthcoming issues. The promotional sequences, in some instances, will feature ranking industry executives in brief explanatory talks on the meaning and aims of the industry campaign.

Labor Support Pledged

A pledge of active support for the drive was given by George E. Browne, president of the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employes, this week when he accepted an invitation to serve on the national committee. His acceptance was hailed at campaign headquarters as a "new token of the harmonious labor

GROSSES SHOWING MID-SEASON RISE

Theatre grosses for key cities have shown an upturn for three consecutive weeks and are running ahead of June and July, according to reports from first run houses in 23 situations. The total for the week ending August 4-5 was $1,219,473.

These totals are ahead of any computed since the first week in June, when the total was $1,237,740, following the Memorial Day weekend. At that time reissues began to make their appearance in the absence of strong first run product and a decline set in which continued for the rest of the month.

EXHIBITORS PLANNING LOCAL DRIVES relations in the industry and of the unity of interest behind the nationwide drive."

The Screen Actors Guild previously adopted a resolution endorsing the campaign and offering the organization's cooperation.

Max Cohen, president of Allied of New York, this week clarified the position of National Allied States Association with respect to the drive. "There appears to be an impression that National Allied policy does not permit its members to cooperate in this campaign," Mr. Cohen said. "The impression is entirely erroneous."

P. J. Wood, secretary of the Indenepdent Theatre Owners of Ohio, forwarded a bulletin to newspaper editors this week, urging editorial support for the campaign and quoting an editorial published in the New York World-Telegram. The editorial explained the purpose of the drive and then continued:

"Theatres have felt the hard times along with all other business. The campaign is an attempt to win the public back to the box office. It aims to plant in every consciousness the slogan 'Moving Pictures Are Your Best Entertainment.' It refuses to take discouragement lying down.

"After all, the way to resume is to resume, and the moving pictures have stepped out in front to support precept with example. Other industries, we have no doubt, have been studying their hands, but the movies are the first to push out their dollars. And the film industry may well be setting the pattern and touching off the spark for other industries.

"Bold aggressive action is a tradition of the film business. Perhaps it is because it never has got over thinking of itself as a young industry, or because of the necessity for keeping in close touch with the public. It has shown itself many times to be a leader.

"The pattern being set here and the bold investment in this $1,000,000 campaign should not fail to prove contagious. . . . Full credit is due to the motion picture industry for this preview of the upswing."

$25,000 Pledged to Fund At New York Meeting

Following a meeting of approximately 200 exhibitors at the Hotel Astor, New York, the campaign committee this week announced that $25,000 was pledged, despite the fact that there was no solicitation at the session.

George W. Schaefer, executive chairman of the campaign, outlined the aims of the drive and urged complete exhibitor cooperation for it.

"It is important to stress," Mr. Schaefer said, "that this campaign was inspired from the very beginning by a group of exhibitors. Independent exhibitors participated from the very inception of the campaign and it was with their cooperation that the plan of procedure and the details of the $250,000 'Movie Quiz' contest were formulated."

Max Cohen, president of Allied of New York, urged independents to support the drive, warning that while no plan could meet every condition in the industry, it would be unwise for any theatre to remain aloof.

Mr. Cohen moved that the meeting go on record as indorsing the campaign but the chair ruled the motion was not in order. Harry Brandt, president of the Independent Theatre Owners Association, advocated additional time for members of his organization and other exhibitors to study the possible weaknesess in the "Movie Quiz" contest.

The ITOA met on Wednesday and adopted a resolution leaving the matter of cooperation to the discretion of individual members.

A plan for organizing the entire New York area into community committees to direct advertising and exploitation in neighborhoods was outlined by Mr. Doob.

Organization of 45 community committees got underway this week with meetings in the various neighborhoods Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday.

200 on Coast Pledge Support to Campaign

Two hundred circuit and unaffiliated exhibitors met at the Ambassador Hotel, Los Angeles, unanimously endorsed the "Motion Pictures' Greatest Year" campaign and signed pledges contributing their share toward the national drive.

Albert Galston, president and R. H. Poole, general manager of the Independent Theatre Owners of Southern California, pledged their organization's unequivocal support. Speakers at the session were Herman Wobber, Twentieth Century-Fox sales manager; William Rodgers, MGM sales chief, and Spyros and Charles Skouras of Fox West Coast.

The industry has suffered from a letdown in showmanship, Mr. Wobber said, pointing out that exploitation of the drive would serve as a means of restimulating initiative among exhibitors.

"We've seen the success of the steel industry, railways, ice and coal companies and auto dealers in getting together to boost their business," Mr. Wobber continued, "and with our much greater facilities for exploitation we can do a much better job than any of them."

Mr. Galston lauded the movement and said plans for the campaign are more than fair to independent exhibitors. Producers, distributors and their affiliated circuits have put up three-fourths of the expenses although their theatres number only 30 per cent of those in the country, he explained.

Plans Are Drafted In St. Louis Area

Owners of 275 theatres in the St. Louis territory met Monday to formulate plans for making a success of the industry advertising and exploitation campaign.

The meeting was called by a committee of the Motion Picture Theatre Owners' Association and the distributors, composed of Fred H. Wehrenberg, president of the MPTO; Harry Arthur, Jr., of Fanchon and Marco; Clarence Kainann, of the MPTO; Benny Reingold of Fox, and Clarence Hill of Columbia.

Fanchon and Marco, it was announced, will subscribe 100 per cent to the campaign. The subscription will total approximately $4,000 for the 40,000 seats, although the management is confident that the second run houses will be the chief beneficiaries in the campaign due to the fact that several of the pictures figuring in the contest already have been shown in first runs.

Loew-Poli Houses Plan Motor Cavalcade

With proclamations by the Governors of Massachusetts and Connecticut and the mayors of various cities, the Loew-Poli New England circuit is planning its greatest campaign in conjunction with the industry's drive.

Harry F. Shaw, division manager of the circuit, reported parades are being planned in all Loew-Poli towns, with a motor cavalcade covering all of them in a seven-day period. Headed by a large float, the procession will start in Waterbury, Saturday, stopping on succeeding days in Bridgeport, New Haven, Meriden, Hartford, Springfield and Worcester, where it will wind up on September 3rd.

In cooperation with Chambers of Commerce throughout the territory, merchants have pledged to decorate their store fronts and buildings.

Mr. Shaw hopes to make a hookup with MGM studios to get two or three stars to speak via the telephone on the opening night of the "New Show Season."

New England exhibitors met at the Statler Hotel, Boston, Thursday to perfect campaign plans for their territory. Harold B. Franklin, business manager of the drive, addressed the meeting. Max Levenson was chairman.

A New Haven local committee, composed of J. B. Fishman, Robert Russell, John Hesse and Lou Schaefer, met this week and will continue to meet frequently on plans for the campaign.

Exhibitors Reported as Enthusiastic in Kansas City

Following a Kansas City meeting at which the salient points of the industry's drive were outlined, E. C. Rhoden of Fox Midwest, and chairman of the drive's committee in the territory, announced that the program is being received enthusiastically by exhibitors.

"We know a program of this kind will work because a very small edition of the idea, which we have used for several years, has produced business," said H. E. Jameyson, district manager of Fox Midwest at Wichita. "Last year the company didn't have its usual campaign, and business fell off."

The Kansas-Missouri Theatres Association, through John Stapel, president, pledged its support.

Harrisburg Exhibitors Pool Forces for Local Campaign

Exhibitors in Harrisburg, Pa., affiliated and independent, have pooled forces for their community campaign which already is underway.

Following an initial meeting at the office of C. Floyd Hopkins of the Wilmer and Vincent Circuit, a committee, comprising Sam Gilman of Loew's, who is chairman; Mr. Hopkins, and John C. Rogers, of the State Theatre, contacted neighborhood exhibitors and lined them up behind the drive.

The committee hoped to obtain a proclamation from the mayor and the endorsement of various civic bodies.

Delaware Theatremen Hold State-Wide Banquet

The national $250,000 "Movie Quiz" contest was launched in Delaware this week when theatremen held a state-wide banquet in the Hotel DuPont, Wilmington. It was attended by Governor Richard C. McMullen, Mayor Walter W. Bacon and also other state and city officials. Carter Barron, Loew's district manager of Washington, was toastmaster and A. J. Belair, manager of the New Rialto, was chairman of the event.

Evan Hoskins and Ed Blake have resigned from Universal's studio publicity department and have been succeeded by Ed Olmstead and Belle Kantor.

ASIDES and INTERLUDES

By JAMES P. CUNNINGHAM

"Baby Snooks," contrary to the belief of millions who have heard her on Metro's "Good News" Maxwell Hour radio broadcasts, was a creation of Fannie (Baby Snooks) Brice herself in her early Broadway career.

Fred Collins, describing "The Private Life of 'Baby Snooks'" for the readers of Liberty Magazine, traces the birth of "Snooks" to Fannie's vaudeville days of 1914.

One of her songs at that time was "Poor Pauline." It made such a hit that she began to sing it in different ways, as an opera singer would sing it, as an Italian organ-grinder would do it, and so on. Finally, one night, she did it as a baby in a high chair. That's how "Snooks" was born, but it took the radio broadcasters and the honorable guilds of movie makers and coffee grinders to give it life.

One Brice anecdote related by Mr. Collins concerns Fannie's "graduation" from New York's prolific east side to amateur shows, then to singing with slides in a Yorkville movie house, where she got a dollar a day—from 11 to 11—and, finally to a $25-a-week job with a Cohan and Harris show. At that stage, Fannie—who had taken the name of Brice from that of a favorite neighbor, abandoning the family name of Borach—had one claim to beauty, a fine pair of legs. But George M. Cohan was then, as now, a realist. He probably appreciated Fannie's legs, but despaired of ever teaching her how to do anything with them. So Sam Harris had to fire her.

Fifteen years later, this same Sam Harris rehired the dismissed $25-a-week chorus girl for $2,500-a-week as the star of his Music Box Revue.

Meanwhile Fannie went out to where legs are legs and nobody gives a darn what you do with them—the Hurtig and Seaman burlesque wheel. It was while Fannie was doing her face-making and leg-lifting routine in burlesque that she married. He was a barber from Albany. "I did it," she said, "because he smelled so nice." The odor didn't last a year.

She was the first star of Metro Pictures, now Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, after it was formed late in January, 1915, in Parlor B of the old Claridge Hotel on Times Square, by Richard Rowland, first president; Joseph Engel, treasurer, and one Louis Burt Mayer, of Boston, secretary. PARAMOUNT DROPS COOPERATIVE ADS, WARNERS MAY DO THE SAME

National Advertising Campaigns To Be Substituted for Previous Practice by at Least Two Distributors; Policy Not Rigid

Dissatisfaction among distributors over the support given by exhibitors to cooperative advertising campaigns, for which both share costs, reached an action point this week when Paramount dropped its cooperative policy in favor of magazine advertising and Warner Brothers indicated it will adopt a similar position.

A form of cooperative advertising, not involving exhibitors, is scheduled to break late this week or early next week in behalf of Warner Brothers' "Four Daughters", it was explained at the company's home office, but officials declined to reveal any details.

The company's policy on the cooperative campaigns, in which a distributor and an exhibitor share the expenses of newspaper advertising above that budgeted by the house, will be apparent when the advertising campaign for "Four Daughters" is launched, executives said. The advertising will be timed to tie in with the showing of the picture in various spots, it was explained. At the same time, it was indicated that a manufacturer will cooperate, probably shouldering the expense formerly borne by exhibitors in cooperative campaigns.

Jack Cohn, vice-president of Columbia, reiterated his denouncement of "chiseling methods" employed by some exhibitors (MOTION PICTURE HERALD, April 23rd) and indicated that it may not be long before Columbia's long policy of cooperative advertising is abated or abandoned.

Officials of all the other large distributing companies said they were not contemplating any change in policy, although in some cases the executives admitted that exhibitors in some locations were far from cooperative.

Budget Cut Cited

The announcement of Paramount's decision to eliminate cooperative advertising was made by Robert Gillham, advertising director, who pointed out that in 1933 exhibitors cut their advertising budgets.

"The result," he continued, "was reflected in distributors' budgets." Whereas in 1933, Paramount was spending 11 per cent of its total budget in 'dealers helps,' cooperative advertising, assistance advertising, free paper, free posting, the figure had risen to 40 per cent last year.

"The motion picture theatre has leaned too heavily on the distributor in the matter of cooperative advertising. We are spending our money this year where exhibitors' money won't reach, but where exhibitors may still profit from the advertising if they are wideawake and tie in with this new policy."

Paramount's new advertising policy is explained in a large sized booklet, 15,000 of which were sent to exhibitors this week. The booklet tells the story behind the advertising and gives Paramount salesmen a new slogan: "If it's a Paramount picture it's not only the best show in town, it's the best advertised show in town."

Each picture is to be judged separately and the type of reader of each magazine will determine which films will be advertised in the various national magazines. The first advertisement appeared in Saturday Evening Post this month.

Another indication of Paramount's "streamlined merchandising" is in a forthcoming tieup with a new radio network series which will plug theatre attendance directly.

Hair Tonic and Passes

Fitch's Hair Tonic series, which will start next month, will take over the Paramount Theatre idea of name bands. Instead of giveaways of Elgin watches, as formerly, they will give one-person passes to theatres showing Paramount pictures. The hair tonic company asked Paramount to cooperate by giving away 500 two-person passes but Mr. Gillham reached an agreement for one-person passes on the condition that the listeners be urged to see such-and-such a Paramount film. It was reasoned that the recipient of a one-person pass would take along another person, thus increasing grosses regularly.

United Artists' position with regard to cooperative advertising is different from that of other companies, according to Lynn Farnol, director of advertising and publicity. He pointed out that UA producers make only "A" pictures with the result that "we cannot take a chance on dropping cooperative advertising."

He explained, though, that the UA cooperative advertising is handled through an agency, thus eliminating the possibility of an exhibitor failing to live up to his part of an agreement on a cooperative campaign.

"We are going to continue to use cooperative advertising in pivotal key spots," Mr. Farnol said.

The position of Twentieth Century-Fox was similarly explained by Charles McCarthy, advertising and publicity director. "We're continuing it (cooperative advertising) and finding it extremely successful," Mr. McCarthy commented.

At Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Howard Dietz, director of publicity and advertising, explained that his company will continue to stage cooperative campaigns but pointed out that it is not customary for his company "to promote cooperative advertising in spots where exhibitors are uncooperative."

Barret McCormick and John Joseph, advertising and publicity directors of RKO and Universal, respectively, voiced similar opinions. Neither company was represented as having any set policy for the handling of advertising on pictures. Each picture, both Mr. McCormick and Mr. Joseph said, is handled in the best way that can be devised by the advertising department.

Advertising Importance Stressed

At Columbia, Mr. Cohn pointed out that: "Exhibitors must realize they are in show business and regardless of every other consideration look upon advertising as the life blood of their business."

Mr. Cohn reflected the opinion held by distributors that exhibitors do not realize that with or without cooperative or any other kind of advertising, they must maintain good minimum budgets in order to continue the stimulus, so necessary at all times, which advertising gives to the picture business.

"One reason the distributors are discouraged," Mr. Cohn commented, "is that since the companies offered cooperative campaigns, a great many exhibitors have taken advantage of the cooperative advertising to cut down their own advertising budgets almost to zero. They should consider cooperative advertising as a plus quantity which increases business. No exhibitor should mind spending more money if it means more business, even if the distributor does get more.

"We don't mind giving money for cooperative advertising if the exhibitor will use it to increase his own budget for advertising. But we're fed up with giving the exhibitors money to sell a picture and then seeing them not only not use it for that but actually cut their own house budget."

The Warner Brothers plan was described as an enlargement of the plan evolved last winter (MOTION PICTURE HERALD, February 12th). At that time, Warner Brothers announced an amendment to its cooperative advertising policy to provide for the company having complete control over all advertising campaigns in which it shared expenses.

"We feel we have been imposed upon by some exhibitors," Mort Blumenstock, eastern director of advertising and publicity, said at that time.

EQUITY EMPHASIZES "CAN'T HAPPEN HERE"

Newsreel pictures of Sinclair Lewis appearing in the stage adaptation of his novel, "It Can't Happen Here," at a summer theatre in Cohasset, Mass., were barred by a ruling of the executive council of Actors Equity Association, the current issue official publication of the Association discloses.

According to the magazine Pathe News in a letter to Arthur Byron, president, asked that it be permitted to photograph the writer-actor and his company at work without having to meet Equity's condition of a week's pay for each day or fraction of a day worked. The Equity Council said only on Equity conditions. The pictures were not made.

Schedule for Half-Season Ready at 20th Century-Fox

Every picture slated for release before December 31st of the current year was in work or already completed this week at the Twentieth Century-Fox studio. Among them are "My Lucky Star," "Straight, Place and Show," "Hold That Co-Ed," "Just Around the Corner," "Submarine Patrol," "Suez," "By the Dawn's Early Light," "Speed to Burn," "Safety in Numbers," "Time Out for Murder," "Meet the Girls," "Mysterious Mr. Moto," "While New York Sleeps" and "Five of a Kind."

This week a company of 100, headed by Director Henry King and including Tyrone Power, Nancy Kelly, Henry Fonda, Brian Donlevy, Walter Brennan and Donald Meek left for location in the Ozark Mountains to Work on "Jesse James," the first big color picture scheduled by the company for the new season. Ninety per cent of the shooting on the film will be done on location, which is near Pineville, Missouri.

RKO RADIO PICTURES

PRODUCERS SET 8-MONTH RECORD WITH PURCHASE OF 59 STORIES

RKO Acquires Film Rights to "Saint" Series of 21 Novels; June Buys Include 29 Books, 24 Originals and Three Plays

Two records as to the number of literary properties acquired by motion picture producers were set in the last two months. In June, 12 producers went on a virtual buying spree and purchased the film rights to 59 stories, the highest number purchased in any 30-day period in the last eight months. However, this month, July, the producers, 11 of them, did a complete about face and bought only 18 properties—the smallest number in more than a year.

The record in June was attained mainly through the acquisition by RKO-Radio of 21 novels in the "Saint" series by Leslie Charteris. But, even without this wholesale deal, purchases for the month were greater than in the preceding three months.

RKO's deal called for the outright purchase of only two novels, "The Million Pound Day," and "Angels of Doom," but an option was taken on all the other works of the author, Mr. Charteris. The company based its action on the success of the first Charteris story adapted to the screen, "Saint in New York."

In addition to raising the total to a new high for the last nine month, RKO's deal placed novels in the position of being the favorite of producers for the month. The total purchases were divided into four divisions: novels, 29; originals, 24; plays, three, and magazine stories, three. This marked the first time also since last September that a majority of the purchases were not original materials. As the accompanying statistical box shows, last September's purchases aggregated 68 of which only 24 were originals.

Warners Buy "Nineties"

In most cases the properties acquired during June were for use during the approaching season. Definite plans have not yet been made for most of the properties, but in the case of Warner Brothers' purchase of Louis Sobel's "The Gay Nineties," the names of several players who will appear in the production were announced. They included Dick Powell, Pat O'Brien, Olivia de Haviland, Kay Francis, George Brent, Humphrey Bogart, Ann Sheridan and Janet Kay Chapman.

Miss Sheridan, the studio's announcement said, will have a singing role in the film. The film is to be a production of the proportions of "42nd Street," the announcement continued.

Out of the ordinary run of purchases was the buying by Universal of the screen rights to the King Features' cartoon strip, "Flash Gordon."

RKO's purchases, because of the Charteris deal, placed that studio in the lead as the heaviest buyer of the month. The buying was done by 12 producers. In addition to the novels, RKO acquired the rights to an original story and one play. Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, ranking as the second heaviest buyer during June, made a variety of purchases that included three originals, two plays, one book and one magazine story.

Other buyers and the number of properties they acquired were Warner Brothers, one magazine story, one original and one novel; Universal, five originals and one magazine story; Samuel Goldwyn, two originals and one novel; Monogram, six originals; Harry Sherman, four novels; Columbia, two originals; Paramount, one original; Republic, two originals; Hal Roach, one original; and GB, one novel.

The only purchase by Paramount during the month was an original story by Mark Jerome, a New York University student. The story's original title, "Pushover," will not be used for the picture, but a new title has not been selected as yet. Mr. Jerome, who is studying short story writing at the University, won second prize with the story in a contest conducted at the school by Paul Gallico, former newspaper sports writer who is now devoting most of his time to the writing of magazine stories. Mr. Gallico conducted a series of lectures at the university and established a fund with the salary he received. The fund was divided among the three students who, in his opinion, wrote the best stories. Mr. Jerome's ranked second.

The one play acquired by RKO was Ayn Rand's "The Night of January 16," which ran on Broadway for 235 performances with Walter Pidgeon and Doris Nolan in the leading roles. The playwright, according to RKO, wrote the play while working in the RKO Radio wardrobe department.

The other two plays purchased by MGM were "Death on the Table," by Frederick Guy Beauchamp and Roland Pertwee, and "How to Get Tough About It," by Robert Ardrey.

"Borrowed Time" to MGM

The July purchases consisted of 11 originals, five novels and two plays, both of which were bought by MGM. This company was the heaviest buyer of the month, acquiring, in addition to the two plays, two original stories and one novel.

MGM did not disclose the price paid for "On Borrowed Time," which is in its sixth month at the Longacre Theatre in New York City. The play was written by Paul Osborn, based on Lawrence E. Watkin's novel of the same name which was published last year. The other play was "Four Cents a Word," for which MGM was reported to have paid $20,000.

Republic, Henri Decoin, and GB were the only other producers which acquired more than one property. Republic bought two originals, GB took title to two novels, and Mr. Decoin, husband of Danielle Darrieux, bought two originals. The other purchasers were Fine Arts Pictures, Universal, Samuel Goldwyn, Paramount and Ed Finney, one original each, and Warner Brothers and Alexander Korda, one novel each.

Bell Wins Another Showmanship Prize

Ray Bell, of Loew's Capitol theatre, Washington, D.C., won the United Artists first prize of $500 for his campaign on Walter Wanger's "Blockade," held in connection with "National Showmen's Week," sponsored by United Artists, it was announced at the luncheon attended by the judges at the Waldorf Astoria Hotel, New York, on Tuesday. Mr. Bell only recently won a Silver Placque for the Second Quarter of the Quigley Awards, and has won a number of other exploitation awards.

The judges also announced that Charles Schlaifer, of the United Artists theatre, San Francisco won the second prize of $250. Third prize of $100 was won by E. V. Dinnerman, of the RKO Palace, Cincinnati.

Sid Holland of the Elco, Elkhart, Indiana, and I. E. Hoig, of the Main, Pueblo, won fourth and fifth prizes respectively, and will receive $50 each. Sixth and seventh prizes of $25 each were won by Clinton Wander, of Loew's Broad, Columbus, and F. D. Nessel of the Jefferson, Goshen, Indiana.

The judges who attended the luncheon were Harry D. Buckley, vice-president of United Artists; A. W. Smith, Jr., general sales manager; Harry Kosiner, Walter Wanger representative; Lynn Farnol, United Artists director of advertising and publicity; Ben Washer of United Artists publicity; A-Mike Vogel, chairman of the Managers Round Table of MOTION PICTURE HERALD, and Jack Harrower, Chick Lewis, Epes Sarget and William Ornstein.

Claire Trevor, Wurtzel Form New Producing Unit

Claire Trevor, at present under contract to no studio, and her agent, Harry Wurtzel, are forming a new producer-star company under which the actress will star in three pictures for the new season.

Financing is said to have been arranged, already, with two pictures to be produced in Hollywood and one at the Eastern Service Studio. The budget on each picture is said to approximate $500,000.

INDUSTRY STUDIES TRUST SUIT DEFENSE; FEDERAL MEN DIFFER ON MONOPOLY

General Terms of Answer to Government Suit Expected to Include Complaints of Discrimination and Unconstitutionality

A varied assortment of conclusions are being drawn, some based on fact, others on speculation, as to what the defendant motion picture industry and the plaintiff United States Government are planning in procedure for the pending legal battle in New York's federal courts in the government's trust suit to divorce production, distribution and exhibition and abolish Hollywood's talent pool and many prevalent practices of distribution-exhibition.

In one quarter opinion held that the absence of any Federal legislation even remotely covering the separation of production and distribution from theatre ownership and operation will be cited by defense attorneys in fighting the anti-trust suit.

The defense also will contend, it was said, that the Government's demand that the courts rule for the severance of the two main divisions of the industry's function is discrimination against a particular industry and therefore contrary to law.

If the Government wants to establish the principle of "divorcement" in business, the proper method, it was said, would be for Congress to pass a general law applying to all industries alike.

In the absence of such legislation, it was pointed out, the courts will have to rule on the issue under the anti-trust laws and the question of whether integration of functions constitutes monopoly in restraint of trade will have to be decided in the light of public interest.

Among numerous other points of attack, the defense, it was reported, is expected to contend that the "divorcement" sought by the Government would be confiscation of property in violation of the Constitution.

Industry executives declared that an adequate defense will be prepared by company lawyers and special counsel who will constitute some of "big" names of the nation's bar.

Many were the law firms mentioned as candidates for the important and potentially lucrative position of chief counsel for the defendants. Most prominently named in this connection were Simpson, Thacher and Bartlett; Donovan, Leisure, Newton and Lumbard, and Cravath, de Gersdorf, Swaine and Wood.

It is considered improbable at this time that a unanimous agreement will be reached by the defense on any one firm or attorney. A majority of the defendants are almost certain to agree on the issue, but it is equally certain that others will not consent to representation by any counsel not of their own choice.

Legal opinion among counsel for the defendants is at variance also on other phases of procedure. Some contend a settlement by a consent decree is desirous while others continue to insist that under no circumstances will they become parties to a consent decree.

The difference of opinion extends to the question of whether the defendants should enter into stipulations of fact in connection with the Government's complaint. Advocates of stipulations claim that the charges are so all-embracing that much of general industry practice could be stipulated in advance of trial and the legality of the practices left to the court to determine. Others declare they would refuse to consent to any stipulations.

Meanwhile, additional stipulations for extension to November 1st, of the time for defendants to reply to the Government's suit were filed in Federal court, New York.

The new stipulations revealed that Goldwater & Flynn is acting as counsel for Keith-Albee-Orpheum and officers of that RKO affiliate. The firm is counsel for M. J. Meehan, who holds a majority of the KAO preferred stock.

The stipulations were signed in behalf of the government by Wendell Berge, special assistant to the attorney general, and operate as an extension from August 9th. All the stipulations provided that if any of the defendants, other than those specifically listed in any particular group, should be served, or should voluntarily appear by October 12th, the extensions would automatically cover them.

Robert W. Perkins filed a stipulation for Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., Vitagraph, Inc., The Vitaphone Corporation, Warner Brothers Circuit Management Corporation, and executives of the company.

Dwight, Harris, Koegel and Caskey signed an extensive agreement in behalf of Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation, its subsidiaries and executives of the company.

WILL SEEK "ANOTHER CHANCE" FOR DISTRIBUTORS

Leon S. Snider, joint managing director of the Snider-Dean circuit, Australia, announced in Washington this week that he will plead with Australian exhibitors to give the major distributors "another chance" before pressing for government action.

Mr. Snider, an authorized spokesman for the New South Wales Exhibitors Association, said he will inform the group that the distributors have promised to be "open and fair" in their dealings with exhibitors.

"If they keep their promises," he said, "they will get our support against the government reforms that are brewing. Otherwise, we will have no alternative."

Mr. Snider said that the Australian Government has "unofficially indicated" it would investigate instances of major distributor "aggression" against independent exhibitors, including the building of new theatres in opposition to established operators, and that this might lead to a "divorcement" suit similar to North Dakota's.

Berle Expresses "Heretical" Views on Government Policy; Arnold Broadcasts Plea for Anti-trust Division Expansion

by FRANCIS L. BURT
in Washington

Conflicting views of the monopoly situation were voiced last week as assistant secretary of state A. A. Berle, Jr., himself long a member of the White House "brain trust" took issue with nearly every New Deal economist in the Administration by declaring, among other things, that the small independent business man is not necessarily the saint he has been pictured, while assistant attorney general Thurman Arnold told a radio audience that the independents have been the victims of a purge.

Mr. Berle, who wields a trenchant pen, cast his stone in a memorandum on the question of monopoly, prepared at the request of several members of the Administration's monopoly committee.

In that report, he gave his views of the proper approach to the monopoly situation—few of which coincided with views held by the Administration economists who have been taking a prominent part in the study. More to the point, the report was submitted as the committee planned for the holding of public hearings, to start shortly after Labor Day, and, it is rumored, created considerable confusion among the members.

The extent of Mr. Berle's apostasy was evident, not only by his denial of the belief that "big business" is an unmitigated evil, but by his suggestion that there was nothing sacrosanct about little business.

Big business is not necessarily more or less efficient than little business, he held, and little business men are no more ethical than their large competitors, nor less inclined to monopolistic practices, where they can profitably use them.

Charges Monopoly Protection

In the field of monopoly, Mr. Berle suggested that small enterprises may need protection against the monopolistic power of labor unions, and intimated that the Government itself had not been above giving aid to monopoly through direct subsidies, such as those to shipping and aviation companies, or indirectly through Government contracts, patent and trade-mark privileges, tariff protection, etc., and even through unemployment relief and Government loans.

Hardly a fetish of the New Deal was unscathed by Mr. Berle's pen, one of his sharpest criticisms being directed at that favorite of secretary of the interior Harold Ickes', the "sixty families" as portrayed in a book adopted wholeheartedly by the secretary but which the state department official said, like many other books, was highly inaccurate.

Recipient of sharp criticism was the "shotgun" method of industrial control which has been followed by the New Deal, imposing regulation without first adopting adequate definitions of standards. As an example, he cited the O'Mahoney bill for the Federal licensing of interstate corporations, which he saw as the first step toward the setting up of an economic dictator.

STUDY SUIT DEFENSE

six defendants in a $1,050,000 suit filed by the La Crosse Theatres Company, Inc., has petitioned the United States district court, Madison, for dismissal of the complaint against him.

Other defendants in the suit are Paramount, Twentieth Century-Fox, United Artists, Wellworth Theatres of Wisconsin, Inc., and the Minnesota Amusement Company.

The defendants have until Monday to file answers to the suit which was instituted July 14th.

Suit Against B. & K. Nears Completion

The suit being prepared by Joseph Rosenberg for Allied Theatres of Illinois against the major film companies and Balaban & Katz is rapidly nearing completion, according to Mr. Rosenberg. Filing of the suit probably will take place late this week.

The proposed suit is the result of a long fight between Allied theatre members and B&K over clearance matters. A number of conferences were held recently between circuit executives, distributor leaders and Allied officials but no agreement was reached and no concessions were made.

Hearing in Momand Suit Scheduled for Tuesday

A hearing on the motion of the defendants in the A. B. Momand anti-trust suit to strike out certain petitions, was held in abeyance until August 30th by A. B. Murrah, federal judge in Oklahoma City, last Friday.

The judge asked that a brief outline of the proposed arguments of the defense, major companies and the Griffith Amusement Company and the plaintiffs be given to him for study before next Tuesday.

Paramount To File Appeal In North Dakota Case

Paramount is planning to file an appeal from the Federal statutory court decision upholding the constitutionality of the North Dakota affiliated theatre "divorcement" law by the middle of September.

The appeal will go on the supreme court calendar and may be reached for hearing by the end of the year or shortly thereafter. A decision could be expected by March, 1939.

Under the decree filed in Fargo, Paramount's bill of complaint was dismissed and a 30-day stay was granted to permit the company and its affiliates to take their appeal to the supreme court.

Hearing on Motion Set for October 4th

Hearing on a motion made by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for dismissal of an anti-trust action brought against it and other film companies by the Gary Theatres Company will be held by William Holly, federal judge in Chicago October 4. MGM will seek the dismissal on the ground that it is not licensed in Illinois.

Canadians Advised To Sign Under Protest

The Independent Theatres Association of Ontario has advised exhibitor members to sign deals for next season's product only under protest. They also were asked to submit information relative to the contract form offered by exchanges and their own views on the contract situation.

Behind the move is the fact that the new license agreement does not contain any of the revisions proposed by the theatre organization during a series of conferences with the Motion Picture Distributors' Association, but contains other provisions protested by the organization.

Berle and Arnold Express Divergent Views on Trusts

that it should not go into its investigation with any preconceived ideas as to what it was going to do to and for industry, the memorandum urged that the study be made a search for types of business organization that now serve public wants adequately, but warned that there is no reason to believe that such an organization of industry can be limited to any single system, or any single standard of size or set of practices.

No Names Named

Mr. Berle named no businesses or industries as either desirable or undesirable, but his comments were applicable to all—motion pictures as well as steel, oil as well as aluminum.

On Wednesday a member of the National Economic Committee disclosed that government departments connected with the Congressional-executive monopoly investigation have decided to start subpoenaing records of business firms to advance their preliminary studies.

The Department of Justice, it was indicated by Mr. Arnold, will not wait for the monopoly committee to complete its work before attempting strict enforcement of the anti-trust statutes.

Discussing the anti-trust laws in a radio address the chief of the anti-trust division compared the small staff of the department to the "armies" of 1,000 or more persons which other regulatory bodies, such as the Securities and Exchange Commission, have for the enforcement of a single law, and called for expansion of the division to a point where it will be possible to wage a day-by-day campaign.

Citing the situations with which the department must deal, Mr. Arnold referred to the motion picture and oil industries which, he said, have erected "toll bridges" between the independents and their markets, sometimes legally, which the Government finds it difficult to tear down. He suggested that where such barriers have been erected legally in industries in which there is a public interest, Congress might well go beyond the anti-trust laws in the enactment of legislation to regulate the activities of the large organizations.

Film Business Cited

In the film industry, he said, the independent theatre owners are the victims of "arbitrary industrial control by those who have erected toll bridges over which consumers and small business men must pass in order to buy or sell."

Outlining the situation in the motion picture field, the Department of Justice official pointed out that it was due, in part, to the acts of single organizations which "played rough" and in part to the failure of the Government to step in at the beginning and quash the activities which led to the development of the present condition.

"If a single industry turns buccaneer, all decent industries in the group must follow, in the absence of a referee," he said.

"As early as 1921, Mr. Adolph Zukor made a speech in which he predicted the misfortunes which would come from the monopoly control of theatres. He then became one of the leaders in acquiring control of theatres.

"It is not fair to criticize Mr. Zukor. With the acquiescent policy of the Government in 1920 to 1930, he had to acquire control or someone else would have beat him. We cannot refuse to penalize rough play in the competitive game and then complain because the more gentle team its not successful."

ITALIAN ACTORS FACE NAME BAN

The Ministry of Popular Culture in Italy has ordered vaudeville performers to end the practice of billing themselves under foreign names unless they really are foreigners. It has been the practice in Italy for many comedians, dancers, acrobats and other music hall performers to assume English or French names for professional purposes. The order does not prevent foreign performers from appearing under their real names.

Federal Officers Investigate 'School'

United States postal authorities entered into the widespread investigation of the National Talent Pictures Corporation of Hollywood this week after Hollywood police asserted they had smashed what they alleged to be one of the biggest motion picture racket talent-school schemes ever to operate in the film capital.

The federal officers took charge of various records and documents taken in the raid by police Friday on the company's studio-like plant located in the heart of Hollywood. Particular attention was paid to circulars and letters said to have been mailed out over the nation carrying promises to film-struck prospects.

Officers of the company, headed by Ira C. Overdorff, 55, were released from custody on bonds of $500 each. Arraignment on charges of grand theft and bunco was set for Friday.

Lieutenant Merle Swan, head of the raiding police party, said an examination of the books revealed that "close to $200,000" had been taken in since the corporation began operating about a year ago.

Lieutenant Swan said agents of the company contacted dance schools throughout the country and sold "franchises" at $120 apiece. The schools in turn were then permitted to send one star pupil, although several sent more than one, to Hollywood, where they were supposed to receive instruction from ace Hollywood dance directors.

COURT GETS $5,450,000 PLAN FOR EDUCATIONAL-GRANDNATIONAL UNIT

Hammons To Be President, Alperson Vice-Chairman; Both Units Will Retain Brand Names on All New Releases

With the merger of Educational Pictures and Grand National merely awaiting ratification by the District Court in Los Angeles, where a hearing is scheduled for Saturday morning, principals of both sides led by E. W. Hammons, for Educational, and Edward Alperson, for Grand National, proceeded this week to work out final operating details of the new organization.

The new corporation will be a $5,450,000 structure, as hereinafter described. It will assume all contracts, leases and liabilities of the bankrupt Grand National, all of Educational's assets, except its corporate name, franchise, trade-mark and non-theatrical rights, and also the stock in the studio now under lease to the Grand National trustees. Certain liabilities of Educational will also be assumed, and it is further provided that Edward Alperson will become vice-chairman of the board and general manager of distribution on a five-year contract at a salary of $1,000 weekly, plus a stock bonus.

Mr. Hammons, as president of the new corporation, declared Monday in New York that the brand name of his Educational Pictures Company will be perpetuated, and that all Educational product distributed by new Grand National will bear its own brand name. In addition, the corporate identity of Educational will be retained.

Mr. Hammons said that no final production schedule for the new season had been worked out yet, but observed, "We will contribute whatever product is necessary."

The Educational president did not go to the coast for the Grand National creditors' final hearing on the merger agreement in the Federal District Court Saturday. He remained in New York to attend a meeting of Educational stockholders on Thursday which was called to ratify the action of the company's board of directors in approving the merger. However, Educational will be represented at the coast hearing by T. R. Williams, treasurer.

No opposition to the merger is anticipated from stockholders or creditors at either meeting. Mr. Hammons will head the new company which essentially will become a subsidiary of Educational in that Educational will have a controlling interest.

Hearing in Reorganization

The hearing on Saturday in Los Angeles Federal Court is in proceedings for the reorganization of Grand National Films, Inc., a Delaware corporation, the distributing unit, and Grand National Studios, Inc., a California corporation, the production subsidiary. It will be held before William P. James in the Pacific Electric Building, upon a petition filed by Mr. Alperson and Lloyd Wright, Grand National trustees.

The formal notice to Grand National creditors contains among others the following provisions:

"A new corporation (hereinafter more particularly described) will purchase from the trustees all of the assets of debtor and subsidiary (Grand National) except cash, on the following basis:

"The new corporation will pay and issue to the trustees for the properties so purchased (a) $50,000 in cash; (b) $300,000 par value of its preferred stock; (c) 219,563 shares of its common stock; and (d) warrants representing the right to purchase within 12 months from date of issue 109,782 shares of its common stock at $1 per share; the new corporation will assume all contracts, leases and liabilities of the trustees except trustees' and attorneys' fees unpaid at the time of transfer and liabilities which the trustees can pay from cash on hand; and assume all contracts and leases of Debtor and of Subsidiary (Grand National) which currently are being performed by the trustees.

Capitalization $5,450,000

"Educational will organize the new corporation with an authorized capital of at least 45,000 shares of five per cent cumulative preferred stock of the par value of $10 per share redeemable at 103 per cent of par and 5,000,000 shares of common stock of the par value of $1 per share. Educational will transfer to the new corporation all of Educational's assets, except its corporate name and franchise, its trademark, non-theatrical rights in pictures now held, and stock in a subsidiary which owns the studio now under lease to the trustees. Said proposal contains a representation by Educational that the fair going-concern value of such assets so to be transferred over and above liabilities is now and at the time of such transfer will be more than $1,100,000.

"The new corporation will assume the liabilities of Educational and certain subsidiaries which Educational represents do not and at the time of transfer will not exceed $375,000. In consideration of the transfer of said assets to the new corporation it will issue to Educational 1,100,000 shares of its common stock and warrants representing the right to purchase, within twelve months from date of issue, 550,000 shares of common stock at $1 per share.

"Educational agrees to make arrangements for the immediate purchase of $150,000 par value of the new corporation's preferred stock for cash at a price equal to the par value thereof.

"Educational will give the new corporation a three-year option to purchase all the stock of the subsidiary which owns said studio, which Educational holds (90% of all outstanding stock) for 500,000 shares of common stock of the new corporation less a number of shares equal to the number of dollars of indebtedness of said subsidiary at the time of such purchase.

"Educational agrees that at any time after the approval of said proposal by the court and prior to August 11, 1939, it will purchase from the trustees for cash, upon 30 days' prior written notice, all or any part of said $300,000 par value of preferred stock at a price equal to 66 2/3% of par.

"The proposal provides that in the event the court does not authorize the acceptance thereof by the trustees on or prior to August 27, 1938, Educational shall have no further liabilities thereunder.

Alperson Vice-Chairman

"The undersigned, Edward L. Alperson, has agreed with Educational that, if the foregoing proposal shall be approved by the court and shall become effective, he will become associated with the new corporation as vice-chairman of its board of directors and general manager of distribution for five years at a cash salary of $1,000 per week, plus 14,000 shares of the common stock of the new corporation payable during the first year of such employment. Under the agreement, in the event that any compensation shall be paid to the president of the new corporation in shares of its capital stock, Alperson shall be entitled to receive as additional compensation for the same period a like amount of such stock at least equal to compensation in stock paid to the president of the new corporation. Such employment is to be terminable by either party at the end of any year by six months' notice."

VODE-VISION ASKS LA GUARDIA'S HELP

The Vode-Vision Corporation has requested Mayor F. H. LaGuardia of New York to appoint a fact finding commission to determine the merits of a controversy between the company and the American Federation of Musicians. The company proposes to install a new type of entertainment in film theatres. The shows would consist of short-length films using musicians, dancers and singers, with some of the talent on the stage as well as the screen.

Joseph N. Weber, president of the AFM, withholds the use of members for the recordings on the ground that such "canned music" would make the return of musicians to theatres "practically impossible."

Empire To Release 107 Features in Canada

Empire-Universal Films, Ltd., Toronto, will distribute a total of 107 features, eight serials and short subjects in Canada for the 1938-39 season, according to W. A. Ferry, general manager. The pictures will be from Universal, Republic, GB and Educational. The Canadian distributor has selected 12 films from GB as suitable for the Dominion, including "To the Victor," "They Came by Night," "Climbing High" and "Asking for Trouble."

Frank Fisher, former office manager of the Toronto branch of Empire-Universal Films, has been named eastern district supervisor with headquarters in Montreal. Succeeding him at Toronto is Ben Plottel, from the sales staff, while Joseph Palansky, salesman at the Winnipeg branch, has been transferred to Toronto. Robert Simmons, formerly with Paramount Film Service at Winnipeg, is now with Empire-Universal there.

Moore Joins GB

Robert Moore, son of Morrill Moore, manager of the Fox Rockhill, Kansas City, has resigned as shipper to join GB as booker and city salesman. L. T. Garlow, formerly salesman for the exchange under Douglas Desch, has resigned and is in California.

RCA RESUMES REGULAR TELEVISING; ATC DENIES OBSOLESCENCE OF SETS

Manufacturer Answers Claims of Experimental Status with Guarantee of Present Apparatus; GB Plans World Coverage

Still remaining outwardly indifferent to the fact that they were not the first to place television home receiving sets on the market, Radio Corporation of America and the National Broadcasting Company this week resumed experimental telecasts in the New York metropolitan area.

Coincident with the return of RCA-NBC television broadcasting to New York City—the first since last spring—the American Television Corporation replied to reports that sets for sale today are liable to become obsolete almost overnight by formally announcing that its sets are guaranteed against obsolescence for 12 months.

Germany today is the world's leading television center despite the fact that England, France and the United States have been given the most publicity on the subject, according to Marshall P. Wilder, television engineer for the National Union Radio Corporation, manufacturers of radio television tubes and parts.

Mr. Wilder recently returned from a six-week study of European television and made known his findings at a press luncheon in the RCA Building Luncheon Club, Tuesday.

Although there is no commercial television in Germany at this time, Mr. Wilder said that television transmissions on a regular basis will begin in Germany October 1st. After these transmissions start, Mr. Wilder declared, the world will learn of the remarkable strides made by the German television scientists during several years of laboratory work and experimental transmissions.

There are approximately eight different manufacturers and development laboratories now showing models of television receivers in Germany, Mr. Wilder explained.

The transmission of programs will be from a 15-kilowatt station on top of the Amerika Haus, Berlin, a new building.

The report that "if television engineers make a few changes in the basic operations of transmitting a program, television sets being produced today will be practically obsolete" was published in the Wall Street Journal last week and this week ATC responded with its announcement of a one year guarantee.

ATC was the first to place its home receiving sets on the open market. The event was launched last spring with full page advertisements inserted in New York City newspapers.

Any manufacturer placing a set on the market now, is running the risk of having the set become obsolete almost over night, C. W. Farrington, RCA television coordinator, declared at that time (MOTION PICTURE HERALD, June 11th).

Cites "Fundamental Principles"

But Louis W. Parker, chief engineer for American Television, did not agree with this viewpoint in his statement issued this week. "Fundamental principles of modern electronic television, with one exception leave nothing to be desired and therefore obviate the necessity for change," he said. "The excepted point which, in the opinion of some engineers, may be improved is the socalled synchronization method. This synchronization enables the assembling of the picture elements in the same order on the receiving screen as they were picked up on the transmitting end."

The formal announcement continued with the declaration that according to Mr. Parker, the marked flexibility of the system designed by him makes it possible for ATC to guarantee television receivers against obsolescence without unusual commercial risk. Even if a change in television transmission should be so radical as to require adjustment of a set in the future, such adjustment of the receiver by an ordinary radio service man would involve a negligible service charge, according to ATC.

Samuel M. Saltzman, president of American Television, expressed wonder that some engineers are concerned about fundamental changes in the near future.

"Why the timidity?" he asked. "Television belongs to the public. Thousands have seen successful public demonstrations of receiving sets and are thrilled with the clear pictures being pulled out of thin air. During the past four years—the most important in television history—no important change has been made or expected, nothing important has been discovered in this 'new' art.

"Pictures demonstrated by RCA in 1934 at a convention of the Institute of Radio Engineers compared favorably with those exhibited now. Receivers made in 1934 can be used now with a few minor changes that any expert serviceman can make to produce fair pictures from present-day transmitters.

"Negative reports concerning television problems have no real basis in technical fact, but can only be prompted by economic considerations in a field that eventually will be competitive."

"Better Results" Sought

However, the Wall Street Journal advanced the opinion that "because engineers are not completely satisfied with the results obtained from certain basic operations in transmitting television, set manufacturers generally are holding up production until better transmitting results are obtained and engineers are satisfied."

NBC resumed its experimental broadcasts on Tuesday with a telecast of "Good Medicine," a sketch with Lily Cahill in the leading role. The second telecast of the week will be given Friday from 8 to 9 p.m. EDST, and will be headed by Crosby Gaige, who will exhibit and comment on models he recently purchased from the collection of the United States patent offices.

The broadcasts are scheduled to continue for four weeks, with film and live entertainment programs being presented on Tuesday and Fridays. Test charts and still pictures, of no entertainment value but considered of great assistance to experimenters, will be transmitted four afternoons a week, Tuesdays through Fridays.

RCA Institute will begin a course in television starting with the fall term, convening September 6th. For persons who have no previous training in radio engineering the course will require a period of two years in the day school or five years in the evening school. Special television units of six months' duration in the day school or one year in the evening school will be available.

GB Television Plans Worldwide

The commercial television plans for Gaumont British, which owns the Baird televison patents, are worldwide in scope and will be undertaken on that basis as soon as feasible, Arthur A. Lee, American head of GB, said. Mr. Lee did not make any forecast as to when his company will enter the United States market, pointing out that "when it is commercially practicable, it is natural that the company will enter this market as well as others throughout the world."

The British Broadcasting Company this week decided to telecast daily two GB films, "Jack Ahoy" and "Aunt Sally" during the Radiolympia Exhibition which will run for ten days in London.

ARMY TECHNICIANS STUDY TELEVISION

Technical experts of the United States Army are studying the military possibilities of television, a report from Washington by United Press relates. The experts are convinced that a moving picture version of an enemy's movements hundreds of miles away is a possibility in the near future.

Such a technical development would enable the general staffs, remaining far behind the lines, to revise plans and issue new orders instantaneously thus checkmating surprise moves by the enemy.

The nature of the experiments and the stage of development are closely guarded secrets. But military experts say that with the present day development of television it is possible to install a transmitting set in an airplane and send frequent picture flashes back to headquarters many miles distant.

National Decency Legion Classifies Twelve Films

Of 12 films reviewed and classified by the National Legion of Decency in its listing for the current week eight were approved for general patronage, three were found unobjectionable for adults and one was cited as objectionable in part. The pictures and their classification follow:

Class A-1, Unobjectionable for General Patronage: "Blockheads," "Come On, Leathernecks," "In Old Mexico," "Man from Music Mountain," "The Missing Guest," "Safety in Numbers," "The Utah Trail," "The Valley of the Giants." Class A-2, Unobjectionable for Adults: "High Command," "Racket Busters," "Smashing the Rackets." Class B, Objectionable in Part: "Secrets of an Actress."

Set Warner Release Dates

Release dates for the eight color short subjects to be produced in Hollywood by Warner Brothers for the new season have been set as follows: September 15th, "Campus Cinderella;" October 15th, "Declaration of Independence;" December 1st, "He Sang Yankee Doodle;" January 15th, "Hollywood Holiday;" March 1st, "Lincoln at the White House;" April 15th, "Ain't Rio Grande;" June 1st, "The American Cavalcade;" and July 15th, a novelty subject.

"REDS" RUN WPA THEATRE; USING FILM PLAYERS, DIES GROUP HEARS

Communist Influence in Project Abetted by Executives, Witness Charges; Alliance Said to Control Employment

The Dies Congressional Committee in Washington investigating un-American activities this week abandoned, apparently only temporarily, its taking of testimony on conditions in Hollywood, to hear charges that the Reds also are running the Federal Theatre Project in New York, with the aid of Mrs. Hallie Flanagan, director.

Conditions said to exist within the ranks of those on the WPA project were outlined before the committee by Mrs. Hazel Huffman, representing the committee on relief status of professional theatre employees.

Although not insinuating that Mrs. Flanagan was a Red, the witness declared she has participated actively in Communistic activities and that her interest in Communism was being used in the project "to the detriment of the workers."

Most of the plays produced by the project have been propaganda, Mrs. Huffman said. One of the plays, purporting to depict the Washington life of a Congressman, was referred to by Representative Harold G. Mosier of Ohio, and was characterized by the witness as a "drunken brawl" throughout. Other plays designated by Mrs. Huffman as Red were "Can You Hear Their Voices," written by Mrs. Flanagan and one of her Vassar College students; "Ethiopia," which was not produced because of international complications; "Triple A Ploughed Under," "Class of '29" and "One-Third of a Nation." At the present time, "Sing for Your Supper," a musicale in rehearsal for nearly a year, is scheduled for an October opening, it was said.

Made Russian Tour

Mrs. Flanagan, the committee was told, made a tour of Russia from which she returned with warm regard for Communism, and has readily admitted that the plays produced by the project are of a propaganda nature.

The House committee prepared to demand the records of the Federal Theatre project after hearing Mrs. Huffman's testimony that project workers in New York City are forced by threats of demotion and dismissal to join the Workers Alliance, reputed Communist organization.

The witness stated that, according to figures of last May, more than 500 out of the 1,310 actors and actresses on the New York project had no professional theatre experience.

The Workers Alliance, she continued, actually has an agreement with some of the project supervisors whereby it is notified whenever vacancies occur.

"Refusal to join the organization," Mrs. Huffman told the committee, is usually followed by speedy demotion or a little red slip signifying dismissal.

"Because of Mrs. Flanagan's pro-Communist attitude, other supervisors are encouraged to keep things in a state of constant foment—a condition conducive to Communism."

Workers' Alliance organizers, many without theatrical experience, Miss Huffman said, were engaged as actors but in actuality did nothing but spread Communist literature.

The committee was told a top-ranking official of the WPA's Federal Theatre Project admitted he could not purge its rolls of Communists because "his hands were tied" by Washington.

The testimony came from Charles Walton, veteran theatre director and now on the New York WPA Project, who named George Kondolf as the official.

Seymour Revzin, a stage director; Henry Frank, section head of the Theatre Project in New York, and others testified that there is a constant atmosphere of un-Americanism on the Federal Theatre Project in New York, that there has been sale of much Communist literature and much displaying of Communist banners in and around the project.

WPA Sifts History for A "Distinctive Theatre"

Representative Thomas, who is a member of the Dies Congressional Committee to investigate un-Americanism, said he would demand the resignation of officials in charge of various phases of the Federal Theatre project who, according to sworn testimony which he said he had in his possession, are supplying jobs to Communists, many of whom have had no previous theatrical experience. As an example he charged that a chambermaid in a New York hotel, said to be an active Communist, was given a leading role in one Federal play despite the fact that she never had appeared on the legitimate stage.

"The Federal Theatre project," Representative Thomas said, "was conceived as an agency to furnish temporary employment to professional actors and actresses unable to obtain jobs in their chosen field. A mass of evidence collected under my direction in the last three weeks will prove beyond a shadow of a doubt that this project is now completely dominated by Communists, that many unemployed actors are barred unless they first join the Workers' Alliance, front organization of Communism, and

ANTI-WAR GROUP WANTS INQUIRY

Inclusion in the Administration monopoly study of the motion picture industry of an investigation into the propaganda tie-up between the industry and the government was recommended in Washington this week by the National Council for Prevention of War.

Referring to the recent borrowing of Marine Band uniforms by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, the council declared there is a "well worked out understanding" between the military branches of the government and the film industry under which, in return for the use of men and equipment, the industry advertises the Army and Navy. "Neither the government nor the film industry seems to be losing sight of the mutual advantages of their arrangement," it was said.

Stars' Names and Donations Cited as Evidence That Hollywood Is Aiding Radicals in "Boring from Within"

Shirley Temple has been "boring from within" for the Communists, helping the Reds plot chaos in the U. S. so that Moscow can take over the country.

Little Shirley, whose reputation heretofore has been for boring from without, helping red box offices, for which she has held Number One position over three years in MOTION PICTURE HERALD'S poll of "Money Making Stars," was described Monday as an unwitting dupe of Communists "boring" to overthrow our Democracy. The nine-year-old child star from the Twentieth Century-Fox Film studio, was one of six high in the Hollywood firmament named by Dr. Joseph B. Matthews, former Communist United Front leader, in testimony before the Dies Congressional Committee investigating un-American activities, as unknowingly giving aid and comfort to the Reds.

The other stars named by Dr. Matthews were: Clarke Gable, Robert Taylor, Jimmy Cagney, Miriam Hopkins and Bette Davis.

"A list of such persons" in Hollywood, testified Dr. Matthews, "could be expanded indefinitely."

The charges had hardly been taken off the press wires on the West Coast before Hollywood, individually and in concert, challenged them as baseless in a language that was expressed vociferously.

The Dies committee will break up into subcommittees, each of which will visit a different section of the country. A group headed by Representative Dempsey of New Mexico and including Representative Mosier of Ohio and Starnes of Alabama, will go to the Coast, visiting Hollywood, San Francisco and Seattle.

The six stars were named by Matthews to substantiate his contention that "the Communist Party relies heavily upon the carelessness or indifference of thousands of prominent citizens in lending their names for its propaganda purposes."

"For example," he continued, "the French newspaper, Ce Soir, which is owned outright by the Communist Party, recently featured hearty greetings from Clark Gable, Robert Taylor, James Cagney and even Shirley Temple.

"The League of Women Shop-papers (previously labeled by Matthews as a Communist Front organization) boasts of the membership of Miriam Hopkins and Bette Davis."

Explanation Made

International News Service from Hollywood gave the explanation of an unnamed studio executive, that, "Some months ago the French newspaper asked for greetings on an anniversary from a number of stars in a number of studios" "Ce Soir," he was quoted, "is one of the largest newspapers in France, I understand, and the greetings were a matter of courtesy."

Meanwhile Hollywood was getting hotter and hotter over the charges fired both last week, by Dies Investigator Sullivan, and this week, by Dr. Matthews. Not that Hollywood's stars were the only Red "dupes" mentioned. Sixty that the agency is a patronage vehicle to supply jobs for Reds. . . .

Communists Run WPA Theatre, Government Told

"There is only one effective way of stopping such an outrage and that is a thorough cleansing of the entire Federal theatre project. When our committee assembles this week in Washington, I will strongly recommend that a sweeping investigation be made of this government agency. I will demand the resignation of Federal theatre officials who are responsible for permitting the Communists to dominate and control the agency and I also will recommend that the entire project be closed until a thorough cleansing has been made."

The WPA Federal Theatre Project will concentrate next season on plays dealing with regional history, problems and people, the national policy board of the project decided at the closing session of a three-day meeting, which opened in Washington last Thursday and was continued in New York Friday and Saturday. The board says it seeks to foster a distinctive American theatre.

Typical of the plays to be produced by the Federal Theatre next season is the current California success, "The Sun Rises in the West," a play about the migratory worker in that state. This is to be followed by "Spanish Grant," a "Living Newspaper" presentation of the state's history.

Similarly, the Southern branch of the project plans to commemorate the 400th anniversary of Hernando de Soto's arrival in Tampa Bay with an historical drama called "Sand in Your Shoes." Material gathered by the Federal Writers Project in its American guidebook series will serve as the basis for other spectacle plays in the east and midwest, the policy board was told.

Compilation of Data Ordered

The board, headed by Mrs. Hallie Flanagan, national director of the theatre project, authorized compilation throughout the country of data for a history of the American theatre. The work will be supervised by Miss Harriet Meyer, a former member of the research staff of the Brooklyn Museum, and will include an "Index of American Stage Design."

Emphasis in production schedules will be on cycles of plays, rather than on individual productions, the board decided. Religious cycles are planned for New York City and the South, and classical plays are being worked out for school presentation.

The radio division of the project is to be expanded in various localities, notably Los Angeles, San Francisco, Seattle, New Orleans, Jacksonville, Atlanta, Columbus, Boston and Philadelphia.

At the Washington meeting subjects taken up included procedures relating to employees, wage scales, union regulations, project proposals, quota distribution and allied subjects, ranging from letterheads to architecture. Mrs. Flanagan presided.

In attendance were J. Howard Miller, deputy director, and Robert C. Schmitzer, his assistant. Jay du Von, who took part as representative of Mrs. Ellen S. Woodward, director of the Four Arts Project; Evan Roberts, director of radio and subscriptions; Joseph Moss, acting manager of the Theatre Project's National Service Bureau, and Dwight Gibbs, architectural consultant of California.

Mr. Gibbs heads a new commission whose function will be to advise and assist communities planning to erect theatres for the presentation of project plays. Mr. Miller presided at the national policy board meeting in New York.

SOL DAVIS FETES 25TH ANNIVERSARY

Sol Davis, Republic franchise holder for Oklahoma with Morris Loewenstein, this month is celebrating his 25th anniversary in the motion picture industry. A sales drive for Republic pictures in Oklahoma celebrating the event is under way.

Mr. Davis started in the film industry with the General Film Company of Dallas. Later he joined Hallmark, Inc., at San Francisco, and then returned to Dallas joining Special Pictures Corporation. He owned and operated the Arkansas Specialty Company of Little Rock, Ark., for 10 years. He then became associated with Syndicate Pictures, Inc., Oklahoma City, predecessor of Monogram and later the present Republic Pictures.

$60,556 Film Aid To New York Fund

The motion picture industry and its employees contributed a total of $60,556.82 to the Greater New York Fund, it was announced this week by J. Robert Ruben, vice-president of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and chairman of the fund's motion pictures division. Of this total $33,585 came from companies and $26,971.82 from employees. The list of contributions of $500 and over follows:

Companies

$10,000—Loew's, Inc.
$5,000—Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation; Paramount Pictures, Inc.
$2,500—Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation and subsidiaries, United Artists Corporation, Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc.
$1,500—National Screen Service Corporation, National Theatres Corporation.
$1,000—Columbia Pictures Corporation.
$500—Movietonews, Inc., Roxy Theatre, Inc., Universal Pictures Company, Inc.

Employee Groups

$9,656.03—Loew's, Inc.
$6,584.25—Radio-Keith-Orpheum Corporation and subsidiaries.
$3,520.74—Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc.
$2,247.20—Paramount Pictures, Inc.
$1,828.85—Twentieth Century-Fox Film Corporation and subsidiaries.
$829—United Artists Corporation.
$772.95—Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, Inc.
$500—National Screen Service Corporation.

Douglas P. Falconer, executive director of the fund, thanked the division for exhibiting the fund's campaign picture, "Unseen Bridges," to more than 6,000,000 persons.

Franklin Made MGM Producer

Sidney Franklin, director of "The Good Earth" and "The Barretts of Wimpole Street" has become a producer for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and his first picture will be "The Yearling," based on the novel by Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings. Victor Fleming will direct. Mr. Franklin's second film will be "Madame Curie," starring Greta Garbo.

Stars Called 'Reds' In Testimony to Dies Committee

Congressmen were similarly labeled, because, in their official capacities, they greeted some Spanish Loyalists; the New Deal's aim was held the same as the Communists', and even President Roosevelt's First Lady was reproached for writing a letter to the World Youth Congress, an organization accused of being under the influence of the Reds, and, therefore, making Mrs. Roosevelt another "dupe," according to the testimony.

"Almost everybody in Hollywood except Mickey Mouse and Snow White has been signed up by the Communists at one time or another," Witness Matthews smiled before the House Committee.

"How about Charlie McCarthy"" asked Representative Joe Starnes, Democrat, of Alabama.

"The Communists have enough Charlie McCarthys of their own," the witness answered.

Sullivan Charges Protested

The charges that Hollywood is a swamp of radicalism made by Edward Sullivan, this week brought upon the Dies committee a flood of protests from the West Coast.

A large number of letters and telegrams were received by the committee, many flatly denying that radicalism is rife in the film industry and casting aspersions upon the veracity of the committee's investigator. The most heated retort probably was that of W. S. Van Dyke, MGM director and vice president of the Screen Directors' guild.

In a telegram to Chairman Dies, Mr. Van Dyke "challenged" the investigator's charge. "In all of my 23 years of endeavor in motion pictures I know personally of but two active or inactive Communists," he said.

"Mr. Sullivan evidently knows little of moving picture people and probably less of Communism."

Later in the week, the Dies Committee was again told that Communism was rampant in Hollywood. The witness was Miss Margaret Kerr, of the Better American Federation of Los Angeles, who, while neglecting to mention any individual or group, said that many members of the film colony were contributors to "The People's Work," described as a Communist publication, and to which, she testified, some $6,600 had been donated by persons in Hollywood.

Extends One Feature Policy

Irwin Wheeler of Prudential and Playhouses Operating Company is experimenting with a single feature policy in about 15 of his theatres in Westchester and on the easterly end of Long Island. In various polls the circuit discovered an overwhelming preference for single features, Mr. Wheeler said, but when they complied with what seemed to be the expressed wish of patrons in a Rye theatre they discovered most of the theatre patrons wanted double features. Lately there has been a drive among patrons for single features and this time the theatre policy is meeting with success, especially in Rye and New Haven, he said.

Charlie McCarthy Tieup

Majestic Radio and Television Company is to offer, 100 "Charlie McCarthy" radios to theatres as prizes in a local newspaper contest in connection with Universal's "Letter of Introduction."

BRITISH PROTESTS ON LABOR CLAUSE OF NEW FILMS ACT GAIN IN VOLUME

Smaller Producers, Cooperatives Complain Minimum Labor Cost Is Stifling Effort in Field Small Features, Documentaries

by AUBREY FLANAGAN
in London

Though but five months are early days in the life of a ten year child, early days especially to analyse and criticise its infantile gesticulations and immature vocabulary, the five months old Films Act, and more especially the functioning of the Films Council, is currently receiving more stringent criticism, and more exacting, than is customarily applied to a newly born. Source of the brunt of this critical onslaught, not unmixed as it is with lachrymose lamentation, is the independent producer; not only he whose cooperative efforts were discussed in the light of current legislation in a recent issue of MOTION PICTURE HERALD, but his even more modest brother, the producer of smaller second features and documentaries, both dramatic and merely documentary.

Fiercest contention of the smaller production fry is that recorded already in these columns, that the unwillingness of the Board of Trade to accept an estimated labor cost, instead of a fixed figure, is hampering cooperative production. To this is added now the complaint of local documentary and realist film makers that the insistence on a £7,500 labor cost is in many cases compelling undue expenditure and financial extravagance, in that it calls for a high labor cost on films which can be and are being made for very much less than that figure, and are yet complete entertainment as recognized at the box office.

So marked is this criticism that it may not improbably be organised, to a coherent and protestant front, which may ultimately succeed in having the matter of cost raised at a forthcoming meeting of the Films Council.

One of the first subjects that the Films Council will have to consider on its return from the Midsummer recess is a suggestion that the Board of Trade should reduce the present minimum of thirty shillings a foot, or £7,500 labour costs, to twenty shillings a foot. By this reduction, it is contended, a presently unscalable barrier in the way of second feature production would be removed.

Fewer Productions in Work

Looking over the past five months—or rather less—of the Films Act's operations, it transpires that the comparatively small number of forty-two feature films have gone on the floor since April 1st, when the Act came into force. Considerably less than last year this figure—if it is to be accepted as a normal rate of production—will ultimately reach a total for the year of approximately just over a hundred. Small as it is, it may, with the current deceleration in operation in Hollywood with a consequent drop in foreign films imported here, nevertheless more than cover the industry's quota requirements.

The films produced or in production vary, many of them being of the mildly ambitious type, with some seven or eight—five set for release by U. S. distributing organisations—in the triple quota category. Less than half a dozen of the others may rank as double quota. The rest are just within the stipulated figure—which is to say made at a cost just over £15,000.

Of the ultimate quality of the films produced it is at this stage difficult to judge—as it ever is with British films. That but few are in the first feature category, however, is all to patent, even at this advance stage. The majority of producers involved—and their distributors will thus be compelled to get their money back on the second feature market, a process in these days of costly first feature bookings, not necessarily an easy one.

Small Budgets Claimed Possible

It is with this very point of second feature production that a not inconsiderable body of British producers is at present concerned. It is possible, they contend, to make modest pictures of a dramatic documentary type which would fit admirably into the second feature category, and would unquestionably rank both as entertainment and as polished technical achievements, for much less than £7,500 labour costs, or alternatively at less than thirty shillings a foot. Made below this minimum, however, they do not qualify for quota—without being submitted to and approved by the Film Council as a viewing panel.

Already there is on record more than one case of producers compelled by the forced economics of the situation to expend, unnecessarily and extravagantly, extra thousands of pounds in order to bring their films into the registration category. This, they claim, is bad business and worse economics.

The dramatic flavor, which British producers are learning can be infused into realist films, was never more vividly displayed than in the GPO opus "North Sea," a modest effort which has been hailed as high grade film production and arresting dramatic entertainment. Its cost was less than £3,000. Had it been a feature it would have been outside the Quota category, unless it had been passed on grounds of special entertainment value by the Films Council.

Producers of sub quota films, i. e. films made at a figure below the stipulated minimum, but available for consideration on grounds of special entertainment value, are none too easy in their minds at the unconfirmed report that of seven films recently examined by the Council seven were rejected. The figure is not official, but it is known that some films were rejected sine die. The Cimmerian darkness with which the new Films Council has surrounded its lucubrations does not assist the trade in assessing values.

Not all the sub quota films for which their sponsors seek registration are of documentary type, but the fact is insisted on that the present minimum, applying alike to dramatic and documentary subjects, does restrict and render completely uneconomic the progress of a type of film at which British producers are currently adept. The possibility of change in programme form and the restriction of film supplies may, of course, colour the situation ultimately, with a four reeler, "March of Time," and newsreel, supporting a main features, the general programme rule. Into this groove a British documentary would, it is claimed admirably fit, but only if the whole economics of the situation were changed in the light of the potential and limited revenue to be drawn from the second feature market.

Cooperation Seen Solution

Here then is one problem the Films Council will have before it when it meets in September, a problem it can add to that already posited by the cooperative production groups. It is, however, in this regard now fully realised that indeterminate figures and approximate estimates of labour costs do not give the Board of Trade a chance. A solution of the difficulty would seem to lie in closer cooperation with the industry's representatives on the Council, who, with grade experience, could be depended on to give the Board a safe estimate of a film's grossing qualities. This might, of course, entail viewing before registration, although producer John Grierson has suggested that the word of a reputable distributor might suffice. He has, however, omitted to define what sort of a distributor would be accepted as "reputable" by the CEA representatives on the Council!

These are not the only matters for the Council's discussion in the near future. Looming on the immediate horizon, too, is the vexed question of Empire films, already, by the Act's terms, debarred from registration as renters' quota. Constant and consistent protest by Australian and Canadian interests will inevitably shape itself into discussions on the Council under the thesis that "you cannot disenfranchise the Empire."

Certain, too, is it that the question of film finance will come up for early discussion. The present bland indifference of the City to the matter is causing increasing concern, and in some instances sheer consternation. What actually and exactly the Board of Trade could do is at this stage somewhat obscure, though veiled hints about film credits have been heard in the more "uplift" circles.

SEES REICH AS LEADER IN RADIO

Speaking at the opening of the annual radio exposition in Berlin last week, Paul Joseph Goebbels, Propaganda Minister, asserted that Germany will oust the United States from first place in the field of radio. He also voiced opposition to private ownership of radio and said that broadcasting "imperatively demands leadership by the state itself."

Radio, he declared, "must be one of the most decisive means in the hands of the state for leading the people." Germany with 9,500,000 radio subscribers leads Europe in the number of radio listeners.

Altec To Service Shea Houses

Altec Service Corporation has signed a contract with Edmund C. Grainger, general manager of M. A. Shea Theatrical Enterprises, by which Altec will service the 31 Shea theatres located in Massachusetts, New Hampshire, Pennsylvania and Ohio. Bert Sanford, director of Altec sales, negotiated the contract.

Marc Lachmann has opened a publicity office on Sunset Boulevard, Hollywood. He will serve as publicity manager for film and radio personalities.

STUDIO LABOR PEACE IS HOLLYWOOD HOPE

Directors' Guild Talks Result in "Satisfactory Progress"; NLRB Hearings Postponed

After months of warring words and determined stands a conference early this week between representatives of the Screen Directors' Guild and the producers' negotiating committee in Hollywood resulted in a statement by Darryl F. Zanuck, chairman of the producers' group, that "satisfactory progress toward a harmonious solution of our problems" had been made.

The conference was followed immediately by postponement to next week of the hearing before the Los Angeles Regional Labor Relations Board on a petition filed by the Guild in which it requested designation as the collective bargaining agency for directors, assistant directors and unit managers.

The Guild has two actions pending before the NLRB, the second, for which no date had been set but which, it was expected would be considered at the same time as the petition, complaining that ten studios had violated the Wagner Act by refusing to bargain collectively and had coerced and intimidated employees. Indefinite postponement of the hearing pending an amicable settlement of the Directors' Guild dispute was seen as a possibility.

The meeting of the disputants early this week followed a closed meeting of producers at which, it was reported, a move for intra-industry peace in employer and employee relations was started.

The producers' stand in the discussions with the Guild was that directors were not employees but individual contractors and, that the Guild as constituted was not the proper representative for assistant directors and unit managers. The producers' expressed willingness to bargain with the three classifications separately was received by the Guild as an attempt to split its ranks.

Following the breaking off of negotiations last year the committees resumed the talks this spring but the producers remained adamant in their stand. They also steadily denied that motion picture production is in interstate commerce and therefore subject to the provisions of the Wagner Act. The National Labor Relations Board in the Writers' Guild case ruled that writers are employees and that the Wagner Act is applicable to production.

Newsreel Men Negotiate

The newsreels cameramen's union has asked an increase in the present wage scale of $35 per day and $100 per week to $50 per day and $125 per week. The new two year agreement with the newsreel companies is to be negotiated in October and its terms will be made retroactive to September 1st.

Also to be sought is a maximum hours schedule of 80 hours for each two week period in place of the former maximum of 320 hours for an eight week period. Other proposed changes are of a minor nature, according to newsreel officials.

Picketing Extended

Secondary picketing was adopted by the Motion Picture Laboratory Technicians Union in New York this week. Men with "unfair" placards paraded for one day at 730 Fifth Avenue where Caravel Films has offices and in front of 729 Seventh Avenue, housing Columbia Pictures.

The union is striking at the Du-Art Laboratory where both companies process their films.

Local 306, Motion Picture Operators Union, early this week announced plans for the extension of picketing of the Century circuit in Brooklyn and Long Island to 17 theatres. The circuit has placed signs outside the affected theatres saying that its operators, members of the Epmire State Union, have been employed for the last six years.

Showing the processes of camera and film manufacture, an industrial motion picture has been made by the Eastman Kodak Company which departs notably from the conventional technique of industrial film production. The picture, which approaches feature length (the running time is 55 minutes), was shown August 18 in New York, to an invited audience at a quasi-social gathering in the Empire Room of the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, with Eastman and J. E. Brulatour, the former's motion picture film distributor, as hosts.

Entitled "Highlights and Shadows," the film is intended primarily for presentation before amateurs' clubs and other groups in the photographic field, but is of course available to theatres. For showings requiring shorter periods of time, prints of the various divisions, each dealing with a specific phase of camera and film making, are to be made. Photography is entirely black and white.

Machine Age Stressed

Produced by James Sibley Watson, Jr., and directed by Ken Edwards, "Highlights and Shadows" may be styled a "cinematographic dramatization" of the effect of the physical sciences and of the Machine on life today—that is to say, of course, the "good" effect. Camera and film making, as observable in the vast Eastman plant in Rochester, N. Y., provide the specific material for the development of this theme. Processes of manufacture, from raw material to the finished product moving on trains out to its market, are used, ostensibly, to illustrate an accompanying spoken narrative designed to emphasize two ideas—one, that Science and the Machine give more of us better implements for satisfying the interests of life; and the other, that the camera, both "still" and cinematic, create new interests in life. But naturally it can escape no one that these workings of modern science and its machines are being illustrated in the equipment and methods of the marvelous enterprise founded by the late George Eastman.

Contributing to this thematic treatment of the subject matter almost as much as the running commentary, a part of which is spoken by Lowell Thomas, is the pictorial technique, which employs montage liberally, and other cinematographic devices to achieve constant movement, subtle insinuation, and shrewd theatrical timing. A strictly "classical" musical score arranged by Dr. Howard Hanson, director of the Eastman School of Music in Rochester, consists in both orchestral and piano renditions and is for the most part faithfully recorded.

Among those attending were Herman Seivers, Adolph Stuber and Col. Oscar Solbert, Eastman executives from Rochester; Ted Curtis, William Rivers, William German, Dick Brady, Charles Bonn, H. Edward White, Donald Hyndman, C. E. Snow, E. McDermott, Archibald Dean, Tom Roberts, all of Eastman or Brulatour, New York; Daniel Collins, Erpi; M. H. Aylesworth, John E. Otterson, Carl E. Milliken, Colvin Brown, John Abbott; Fred Waller and Harold McCracken, Courier Productions; George McCarthy, George McMahon and Frank Hilton of Rekordak; Robert Hilton, E. A. Seiffert and Arthur Miller, Consolidated Film Industries.

Also, John Ojerholm, Paramount; E. I. Sponable, 20th Century-Fox; Harry Seml, National Screen Service; Sam Talpin and Stephen Eller, H. E. R. Laboratory; William Rowland, George Naffki, Charles Glett, Walter Brooks, Ralph Austrian, RCA Photophone; Sam Citron, Joseph Burch, Film Laboratory; George O'Keefe; Harry Glickman and Sam Brettenstein, Mecca Film Laboratory.

PICKFORD, FAIRBANKS SETS ARE DEMOLISHED

The last remaining landmarks of two famous stars, all the existing Mary Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks sets, were demolished this week in Hollywood. The sets, which are nearly 20 years old, were torn down to make room for a six and a half acre setting for Samuel Goldwyn's next production, "The Last Frontier." This set is said to be the largest one to be constructed in Hollywood in the last 10 years.

Gary Cooper, who returns to an outdoor role in "The Lady and the Cowboy," will play another character of this type in "The Last Frontier." He will portray a captain of the Philippine Scouts in a story of the unsung heroes who fought to bring peace to the islands during their turbulent history. Henry Hathaway will direct the picture for United Artists release.

Sells Seattle Exchange

Jimmy O'Neal has disposed of his independent exchange in Seattle, James O'Neal Enterprises, Inc., to Wayne Christy. He will become general manager of the northwest division of the West Coast Automatic Candy Company. Mr. Christy will rename the business General Film Exchanges, and will continue to handle state rights product.

Ayres Series for MGM

Lew Ayres, under a new contract with MGM, will be featured in a series based on the Max Brand stories, "Dr. Kildare." The first will be "Young Dr. Kildare."

New contracts also have been signed by Sara Haden, Rita Johnson, Lewis Stone, Ann Morriss and Don Castle, actors, and Willis Goldbeck, writer.

CIRCUIT MANAGERS OF WARNERS, FAMOUS AND NATIONAL CONVENE

Circuit Policies, Plans for Coming Season Explained at Meetings; Industry Drive Important Factor in Discussions

Circuit managers of Warner Brothers, Fox-National Theatres, Famous Players and Minnesota Amusement Company met this week in annual convention to determine operating policies and merchandising to govern the several hundreds of theatres they operate, during the new show season that starts on Labor Day.

Two meetings were held by Warner Brothers, in Philadelphia and in Newark, the centers of Warner eastern operations. Joseph Bernhard, general manager of Warner Brothers theatres and vice-president of Warner Brothers Pictures, was the principal speaker at both sessions.

The talking picture is the unseen, unhonored, unacknowledged spokesman for American business, Mr. Bernhard told the theatremen in Newark. He declared that the motion pictures sold goods for many industries on a "colossal" scale, that merchants and manufacturers were in debt to the movies for speeding up their sales, establishing new styles and encouraging new buying habits and that, therefore, the motion pictures were a powerful factor in keeping money in circulation and maintaining normal business levels.

In his address at Philadelphia, Mr. Bernhard appealed to the Warner men to value the good will of their community above every other commodity at their disposal.

After a general discussion of the fine points of theatre operation and their relation to greater box office, Mr. Bernhard explained the industry's advertising and exploitation drive.

Gradwell Sears, general sales manager for Warner Brothers, discussed new product.

Advertising Element Mentioned

When speaking of motion pictures aid to business generally, Mr. Bernhard pointed out that "all this is true, despite the fact that we do not tolerate direct advertising of commodities on our screens."

"We have refused millions of dollars of contracts for advertising for commercial reels, because we believe the screen should be confined to entertainment," Mr. Bernhard said.

During the western regional meeting of National Theatres, Twentieth Century-Fox and Darryl Zanuck entertained more than 100 delegates at a dinner at the studio's Cafe De Paris.

Showmanship in the production of pictures is not enough—there must be showmanship in the exhibition of pictures, Mr. Zanuck told the delegates.

"You must get behind the little ones as well as the big ones," he declared.

Explains Exhibitors' Job

Introduced by Spyros Skouras as "the man whom we all love, respect and admire," Mr. Zanuck immediately launched into a discussion of what producers expected from exhibitors.

"The industry will always be a business for the showman. There is no place in it for one without showmanship. If any person has not the desire and ambition to advance in the line of showmanship he might as well get out of the industry. Showmanship extends from the individual, separate organizations to the industry as a whole," he said.

"No organization can exist alone on epics. There must be a steadily sold turnover throughout the year on each picture. You must respect the little ones as well as the big ones. Respect each picture in the category for which it was produced. If exhibitors recognize this and a fair return is made to producers then when we lay out the budget at the end of the year we can find next year worth while gambling on. Producers must have encouragement from exhibitors and distributors. We can't find it unless we feel that you fight for even the smallest picture."

During the business sessions which preceded the dinner at the studio, various executives discussed intra-mural problems of organization. The first order of business at the session was the presentation of cash awards to nine managers for outstanding work.

A. M. Bowles was chairman of the initial session and H. C. Cox declared that conditions of the last six months, as confronting the theatre circuit, were very satisfactory in view of the general business conditions. W. T. Powers gave a technical talk on film buying deals and this was followed by a detailed discussion on the same subject by J. J. Sullivan.

After a luncheon recess, Spyros Skouras told of the importance to the organization of manpower and said that the excellent reputation of the company in the eyes of the public must be maintained. C. A. Buckley, of the legal staff, discussed legal problems confronting theatres, and Cullen Espy described the operation of 27 Fox West Coast house in Los Angeles.

The delegates concluded their three day session, after hearing details of a new business drive to be conducted by the circuit. The campaign will tie in with the industry.

Minnesota Group Meets

With 85 managers and home office executives in attendance, the Minnesota Amusement Company concluded a three-day session at Breezy Point, Minneapolis Thursday.

The managers attending the meeting were all from outside the Twin Cities. A Twin City convention will be held in the near future.

Among the speakers were John J. Friedl, head of the Minnesota Amusement Company, and Charles Winchell, head of exploitation for the theatres. Talks included "Purchasing" by Otto Muller, "Sound and Projection" by R. Schmid; "The Lawyer's Viewpoint," Joseph W. Finley; "Accounting" by C. W. Perrine; "Real Estate and Public Relations," by Theo Hays; "Booking and Buying," John Branton; and "The Business Outlook," by L. J. Ludwig.

Mr. Friedl announced three prizes of $1,000 each to district managers whose theatres show the greatest percentage of increase over last season. A feature of the convention was a general round-the-table discussion at which all managers were invited and urged to speak their minds freely on any matters pertaining to theatre management and relations with the home office. "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "Spawn of the North," "Sing You Sinners," and "Love Finds Andy Hardy" were pre-viewed.

Mr. Friedl announced that the convention of out-of-town managers would be an annual affair hereafter.

Famous Players in Session

The annual eastern managers' convention of Famous Players Canadian Corporation opened Wednesday at the King Edward Hotel.

Special screenings of new product were interspersed among round table discussions of managers' problems.

Speakers included J. J. Fitzgibbons, managing director; Clarence Robson, eastern Canadian district manager; R. W. Bolstad, comptroller; Ben Geldsaler, chief booker; T. J. Bragg, secretary-treasurer, and N. L. Nathanson, president.

The round table discussions were led by C. A. Dentelbeck, supervisor of projection; J. A. Troyer, L. Geering, B. Whitham, R. Dale, James Nairn, Ben Cronk, R. Darby, P. Brown and Clair Appel.

Final announcements and preparations were made for the industry's advertising drive and 22 employees were honored for 20 years' service.

NEW SUPPLY UNIT FORMED IN CANADA

Formation of its own theatre supply company was announced Wednesday by the Famous Players Canadian circuit at the opening of its annual convention of executives and theatre managers at the King Edward Hotel, Toronto. The subsidiary, General Theatre Supply Company, Ltd., will have its main office in Toronto and a branch in Montreal. Offices are to be opened also in Winnipeg and Vancouver to serve the western territory.

The new company supplants Canadian Theatre and Electrical Supplies, Ltd., of Toronto, of which Charles A. Dentelbeck was general manager. Mr. Dentelbeck has been appointed to the executive staff in the main office of Famous Players as director of projection for all theatres. Ben Burko, theatre equipment expert whose business in Montreal has been absorbed by the new enterprise is general manager of General Theatre Supply.

Operation of Theatre Operating Service, Ltd., of Toronto ceases and business for the circuit groups will be concentrated in the new company.

Reviving Wanger Films on Request

The Vogue Theatre, Hollywood, will conduct "a request revival series of Walter Wanger screen hits." The series will include "History is Made at Night," "Her Master's Voice," "The Trail of the Lonesome Pine," "Smart Girl," "Gabriel Over the White House," "Private Worlds," "Shanghai," "You Only Live Once," "Stand-In," "I Met My Love Again," "Vogues of 1938," and "The President Vanishes."

Walt Disney Revues

Exhibitors are grouping three or four Walt Disney cartoons and billing them as a second attraction to the feature, under the title "Walt Disney Revue," according to RKO.

60,000 FROM CITY AND COUNTRYSIDE STORM NEW WILKES BARRE THEATRE

Opening of Comerford House in Pennsylvania City Breaks Records for Attendance, Enthusiasm and Civic Celebration

by A-MIKE VOGEL

That showmanship, ballyhoo and "drives" can be effective, that the public still responds, has been again spectacularly demonstrated in Pennsylvania.

What the usually conservative local newspaper, the Daily Independent, had to say about it the Sunday after, just about sums up the effectiveness of the showmanship campaign put on in advance of the opening of the 2045-seat Comerford Theatre, in Wilkes Barre, Pa., the circuit's newest unit.

"By the time the city clocks have peeled the hour of midnight today, more than 60,000 will have passed into the new Comerford in the week-end dedication of Pennsylvania's finest theatre. Twenty thousand visited the theatre on Thursday. Outside were more than double that number. And that is something more than a record. It is theatre precedent."

If 40,000 in one spot is a heap of folks, anywhere and at one time, then imagine that many crowded into Public Square, a rectangular space measuring two short city blocks by one, the shopping center of a city that counts a bit more than twice that many people as its total population.

They were brought there purely by a publicity and exploitation campaign that starting weeks ahead, blanketed a 75-mile area. And during the day some 15 to 20 thousand managed to worm their way to the boxoffice of the theatre across from the Square and fight a path into the auditorium. It could not have been otherwise despite plans of the Comerford executives, the cooperation of all but a corporal's guard of the city's police and firemen. Well-mannered and on holiday bent, withal, the folks "wanted in" to the show, and that was that. But those who could not make it were not entirely disappointed for there was as much show going on outside as there was in.

City Bedecked

Every strategic spot that could hold a decoration had one. The city was studded with flags, telegraph and light poles with special plaques of welcome. The plaques came to be highly regarded as trophies of the occasion for far into the night, agile celebrants were observed shinnying up the poles to capture themselves a souvenir. But that of course, came later.

The National Guard, too, was called upon to do its stuff with the advent of the 213th Field Artillery. The guardsmen brought with them a battery of anti-craft guns and Coast Defense searchlight batteries which they proceeded to demonstrate in front of the theatre. Thousands cheered. (Ed: the guns were not fired). To illuminate the immediate area, a lighting crew and equipment imported from New York, bathed the place with the same sort of glare which accompanies the usual Hollywood premiere doings. The papers set the big city seal upon the visiting electricians by announcing the lighting came direct from the New York premiere of "Marie Antoinette."

The opening also brought deferred fame to a local musician named Alexander, longtime leader of an organization labelled "Alexander's Band." Since the opening attraction was Twentieth Century-Fox's "Alexander's Ragtime Band," what could be more appropriate, reasoned the theatre's admen, than to have the local Alexander do his bit for the screen Alexander. Hastily, a bannered platform was constructed in the Square, where for two hours the Wilkes Barrean and his "lads" were engaged to give out a concert of the Berlin melodies.

Part of the crowd which jammed Wilkes-Barre's Public Square for the opening of the new Comerford Theatre, an opening which surpassed in attendance and enthusiasm any public event in the history of the Pennsylvania city.

Microphones and Flash Bulbs

Inside and out, sleep-starved but smiling Comerford executives kept things moving, answered innumerable questions, accepted congratulations for the beauty and comfort of the theatre, locally designed and constructed. Radio stations broadcast in the foyer and on the streets, flashlight bulbs blinked with fire-fly rapidity. Every seat was filled, standing room accepted gratefully. Those in line beguiled the time by study of the many elaborate floral offerings which came from every branch of the industry, from local and state officials. The first ticket was sold to the daughter of the founder of the circuit, Mrs. Thomas Friday.

The dedicatory program included the national anthem, a trailer of welcome by M. E. Comerford, circuit head, who, by the way, enjoyed the proceedings from an inconspicuous corner of the auditorium. An added feature was the showing of a special short of Mayor Charles N. Loveland, proclaiming "Comerford Week," in honor of the new house. These pictures of the mayor, plus congratulatory addresses by the presidents of the Chamber of Commerce and Merchants' Association, taken the day ahead by a special MGM mobile unit, were rushed via plane to New York for development and returned in the same manner in time for the opening performance. The MGM unit also ground footage of the crowds during the day which was shown later in the week.

In publicising the opening, an area of 75 miles was blanketed with 24-sheets and over 50 papers in the drawing territory carried stories, ads and scene mats of the theatre and opening attraction. General copy centered around the theme, "All Roads Lead to Pennsylvania's Finest Theatre, the New Comerford in Wilkes Barre." Trailers were used in all Comerford theatres in the area and special setpieces designed for their lobbies. It was said that Comerford managers from cities as far as 60 miles away, reported many phone inquiries having to do with the opening of the circuit's newest unit.

Newspapers Cooperate

Featured in the newspaper campaign were 12-page special supplements in which leading merchants cooperated with congratulatory copy and the announcement of sales in honor of the occasion. Store windows were decorated elaborately as a further tiein, and as a result of the heavy influx into the city for the celebration, local business reported the highest total of sales in many months.

Among film men in Wilkes Barre for the opening were Leon Netter, George Dembow, Charles Casanave, Lou Astor, Jay Emanuel, A-Mike Vogel, Stanley Goldberg, Earl Sweigert, Pop Korson, Charles Klang, Bill Humphries, Ben Stern, Morrie Bier, Max Gillis, Jack McFadden, Al Davis, Moe Sherman, Sam Gross, Paul Baron, Arthur Meyman, George Beatty, Lewen Pizor, Ted O'Shea, Tom Connors, Sidney Sampson, Bill Mansell, Norman Moray, S. E. Applegate, Bob Lynch, Roger Mahan, Jim Duffy and others.

Representing the Comerford circuit were John Nolan, J. J. O'Leary, John Comerford, J. J. Roberts, Charles Ryan, Harry Spiegel, Jerry Cadoret, Michael O'Toole, John Roberts, Eddie Pash, Ernie Schmidt, Joe Elicker, John Galvin, Edgar Simonis, Richard Fetterman, Fred Herman, William Walsh, Sid Stanley and Fred Lee.

Legion of Decency, Seeing Picture Drive, Restates Policy

The National Legion of Decency office in New York this week issued a re-statement of policies with respect to the moral import of screen productions. The statement, made for the Legion by the Most Reverened John T. McNicholas, O.P., S.T.M., archbishop of Cincinnati, chairman of the Episcopal Committee on Motion Pictures, follows:

The Motion Picture Industry has announced its plans to increase the attendance at theatres. The announcement has arrested the attention of all informed and thoughtful persons who know the inestimable value of wholesome public entertainment in our modern life.

The cinema caters regularly to audiences of many millions and now it anticipates greater attendance. The fact that millions of minds are thus influenced by motion pictures imposes upon the Industry a grave responsibility to the public. The Industry, it is to be hoped, will recognize that there is no escape from this responsibility to safeguard the moral welfare of its patrons by setting right and decent patterns of thought and conduct.

During recent years the Industry has made progress by giving attention to the moral influence of its films. The Legion of Decency is happy to express to the Industry its appreciation of the improvement made in the moral character and tone of its work. It is also grateful to the leaders and people of the Protestant and Jewish faiths for their support and insistence that films of right moral character be shown to the people.

The Legion of Decency operates under the auspices of the Catholic Bishops, whose pastoral solicitude for souls obliges them, especially in a medium so influential as the cinema, to oppose vigorously every trend which threatens to invade the domain of fixed and unvarying principles of morality expressed in the natural and divine law. The Legion of Decency is concerned solely with the moral issue found in the subject matter of motion pictures and in its treatment.

The Legion views with grave apprehension those efforts now being made to utilize the cinema for the spread of ideas antagonistic, not only to traditional Christian morality but to all religion. It must oppose the efforts of those who would make motion pictures an agency for the dissemination of the false, atheistic and immoral doctrines repeatedly condemned by all accepted moral teachers.

Films which portray, approvingly, concepts rooted in philosophies attacking the Christian moral order and the supernatural destiny of man serve not to ennoble but, rather, to debase humanity, and, as such, these films are an affront to right thinking men and women.

The Legion of Decency, with every resource at its command, shall challenge any program using the popular theatre screen to exploit such insidious doctrines. Secular affairs are not in themselves the concern of the Legion of Decency. When, however, contrary to all that is truly American, unchanging principles of morality are assailed and atheism and irreligion are fostered, the Legion must, in pursuit of its single and unvarying objective of a morally wholesome screen, interpose the full weight of Catholic opinion and authority.

Roadshow Study To Be Made By Theatre Council

Plans for the second annual convention of the American theatre to be conducted under the auspices of the American Theatre Council at the Hotel Astor, New York, September 13th and 14th were completed at a meeting of the executive and administrative committees last week. One of the first items of business will be the formation of a plan to make the Council, established last year when the first convention was held, a permanent organization. Present at the committee meeting were Frank Gillmore, president of Associated Actors and Artists of America; Paul N. Turner, Brock Pemberton, Warren P. Munsell, Antoinette Perry, Lawrence Langner, Paul Dullzell, James J. Brennan and James F. Reilly.

It is expected that one of the primary points of discussion will be a working plan by which the Council hopes to re-establish legitimate theatre roadshows on a large scale. The project, to be proposed by William Brady and Mr. Gillmore, will have the support of the International Alliance of Theatrical and Stage Employees and of Actors' Equity, it is hoped.

The committees for the convention heard reports of activities of the Council since the convention last year, including among other things, the development of the theatre ticket code, establishment of playwrights' fellowships and a central bureau for actors' auditions.

The ticket code which will go into effect this autumn is considered a major step in the program to eliminate ticket speculation. Duly signed and backed by theatrical unions the agreement provides penalties for theatre managers found guilty of aiding speculation.

The fellowships, five in all, will provide $1,000 for that many playwrights to be selected by the Dramatists' Guild. The money was presented by John Golden to the Guild during the convention last year and subsequent reports indicated that the Rockefeller Foundation would provide similar subsidies.

Auditions for apprentice actors and actresses began this spring under the direction of Miss Antoinette Perry. More than 2,000 were heard, many of whom were placed in summer stock and several others of whom are in line for parts this fall. It is hoped that the program will be amplified at this year's convention.

The board of the Council includes representatives of the AAAA, the League of New York Theatres, United Scenic Artists Union, Actors' Equity, and the Theatre Guild as well as prominent actors and actresses.

LevyHoldsMeeting Of District Heads

General sales manager Jules Levy of RKO Radio called in the company's district managers for a meeting Wednesday at the Waldorf-Astoria, New York. The new season's product, which includes for early release the Marx Brothers in "Room Service," Jack Oakie and Lucille Ball in "Affairs of Annabel," Bobby Breen's "Breaking the Ice" and "Gunga Din," were discussed. Among other matters discussed were ways to co-operate with the various committees of the Motion Pictures' Greatest Year campaign.

In addition to Cresson E. Smith, Western and Southern sales manager, and E. L. McEvoy, Eastern and Canadian sales manager, the following district managers attended: J. H. MacIntyre, Northeastern District manager; Nat Levy, Eastern Central District manager; W. E. Branson, Midwestern District manager; H. M. Lyons, Southeastern District manager; S. M. Sachs, Southwestern District manager; H. C. Cohen, Western District manager; L. M. Devaney, Canadian District manager.

In addition to Mr. Levy, who presided, the Home Office was represented by Leo Spitz, Ned E. Depinet, W. H. Clark, Harry Michalson, S. Barret McCormick, A. A. Schubart, William McShea, Sid Kramer, Lou Gaudreau, Ralph Rolan, Harry Gittleson, M. G. Poller and R. Neilson.

Guests of the session included Frederic Ullman, Jr. and Frank Donovan of RKO Pathe News; Hal Horne, Disney Enterprises, and John Wood and Louis de Rochemont of March of Time.

The auxiliary of the Variety tent at Milwaukee is sending 23 underprivileged girls on a 10-day vacation to Camp Whitcomb on Lake Keesus in Waukesha county. The money has been raised by entertainments.

Herzenberg Promoted

Albert P. Herzenberg, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer booker in Cleveland, has been promoted to the company's foreign department and sails August 11th to take over the MGM office in Johannesburg, South Africa. He will be succeeded in Cleveland by William Sheehan, transferred from the MGM exchange in Indianapolis.

Max Fleischer's new studio in Miami will start operating next month. Following the departure of Sam Buckwald, general manager of the studios in New York, 60 artists are to arrive in Miami by September 7th.

U. S. Reports Sharp Decrease in Film Exports, Slight Decrease in Equipment

Figures for the first six months of 1938 for American exports of negative and positive sound film, show a decrease of nearly 4,000,000 linear feet as compared with the corresponding period of 1937, according to Nathan D. Golden, chief of the Motion Picture Division of the Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, Washington.

During the first half of 1938 97,473,313 linear feet of negative and positive, valued at $2,122,719, was exported, as compared with 101,290,716 linear feet with a value of $2,264,738 for the first six months of 1937. Positive film exports for the first six months of 1938 totaled 93,081,777 feet with a value of $1,962,151, and negatives totaled 4,391,536 feet, valued at $160,568, as compared to 96,613,207 linear feet of positive with a value of $2,090,990 and 4,677,509 feet of negative valued at $173,748 during the first six months of 1937.

The five countries which were the largest consumers of American films with comparative exports for the same period of 1937 are shown in the table.

Exports of sensitized positive film of 35 mm. width for the first six months of 1938, too, show a decrease. During this period 64,227,616 linear feet valued at $615,258 were exported to foreign markets as against 72,249,196 linear feet valued at $714,812 for the first six months of 1937.

Negative sensitized film exports show better than a 50 per cent decrease. In the first six months of 1938, 17,916,786 linear feet valued at $478,538 were exported as against 39,965,944 linear feet valued at $965,131 exported during the first six months of 1937. On the other hand, exports of 16 mm. sensitized not exposed motion picture films show a marked increase for the first six months of 1938. During this period 28,018,064 linear feet of this type of film, valued at $683,739 were exported as against 12,494,321 feet valued at $239,536 exported during the first six months of 1937.

Value of sound reproducing equipment for the first half of 1938 shows a slight decrease, totaling $800,091 as compared with $883,994 for the first six months of 1937. Comparative figures for Sound Recording Equipment totaled $125,694 for the first half of 1938 as against $170,533 for the same period in 1937. A decrease is noted in our exports of standard 35 mm. projectors. During the first six months of 1938, only 516 projectors valued at $171,008 were sold as against 958 valued at $247,000 for the first half year of 1937.

Five Outings Held, 2 More Arranged

Five industry organizations this week held golf tournaments or outings while two more were scheduled. The Northwest Film Club set Friday for its annual picnic at Shadow Lake, Seattle, while the date for the annual Warner Club Golf Tournament was set for September 16th at the Old Oaks Country Club, Purchase, New York.

Over 500 attended the Motion Picture and Allied Industry Outing at Fieldston, Mass. Organizations from Boston attending the outing in addition to the exchanges included the Cinema Club, Salesman's Club, Lt. Vernon Macaulay Theatrical Post of the American Legion, Exchange Employees, Film Exchange Transfer, Independent Exhibitors, Allied Theatres, Stage Hands, Standard Theatre Supply, National Theatre Supply, Capitol Theatre Supply, Theatre Supply and Friars Club.

The annual New Haven film district outing was held Thursday at Ye Castle Inn, Saybrook, Conn. A full days program was arranged which included swimming, games, dancing amateur contests and awarding of prizes.

Delegations from Columbus, Dayton, Indianapolis and Louisville attended the Queen City Variety Club annual Golf Tournament at Summit Hills, Cincinnati, on Monday. A club house dinner and a floor show staged by Colonel Arthur Frudenfeld were part of the entertainment.

Over 80 men participated in the Variety Club-Film Row golf tournament held at the Pittsburgh Field Club and over 100 attended the dinner which followed.

The Rocky Mountain Screen Club held its annual Film Round-up at Evergreen, near Denver, Thursday.

National Theatres Study Experiment To End Giveaways

An experiment having to do with the abolition of giveaways in Southern California is being watched closely by National Theatres with the possibility that if it proves successful it will be extended to the entire circuit.

Charles P. Skouras, head of Fox West Coast, expresses himself as opposed to giveaways at the recent meeting of the circuit in Kansas City and at the Los Angeles regional session George Bowser, district manager at San Diego, described the experiment which is in progress in that area.

While there is a possibility that giveaways may be abandoned by the circuit, double bills are destined to stay, Spyros Skouras having expressed the opinion that they help business in many situations, although in others they are not necessary.

The suit of Missouri vs. R. W. McEwan, bank night distributor, to test the legality of the promotion under Missouri's anti-lottery laws, will be heard by the Missouri supreme court starting September 22nd. The motion filed by Charles M. Miller, Mr. McEwan's attorney, which asked such a hearing, has been granted by the division.

Michael Tomasino, operator of the White Way theatre, New Haven, is under bond pending the hearing in city court for, it is charged, violation of the state lottery law. Mr. Tomasino used a giveaway plan which consisted of 600 bags mounted on a large board, each bag containing from one cent to $1 or grocery orders in varoius amounts, and each patron offered a bag.

The Kenosha, Wis., police department has notified local exhibitors to discontinue playing Bank Night, Hollywood, Buck Night and similar games.

Van Schmus Finds Talent Scarce in European Visit

American theatres seeking fresh talent and production ideas for their stage shows had better look elsewhere than in the capitals of Europe, W. G. Van Schmus, managing director of the Radio City Music Hall, said this week on his return from Europe. His explanation is that economic conditions have forced many of the better variety houses to close, with new talent not being developed.

Priscilla Lane, who is starring in the Warner Brothers picture, "Four Daughters," which is now playing at the Music Hall, greeted Mr. Van Schmus at the pier. On Thursday Mr. Van Schmus was host at a reception to Miss Lane at the theatre's studio apartment.

Fox Credit Union Gains

Organized in April under the state banking laws of New York, the Twentieth Century-Fox Employees Credit Union now has 315 members. The purpose of the union is to encourage savings and assist employees financially. Norman B. Steinberg is president and Nat Brower treasurer.

IN THE BRITISH STUDIOS

by AUBREY FLANAGAN
in London

Bucolic Jungle

On the banks of a quiet creek at Shepperton, Surrey, a few hundred yards from a timbered inn and an ivy clad church, an African village, temporarily peopled by three hundred savage tribesmen, with mud hits and banana trees clustering on its edges, has cropped up. It is the exterior location for the Gainsborough production "Old Bones of the River," in which Will Hay, the schoolmaster comedian, has the title role.

The sets have been put up in Sound City and and entire GB unit has moved over from Islington for the purpose of shooting on the film, which is being directed by Marcel Varnel. Three hundred coloured artistes are engaged in the scenes, and with the exception of Hay and his teamsters, Moore Marriott and Graham Moffatt, represent the vast majority of the cast.

In "Old Bones of the River" Hay has the role of a river launch skipper who becomes involved in a mighty tribal upheaval and lacks nothing of the customary slapstick, even if this time the impedimenta of comedy include sacrificial fires, tom toms, totem poles and fauna of the jungle.

Among the properties scheduled for use during production are: 8 banana trees; 400 leaves, the longest measuring 10 ft. in length; 80 wooden bows and arrows, 15 cane and mud huts, 8 tons of sand, 1 two-ton idol made from plaster, wood and metal, 20 gallons of liquid make-up of several hues to serve as war paint, 80 ostrich feathers, 8 ancient skulls, 500 rings and body decorations, 600 bananas.

Whatever may be the doldrums from which British production is suffering in the wider field, the making of educationals shows no decline. GB Instructional, premier organization in the field of educational film making, are currently in a period of intense activity.

Among the new films to be added to the GBI lists are: "The Embryology of the Trout," "Paramecium" and "The Liver Fluke," all of which will be shown at the British Association meeting next month. Three further additions are being made for the Ecology series, "Heathlands," "Meadowlands" and "Marshlands," and to the "Secrets of Life" series will shortly be added films which describe the Water Spider, the Emperor Moth, The Swan, The Dandelion and The Clothes Moth.

There is also to be a new series under the general title of "Social Life of Insects." The first in this series will be concerned with the Wood Ant.

The more advanced instructional films at present in course of production include studies of spiders, mites and scorpions; centipedes and millipedes; and "Crustacea."

Three outstanding examples of the high class production work of GBI are being shown at the Current Venice Exhibition; these are "Modern Spirit," a subject dealing with oil, "Kings in Exile," which deals with the King penguin, and "Catch of the Season," a study of trout.

In addition to films of a purely educational nature GBI according to Mr. Bruce Woolfe, are busy with at least nine productions at the moment dealing with social services. These include a film for the Coal Utilization Council which describes an interesting aspect of coal mining; a film on Diet for the Gas Light and Coke Company; films of Scotland for arable purposes; a subject for the British Empire Cancer Research Association, in which micro-cinematography will show the growth of cells and tissue culture, and the continual fight being waged to combat the disease.

Zoltan Korda, London Films director, discussing the script of "Four Feathers" with C. Aubrey Smith who will play an important role in the film now in production at Denham.

Centre of Activity

Currently busiest production center in Britain, Pinewood Studios, Iver, have five films on which work in one form or another is proceeding.

Off the floor, but receiving the final touches previous to trade show, is the Twentieth-Fox opus "Keep Smiling," in which Gracie Fields is starred. Following that, immediately under the same marquee, comes a detective thriller, so far untitled, in which George Saunders plays lead.

Work is still unconcluded on the Bergner opus "Stolen Life," production having suffered a minor interruption what time Miss Bergner went to Malvern to play in the Festival production of Shaw's "St. Joan." Location and exterior work is currently in progress, much of it in the grounds of Pinewood. That concluded, the unit will proceed for a like purpose to the sunlit purlieus of Brittany and Switzerland—as well as other decorative centres of Europe.

The Jessie Matthews' comedy "Climbing High," for release under the Gainsborough trademark by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, and the Geoffrey Toye version of Gilbert & Sullivan's "Mikado" complete the quintette.

Four Feathers

With the filming of the crucial "four feathers" episode, which gives the title to Mason's novel, and so to the London Film Productions, the narrative of Zoltan Korda's film is now well under way. The scene, alleged to be an intensely emotional one, represents Henry Faversham — played by John Clements — reviled and derided by his friends for refusing a commission and foreign service, receiving by post from his three nearest friends, white feathers, emblem of the slacker and the coward.

With Clements in the film are June Duprez, twenty year old find of Zoltan Korda—already on the roster of Denham fame for having held a dialogue shot lasting over three minutes—and Aubrey Smith, seventy-five year old veteran of stage and screen, whose screen house, (he has the role of General Willoughby) with its rose bowers and flagged courtyard, has already given the Technicolor cameras considerable and colourful material for exploitation.

Now in its fourth week, the film is days ahead of schedule and the first three periods of the story have been covered.

Ended

Corinne Luchaire, seventeen year old French actress, who has been playing in "Prison Without Bars" at Denham, has returned to film work in France, but not without having been compelled to turn down a contract offered her by Lee Shubert to play lead in the New York stage play based on the film.

Elsa Maxwell has been signed by Alexander Korda to write a script for a forthcoming Merle Oberon film which will be produced at Denham during the present 1938-1939 season. She is presently working on the script in the South of France.

New Blood

Glen McWilliams, who has photographed every Jessie Matthews' film since "Evergreen," has had to forego that pleasure with the new Matthews' opus "Climbing High." Injured in a car smash in the States "Mac" has had to pass the task to Mutz Greenbaum, British cameraman and experimentalist. In the new film Greenbaum is shooting on what he claims to be the fastest monochrome stock in the country, and is using 40 per cent less light than is usual.

Recent additions to the cast of the film are Enid Stamp Taylor and Francis L. Sullivan. Carol Reed is directing.

Erich Pommer, English producer, returning to England from the United States on the Queen Mary, said that announcement will be made soon of arrangements for distribution in America, Canada and certain other countries of Pommer-Laughton productions.

State Convention Ends; Industry Is Unaffected

by R. J. CONNERS
in Albany

After four months of intensive debate, the 168 delegates to New York State's Constitutional Convention (under which its people will be governed for the next 20 years), have adopted certain basic changes in the law to be submitted to the electorate in November. Films are unaffected.

At the outset, in April, both motion picture and radio executives professed little concern in the Albany Convention, but after several measures of interest to both industries had been introduced, a careful watch was kept on proceedings.

So far as the motion picture industry was concerned, action centered on four proposals:

(1) Attempts to end state motion picture censorship.

(2) Efforts to ban billboard advertising.

(3) Action aimed at legalization of gambling, including dog racing, bank nights, lotteries, etc.

(4) Strengthening of the ban against discrimination allegedly practiced against racial and minority groups in hotels, restaurants and places of public amusement.

Of the quartet, affirmative action was taken solely on the fourth, the "equal rights" question. Formerly, a loophole between the federal and state laws left places of amusement virtually free from civil action on discrimination charges. Effect of the new amendment to the Constitution, expected to be adopted in this instance, at least, will presumably affect certain New York City theatres.

Efforts to ban censorship came through the introduction of several amendments intended to extend the same right as now possessed by the press to publicize or disseminate ideas without pre-censorship. A motion by Henry Hirschberg of Newburgh, to bring to the floor his bill on the subject was accompanied with an attack on present censorship of pictures (by the Department of Education's Motion Picture Division). The move failed 62-28, after vigorous debate, in which both the Motion Picture Division and the Legion of Decency were praised by opponents of the anti-censorship drive.

An attempt to provide constitutional mandate for regulation of billboard advertising died in committee, but the fight was carried to the floor twice by Conservation Commissioner Lithgow Osborne, sponsor of the bill. In the midst of committee consideration, a public hearing was held, after which Robert Moses, New York City's Parks Commissioner wrote a sharply worded letter to billboard advertising men assailing them for "obstruction." The second Osborne move to bring the question out of committee was defeated by 75-73.

The question of changing the present ban on gambling was one of the hotly debated questions of the convention. Of the numerous bills aimed to let the state operate lotteries, a move, reputedly secretly feared by exhibitors, none succeeded in hurdling the Bill of Rights Committee, but that group after first defeating 8-7 an enabling motion, later reported out the Hirschberg measure. The Hirschberg measure, while not intended to legalize gambling, actually would have stricken from the State's constitution prohibitions against games of chance. Mr. Hirshberg made two efforts to advance his bill to final passage, the first losing by three votes, 72-69. The final attempt to pass it lost 85-55, after an amendment to eliminate legalization of statewide lotteries had failed 74-63.

CAMERAMEN RECORD FRANCISCAN RITES

Three newsreel photographers, and nearly a score of still camera men, were permitted to record the investiture of 13 youths into the Franciscan order last week at Graymoor, Garrison, N. Y., mother house and monastery of the Society of the Atonement, native American branch of the order.

Permission to photograph the ceremonies is seldom granted. More than 100 candid camera fans among the 6,500 pilgrims attending, also snapped pictures of the services.

U.S. Tax Receipts Are Off Slightly

Reflecting a normal summer season's business at the box office, admission tax collections of the Federal Government in July dropped only to $1,618,813 from $1,624,453 in June, according to the monthly report of the Bureau of Internal Revenue, made public in Washington Tuesday.

Collections for July of last year were $1,633,088. The drop from June to July of this year, $5,640, however, was materially less severe than the decline in 1937, which amounted to $241,667.

Total collections for the current year to the end of July amount to $10,965,575, $187,527 under the $11,153,102 collected in the same period last year.

In the year ended May 31, 1938, Kansans spent $8,171,400 for admissions to movies, amusement parks and dance halls, according to state sales tax officials, who reported a total of $163,427 collected from such establishments under the 2 per cent sales tax in that period.

School of Research To Start Film Research

"The Cinema: Introduction and Survey" is the title of a 15-week series of film showings and discussions to be held at the New School for Social Research, 66 West 12th Street, New York, on Monday evenings during the fall. Sidney Kaufman, film commentator for station WQXR and an associate in the New York office of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, has arranged the series. The fall term opens, October 3rd.

A film or selection of films will be shown at each session followed by general discussion. Persons prominently identified with motion pictures will guide the discussions. Principal among the speakers will be John E. Abbott, Ernst Toller, Dudley Nichols, Paul Strand, Walter Wanger, Kurt Weill, Frank S. Nugent, John Howard Lawson, Clifford Odets, Rita Hochheimer, Howard Dietz.

Wobber to Visit Exchanges

Herman Wobber, general sales manager for Twentieth Century-Fox, plans to leave Hollywood this week on a tour of his company's film exchanges. He expects to arrive in New York about September 15th.

115 at Jubilee To Get Plaques As Old-Timers

A total of 115 persons associated with the industry for 25 years or more will be presented plaques at the Wisconsin Silver Jubilee celebration August 30th and 31st at the Schroeder Hotel in Milwaukee. The list includes exhibitors, exchangemen and projectionists.

The program calls for registration Tuesday morning at the Schroeder with open house at Variety Club headquarters and a tour of the breweries and theatres in the afternoon, also a three hour cruise on Lake Michigan the same evening.

Speakers scheduled to appear include Charles C. Pettijohn, counsel for the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America; W. Ray Johnson and Edward A. Golden, Monogram, and a member of the national advertising campaign committee.

Honor men, in addition to 50 projectionists, include: Charles W. Trampe, Thomas Saxe, H. J. Fitzgerald, E. J. Weisfeldt, E. F. Maertz, Otto Meister, Charles Koehler, George Frank, and B. K. Fischer, J. H. Silliman, Paul and George Langheinrich, J. R. Freuler, George Levine, O. J. Vollert, V. F. DeLorenzo, M. H. Brumm, S. G. Honeck, R. A. Reply Filed in "Nation" Suit

Treo Film Exchange of New York, Inc., the Esquire Amusement Corporation and Max A. Cohen this week filed answers to charges brought in United States District court, New York, that they exhibited "Birth of a Nation" without authorization. Also named as defendants in the action brought by Epic Producing Corporation were the Stone Film Library, Inc., Marion T. Stone, Major Film Exchange, Inc., David M. Sohmer and Skouras Theatres Corporation. In the answers it was commended that Epic was not the owner of the distribution rights. It assigned the rights, it was claimed to Major Film Exchange which had in turn assigned them to Marion T. Stone.

Isaacs Action in Loew Case Denied

Judge Thomas F. Noonan in New York supreme court this week denied an application of Philip S. Isaacs, as executor of the estate of Alice Isaacs, for an order permitting him to intervene as a plaintiff in the nine consolidated stockholders' suits against Loew's, Inc., Loew's officers and directors, the Bank of America and the National Trust and Savings Association, as co-executors and co-trustees under the last will and testament of Irving Thalberg.

At the same time Justice Noonan granted an application of the defendants staying Mr. Isaacs from proceeding further with his individual stockholder's suit pending trial in the consolidated action, which seeks to abrogate salary and profit-sharing agreements. Emil K. Ellis, attorney for the plaintiffs in the consolidated action, opposed the application.

The court referred to a previous decision of Justice Peter Schmuck who ruled on July 28th that no additional plaintiffs should be allowed to intervene since the number of plaintiffs was sufficient in the case. This decision was given on the petition to intervene filed by E. N. Grossman.

The defendants have served their answers to the new consolidated complaint. Examination before trial of Nicholas M. Schenck, David Bernstein, J. Robert Rubin, and others has been deferred to early in September because of the absence from the city of defendants' counsel.

Madge Evans Fights Tax

Madge Evans asked the board of Tax Appeals this week to uphold her contention that the cost of a tonsillectomy is a business expense and therefore an allowable deduction on her income tax return. The objection to this deduction and nearly $10,000 more in other deductions was made by the Bureau of Internal Revenue. The Bureau held that a tonsillectomy was a personal expense.

Bar Bank Night Cases in Tampa

Criminal prosecutions against operators of Gulf Theatres, Inc., in Tampa, have been prohibited by the State supreme court. The prohibition was put into effect until the court can decide whether Bank Night is illegal. The court previously had overruled a circuit court injunction against Bank Night.

Alton, Ill., city authorities have directed four local theatres to discontinue Bank Night.

Dominic Frisinia, president of the Frisinia Amusement circuit, Taylorsville, Ill., is at liberty under $1,000 bail awaiting a hearing on a lottery charge. The complaint was lodged by John Hughes of Edinburg, whose name was drawn at the Capitol theatre. Mr. Hughes was not in the audience at the time.

Essaness Circuit in Chicago has taken over the Woods Theatre building, effective immediately, and the theatre on September 4th.

Ken Whitmore and Bill Moore have joined Warner's publicity department in Hollywood as unit men.

IN COURTS

Court Denies Petition For Tampa Receiver

The suit, in which the owners of the land upon which the Tampa theatre at Tampa, Florida, was built, petitioned the court to appoint a receiver for the theatre, has been dismissed at the request of the landowners who stated that the theatre company had paid the $2,000 ground rent due for the months of July and August, and had placed in escrow the sum of $8,128 which was the amount of city taxes due, pending their endeavor to get a reduction from the city on this tax.

The land upon which the million dollar Tampa theatre was built is owned by George Weeks and the estate of James F. Glen, who leased the land for a term of 99 years at a monthly rental of $1,000 for the first 50 years and an increase the other 49 years. When the July and August rentals had not been received and city taxes were in arrears to the amount of $8,128 the land owners applied to the court for the appointment of a receiver to protect their interests, it was stated. The Tampa theatre is operated by the Sparks Florida circuit.

Warners File Answer To Tarkington Suit

Warner Brothers Pictures, Inc., filed an answer Monday to the suit of Booth Tarkington, which charged infringement of his literary rights to the character Penrod in "Penrod and His Twin Brother." The answer, besides denying Mr. Tarkington's complaint and raising several defenses, counterclaimed against the plaintiff for $18,750.

Warners claimed that in a contract made March 6, 1931, between the parties, which sold the motion picture rights to certain Penrod stories, Mr. Tarkington had represented that the stories were protected by copyright when, as a matter of fact, the answer continued, they had become part of the public domain.

Warners also contended that from 1921 to 1937 it had produced 12 Penrod pictures with the consent of Mr. Tarkington, and that the public had become "Warners-Penrod" conscious. Mr. Tarkington's course of conduct, the defendant argued, must be deemed his consent to the production of "Penrod and His Twin Brother."

Condor Stockholders Sue Executive Heads

Ninety-two stockholders of Condor Pictures, Inc., filed suit this week in United States district court in New York against Condor Pictures, George A. Hirliman, former president, Amadee J. Van Beuren, Michael H. Hoffman, Frank Snell, Albert Lieberman, Max Forst, David Brown, Harry Rothman, Glenn Stephens, Louis Atz and 30 other defendants, listed under fictitious names, for $49,300 damages for alleged violation of Sections 11, 22 and 22A of the Securities Act.

In addition to the suit brought by 92 stockholders another suit brought by 13 other stockholders asking for judgment of $12,951 was filed in the district court against the same defendants.

You Can't Take It With You

(Columbia)

Comedy Drama

It is barely possible that some showman somewhere hasn't heard about the George S. Kaufman-Moss Hart Pulitzer prize play that is rounding out its second year on Broadway with road companies pushing the total box office take up toward four million dollars. Such a showman wouldn't know that Columbia bought the screen rights to the play for $200,000 and gave its tandem academicians, Frank Capra and Robert Riskin, a wide open mandate to pour in enough more money to get that and the rest of the stake back with interest. Such a showman of course wouldn't be a showman, but even he would have a hard time failing to crowd his benches on the night when a beneficent Columbia salesman had cajoled him into unreeling the opus for his clients. They know all about it. And opus is the word.

Even such a showman, if such there be, knows that when Frank Capra and Robert Riskin put their curiously congenial talents together a film quantity of impressive proportions inevitably issues. No director-writer combination in the history of the industry has turned out a sequence of successes to match, by and large, their "Broadway Bill," "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town," "It Happened One Night" and "Lost Horizon." It would seem to be in the nature of things humanly ordained that one day these gentlemen will uncloak a kluck, but that will be some other year. Their 1938 collaboration was screened at the Columbia studio on Tuesday afternoon for Hollywood representatives of the international press, as tough an audience as can be convened on this continent, and it took them into camp in a body.

As in previous instances, notably that of "It Happened One Night," Columbia reached out into Hollywood and culled out of this studio and that whatever players a strictly unfettered casting of the picture called for. There is more than a little to be said, in the box office sense, for this policy. It is primarily a guarantee of artistic quality, which means a good deal over a protracted run. It also dishes up for the customers an unfamiliar alignment of familiar favorites, a nice piece of marquee literature.

In this instance this policy brings Lionel Barrymore face to face with Edward Arnold with James Stewart and Jean Arthur as their romantic descendants. It brings together under one title the eloquent H. B. Warner and the puckish Mischa Auer, the effervescent Spring Byington and the repressed Donald Meek. It combines with these the dancing Ann Miller, dignified Halliwell Hobbs, icy Mary Forbes, knowing Harry Davenport and a long list of others not commonly come upon under a single trademark. All that is grist for the exploitation mill.

The play, as newspapers and magazines have been telling the world for two years, pertains to a retired business man whose fun-loving philosophy is as unpopular with an unretired business man as the idea of their respective granddaughter and son being married to each other. The first business man has a house full of people who do what they want to do on all occasions, and like it, but the second business man needs that house for business reasons. A synopsis is no document in which to list the things that happen before this quartette and their practically innumerable connections get around to a companionable point of view. Most of these things are funny and some are sad, but all are intensely interesting as executed by players who etch their characterizations and a director who knows what to do with a truckload of superfire material.

The scene is New York and the time is the present. The dialogue is dated by nothing older than the Big Apple, a monologue on the relative merits of Communism, Fascism and Americanism, the last getting the decision, and the governmental attentions to monopoly. These are touched upon casually, incidentally, and no soap box oratory occurs. The point of the picture is stated in the title and proved more or less conclusively by what transpires on the screen. What transpires is, first, last and always, the important thing.

Fugitives for a Night

(RKO Radio)

Murder Mystery

The title of "Fugitives for a Night" gives little inkling of the characters or the background of the story presented in this RKO production. From the title, prospective patrons will have no idea that this is a story based on the inner machinations of a motion picture studio, a story which tears down some of the widely publicized belief that motion picture stars say and do everything credited to them in the public prints. Made under the title of "Birthday of a Stooge," the film emerges as a formula murder mystery, chief characters of which are film people.

In the cast are Frank Albertson, Eleanor Lynn, Allan Lane, Bradley Page, Adrienne Ames, Jonathan Hale, Russell Hicks and Paul Guilfoyle. Lou Lusty produced, with Leslie Goodwins directing and Dalton Trumbo adapting the story of Richard Wormser.

"Matt," stooge of film star "Nelson" and later for "Poole," is suspected of murdering "Tenwright," a film producer. After fleeing the scene of the crime with "Ann," publicity director of the studio, "Matt" goes to the home of "Poole," where all the other suspects are gathered by police authorities. There the murderer confesses.

While New York Sleeps

(20th Century-Fox)

Metropolitan Melodrama

This is another of those pictures about reporters and policemen who do not see eye to eye but it is not in any sense just another one. This one has a story that isn't told in the first reel, a plot that unkinks itself smartly just when it seems hopelessly ensnarled, a lot of byplay that is different than most and an abundance of dialogue fresh enough to have been written last night.

The cast is, as yet, undistinguished in the marquee sense. If Producer Sol Wurtzel can keep the Roving Reporters series up to this standard, though, and if the series psychology continues to click, these players will gain steadily in box office value. Michael Whalen's portrayal of the newspaper reporter is more gentlemanly but no less credible than most. Chick Chandler's playing of the photog is smart and potent. Jean Rogers gets along all right as the girl of the romantic complication and Joan Woodbury is convincing in a heavier role. William Demarest turns in a neat bartender, Edward Gargan an appropriate detective, Harold Huber an entertaining gangster and the others various performances to suit.

H. Bruce Humberstone's direction accounts for an easy fluidity of narrative. Frances Hyland and Albert Ray supplied a trim screen play based on Frank Fenton's and Lynn Root's original story, "original" being applied, this time, literally. There are a couple of songs in the picture, too, one by Sidney Clare and another by him and Arthur Johnston, which have more stuff than the plot allows them time to display, a heroic sacrifice of melody in the interests of melodrama and, of course, good for the film.

In common with other crook stories worth telling, this one has too much in it for effective synopsis. (There ought to be a law against synopses, anyway, at least against synopses of pictures that depend upon surprise.) To say merely that it's about a reporter who sets out to prove a suicide a murder and gets himself enmeshed in a series of murders and robberies, real and phoney, is to understate the theme.

Breaking the Ice

(RKO Radio)

Comedy-Drama

Showmen are quite justified in exploiting this as the best of the Bobby Breen pictures, the most plausible and substantial of the series. But the high light in it and the factor quite likely to stir up the most far reaching word of mouth advertising is the skating performance of five-year-old Irene Dare. This youngster is entitled to a place in electric lights from here in. She compares to no one but Sonja Henie and the fans will be making that comparison throughout the land before the film gets well into first run.

Edward F. Cline turned in a masterly job, using materials that could have floored a less gifted director. It was a neat enough trick to handle two juveniles without sacrificing one to the other. It was a neater one to achieve this without subordinating a distinctly unusual story about a Mennonite family nor discounting excellent performances by Charles Ruggles, Robert Barrat, Dolores Costello and Dorothy Peterson. Mr. Cline neglected no person or thing.

The screen play by Mary McCall, Jr., Manuel Seff and Bernard Schubert Froman, original story by Fritz Falkenstein and N. Brewster Morse, opens in a Mennonite settlement near Philadelphia, where "Tommy Martin" lives with his stern uncle, "William Decker." To earn money for his own and his mother's return to their Kansas home, "Tommy" goes to Philadelphia with "Terwilliger," an itinerant merchant, and sings in a skating rink. When he returns with his earnings he discovers that "Decker" believes him guilty of a theft. Search for proof of his innocence leads him and "Terwilliger" to a Washington museum and back again. After which he declines a tempting theatrical offer to return to the farm with his mother.

The film has five songs supplied by Frank Churchill, Paul Webster and Victor Young and Bobby Breen sings them in good voice. Miss Dare appears only in the skating rink sequences but they are long and she does just about everything anybody else has done on ice and just about as well as anybody has done them. Mr. Ruggles turns in a memorable character portrayal and Mr. Barrat gives a powerful performance.

Come On, Leathernecks

(Republic)

Service Story, Romance

The United States Marine Corps, often the subject for treatment on the screen, returns once again in this picture, which relates how an egotistic young naval midshipman, born to the service but set on playing professional football, is practically shanghaied to the Philippines. There through a series of events he comes to realize his future belongs with the Marines. The production has been well handled. Romance and comedy play an important part in the film.

The egotist is played by Richard Cromwell. Supporting him are Marsha Hunt, Leon Ames, Edward Brophy, who turns in a creditable performance in the comedy role; Bruce MacFarlane and Robert Warwick among others. The picture is based on an original story by Sidney Salkow and was directed by James Cruze.

The story centers around "Jimmy Butler" (Cromwell). A star football player at the Marine Academy, "Jimmy" is barred from playing in the big game of the year for breaking training rules. His father, a Marine Colonel, who had come from Manila to see him play is disappointed but leaves happy in the thought that his son will be a Marine on graduation day. "Jimmy" has other plans. He signs to become a professional football player.

"Hy," lieutenant and aide-de-camp to the Colonel, persuades "Jimmy" to visit his father on the coast. Later "Hy" tricks "Jimmy" into sailing on a liner bound for the Philippines. On the boat he meets and falls in love with "Valerie." "Colonel Butler" assigns "Jimmy" to duty tracing down a gang of gun smugglers. The trail leads to the plantation owned by "Valerie" and run by the head of the gang "Baroni." From then on to the end the picture is all action and includes a gun battle between the gang and the Marines.

I Am the Law

(Columbia)

Racket Melodrama

Edward G. Robinson here broadens and deepens his command of crime picture technique. This time he is a college professor who devotes his sabbatical year to serving his community as special prosecutor in pursuit of racketeers. Consequently he swaggers less and characterizes more than commonly. His performance is extremely convincing.

Mr. Robinson's vehicle is a story by Fred Allhoff which appeared serially in Liberty magazine. Jo Swerling's screen play retains not only a great amount of the detail but also the logic of the original. As produced by Everett Riskin and directed by Alexander Hall it comes across as a realistic treatise on the subject of rackets and their suppression. Quite possibly it contains ideas that certain communities may see fit to apply locally.

There is about the film something of the nature of "Big Town," the star's radio program, a circumstance showmen may care to mention in their billing. It differs, however, in that whereas the city editor of the air show cleans up one racket at a time, the professor of the film cleans up all of them simultaneously.

Chief among Mr. Robinson's many associates in the picture are Barbara O'Neil, John Beal, Wendy Barrie and Otto Kruger. A large cast includes many types, gangsters, police, etc.

In the story "Professor John Lindsay" foregoes a European tour to take charge of a civic crusade against racketeers. He does not know that "Eugene Ferguson," who poses as a civic leader, is the boss of the rackets. "Ferguson's" son, "Paul," is "Lindsay's" earnest assistant, unaware of his father's guilt. When witnesses refuse to testify against racketeers the special prosecutor is dismissed, but he recruits a number of his former law students to carry on with him in continuing his campaign as a citizen. After numerous and intricate complications have arisen, "Lindsay" obtains cinematic record of a murder in which "Ferguson" is implicated and, after writing a last will and testament for him, forces him to self-destruction so that his boy will be free to live an honorable and useful life.

Road Demon

20th Century-Fox

Sports Adventures Series

Second of the series of Sports Adventures in which the "Gambini" family, headed by Henry Armetta, is featured, "Road Demon" is set on an automobile race track, and all of its characters are linked directly or indirectly, with automobile racing either through their own desires or those produced by the plot. There are thrills and laughs which tend to lighten the melodramatic side of the story, and thereby is produced a meaty piece of entertainment. What the picture lacks in name values is made up by the ingredients of the picture—directorially, auctorially and Thespianly. This, of course, doesn't mean anything to exhibitors as far as getting persons to buy tickets, but it does mean a satisfactory salad with the main dish.

Exploitation campaigns can be directed only along one line—that of auto racing. The long association of auto races with the public—and there are tracks all over the country doing business—should make this an easy task.

In the cast, in addition to Armetta whose mere mention on the title sheet assures the audience of laughs, are Henry Arthur, Joan Valerie, Tom Beck, Bill Robinson, Jonathan Hale, Murray Alper, Edward Marr, Lon Chaney, Jr., Inez Palange, Johnny Pironne, Jr., Eleanor Virzie and Betty Greco. Otto Brower directed from the oroginal screenplay of Robert Ellis and Helen Logan. Jerry Hoffman was associate producer.

"Jimmy Blake," racing driver, talks "Papa Gambini" into financing a racing car to be entered in the annual classic, "Blake" wants "Ted Rogers" to drive the car, so that he can win the love of "Rogers'" sister. A crooked gang enters the race, but all is well at the finish

Hunting Thrills
(Paramount)
Sportlight Slant

What distinguishes the sporting stuff offered in this fishing reel under the banner of the Grantland Rice Sportlight classification is the manner and material used in making the catch. Two adventurous lads, equipped with nothing more formidable than a bow and arrow and using as a craft in their hunt an ordinary canoe, sail out into the Gulf of Mexico to spear a tarpon, a giant porpoise and the odd looking whip ray. Not content with above water hauling, one of the boys dons underwater glasses and goes below to snare some small fish. The shots above and below the water line are expertly managed and Ted Husing reels offer his accustomary crisp line of commentary chatter. The contest of the footage naturally calls for decided masculine appeal, particularly with that quota of the gender who pride themselves on their skill and daring with rod and reel.—Running time, 10 minutes.

The Courtship of the Newt
(MGM)
Fishy Romance

Just what the ichthyological specimen labeled the "newt" is or looks like only its erudite discoverer, Professor Robert Benchley, is prepared to state. And hearing the prof's zany and slightly muddled explanation of the piscatorial personality, the auditor may entertain not very complimentary but still well founded doubts that Dr. Benchley is none too sure of the identity or appearacnce of his briny creature. According to the Benchley explanation, the only distinguishing difference of a "newt" is its face and that resembles in a vague and picturesque sort of way nothing else but a bunch of grapes with a mouth. Following the descriptive passage of the finny figure, the text of the talk moves into more interesting and vital fields, a sphere of cinematic erudition blazoned by the lecturer in his away back when days of "The Sex Life of the Polyp." The romantic disposition and courting practices of the peculiar species is discussed with all the imagination and finesse that Mr. Benchley usually summons to his comic topics. The rich and sly humor of the subject cannot be sampled in any precis of Mr. Benchley's discussion.—Running time, eight minutes.

Bravest of the Brave
(MGM)
Historical Mystery

The titular encomium set in the announcement of this latest of the Historical Mysteries series is applied to the controversial memory of the French military expert, Marshal Ney, in whose honor Napoleon spoke them. The subject matter of sifting of the pro and con evidence of the past concerns the doubt that exists in some quarters as to whether the Marshal was ever executed for betraying the charge given him by King Louis XVII, to capture the Little Corporal on his escape from his exile at Elba. Soon after Ney's reported execution, an individual by the name of Peter Stuart Ney, a former French fencing master, came to America to teach school in North Carolina. Besides bearing a remarkable resemblance to the former Marshal of the Napoleonic armies, the school teacher entertained a personal admiration for the general as well as prizing an abundant fund of Napoleonic memories and trophies. Further evidence is revealed in the contrasting moods of emotion in which Madame Ney arrived and departed from the death house on the eve of her husband's execution, the personnel of the firing squad composed of the Marshal's former loyal soldiers and the failure to follow formality in seeing that the target of the execution was successfully hit. To back up this imposing array of fact, the production has been given careful historical research and technical care. The subject matter should appeal to the average run of audiences, particularly so to school and study clubs.—Running time, 11 minutes.

Silly Seals
(Universal)
Diverting

In a manner that should please juvenile audiences, a tiny seal in this Walter Lanz cartoon proves to his classmates at the North Pole that being playful brings its rewards. The seal refuses to devote his attention to learning about fishing and instead spends all his time juggling snowballs. He is chastised repeatedly by the teacher and finally sent home with a warning not to return until he is prepared to settle down to study. The juggling seal, with head bent low, is enroute home when he hears shouts for help from the classroom, which has been invaded by a polar bear. The expelled student hurries back, amazes the polar bear with his juggling feats, saves the day for the other seals and then becomes the teacher. Running time, 7 minutes.

Beauty Shoppe
(Universal)
Song and Dance

With a cast headed by the wellknown singing and dancing team, Buck and Bubbles, this two-reel subject employs a modernistic beauty shop as the setting for a vaudeville program of seven acts. The acts are well arranged and include Imogene Coca, who appeared in Leonard Sillman's "New Faces," Marty May, a former vaudevillian; Harrison and Fisher, a dancing team that appeared in the Ziegfeld Follies; Mae McKim and her Three Boy Friends, a singing group from the radio; Doris DuPont, a tap dancer, and Hildegarde Halliday, a character actress. The singing and dancing act of Buck and Bubbles is the highlight. Running time, 20 minutes.

The Little Ranger
(MGM)
"Hi-yo," Our Gang

Patterned after the by this time fabled feats of daring of that serialized and radioed gentleman, "the Lone Ranger," this kiddie jinks from the popular juvenile "Gang" group presents one of its funniest and cleverest comedies to date. The youthful spoofing on the western theme follows the mold of its model and is stocked with characters and cliches from the pages and prints of the wide open spaces sagas. Alfalfa is spotted in the central position of the miniature plot and plays the romantic youngster who, while attending a movie matinee, dreams himself into the heroic antics he is witnessing upon the silver screen. The situations are familiar but nonetheless smartly caricatured and thoroughly enjoyable. There is a lovely damsel in distress, a snickering villain heading a band of the dirtiest cutthroats imaginable and a hard-riding and quick-drawing hero to uphold the fair name of maidenhood. The takeoff on the adult activties from the western scene is managed by the children with amazing cleverness and naturalness. Addicts, particular the younger element, who deify their hill heroes may resent the barbed darts leveled at the sanctified self of their prairie patron but for the rest of the audience the burlesque on a familiar theme should prove to be moments of some rousing, good fun. —Running time, 11 minutes.

A Criminal Is Born
(MGM)
Excellent Sociological Document

Offering matter that should be seen by every parent and child, this sociological preachment on juvenile delinquency ranks high in the "Crime Does Not Pay" group. Taking the case of four lads to illustrate the contention that the criminal is not so much born an enemy of society as made one by adverse home background, the educational as well as dramatically entertaining lecture offers the stories of three driven to criminal careers by parental neglect and family feuds, while the fourth boy is rescued from his downward path by the kindly ministrations of a wise father. This salutary solution is made all the more striking when in contrast there is shown how one of the parents, too busy with the civic and social betterment of the community outside his home, is blind to the dangers that need correction in the life of his own son. Parent-Teacher Associations along with social welfare groups should lend their organization support to the exhibition of the work and there is enough of thrills to interest the average non-professional audience. Show it by all means.—Running time, 21 minutes.

Guatemala
(Paramount)
Travelogue

Introducing a new series of short subject travelogues to be known as Color Cruises, this first number from the group makes an auspicious beginning in the field of excursions to far off places. The destination of the trek is directed to the quaint and little known country of Guatemala. Contrasting the land's new and old ways of life, the itinerary takes the traveler in a visit to one of modern cities of the district and by subtle comparison to attend a customary market day in one of the back hill towns. It is in this portion of the excursion that the expedition attains the greater amount of color and effectiveness. Sights of Indian natives attending the mercantile business of the occasion, together with a final and pictorially striking glimpse of the people at worship carries arresting sight and sound entertainment. Tinting of the shots is done with a good eye for effect and the accompanying commentary is informative and well sounded.—Running time, 10 minutes.

Bulldozing the Bull
(Paramount)
Popeye, the Bull Thrower

In his Olympian career as knuckle boy, number one, Popeye has downed many a pugnacious pug and pup. The latest opponent to match might and main with the nautical fisticuff man is presented in this round of Popeye pugilism as a battling bull. The sailor gent, being a very nice person at heart and an advocate as well of "the be kind to animals" philosophy, is induced much against his will to pit his prowess against the fire-snorting bovine. At first, trying to use persuasive peace talk to calm the murderous intent of his opponent, Popeye finds his adversary quite bull headed and is, accordingly, receiving the worst end of the argument. After being tossed merrily around on the horns of his dilemma, Popeye is thrown the saving can of greens known as spinach by Olive Oyl and, thus reinforced by the stimulating nutritive value of the food, is able to show the steed the error of his charging ways. The cartoon pace is drawn in actionful style and the contest between man and beast should have the Popeye patrons chering loudly for their toreador hero.—Running time, seven minutes.

Unusual Occupations, No. 1 (L8-1)
(Paramount)
Interesting

Additional odd occupational activities are presented for amusement and amazement of the audience, varying from the lady in London who with her trusty pea shooter acts as an early morning warning for late sleepers, to a professional movie knife thrower. There are the ingenious methods of a gentleman in Texas in turning the shells of armadillos raised on his farm into practical and tricky novelty adornments, a lady from New Jersey who manufactures the world's most expensive dolls, an individual who supplies the films with all sorts of odd looking animals, a trainer of bloodhounds and two girls blessed with comely hands and limbs used for closeup shots to convince the audience that these anatomical niceties really belong to the glamour stars. In these days when a job, even an odd one, is scarce, the inspection of this quota of peculiar positions may even be instructional. Color and commentation round out the subject.—Running time, 10 minutes.

Tracking the Sleeping Death
(MGM)
Inspiring

Sketching briefly but nonetheless vividly the heroic work of two medical humanitarians, Dr. Robert and Mary Bruce, in their successful search to locate the carrier of the dreaded sleeping sickness, this subject makes dramatic by its compactness and swiftness of narration a page in the history of scientific research. Detailed are the departure of the crusading couple from their lovely and peaceful home in England to the dangers of an African veldt, the arduous trek through the wilderness, the opposition of the tribal witch doctors, the laboratory work spent in the campaign against the striking death and, finally, the revelation of the tsetse fly as the carrier cause. Technically and artistically, the miniature excursion into the lives of the courageous Bruces has been fashioned with competent care.—Running time, 10 minutes.

It's in the Stars
(MGM)
Cute Musical

When the fraternity boys and the sorority sisters determine to become scholars instead of romancers, they place an embargo on such extra curricular activity as "pitching woo." Johnny Downs and Eleanor Lynn romance, sing and dance nicely.—Running time, 19 minutes.

Yugoslavia Is Stable Market For American Productions

U.S. Films Nearly Half of Total Imports to Country in 1937

by JOHN LORANT

Yugoslavia spent 20,000,000 ($400,000) dinars on foreign films in 1937. The following list shows imports in 1937 compared to those in 1936:

	1937		1936
	Features	Shorts	Features	Shorts
United States	123	93	110	119
Germany	75	..	61	1
France	50	.	37	..
Austria	22	..	22	..
England	13	..	11	..
Czechoslovakia	5	5	4	..
Switzerland	2	..	3	..
Russia	1	..	2	..
Hungary	3	..	1	..
Italy	3	..	..	..
Poland	2	..	..	..
Sweden	1	..	..	..
TOTALS	298	98	251	120

What national production there is in the country, is mostly limited to the making of short subjects. The majority of these are not produced by private film companies but by the Film Department of the Centralni Pressbureau, a section of the Ministry for Home Affairs. The short subjects are partly travelogs, partly propaganda films. There is no regular Yugolavian newsreel. The Centralni Pressbureau occasionally makes reels of topical events for the benefit of foreign newsreel companies.

National Production Sought

Every effort is now being made to start national film production in the proper sense of the word. Prime Minister Stojadinovich has set himself to organize the regular and continuous production, not only of newsreels and propaganda films, but also of features. The beauty of the Yugoslavian landscape makes the country eminently suitable for outdoor shots and foreign film companies, chiefly German and French, have frequently come to Yugoslavia to make the outdoor shots of their films. Besides, there are plenty of talented actors who have so far been compelled to work in films abroad. The pictures produced in Yugoslavia would have a market in other Slav countries, such as Bulgaria, Czechoslovakia and Poland.

It is a curious fact that the center of the film trade is not the capital, Beograd (Belgrade), but another town, Zagreb. The branches of the American film companies are all in Zagreb, while Belgrade boasts only of one big film distributing firm, Tesla, which imports German films. Apart from Tesla, only small local distributing firms have their headquarters in the capital.

383 Theatres

There are 383 cinemas in Yugoslavia, 330 sound theatres and 53 silents. Belgrade has 23, seating 14,400 persons in all. Of these only five are deluxe first-run houses, all modern, recently built theatres. The largest is Kolarac, seating 1,000 persons. Admission prices in the first run houses range from 10 to 15 dinars (20-30 cents) in winter and 5 to 8 dinars in the summer months. These first-run houses have four performances a day; they show one feature film in a program. Successful films run for a fortnight. Subsequent-run houses show two features in a program at prices from 5 to 10 dinars.

The Yugoslavian public likes to see American films, particularly those of high quality. The most popular American screen stars here are Robert Taylor, Gary Cooper, Marlene Dietrich, Greta Garbo and recently Jeanette MacDonald. French films have greatly increased in popularity during the last year, particularly in the big towns. The greatest hits of the last season were "Das Indische Grabmal," a German film which scored a box office record of 500,000 dinars; "The Life of Emile Zola" (Warner), and "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" (Columbia).

There are two boards of censors, one in Belgrade, the other in Zagreb. Each board comprises twelve members, the representatives of the various ministrys. Nine films were banned by the censors in the last season, two French, two American, three German, one Russian and one Hungarian. The reasons for the ban were moral and political, or inferior artistic value.

DUBBED U. S. PRODUCT SHOWS GAIN FOR YEAR

The 332 films made in the French language or dubbed from their original versions and hence classified as for general exhibition during 1937 compare with other years as follows:

French Language Films

	1937	1936	1935
Made in France	111	116	112
Made Elsewhere	12	25	20
	123	141	132

Foreign Dubbed Films

American	161	154	193
German	20	16	25
British	15	17	19
Russian	9	2	3
Italian	3	—	6
Others	1	1	5
	209	190	251
General Totals	332	331	383

In addition to the 161 American films shown in dubbed versions 69 were shown in the restricted exhibition class, that is, in their original form in the comparatively few theatres in Paris and other large cities which specialize in such showings.

500,000 SEE 'RAGTIME BAND' AT ONE HOUSE

Attendance at Roxy in New York Breaks All Records; Third Week Opens Strong

Continuing its record breaking run at the Roxy theatre, New York, "Alexander's Ragtime Band" garnered $46,207 in the first five days of its third week and by the end of the week more than 500,000 had paid admission to see the film at the Roxy.

The estimated total gross as the picture entered its fourth week was $245,000. It was freely predicted that the run at the Roxy would extend at least five weeks and probably six weeks.

The gross for the first week was $87,490; for the second week, $77,237, and for the first four days of the third week, $46,207. The gross Monday was $16,986, and Tuesday $19,603.

Day by day attendance figures for the theatre follow:

FIRST WEEK

Friday	29,614	Monday	25,970
Saturday	34,149	Tuesday	26,134
Sunday	26,630	Wednesday	26,336
		Thursday	23,687

SECOND WEEK

Friday	23,908	Monday	21,192
Saturday	31,790	Tuesday	23,016
Sunday	23,735	Wednesday	22,726
		Thursday	21,721

THIRD WEEK

Friday	20,555	Sunday	21,232
Saturday	26,342	Monday	16,986
		Tuesday	19,603

Reports of record breaking business in other cities continue to arrive at the company's home office. At the Metropolitan, Boston, "Alexander's Ragtime Band" set a new high mark of $33,701 for the opening week, exceeding by $8,349 the previous record set by "In Old Chicago," whose opening week included the Easter holiday and Patriots' Day.

In Los Angeles, Grauman's Chinese and Loew's State, playing the picture simultaneously, reported a new all time record gross as the picture ended its first week. The total was $2,444 above the record set by "Thin Ice."

Opening at the Denver, Denver, the picture topped by an even $600 the previous record opening day gross for that theatre, set by "In Old Chicago."

The picture also grossed $600 more than the highest previous opening day at the Paramount theatre in Toledo.

An all time record was established at the Alvin theatre, Pittsburgh, when "Alexander" completed the first week. The picture's gross topped by $5,403 the returns for the first week of "Chicago," and "Steamboat Round the Bend."

Playing to a total attendance of 55,617 for its first week at the Stanley theatre, Philadelphia, the film hung up a gross within $700 of the two weeks total for "Chicago."

The first week of the film at the Apollo, Atlantic City, was 55 percent higher than the total for the first two weeks of "Chicago."

The picture is playing to record business at the Dennis Playhouse in Dennis, Mass., with attendance exceeding the capacity of the house.

The film set a new first day gross record for the Malco theatre, Memphis, topping by $572 the record set by "Happy Landing."

Graetz Protests Scramble For French Pictures in U. S.

The scramble by American foreign film distributors for French pictures has reached ridiculous heights and has created a terrible situation because inferior product is being brought in by distributors who think that anything French will go, in the opinion of Paul Graetz, head of Paris-Exportfilm, who arrived in New York this week.

Of 110 features scheduled for production in France this year, only 10 will have box-office potentialities for the American market, he estimated. Many of the French pictures being imported cannot make the grade in Paris and are shunted to the smaller towns, he said.

Another comment on the situation was given by E. I. Lopert, head of Pax Film, who returned from Paris this week. Mr. Lopert said the American demand has shot the price of American rights to French films to a prohibitive price. Mr. Lopert plans to make a picture here next year, with Seymour Nebenzahl, who made "Mayerling" and "M" as the producer.

Sign MGM Talent Contracts

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer has signed the following to new contracts: Joseph van Sternberg and S. Sylvan Simon, directors; Francis Wallace, writer, and Shepperd Strudwick and Raymond Kelly, players.

Loew Theatre for Cairo, Egypt

Plans for a 1,550-seat theatre in Cairo, Egypt, are being drawn by Harry Moskowitz, construction executive of the circuit. Loew houses also are being built in Puerto Rico and Adelaide.

THE RELEASE CHART

Productions are listed according to the names of distributors in order that the exhibitor may have a short-cut towards such information as he may need, as well as information on pictures that are coming. Features now in work or completed for release later than the date of this issue are listed under "Coming Attractions." Letter in parentheses after title denotes audience classification of production: (A) Adult, (G) General. Numerals following audience classification are production numbers. Dagger symbol indicates picture is of the 1937-38 season.

NOTE: The totals for running time are the official figures announced by the home offices of the distributing companies.

When a production is reviewed in Hollywood, the running time is as officially given by the West Coast studio of the company at the time of the review, and this fact is denoted by an asterisk (*) immediately preceding the number. As soon as the home office has established the running time for national release, any change from the studio figure is made and the asterisk is removed.

Running times are subject to change according to local conditions. State or city censorship deletions may cause variations from the announced and published figures; repairs to the film may be another reason.

WHAT THE PICTURE DID FOR ME

Columbia

HOLIDAY: Katherine Hepburn, Cary Grant, Doris Nolan, Binnie Barnes, Lew Ayres, Edward Everett Horton, Jean Dixon—A wonderful picture that was absolutely a flop at the box office. This picture has everything that one could ask for but Miss Hepburn does not click in our mid-west situation. Perhaps, her pronunciation is a drawback. Something is but we just can't lay our hands on it. Running time, 95 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

FLIGHT INTO NOWHERE: Jack Holt, Jacqueline Wells—Rather old story that makes a fair picture. Weak part for the star, however. No draw. Played July 5.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

MAIN EVENT, THE: Robert Paige, Jacqueline Wells—Pretty weak film. Bad business. Played July 12.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

OUTLAWS OF THE ORIENT: Jack Holt, Mae Clarke—It takes Columbia to give you a nice consistent run of program pictures. They seem to satisfy our week-end customers. Business fine.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

WIDE OPEN FACES: Joe E. Brown, Jane Wyman—Just a fair comedy. The stories given this star aren't really funny like they used to be. Joe's okay but he has to have a decent script and suitable production values to make the public want to see him again and again. Low gross. Played July 1-2.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

First National

AMAZING DR. CLITTERHOUSE, THE: Edward G. Robinson, Claire Trevor, Humphrey Bogart—One of Robinson's best pictures. Held up strong on last day which was proably due to good word of mouth advertising which the picture carried. Running time, 84 minutes. Played August 4-6.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

BELOVED BRAT: Bonita Granville, Dolores Costello, Donald Crisp, Natalie Moorhead—A nice little picture. Good for at least two days. That little Granville girl is going places. She puts everything into this show and the customers were pleased. It's too short. W.B. is evidently encouraging double features. Running time, 62 minutes. Played July 26.—M. L. DuBose, Majestic Theatre, Cotulla, Texas. General patronage.

HOLLYWOOD HOTEL: Dick Powell, Frances Langford—After reading some of the reports on this feature in "What The Picture Did For Me," we weren't expecting such a good picture. We thought this a very good musical and it pleased exceptionally well. However, it did not draw average Wednesday, Thursday business. Musicals seem to have loss ALL their appeal. We know they have been slipping for some time but the last six weeks have convinced us that they have slipped terrifically. Perhaps off the screen. Played August 10-11.—Bill Simon, Rialto Theatre, Saguache, Col. Small town and rural patronage.

PENROD'S DOUBLE TROUBLE: Billy and Bobby Mauch—Good kiddie entertainment. Ran this as a double with Autry and did very good at the b.o. Played August 2-3.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

SLIGHT CASE OF MURDER, A: Edward G. Robinson, Jane Bryan, Allen Jenkins, Ruth Donnelly—Robinson really "goes to town" here and this is no exception. There are laughs from start to finish. This one should be played for sure. Running time, 85 minutes. Played July 9-10.—R. L. Hall, Aztec Theatre, Van Alstyne, Texas. Small town patronage.

Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer

EVERYBODY SING: Allan Jones, Judy Garland, Fanny Brice—Another fine attraction from Metro. For some reason or other we cannot make any money with their musicals.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

GOOD OLD SOAK, THE: Wallace Beery, Una Merkel—A Wallace Beery picture always goes over big with us. This one perhaps is not quite as good as some of the other Beery pictures, but it is good comedy. As usual, Beery outshines the other actors in the picture and the picture is remembered chiefly as a "Beery." Played July 2-3.—O. Ingmar Oleson, Sons of Norway Theatre, Ambrose, N. D. Small town patronage.

JUDGE HARDY'S CHILDREN: Lewis Stone, Mickey Rooney, Cecilia Parker—I have been out of the "What the Picture Did for Me" column for nearly two years, but after seeing "Judge Hardy's Children" I just could not resist keeping my face out of it any longer. God bless you Mickey Rooney, you are a shot in the arm to a sick box office. Never in my experience have I looked on so many smiling faces as they came out. It thrilled me all over to witness this experience. Mickey, my dear boy, I don't know if you read this sort of stuff or not, but if you do, please mark in your little red book right now that you can lay odds you will be in the top ten for the next box office vote of the United States. You can bet on my vote. This picture beat 90% of the so-called top specials we have used this year, and Mickey, while you are no Gable, Taylor, Crawford or Powell, just the same you have something for the box office they never will have, kid you really have got something for any sick box office. I don't know what it is, but you got it. The balance of the supporting cast was great, little need to be said about Lewis Stone, for it is a matter of form and an open knowledge to all exhibitors what a great character he is in any picture he plays in, and orchids to him for his fine work in these series. All in all this is one fine picture for any theatre on the very best days. I think I will bring back all of this series for a repeat run. I feel I could get better results the second time than I did the first. Any exhibitor who has a chance to play this series and don't, is just plain nuts, and pictures like this can very easily prove what we need for sick box offices is pictures and not so much about million dollar advertising campaigns. This series started out at our lowest allocated rental, but with each picture it was pushed up a bit until the last one is allocated in our top price specials. Please MGM don't "road show" the next one. If you do, we won't make much out of it. Played August 14-15.—R. H. Ouellette, Dixie Theatre, Brooksville, Florida. General patronage.

LOVE FINDS ANDY HARDY: Mickey Rooney, Judy Garland, Lewis Stone, Cecilia Parker, Fay Holden—Another fine picture from this popular family. This one tops all the other Hardy series. Mickey Rooney will land in the Big Ten Money Stars for '38 or I miss my bet. We played this to the best Sunday business since "Test Pilot." Running time, 91 minutes. Played July 24-25.—Floyd Faubion, Long's Theatre, Angleton, Texas. General patronage.

NAUGHTY MARIETTA (REISSUE): Jeanette MacDonald, Nelson Eddy—Best picture this pair ever made. And to my surprise my patronage enjoyed it very much. Running time, 121 minutes. Played August 4-5.—Ouida Stephano, Grove Theatre, Groveton, Texas. Small town patronage.

PORT OF SEVEN SEAS: Wallace Beery, Frank Morgan, Maureen O'Sullivan, John Beal—It's too bad they have to waste Beery in this kind of role. Frank Morgan stole the show. Played to average Sunday business. Running time, 81 minutes.—Floyd Faubion, Long's Theatre, Angleton, Texas. General patronage.

PORT OF SEVEN SEAS: Wallace Beery, Frank Morgan, Maureen O'Sullivan—All the credit goes to Frank Morgan, in my opinion, not Beery. Can't understand why Metro put Beery in it. He deserves better roles, hope next one will be the "bad man" type. Everyone thought they were going to see ships. Also, the picture should have been called "Fatherly Love." Running time, 83 minutes. Played July 28-29.—Ouida Stephano, Grove Theatre, Groveton, Texas. Small town patronage.

PORT OF SEVEN SEAS: Wallace Beery, Maureen O'Sullivan—Plenty good. Wallace Beery may not have glamour and allure, but he brings them in. Frank Morgan is always good, Maureen O'Sullivan gives an excellent performance while John Beal is excellent in a very unsympathetic part. Only criticism I had on this one was why it was called the "Port of Seven Seas." I don't know, do you Running time, 81 minutes. Played August 5-7.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kan. Small town patronage.

TEST PILOT: Clark Gable, Myrna Loy, Spencer Tracy, Lionel Barrymore, Marjorie Main, Ted Pearson, Louis Jean Heydt, Gloria Holden—This one is tops. Excellent story and all star cast. Clark Gable, Spencer Tracy, Myrna Loy and Lionel Barrymore are a quartette that can't be beat but who is the perfectly adorable kiddie in the final sequence? Marjorie Main as the landlady gives a swell performance. Hope she gets a longer part next time. Ted Pearson is good and so is Louis Jean Heydt and Gloria Holden. Only one criticism of this one. We hate to see Spencer Tracy killed so often. Of course, he always rises up wise cracking for the next special but we would like to see him "live happily ever after." Orchids to Leo for "Test Pilot." Running time, 119 minutes. Played August 12-14.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

THREE COMRADES: Robert Taylor, Margaret Sullavan, Franchot Tone, Robert Young—This is one more swell picture. Robert Taylor has the best role of his career to date. The others give good performances also. Give us more pictures like this, Metro. Running time, 100 minutes. Played July 20-21.—R. L. Hall, Aztec Theatre, Van Alstyne, Texas, Small town patronage.

YELLOW JACK: Robert Montgomery, Virginia Bruce—A good picture of its kind, but no boxoffice appeal. Those that saw it commented highly. Running time, 80 minutes. Played August 7-8.—Ouida Stephano, Grove Theatre, Groveton, Texas. Small town patronage.

Monogram

BOY OF THE STREETS: Jackie Cooper, Maureen O'Connor—Here is a picture that was well received in spite of the fact that it was from one of the smaller producers. Jackie Cooper did very fine work but it seemed difficult for him to get tough enough for the part. Marjorie Main as the mother was outstanding. Drew very fine comments from our patrons.—H. J. Quartemont, Parkway Theatre, Milwaukee, Wis. General patronage.

Paramount

BLUEBEARD'S EIGHTH WIFE: Gary Cooper, Claudette Colbert—Believe Gary Cooper terribly miscast in this one. After seeing him in such epics as "The Plainsman" it is asking a bit too much to visualize him as having so many wives. Colbert did a grand job with what material she had to do with. Believe our audience is getting a bit fed up with sophisticated comedy.—H. J. Quartemont, Parkway Theatre, Milwaukee, Wis. General patronage.

COCOANUT GROVE: Fred MacMurray, Harriet Hilliard, Ben Blue, Rufe Davis—Very, very good. The best musical Paramount has made for a long while. Pleased as near 100% as any of them. It also was good at the box office, thanks to you, Paramount. Running time, 90 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa.

COLLEGE SWING: Martha Raye, George Burns, Gracie Allen, Bob Hope, Edward Everett Horton, Betty Grable, Jackie Coogan—This is rather silly in spots but our patrons seemed as if they liked it. This did quite well at the box office. Running time, 85 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

DOCTOR RHYTHM: Bing Crosby, Mary Carlisle, Beatrice Lillie, Andy Devine—Although believed to be one of Crosby's best pictures, "Doctor Rhythm" fails by a great deal. In spite of his drawing power here, "Doctor Rhythm" failed to do much. Paramount should change the cast once for Bing and let the

Burns 5000 Feet of Feature Film; Opens Next Day

WINONA, MISS.—"On a Monday evening, at eight o'clock, we had a film fire and burned 5000 feet of feature film," declared H. A. Davitts, owner of the Winona Theatre here.

"As everybody knows, 5000 feet of burning film is a real fire, and a theatre is lucky not to be closed for several days afterward. However, I called the film exchange and the Altec inspector, L. J. Berg, to see when I could open again. The exchange promised me a film by show time the following day, and Berg promised me sound by the same time.

"All I lost was three show hours. The sound was restored before the new film arrived. My Altec service agreement and R & R contract paid for themselves for several years to come."

public see some new faces about him. Running time, 80 minutes. Played June 29-30.—R. L. Hall, Aztec Theatre, Van Alstyne, Texas. Small town patronage.

HER JUNGLE LOVE: Dorothy Lamour, Ray Milland—A splendid picture and wonderful color. It outgrossed "Snow White" two to one in only three days, playing against four days for "Snow White." Opened on Sunday and was packed from 2:30 till midnite and the same on Monday and Tuesday went good. Don't miss this one. Paramount sure has the color pictures and hope they keep the good work up. Running time, 81 minutes. Played July 24-26.—M. W. Bretzke, Lyric Theatre, Kenmare, N. D. General patronage.

STOLEN HEAVEN: Olympe Bradna, Gene Raymond, Lewis Stone, Glenda Farrell—Not so good. Too much opera. When will the producers wake up and cut the opera stuff. The movie patrons don't care for opera.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

STOLEN HEAVEN: Gene Raymond, Olympe Bradna—A fair picture which got by on a Bargain Night. Believe the new player Olympe Bradna has possibilities. Running time, 85 minutes. Played August 10-11.—K. Spears, Roxy Theatre, Winlock, Wash. Rural patronage.

TEXANS, THE: Randolph Scott, Joan Bennett, May Robson, Walter Brennan—An excellent picture showing the conditions existing right after the Civil War in the South with the "carpet baggers." I put out a special four page paper titled "The Texans" on this picture. It's free for the asking to the first ten exhibitors requesting same. Maybe, you will get ideas from it. Book this picture by all means. It's box office. Played August 11-12.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

TEXANS, THE: May Robson, Randolph Scott, Joan Bennett—If you can't make money on this you'd better quit the show business. Just put the pressure on. Paramount's telling you right when they compare it with "Covered Wagon," "The Plainsman" and "Wells Fargo." May Robson steals the show but it definitely sets Scott as a star of no small caliber. It pulled July out of the red for us in a big way. Running time, 100 minutes. Played July 20-22.—M. L. DuBose, Majestic Theatre, Cotulla, Texas. General patronage.

TROPIC HOLIDAY: Bob Burns, Martha Raye, Dorothy Lamour, Ray Milland—Played this up big two weeks in advance. Business above average first day. Patrons very dissatisfied with this one. Surely, Paramount will put Burns in a good part before he hits the bottom. Running time, 75 minutes.—Floyd Faubion, Long's Theatre, Angleton, Texas. General patronage.

WILD MONEY: Edward Everett Horton—Pretty good comedy. Especially the last reel, it was a scream. Running time, 61 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

YOU AND ME: George Raft, Sylvia Sidney—Above average midweek business. No kicks and many said it was O.K. Running time, 90 minutes.—E. C. Arehart, Strand Theatre, Milford, Iowa. Lake resort and general patronage.

YOU AND ME: George Raft, Sylvia Sidney, Barton MacLane, Harry Carey—Notwithstanding some adverse criticism from our fellow exhibitors, we consider this picture one of the outstanding pictures of any program of the current season. Miss Sidney's dramatic ability was never better and Raft could not have been improved upon. Our draw was not exceptional but that does not detract from the outstanding performance of these two stars. They are exceptionally good. Running time, 90 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

Republic

CALL OF THE YUKON: Beverly Roberts, Richard Arlen—Gave this feature Sunday playing time and was not disappointed. This is a real down-to-earth picture. Beautiful scenery and the work of the dogs was wonderful. This is the type of picture that the public wants more often. Business was good. Hats on to Republic. Played August 7-9.—Frank J. Biberstein, Attica Theatre, Attica, Kan. Rural patronage.

CALL OF THE YUKON: Beverly Roberts, Richard Arlen, Lyle Talbot—Very good. The best animal picture since "Sequoia." The best recording from Republic to date. Running time, 70 minutes. Played July 16-17.—R. V. Rule, Gym Theatre, Beaverton, Mich. Small town and country patronage.

FUED MAKER: Bob Steele—Bob Steele always draws good here on Friday-Saturday and I believe he will in any small town. Running time, 55 minutes. Played July 29-30.—G. W. Barber, McCrory Theatre, McCrory, Ark. Small town and country patronage.

GANGS OF NEW YORK: Charles Bickford, Ann Dvorak—Believe us, brother exhibitors, we've seen major releases by the dozens that don't even compare with this. Not that it is a super-colossal epic. It isn't. But it is down-to-earth entertainment for the masses and equally well produced in every deparment as most major pictures.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

GANGS OF NEW YORK: Charles Bickford—Pretty fair picture. Running time, 73 minutes. Played August 2-3.—Ouida Stephano, Grove Theatre, Groveton, Texas. Small town patronage.

GANGS OF NEW YORK: Charles Bickford, Ann Dvorak—Nice midweek business.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

GOLD MINE IN THE SKY: Gene Autry, Carol Hughes, Smiley Burnette—One of the best of the Autrys to date. Pleased all and excellent business. Played this Sunday and Monday with "Stooge" comedy, Gang, cartoon, news.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

KING OF THE NEWSBOYS: Lew Ayres, Helen Mack, Alison Skipworth—A mild offering that seemed to please about 75 per cent. As a rule the recording on Republic Pictures is far below standard and this is no exception. Poor sound will spoil any good picture. Running time, 68 minutes. Played July 29-30.—R. V. Rule, Gym Theatre, Beaverton, Mich. Small town and country patronage.

LADIES IN DISTRESS: Alison Skipworth, Polly Moran, Bob Livingston—Our audience liked this. A good story, well made slapstick comedy. Good sound, direction. Fair.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

PUBLIC COWBOY NO. 1: Gene Autry, Ann Rutherford—Personally didn't think this quite as good as some of the other Autrys, but, as always, it drew well. Gene wouldn't be nearly as good a draw without Smiley Burnette. The customers like Smiley, his comedy and his various assortment of musical instruments. Played August 5-6.—Bill Simon, Rialto Theatre, Saguache, Col. Small town and rural patronage.

ROMANCE ON THE RUN: Patricia Ellis, Donald Woods, Edward Brophy—A clever little comedy melodrama that brought outbursts of laughter and applause. We liked it and I am sure it pleased 100%. The photography shows a marked improvement and the recording so far advanced that we could hardly believe this to be a Republic production. Running time, 67 minutes. Played August 13-14.—R. V. Rule, Gym Theatre, Beaverton, Mich. Small town and country patronage.

SPRINGTIME IN THE ROCKIES: Gene Autry, Polly Rowles, Smiley Burnette—Another swell western by this company which brings something new for the Big Four to copy. The girls quartette in this is something entirely novel and went over with a bang. Keep your eyes peeled for this independent to give us something that brings in the crowds. Excellent in all details. Running time, 56 minutes.—A. J. Inks, Crystal Theatre, Ligonier, Ind. Small town patronage.

SPRINGTIME IN THE ROCKIES: Gene Autry, Polly Rowles, Smiley Burnette—Very good music and singing by Autry makes me look forward with great anticipation toward playing all of Autry's forthcoming product. Played August 2-3.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

UNDER WESTERN STARS: Roy Rogers, Smiley Burnette—This picture drew extra well and business was good. Gene Autry is going to have to get in high or this new star Roy Rogers is going to take his place. My western fans seem to like him better. Running time, 65 minutes. Played August 5-6.—G. W. Barber, McCrory Theatre, McCrory, Ark. Small town and country patronage.

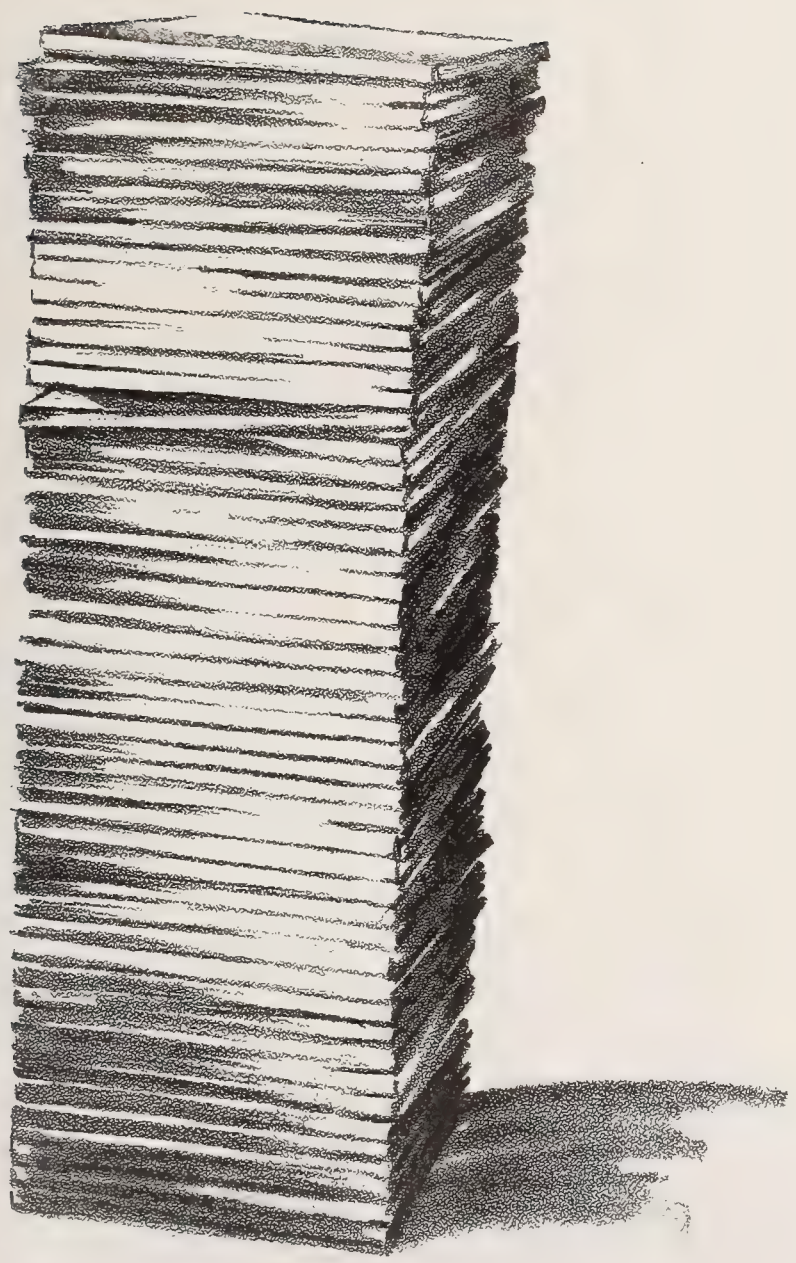
YODELIN' KID FROM PINE RIDGE: Gene Autry—No wonder Gene has been hard to get along without. He's got something and we exhibitors sure appreciate him. He seems to be the only one left that puts life in business.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

RKO Radio

CONDEMNED WOMEN: Sally Eilers, Louis Hayward, Anne Shirley—Good prison picture. Sally Eilers at her best. Print good. Recording not very good. Running time, 72 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

HAVING WONDERFUL TIME: Ginger Rogers, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Peggy Conklin, Lucille Ball—Very good picture. I guess little Ginger can make good pictures without Fred Astaire. Recording not very good. Running time, 79 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

HAWAII CALLS: Bobby Breen, Ned Sparks—Satisfied. The largest audience in a long time at the Arcade Theatre. We gained some telling publicity by publishing a picture of two former Sodus boys playing on the Honolulu beach with young Breen. Played August 6.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.



I'M FROM THE CITY: Joe Penner—The Penner fans all seemed to have a grand time and we had a swell business, so what's the diff if it is nerts. Running time, 68 minutes.—E. C. Arehart, Strand Theatre, Milford, Iowa. Lake resort and general patronage.

JOY OF LIVING: Irene Dunne, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr.—No "Joy" about this one. Very, very poor. No story and while the cast is supposed to be good, they certainly fell down in this one. The only good actors are the twins. Even Guy Kibbee, who is usually good for some hearty laughs is a failure. Didn't make film rental but at that, the box office was more than the film rated. Nothing but raspberries for this one. Running time, 91 minutes. Played August 3-4.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kan. Small town patronage.

JOY OF LIVING: Irene Dunne, Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., Alice Brady, Guy Kibbee—Very good but no business. Played July 10-11.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

LITTLE WOMEN: Katherine Hepburn, Joan Bennett, Jean Parker, Frances Dee—Can't understand why this picture went over so big. Never been in my town. Wish I never had thought of ever showing it. A big flop here. Running time, 111 minutes. Played July 31.—Ouida Stephano, Grove Theatre, Groveton, Texas. Small town patronage.

RADIO CITY REVELS: Jack Oakie, Bob Burns, Kenny Baker, Ann Miller, Milton Berle, Melissa Mason, Buster West—Excepting the dance sequences, this is poor cinema. Miss Miller shows excellent possibilities for film exploitation and the teaming of Melissa Mason and Buster West looks like a real bet. Their comedy dance was a hit of this show. Played July 13-14.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

VIVACIOUS LADY: Ginger Rogers, James Stewart—This proved to be one of the best audience pictures of the year. Many patrons complimented us on the show. Will please as near 100% as any picture in existence. Box office was poor first night but held up last two days. Very good. At end of run we had slightly less than average for this change. Running time, 90 minutes. Played July 31-August 2.—K. Spears, Roxy Theatre, Winlock, Wash. Rural patronage.

Twentieth Century-Fox

ALWAYS GOODBYE: Barbara Stanwyck, Herbert Marshall, Binnie Barnes, Ian Hunter—A nice little picture but no "Stella Dallas." Mostly conversation but the women liked it, so what? Men don't go to the show down in this cow country. They spend their idle time looking at the clouds, wondering if it's going to rain. Running time, 75 minutes. Played August 7-8.—M. L. DuBose, Majestic Theatre, Cotulla, Texas. General patronage.

BATTLE OF BROADWAY, THE: Victor McLaglen, Brian Donlevy, Louise Hovick—The McLaglen-Donlevy team is better than the old McLaglen-Lowe combine. This is funny even if rough. Mild box office. Played July 8-9.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

CHARLIE CHAN AT MONTE CARLO: Warner Oland, Keye Luke—Not nearly as good as its predecessors. Disappointing gross, too. Played July 1-2.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

HOLY TERROR, THE: Jane Withers, El Brendel—A good snappy comedy which the public will like, though it is not quite up to the standard of other Jane Withers' pictures. Heard nothing but favorable remarks. Jane Withers seems to please our audiences just as well as Shirley Temple. Both these young ladies are getting rather "grown up" for strictly juvenile parts. Played July 8-9.—O. Ingmar Oleson, Sons of Norway Theatre, Ambrose, N. D. Small town patronage.

I'LL GIVE A MILLION: Warner Baxter, Marjorie Weaver, Jean Hersholt, Peter Lorre—A good picture although nothing really outstanding. Should do a moderately good business for the average theatre. Baxter and Lorre very good. Marjorie Weaver also played her part well. Running time, 75 minutes. Played August 7-8.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

IN OLD CHICAGO: Tyrone Power, Alice Faye, Alice Brady, Don Ameche—A special. A small town box office natural. You can give this one the works and then some. Played August 8-10.—M. Bailey, Strand Theatre, Dryden, Ontario. Small town patronage.

KEEP SMILING: Jane Withers, Gloria Stuart, Henry Wilcoxon, Helen Westley—One of Jane's best pictures. I believe Jane is going places. Give her a good story and a good supporting cast and she should be tops. Running time, 77 minutes. Played August 9-10.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

KENTUCKY MOONSHINE: Ritz Brothers, Tony Martin—Very, very good to a good attendance. Running time, 78 minutes. Played July 30.—Ouida Stephano, Grove Theatre, Groveton, Texas. Small town patronage.

KENTUCKY MOONSHINE: Ritz Brothers, Tony Martin, Marjorie Weaver, Slim Summerville—We were agreeably surprised in this. Were afraid it would border on the "silly" but there wasn't a dissenting vote in the house. Fox has got something in that little Weaver gal. And, of course, Slim Summerville can always be depended on for a lot of fun. Running time, 85 minutes. Played August 10-11.—M. L. DuBose, Majestic Theatre, Cotulla, Texas. General patronage.

KIDNAPED: Warner Baxter, Freddie Bartholomew, Arleen Whelan, C. Aubrey Smith—This is a dandy picture but something about it kept everyone home. Sounded like just another gangster epic, we guess. Played July 15-16.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

LOVE ON A BUDGET: Jed Prouty, Shirley Deane, Spring Byington—The Jones Family series is popular here, but we ran up against the firemen's carnival and took a licking. Played July 30.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

RASCALS: Jane Withers, Robert Wilcox, Robert Kent, Borrah Minevitch—Very entertaining. Borrah Minevitch and his Gang are well liked. The old title "Gypsy" was so much more suitable for this story, we regret the switch to "Rascals." Low box office of late on this star. Played July 8-9.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

REBECCA OF SUNNYBROOK FARM: Shirley Temple—Another fine picture Shirley has made and the people sure show their appreciation at the box office. The only thing was there was not enough of Bill Robinson. People want more of his dancing and singing. Shirley is sure holding her own. Running time, 81 minutes. Played Aug. 7-9.—M. W. Bretzke, Lyric Theatre, Kenmare, N. D. General patronage.

SALLY, IRENE AND MARY: Alice Faye, Tony Martin, Jimmy Durante, Joan Davis—Drew fair business and satisfied. Played July 27-28.—C. W. Mills, Arcade Theatre, Sodus, N. Y. Family patronage.

SPEED TO BURN: Lynn Bari, Michael Whalen—A fair picture for the co-feature on a double feature program. It can stand up by itself. Suggest to single feature man to run it in conjunction with amateur show or something similar. Running time, 62 minutes. Played August 13.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

United Artists

ADVENTURES OF MARCO POLO: Gary Cooper, Sigrid Gurie—This is a fine picture, good in every detail and excellent entertainment. Miss Gurie made a very favorable impression. Yau can't go wrong on this one. Business average. Played August 7-8-9.—Bill Simon, Rialto Theatre, Saguache, Colo. Small town and rural patronage.

GAIETY GIRLS, THE: Jack Hulbert, Patricia Ellis—The big flop, it was ——. Running time, 70 minutes. Played August 9-10.—Ouida Stephano, Grove Theatre, Groveton, Texas. Small town patronage.

WALT DISNEY'S ACADEMY AWARD REVUE: Five Award Winners—A crackerjack combination of Disney's best cartoons. The name of Walt Disney fails to mean dough at our box office, though. Played July 15-16.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

Universal

"CRIME" OF DR. HALLET, THE: Ralph Bellamy, Josephine Hutchinson, John King—Universal is due for plenty of credit for this picture. It is swell from the box office and also from the movie goer's angle. It's this kind that keep little towns going. Played July 26.—R. L. Hall, Aztec Theatre, Van Alstyne, Texas. Small town patronage.

FRANKENSTEIN: Boris Karloff—This reissue of "Frankenstein" gave us plenty of business on Friday-Saturday. Draw good, print good, sound was bad in spots. But, all in all, I believe that this reissue will draw in any spot. Played August 12-13.—G. W. Barber, McCrory Theatre, McCrory, Ark. Small town and country patronage.

GOODBYE BROADWAY: Alice Brady, Charles Winninger, Tom Brown, Tommy Riggs—One of the biggest flops of the year. It seems whenever the title has Broadway or New York in it, it's a flop at the box office. Running time, 80 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

LETTER OF INTRODUCTION: Edgar Bergen, "Charlie McCarthy," Andrea Leeds, Adolphe Menjou—A box office natural. Bergen and "McCarthy" score heavily and with Menjou the picture turns out to be just what an exhibitor would expect from John M. Stahl. However, "Mortimer," "McCarthy's" stooge, steals every scene in which he appears. This picture held up very good for three days, which is exceptional playing time in a town as small as this.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

LITTLE TOUGH GUY: "Dead End" Kids—Pretty good. Get behind it. Running time, 85 minutes.—E. C. Arehart, Strand Theatre, Milford, Iowa. Lake resort and general patronage.

MAGNIFICENT OBSESSION: Robert Taylor, Irene Dunne—Played this as a leader for "Letter of Introduction" to build up John M. Stahl's picture making ability. Did better with this than we usually do with current product. It's a natural for femme patronage. Running time, 110 minutes. Played July 31-August 1.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

MIDNIGHT INTRUDER: Louis Hayward, Barbara Read—Another argument in favor of twin bills and anti block booking. We had plenty of walkouts on this one. They make pictures like this one and then wonder why the box office reports show a decline. The patrons nowadays want action, music and comedy plus a good story instead of a lot of meaningless talk. Running time, 67 minutes. Played August 5-6.—R. V. Rule, Gym Theatre, Beaverton, Mich. Small town and country patronage.

PRESCRIPTION FOR ROMANCE: Wendy Barrie, Kent Taylor—Another Universal B picture that did not please. The characters struggled hard with what they had but in the end it was just a lot of talk that did not mean a thing. Running time, 70 minutes. Played July 22-23.—R. V. Rule, Gym Theatre, Beaverton, Mich. Small town and country patronage.

SINNERS IN PARADISE: John Boles, Madge Evans, Bruce Cabot, Marion Martin—Very good entertainment. Properly cast with some of Hollywood's best actors. Marion Martin, the only new face in the picture, gives an outstanding performance which, in my opinion, tops the work of the others.—Charles Rossi, Strand Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

Warner Brothers

JEZEBEL: Bette Davis, Henry Fonda, George Brent, Margaret Lindsay—This went over fine with our patrons. They liked it immensely. Everyone we speak to seems to feel Bette Davis should play Scarlet O'Hara in "Gone With the Wind." They don't approve casting Miss Shearer. Played July 6-7.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. Y. General patronage.

OVER THE WALL: Dick Foran, June Travis, John Litel, Dick Purcell—Good Friday-Saturday picture. Entertaining all through. Running time, 62 minutes.—P. G. Held, New Strand Theatre, Griswold, Iowa. General patronage.

SWING YOUR LADY: Humphrey Bogart, Louise Fazenda, Frank McHugh, Allen Jenkins, Nat Pendleton, Penny Singleton—This Warner Bros. production fails to do much at the box office. It is fair, though. Running time, 72 minutes. Played June 25-27.—R. L. Hall, Aztec Theatre, Van Alstyne, Texas. Small town patronage.

Short Features

Columbia

BROKERS FOLLIES: Broadway Follies—Columbia dished up a nice musical. Thoroughly enjoyed.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

COMMUNITY SING, NO. 4: Barber Songs—Excellent. These shorts when exploited correctly can mean plenty of extra money at the box office. Plug it as much as the feature and watch your receipts jump sky high. Running time, 10 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

EL SALVADOR: World in Color—If Columbia continues with travelogues like this one, PitzPatrick better look out for some rivalry.—Harland Rankin, Plaza Theatre, Tilbury, Ontario, Canada. General patronage.

HEALTHY, WEALTHY AND DUMB: Three Stooges—A little weak but got by all o. k. Not their best nor worst.—C. L. Niles, Niles Theatre, Anamosa, Iowa. General patronage.

Educational

GREY OWL'S LITTLE BROTHER: Treasure Chest—An excellent short showing the beaver at work and, believe it or not, the way he builds a dam would serve as a fine example for the WPA dam builders. Very entertaining subject, especially for dust bowl dwellers. Running time, 1 reel.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kan. Small town patronage.

HOW TO DANCE THE SHAG: Arthur Murray and his "Shag" Dancers—Very satisfactory.—L. A. Irwin, Palace Theatre, Penacook, N. H. General patronage.

MUSIC FROM THE STARS: Treasure Chest—There is enough variety in this reel to make it entertaining. Excellent. Running time, 1 reel.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kan. Small town patronage.

WHO'S WHO: Two Reel Comedies—O. K. You shouldn't go wrong playing this one. Running time, 18 minutes.—Pearce Parkhurst, Paramount Theatre, Schroon Lake, N. Y. Small town and summer patronage.

WINNER LOSE ALL: Two-Reel Comedies—Very good comedy Got the laughs. Running time, two reels.—Gladys E. McArdle, Owl Theatre, Lebanon, Kansas. Small town patronage.

ALL AWARD HONORS ARE TOP HONORS

Surely, it's a grand thing to win one of the annual Quigley Grand Awards. Or, for that matter, even to be considered for that honor in the Grand Awards Judging. But if an entrant's efforts bring him recognition in the individual Quarters and if the Judging Committee fails to vote him one of the year's Top Prizes, is he then less a showman in his own eyes and those of his superiors?

By all means, he is not, nor is he so to be considered.

Elsewhere in this section is set down—and answered—a query which indicates a warm ambition to land one of the Grand Awards. The theatreman who asks is one of our best members. He has scored high in this year's Competitions. He has scored high in previous years but as yet has not been voted a Grand Award. The anxious Round Tabler now girds himself for a supreme effort. He's going to win or bust a gallus trying. Which is extremely praiseworthy and to him, the best of fortune.

Let us not in any manner dim the brilliance of a Grand Award. But let us not assume the same brilliance is meant to overshadow completely the accomplishments of entrants who do not win but display a degree of consistent showmanship that translates into hefty dollars and cents at their own boxoffices.

True, the industry rings with deserved cheers for the men voted the year's Top Honors. But there is also substantial recognition by superiors for those who finish well up. In the first four years of the Quigley Awards, the record shows a gratifying number of promotions made among the Grand Award winners. And the same record lists over 25 percent of all other winners rewarded with promotions, salary rises, bonuses. There is no reason to feel the results in 1938 will show less.

The primary purpose of the Quigley Quarterly Awards is to encourage more effective week-to-week showmanship and, by the same token, bring further recognition to the theatreman firmly wedded to the platform that this is a 52-week business, every year. Considering the keenness of these international Competitions, the man voted any of the honors in the different Quarters can well feel he is doing an excellent week-to-week job for which he may look forward to concrete reward, Grand Awards or no.

IT'S STILL "BOOM BOOM"

If half the population of a community gathers in one spot at one time to celebrate the opening of a new theatre—what's the answer? Well, the answer is there must have been a powerful job of selling—a whale of a barrage of showmanship, circus and otherwise, that again proved its effectiveness.

Noted elsewhere in this issue are the highlights of the job done in behalf of the new Comerford Theatre, in Wilkes-Barre, Pa. Of the city's 86,000, over 40,000 packed the Square in front of the house on opening day; over 60,000 bought tickets during the first four days of operation.

Coming at the inception of the industrywide drive for better grosses, the Comerford campaign may well serve more than one purpose. It should encourage theatremen in similar situations to do an equally upstanding job. It should also do much in winning over he doubting prone to regard the old-time "boom boom" and sockeroo in less than the most favorable boxoffice light.

Theatre opening, single picture campaign, industry drive, or what have you, there never was a time when forceful, imaginative, intelligent showmanship, skillfully applied, did not return gratifying dividends.

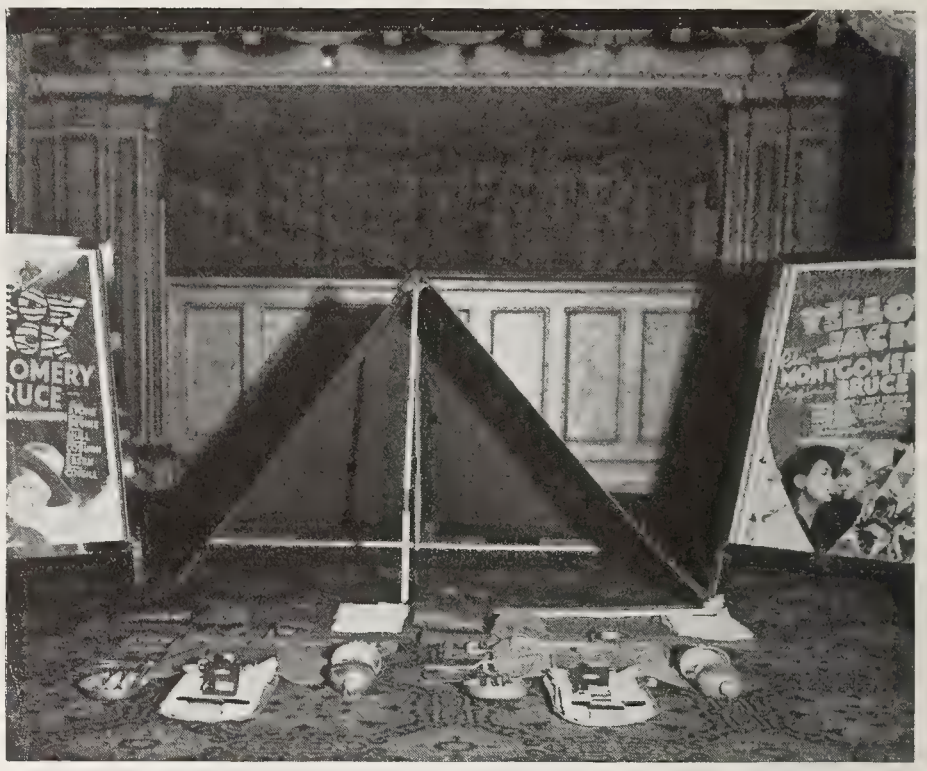
STEALING, HE CALLS IT

The main function of your Round Table we know by now and upon which its greatest usefulness is based, is to act as a clearing house. Member adapts ideas contributed by other member and in exchange sends along something in return. Whatever idea he finds in the pages, is his for the looking. There is no obligation, outside of that voluntarily assumed, to report one's activities, at not too infrequent intervals.

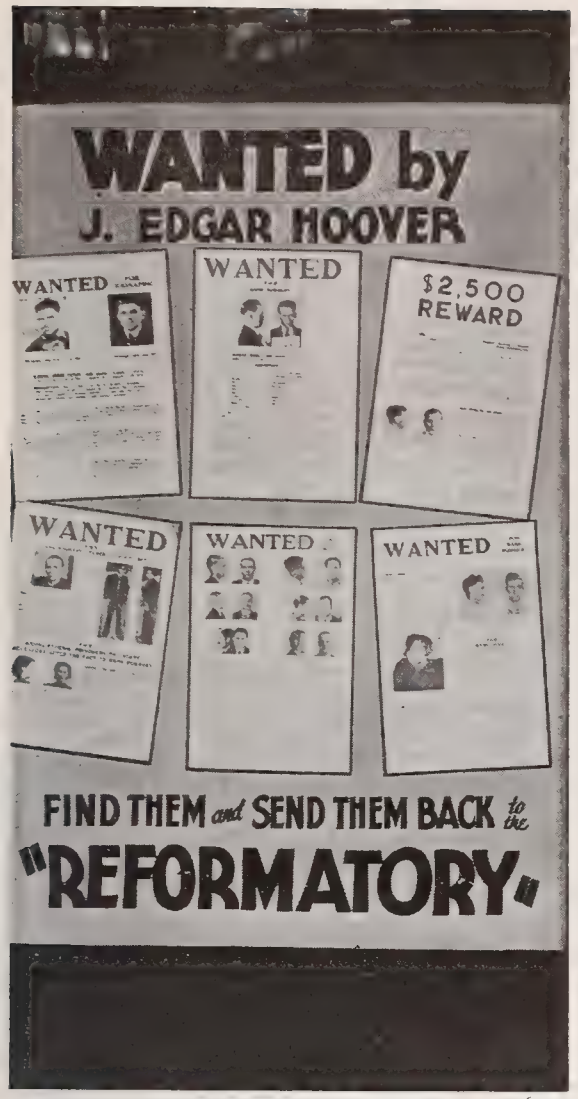
Ed Church, manager, New Sierra, Susanville, Cal., sends along a photo of his attractive front on "Crime School," with the information it had the whole town buzzing. The idea, he writes, "was stolen from a picture in the Round Table."

"Stolen?" Can it be the gentleman is bothered by his conscience?

A-Mike Vogel



For date on "Crime School" at the Fox Bruin, Los Angeles, Manager Dave Martin and assistant George Bierdemann, for lobby display, planted baby-costumed lad with guns in giant high chair to convey the theme of the picture. Immediately below the bally, 30 by 40 poster tied in stunt to picture.



Ted Kirkmeyer put together what he terms the Ritz Brothers Fun Still for comedy lobby decoration on behalf of "Kentucky Moonshine" at the Rio, Helena, Mont. All the paraphernalia used in still distilling was exhibited together with barrels and caricatures of the players.

Round Table In Pictures

Complete layout of travelling equipment used by army privates was utilized by Manager Norman E. Sprowl to publicise "Yellow Jack" at the Utah, Salt Lake City. Outfit included pup tent, full pack material and other items of interest. Set up in the foyer between two V-boards, the stunt tied the posters to the exhibit.

It was Bill Exton's thought that a series of "wanted" circulars usually planted in post-offices might do a job of inviting interest in favor of his date for "Reformatory." With this in mind, he obtained six of the circulars from the Department of Justice, pasted them up in poster form with the information that they were wanted by the federals, rest of copy tieing in with the title.

Termed one of the most attractive used locally for exploitation was the float on "Buccaneer" for the day-and-date showings at the Santiago and Real, in Santiago, and Valparaiso and Real, Valparaiso. Waxed figures of the principals featured the display credited to Benito del Villau, managing director.

Three local lads impersonating the Ritz Brothers caused a bit of excitment on the streets of Norwalk, Conn., with a bannered old-model car, to aid Jack Gamble's date on "Kentucky Moonshine" at the Regent. Car was geared to break down frequently at busy intersections for the amusement of onlookers.

Constructed by Tom Cleary, was the effective front on "Judge Hardy's Children" at the Princess, Montreal, Canada. The Consolidated circuit ad head employed giant banner across front with names and blowups of the characters and for the side panels, enlargements to point up picture highlights.

Addy Reports "Circus" Drive For Vallee Stage Date

To celebrate the first stage show in Asbury Park in six years a most comprehensive "circus" campaign was put on for the personal appearance of Rudy Vallee and his show at the Paramount, and for dancing at the city's Casino, operations of the Walter Reade organizations.

Reported by Herman M. Addison was a proclamation by the Mayor honoring the week of the engagement, Vallee receiving the key to the city at the City Hall. This was accompanied by a monster parade, with three bands, American Legion, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Boy and Girl Scouts, bathing girls, floats, city employees, bannered trucks and cars. Co-op ads from merchants welcoming Vallee were numerous and publicity was widespread.

The advance campaign included many outstanding features, such as giant banners on the Boardwalk, a first-time, says Herman. Another banner was strung across the street from the railroad station. All surrounding roads were posted, window cards distributed within 50 miles, and some 40 papers, daily and weekly ran stories on the date. As an extra feature, Vallee autographed photos were distributed to the first 500 at each matinee.

Phone Number Sticker

Since the Grand, in Kingston, Ont., Canada, opened in May, phone number of the new theatre was not included in the local directory, published in February. To get around this difficulty, Manager Tom McCoy, had small imprinted stickers made up with the phone number and details of house policy, distributed them from house to house asking subscribers to stick these near or upon their telephones.

Archery Display

Various were the window displays in book stores promoted by Francis B. Schlax for "Robin Hood" in addition to attractive lobby of archery display, including targets, easels, bows, arrows, etc. Parade of school children was held heralding the engagement, cross word puzzle contest, center of which carried cut of Errol Flynn was planted in newspapers, guest tickets going to winners and heralds plugging the picture were distributed locally.

TRAILER COPY SUGGESTIONS

Among those who realize the importance of engaging smart trailer copy is Kroger Babb, Chakeres theatres ad head, and a bit of what he put together for "Tom Sawyer" is set down below, relayed here by Joe Estes:

Telephone girls say,
"Number, Please"

Filling Station men say,
"How Many, Please"

Our Ushers always say,
"This Way, Please"

16mm. Newsreel Builds Business

The possibilities of the 16 mm. candid camera news shots for regular theater showing were seized upon recently by Manager D. M. Dillenbeck at the Rialto, Bushnell, Ill., who promoted a lot of local cooperation in making this a successful venture and to promote a local safety drive. First, some 20 merchants were secured to underwrite the cost, each receiving some sort of visual advertising in the reel. In addition to spotting a lot of local scenes and people on the street, a prominent high school couple, boy and girl, were used in a laughable love scene.

The candid shots were taken on a Saturday when the city was filled with visitors from the drawing area, many of whom were included in the pictures. In addition, a merchants prize drawing, a regular Saturday feature, was incorporated with a close-up of the winner. For further buildup, a p. a. system was used to explain the "shooting" the city clerk doing the commentating. To stress the safety angle, a fake accident was filmed. Private screening of a similar 16 mm. reel, made in a neighboring town, was shown to the local editors, and resulted in editorial praise in advance of the showing of Dillenbeck's pictures.

Most Courageous Doings Win "White Banner" Prizes

Before taking over his new situation as advertising manager at the Philadelphia home office, Everett Callow, then Warner Theatres district manager planted an inexpensive newspaper contest for "White Banners" at the Stanley, Camden, N. J., which proved highly profitable. Readers were invited to compile the five most courageous acts they believed transpired during the past year and with their "reasons why" forward them to the cooperating paper. Prizes were copies of the book furnished by publisher with autographs of the author and members of the picture's cast and publicity ran for five days.

Contest clicked well enough for a repeater, reports Doug George, in six other spots, all with the same resultant news breaks and reader attention.

Various Slants Help Sell "Jungle Love" for Murphy

For "Her Jungle Love" at the Rialto, Allentown, Pa., Dave Murphy promoted from Chase and Sanborn, tally sheets in pad forms which were distributed to 235 grocers within the trading area. Each customer's bill was computed on these and put in with merchandise purchased, backs of each carried picture and playdate copy. Fifteen three-foot standees were also placed in markets.

Music from the picture was played for overtures two weeks ahead with snipe reading "You are now listening to blank from," etc., etc. Spot announcements were secured on Chase and Sanborn's hour over WCBA-WSAN four weeks ahead and local jeweler's program featured songs first introduced by Dorothy Lamour.

Big Advance for New Strand Policy

Some 12 weeks ahead of the opening at the New York Strand of "Boy Meets Girl," contest was tied in with Station WNEW and prizes were screen tests at the Warner Studios in Hollywood on a promotion with American Air Lines. Two winners who were selected each week by the Station competed in the finals. In addition, the station also plugged the new stage policy at the theatre which opened with Ben Bernie.

To plug the stage date, two mimics impersonating Bernie and Winchell, and made up to look like the originals were stationed in the lobby tossing typical Bernie and Winchell gags at each other and plugging the opening attraction. The stunt was broadcast out on Broadway through the house public address system. Additional newspaper publicity was secured by the presentation of a huge cigar, especially made up for the occasion, which was given to Bernie on his arrival from the coast.

Wide coverage for the new stage policy was secured in a thorough posting of all suburban railroad lines for a month ahead. 24 sheets were used in strategic locations and at the theatre special trailers were employed well in advance as were setpieces in the lobby. The newspaper campaign both publicity and display advertising was extensive on both the opening stage attraction and the picture. Two weeks ahead all ads carried underlines and starting a week in advance, a series of special two and three column ads were designed to stress the stage and screen entertainment.

Paramount's Wagon Trek Plugs "Arkansas Traveler"

Paramount's special Ozark covered wagon drawn by mule arrived this week in Memphis from Little Rock, Ark., on the first leg of its 3,500 mile journey through the principal cities of the south, east and middle west in connection with the advance exploitation of "The Arkansas Traveler."

With the world premier scheduled for Little Rock sometime in October, Charles Mooshian, in charge of the covered wagon, is carrying special invitations from Carl E. Bailey, governor of Arkansas and E. E. Overman, mayor of Little Rock, to all governors and mayors of the various cities.

Arrangements have been completed whereby Mooshian will receive the full cooperation of all theatres, newspapers and automobile clubs. The Arkansas Automobile Club is the official sponsor of the trip and has arranged for the distribution of "Arkansas Traveler" stickers by state automobile clubs.

Dillenbeck's Kid Club

Reported as proving highly successful, is D. M. Dillenbeck's kiddie club at the Rialto Theatre, Bushnell, Ill. In addition to regular show, Dill has arranged for 30 minutes' entertainment for kids during which they engage in games, gags and various stunts arranged for previously by the theatreman. Promoted prizes are also awarded contestants in the competing games.

A QUERY—

In response to the following query which should also serve to clear up similar uncertainties in the minds of other interested Round Tablers who want to know, we again set down the manner in which the 1938 Quigley Grand Awards winners are to be determined. The query:

"Does one have to compete in all the four Quarters in order to win a Grand Award? For instance, I scored high in the First Quarter. In the Second Quarter, for reasons beyond my control, I entered nothing, but am back in competition for the Third Quarter and the Fourth. If I score high in the remaining Quarters, will I still have the opportunity of winning one of the Grand Awards?"

The rulings of the 1938 Awards answer the member's query as follows:

"Entrants will all start from scratch in each quarter. Winners of the annual Grand Awards will be selected from among contestants making the highest scores over the four Quarters of the year."

Which means that entrants landing most often among the winners of Plaques, Citations, First and Honorable Mentions during the entire year of the Competitions will be eligible for the final judging to select the Grand Award winners. At the same time, that does not necessarily mean an entrant who fails to score in every Quarter but one will not be considered in the Final Judging. That obviously depends upon the quality of his entries and calibre of his Awards—Plaques, Citations, First and Honorable Mentions—he is voted in the Quarters in which he is represented.

The Third Quarter covers the period from July 1st to September 30th. All contributions forwarded to the Round Table executed between these two dates, including single exploitations, institutional campaigns, as well as complete campaigns on single pictures are eligible for the Third Quarter Awards.

"Merrie Movie Month" Booklet Issued by Craft

What he chose to call his "Merrie Movie Month of May booklet" was a neat idea turned out by Bill Craft, Capitol Theatre, Victoria, Australia, to advertise his pictures to be played during that month. Novel twist was the way each merchant's ad was handled. Three line rhymes relative to the type of business advertised was run. To those submitting best completed jingle, guest tickets were awarded.

To plug his date of "Farewell Again," Craft covered his mailing list with a specially endorsed letter going out over his signature, carrying picture copy, playdates.

"Quick-Quiz" Clicks

Found profitable for the past few months by Manager Jesse L. Lausman, Hill-top, Louisville, Ky., is what he terms a "Quick-Quiz," a card containing a number of queries and clues regarding the coming show. For instance, patrons are asked to name the coming attraction, the question followed by a number of clues to aid contestants. Passes are given as prizes and coupon attached for answers, names and addresses. Lausman recommends the idea especially for neighborhood theatres with little regular patronage.

Kid Club Helps Sell "Zorro Rides Again"

In connection with his serial "Zorro Rides Again," Bob Griffith, Plaisance Theatre, Chicago, Ill., formed a kid club for which he issued membership cards which were punched each week. All kids attending entire serial were admitted free to the last show. Promoted bars of candy were also given members each week with extra prize going to those bringing in new members.

Also reported as proving entertaining for the kids was hiring of local ventriloquist, who was billed as Charlie McCarthy's cousin. Griffith says his club membership just jumped a couple of hundred from the beginning of the season to this writing.

Fifth Annual June Wedding on Stage Nets Top Publicity

by BILL BELL
Ad Mgr., Majestic, Houston, Texas

If you were to ask Houstonians which local theatrical event stands out above all the rest over a period of the year nine out of every ten would tell you "The June Bride Wedding at the Majestic."

From the very start this bit of promotion for the theatre has been a tremendous event. The theatre does everything humanly possible to make it so. The one held this year at a special Saturday midnight show was the fifth annual wedding. We have never failed to fill every seat and all the spares we can place in the aisle and offsets.

Fully aware that several cities have staged these events and failed, we account for our success by the dignity with which it is sold and staged. Consequently an air of awe surrounds the event here. Everyone in the audience acts as though the bride might be his own sister. Before the ceremony the minister comes to the front of the stage and makes a little talk, the substance of which is to remind everyone of the sacredness of the event. After that anyone that would have made a noise would seem like a heel.

Tieup Nets 11 Free Pages

The working plan is this:

We tie up with the Houston Chronicle, which starts running publicity one month in advance. The first three stories are on page one. There is a story each day, always long ones. They tie up various merchants in the event. The merchant buys advertising space and furnishes a gift to the bride and groom. The gifts are displayed in the large mezzanine two weeks before the wedding. Each merchant gets a tie-up story in the Chronicle. The day before the wedding the paper comes out with an eight-page section dedicated fully to the wedding.

All the theatre does is supply the stage setting, a very small ad in the section, and run trailers and lobby set pieces.

The tie-up in June netted us 1,879 column inches of free space, which establishes a record here for any one event. This is equal to more than 11 full pages of free space.

Utilities Company Aids on "Merrily"

Through cooperation of local gas company, Clayton Tunstill, Malco Theatre, Owensboro, Ky., secured special announcements on "Merrily We Live" over their half hour radio program week ahead of opening. Company also imprinted line reading "See the modern all gas kitchen as shown in," etc., on all gas bills mailed out ahead and during run of picture. Range was also displayed in lobby during run.

For his street bally, Clay planted boy dressed like hobo and girl in silks in old Ford painted with funny gags; couple toured city; teaser campaign was planned and attractive comic lobby prepared.

DISPLAY ADS ON NEXT PAGE

Top, left: Double use of title with reverse as border to spot half-tone below, was one of the devices employed by Harry Botwick to sell his date on "The Texans" at the State, Portland, Me. Body of space was given over to the see-and-thrill copy which pointed up what the picture contained and was so done to make sure the picture would "not be sold short," says Botwick. Cut at top right and second-feature box below were placed to give the layout sufficient balance. Size: 90 lines on 2 col.

Center: Seeking an advertising slant entirely apart from the usual newspaper display, the Warner Bros. eastern advertising department conceived the idea of a first-time personal picture recommendation from the pen of Jack Warner, studio head, in behalf of "Four Daughters" at the Music Hall. Centered in four columns full, the all-type ad proved a veritable sock.

Top, right: The first western picture to play at the de luxe Strand, Louisville, Ky., "Under Western Stars" was given a dress-up advertising treatment with the incorporation of outstanding press book ads of this nature from other sources in addition to those in the Republic press book, reports Manager A. J. Kalberer, crediting Miss Eugenia Johnson, theatre artist, for the layout. To take the date out of the conventional "horse opery" classification, scenic half-tone was employed at top, with copy panel comparing the picture with other top outdoor attractions. Size: 130 lines on 3 col.

Center, right: The two one-columns here shown are part of Charley Schlaifer's campaign on "Algiers" at the United Artists, San Francisco, emphasizing his thought of simplicity of design and short selling lines that catch the eye. Although Boyer is the main selling angle, note use of box at top to put over Hedy Lamarr as "the talk of the town."

Bottom, right: Credited by Tom Steeles, Fox Midwest manager, Hutchinson, Kan., for producing the best week-end business in three months, layout here is one of the campaigns to stress the "championship match for the world's junior laugh-weight title." Copy followed pattern of a fight program, all of which furthered Steele's thought of stressing the equal value of his double bill. Size: 110 lines on 3 col.

Dallas Promotes Arkansawyer Day to Plug Picture

Since the east central section of Oklahoma, in which Holdenville is located, is populated with folks who originated in Arkansas, it was David Dallas' idea to aid in the promotion of an Arkansawyers' Reunion and Bob Burns Day as a means of publicising "Radio City Revels" at the Grand Theatre. With this in mind, Dallas tied in the Chamber of Commerce, local prominents and newspaper to work with him. Money to put the event over was immediately forthcoming, the publicity committee covered Oklahoma and Arkansas papers with material, the United Press cooperated, and station KADA made statewide announcements. A special newspaper edition was the publicity highlight and Dallas himself made trips to neighboring cities to plug the celebration.

Arriving in Holdenville for the party, visitors registered at special booths, were given identification badges that included picture copy and also received special programs. Among the doings was a colorful parade with marchers in costume representing the old days. Six bands provided the music. American Legion furnished color guard and there were representations from Boy Scouts, C.C.C. Camps, among others. The city was decorated, merchants wore overalls. Dallas made movies of the entire program and ran the reel the following week, advertising it widely.

Theatre Float Wins Prize

Prizes were given for the best floats, among which was one from the theatre advertising the picture. For bally, David filled five wagons with visitors, driven by ox teams, banners announcing they were Bob Burns' kinfolk on their way to see the picture. Three days ahead, the personnel of all the theatres supervised by the Round Tabler were dressed in overalls or gingham dresses.

Many of the events were sponsored by or put on at the theatre, such as old-time square dances, largest family and ugliest man contests on stage. Featured was prevue of the picture. Special invitations were presented to aunt and uncle of the star, governor and other state dignitaries. Windshield stickers, window cards and heralds were distributed through the trade territory and Dallas arranged for his artist to paint comic figures, play dates and theatre copy on downtown windows.

Ties In with Election

With his city, county and state recently in the throes of election campaigns, J. R. Preddy, Orpheum Theatre, Waco, Texas, decided to bring out his own candidate. Playing "A Slight Case of Murder" at the time, Preddy secured favored spots and along with other campaign cards, put up his own offering as his selection, Edward G. Robinson, who stood for fun, and gloom chasing. On opening and following day theatreman had girls wearing large white sheriff hats distribute smaller cards bearing the same message.

SOME NEWSPAPER ADS

DNESDAY, AUGUST 17, 1938.

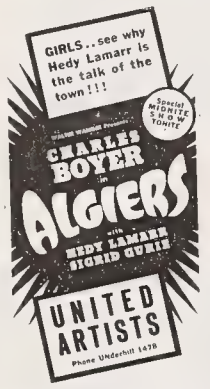
"I have seen 'Four Daughters'

★ For the first time in thirty-three years of motion picture production, I am taking this means of reaching the public. My business is making pictures, not advertising them. Only something remarkable, something truly unique, would lead me so far afield.

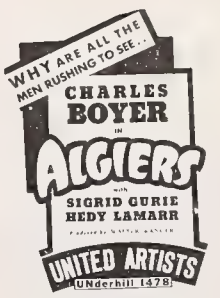
★ Tomorrow, at Radio City Music Hall, a new motion picture will be shown to the public for the first time. That picture is "FOUR DAUGHTERS"—a picture destined to fulfill every promise the motion picture industry has ever made to the public; a picture that in its humanity and greatness will prove forever unforgettable.

★ "FOUR DAUGHTERS" sprang from the brain of warm-hearted, great-souled FANNIE HURST, whose "Humoresque", "Back Street" and "Imitation of Life" stand among screenland's milestones. To this, her greatest novel, the screen has given vivid stature that cold type could never capture, a thrilling sincerity seldom experienced.

★ "FOUR DAUGHTERS" brings to the screen, in addition to a cast of seasoned excellence, three young players—Priscilla Lane, John Garfield and Jeffrey Lynn. We believe that you, after seeing them, will make them stars by your acclaim. Miss Lane's rise has been quick; her brilliance in this picture is unquestionable. John Garfield, already known to New York playgoers, wins rank with Hollywood's topmost stars by virtue of a truly magnificent performance. The personality and romantic glamor of Jeffrey Lynn insures for him, to my mind, a future equally lustrous.



★ Every person, without exception, who has seen this picture at previews, has taken it straight to his heart. Its inspired performances, its soul-stirring beauty, its heart-warming simplicity all stamp it with the hallmark of true greatness. Proud as I was of "Pasteur", "Anthony Adverse", "The Life of Emile Zola" and "Robin Hood" in their day, I am prouder, I believe, of "FOUR DAUGHTERS".



★ To me, it is the climax of a career. To Miss Lane, Mr. Garfield and Mr. Lynn, it is the beginning of a glorious new one. To you, it is a picture that should be seen, must be seen, will be seen by every man, woman and child in this great city.

With all sincerity,

J. C. JENKINS—HIS COLYUM

Neligh, Nebraska

Dear Herald:

Well, we are back at the "Gateway to the West" and we found everything all right except that some hammerhead left the gate open and the cows got out, but then, that's the way it goes when they employ an irresponsible gate keeper. Doggone the doggone luck anyhow.

We have visited theatres almost nightly, all over this mid-western country, for twelve years, and while we have see some bad pictures, compared to many good ones, we have yet to see a picture that wasn't worth the price of admission. So, bad pictures isn't altogether the cause of bad business. People can't go to pictures unless they have money and they can't get money unless they have something to sell to get it. That's as plain as the horns on a Texas bull.

Expert writers tell us that we are "coming out of the woods." We are glad to learn this, for we have been in the woods for a long while and the underbrush still seems thick.

A little squib in the paper says that a torch singer had appendicitis and she objected to an operation for fear the scar would mar her figure. Gee whiz, we never knew they showed their figure that far down.

Denver, Colorado, boasts that she is the highest city in the United States, and she is, just an even mile up. She also boasts of having no slum districts, and that's right too, but why should she, with Harry Huffman operating her theatres and Henry Fridell managing the MGM film exchange? With those two boys a city could boast of anything.

We have put poisoned bran around our garden nine times and still we've got oodles of hoppers, 'pears like nothing will kill these durned critters.

We read in the paper that Tombstone, Arizona, has been offered, "lock, stock and barrel," to some film company as a basis for making western pictures, but we'll betcha they reserved the Bird Cage theatre and the Boothill Cemetery. The Boothill Cemetery, you know, has a population of one hundred and sixty, all of whom "died with their boots on." Ride 'em, cowboy.

Bob Smith of Mission, Texas, writes us that he has taken over the Cactus theatre at Falfurrias. Bob has a lot of theatres down there.

Out here in Nebraska we have the primary system for nominating candidates for office, and we have sixteen candidates for the office of sheriff, and the biggest scalawag in the bunch might get the nomination. In theory, the primary system looks to be all right, but in practice it borders very closely on lunacy.

The National Fish Liars Association (incorporated) has sent us a beautifully embossed diploma. We are going to request them to send one to J. C. Janning of Brownsville, Texas, and to H. J. Longaker of Glenwood, Minnesota, as both of these boys have graduated, and we will also request one for H. G. Tettmund of Chandler, Oklahoma.

California boasts of her climate and sunkissed oranges. Nebraska yells her head off about the "White Spot." Minnesota hollers about her ten thousand lakes, Iowa blows about her tall corn, but South Dakotans don't have to yell about anything except Clint and Bess Robins of the Hot Springs theatre, Leo Peterson's Elks theatre at Rapid City and Sherm Fitch, RKO manager at Sioux Falls.

Kansas prides herself on being the Jayhawk state. Jevver see a jayhawk? Well a jayhawk is a bird that is a cross between a pelican and a buzzard. It has a head and bill like a dodo bird and it looks like it had swallowed a bale of hay. It lays its eggs in the dust bowl and the young birds feed on sunflowers and sunshine, but she's a great state at that. Wyoming don't have a whole lot to blow about except the Yellowstone Park, Hell's Half Acre, Squaw Teate Buttes and Mr. and Mrs. Jung and their Glenrock theatre, but then that's aplenty. Oh yes, she has some shelterbelts, too.

Complete Historical Film

A four reel historical film around the life of George Washington has been completed by Courier Productions for the Virginia Conservation Commission. The film will be shown in Virginia schools and at the World's Fair next year. The company is operated by Fred Waller, formerly Paramount short subject producer; Harold McCracken, who was with Van Beuren, and G. E. Hendee. The studio is now working on several commercial short subjects.

Industrial Series Complete

West Coast Sound Service Studios, Inc., New York, has completed production of five sound pictures dealing with Eveready Prestone anti-freeze. The pictures are designed for showing to the personnel of automobile service stations.

Aluminum Picture Finished

"Aluminum-Mine to Metal," an educational picture produced by the Jam Handy organization for the Aluminum Corporation of America, has just been released. Previews of the production are being held in the Aluminum company's organization.

RKO Radio has taken an option on the services of William Seiter to direct a feature picture within a year. Mr. Seiter is director of RKO's "Room Service" which is now in production.

SMASH!

SMASH! Roaring across the screen, thundering into your heart . . . the greatest picture climax ever filmed . . . the crash of George Raft's ship against the mighty iceberg in Paramount's "SPAWN OF THE NORTH."

SMASH! An avalanche of praise . . . from all over the country as critics pour their hearts out on paper to tell the world Paramount's "SPAWN O[illegible] NORTH" is "A Showman's Dream Come True," "Greatest Action Picture,"

SMASH! A torrent of money flooding the coffers of the Paramount Theatre, Seattle, as crowds break records, to laugh, to cry, to cheer and cheer again the picture they call their greatest experience in the theatre, Paramount's
